SPAIN MAY REGAIN SEAT ON COUNCIL

City Won't Raise Its Offer For Gas Plant

Aldermen Stand by Price

Can't Recommend More Than $300,000 To Citizens For Vote.

HYDRO ASKS $360,000.

Ald. Stocker Wants List Of Extras On Reid Street Paving Contract.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission will be advised that $300,000 is the highest price the council can recommend to the citizens for the gas plant.

This was decided last night by the City Council.

"I think the Council was of the opinion that it would be justified in submitting a proposition to the people recommending the purchase of the gas plant at $300,000. I do not think we would be justified in recommending a higher price. I think we should let the matter drop," declared Ald. Ackerman when the matter was brought up.

Ald. Phelan moved that the Hydro be so advised.

"The more I think of the matter, the more I am convinced that we should own the plant," said Ald. Hamilton. "Don't you think we should get an opinion of the state of the plant and on the future of the gas business? I'd like to see us get the plant. I think the time is coming when we will need it."

"Mr. Gaby told us there were only two gas experts in the province," said Ald. Greene, "and both had valued the plant, the lowest at $365,000, to which price the Hydro is adhering. It would be a splendid thing to have the plant, and if we are considering the matter seriously we should get such an opinion. It seems to me that it was almost an insult to offer them $300,000, and if we can't go higher, the matter is lost."

"We were agreed on $300,000 as the highest figure, and we should so advise them," recalled Ald. Phelan.

"I think we should sit tight at $300,000. They want to sell the plant. I second Ald. Phelan's motion," said Ald. Stocker.

The vote was nine to one, Ald. Hamilton voting against the motion.

For the first time in months there were no by-laws.

Ald. Stocker introduced the question of sewer connections, referring to an item in The Examiner in which it was stated that North Monaghan Council had deferred action on the agreement. He went on to say that he had interviewed Toronto officials with regard to connections made by York township residents and was told that the charge was 30 cents a foot frontage for outlet charges and 16 cents for maintenance. Thus, for a fifty foot lot the annual charge is $23. Peterborough had set the price at $20 and North Monaghan had asked that it be made $16.

Mayor Denne replied that it was the school question which was holding things up, the council believing that the charge for that connection was too high. A meeting to consider the matter will be held to-morrow night.

Ald. Stocker asked for a detailed report of the extras paid on the Reid street paving, requesting that he be furnished with the figures within 48 hours. Mayor Denne demurred, stating that the City Engineer, who is the city's responsible man in the matter, is starting on his vacation to-morrow, but will be back on Monday, when he could give the figures. This was satisfactory to Ald. Stocker.

Ald. Hamilton was confirmed in his appointment as chairman of the Board of Works, on motion of Ald. Cotton and Greene. He stated that he did not wish to take the post, as he could not give the time to it which the other chairman had, but he was euected.

The Duct Agreement.

The suggested additions to the agreement proposed between the city and the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company for the use of a duct in the city's conduit on George Street were read by Mr. Wearing. Some of them were approved, while others were emphatically disapproved.

One which met strong opposition was a clause giving the company the right, in case any defect should not be remedied within two days of notice being given, to repair the conduit or to re-erect its line of poles on George Street at the city's expense. "Who owns this duct?" inquired Ald. Greene when this was read. "We would be suckers," commented the Mayor when another suggested clause forbade the installa-

W. T. R. PRESTON AGAIN ACCUSED OF LIBEL

Declares Tunney Is Poet At Heart

PARIS, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press.)— Paris newspapers yesterday expressed surprise at the lack of signs of a boxer about Gene Tunney.

"He was meant to be a poet, and was a boxer by necessity," said Le Petit Parisien. "He only won in the ring enough dollars to enable him to end his days in peace. He perhaps is not a happy man. His glory weighs heavily on this champion who has not yet found happiness."

Other sporting writers remarked that Tunney's figure was athletic, but not exaggerately so. They said that those not knowing him would never think that the blue-eyed blond gentleman was champion of the world and the vanquisher of Dempsey.

NOTHING KNOWN OF BIRKENHEAD LEAVING OFFICE

Secretary For India Declines To Make Statement on Reports.

MANY CHANGES.

Bridgeman and Chamberlain Must Be Replaced Before New Parliament Sits.

LONDON, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press Cable.)— It was officially announced at Conservative party headquarters to-day that nothing was known of the report that the Earl of Birkenhead,, secretary for India, intended to retire. The Earl himself returning to-day from a yachting trip, was non-committal, saying he could neither confirm or deny the report.

Reuter's political correspondent says one effect of Birkenhead's retirement would be to extend considerably the scope of reconstruction which the government, if confirmed in power, at the general election next year, must make before it meets the new Parliament. It is pointed out that the Hon. W. C. Bridge, First Lord of the Admiralty, has already announced he would not seek re-election and Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, is not expected to be able to continue in office on account of ill health.

BULGAR CABINET RESIGNS OFFICE

Member's Participation in the Macedonian Revolt Causes Split.

DISMISSAL DEMANDED.

VIENNA, September 5 (Canadian Press). — A despatch from Sofia states that the Bulgarian Cabinet resigned to-day because of a dispute in its membership over the alleged participation of Ivan Volkoff in the activities of the Macedonian revolutionaries. It is reported that Premier Liaptcheff refused to dismiss General Volkoff at the demand of A. D. Buroff, Minister for Foreign Affairs, and other ministers, who thereupon resigned. The Premier then handed in the resignation of the entire Cabinet.

DRIVER EXONERATED.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Returning a verdict of accidental death, a coroner's jury at the Morgue last evening, cleared James Little, 7 Peter Street, of any blame in connection with the death of Hyman Labovitz, 245 Markham Street, who died on August 27, after having been run over by a truck in charge of Little.

According to the story related by Little, the truck was proceeding south on Harper Avenue, and had just passed the intersection of Inglewood Drive, when Robert Smith, a boy passenger with him, shouted "Hymie's gone." The Labovitz lad had also been riding in the cab of the truck, and either had stepped out on purpose, or falling from the running board, was killed.

MANY RECOMMENDATIONS READ AT SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

Discuss Appointment of Second Nurse and Assistant H. S. Principal.

COLLEGIATE NOT READY.

Schools Will Be Closed For Half Day On Tuesday, Sept. 11th.

Brief yet important was meeting of the Board of Education, held last night when considerable business, mostly relevant to the opening of the schools for the new term, was carried on to a satisfactory conclusion, reached at about nine o'clock. The usual reception of reports, regarding of communications and other routine matters were scattered through an agenda which included discussion of appointing a second nurse to the school staff; the setting of Tuesray, September 11, as a half holiday in the schools, at the request of the Industrial Exhibition Board and the suggestion of Chairman Fowler that thought be given to the appointment of an assistant to H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate Institute. The half holiday was definitely decided upon while the other two matters were referred to appropriate committees.

Recommends Appointments

Submitted by J. F. Strickland, chairman, the report of the Committee on Appointments was heard with considerable interest and was duly adopted as follows:

That Miss Minnie M. Green be appointed to the Public School staff at an initial salary of $900.00 with increase according to schedule and duties to commence 4th September.

That Miss Edith Cottrell be appointed to succeed Miss Vera Porteous as Secretary to the Principal of the Collegiate Institute at a salary of $90.00 and duties to commence 4th September.

That David Hooey be appointed an Assistant Janitor at the Collegiate and Vocational School at a monthly salary of $90.00 and dutoes to commence 22nd August.

Collegiate Not Ready

A communication from H. R. H. Kenner, who was present at the meeting, gave some interesting information regarding the opening of the various departments of the Collegiate and Vocational school. At the enrolment, held in the Canadian Legion Hall on Tuesday morning, 373 students had reported in the Collegiate department, 201 in the Commercial, 77 in the Industrial and 19 in the Household Arts. The last three are in the Vocational school. Regarding the appointment of an extra teacher, Mr. Kenner said that it would be as well to wait until a week or so had passed. He regretted to state that the students would not be able to begin work until next Monday owing to the fact that the old part of the Collegiate was being redecorated, which work had not yet been completed.

To Appoint Second Nurse

Left in the hands of the chairman of the committee on appointments, and Dr. A. W. McPherson, the matter of appointing a second nurse to the school staff, as advised by Dr. Fair, of the Department of Health, Toronto, was first the subject of discussion in which W. R. Turner took the lead. He outlined, for the benefit of those who had not heard Dr. Fair speak at a meeting some time ago, the idea of having a second nurse. She would assist in the "follow-up" work and give valuable assistance to Miss Jory, (the present nurse) and her presence on the staff would make the Board eligible for the $300.00 grant from the department. Her salary would be approximately $1,200.00 so that the Board would have to consider the extra outlay of but $1,000 or so, while the health of Peterborough children would be more efficiently served. In addition, the entire work would come under the periodic inspection of the Department and the Board would thus be better in cognizant of the benefits of the work in general than it is at present.

Dr. Yelland corroborated the words of Mr. Turner as did Dr. Craig and finally, Messrs. Turner and Strickland moved and seconded a motion that a second nurse be appointed.

Mr. Turner then moved, seconded by Mr. Strickland that the matter be left in the hands of the chairman and Dr. McPherson, and that the appointment be subject to re-adjustment should the City Council later see fit to engage a full-time M.O.H.

The appointment of an assistant

DECLINES TO WITHDRAW BOOK AND HAVE CLAUSES CHANGED

Hopes Hudson Bay Company Will Take Court Action in Matter.

MUCH TO BE AIRED.

Evidence in Suit Would Alter Text Books of Early History, He Declares.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PORT HOPE, Ont., Sept. 5.—The legal action which the Hudson Bay Co. has threatened to take against W. T. R. Preston, unless certain statements are withdrawn, is not causing the author of the statements any concern.

Yesterday, Mr. Preston said he was willing to defend every statement in his recent book, "My generation of politics and politicians," in a court of law. "I consulted my lawyers in Toronto before I published the book, and I placed all the evidence I had as to the early history of the company before them. I am not going to be bluffed out of my stand as others have been by the same organization," Mr. Preston said. "If there is a law suit, it will make history.

"It will not be just a two week affair like the Currie trial, either. It will be nearer two months, for there is a great deal of evidence, hitherto inaccessable for obvious reasons, which would be well aired in court. Some of it will revise many of the text book conceptions of the early history of this country.

"The charter," Mr. Preston said yesterday, "was given by Charles 2nd, who had at the time absolutely no jurisdiction over the territory in which he was granting exclusive privileges. The Canadian government did not need to pay one cent to the Hudson Bay Company for its rights because the company never had the rights. The legal officers of the Crown knew this.

"And mind you, whereas the statements complained of refer mainly to the earlier history of the company there are more recent facts which certainly will come to light if there is a law suit. We shall all learn so much if everything is laid bare that I am almost hoping that the company will go ahead with the action. One thing is certain, I shall place no legal barriers in their way."

The statements which the company complained of to Mr. Preston refer to the exploitation of the northwest by the early representatives. A letter received by Mr. Preston from a firm of Winnipeg lawyers alleges that the statements are derrogatory to the company and that unless the book is withdrawn from publication until the statements are corrected, legal action will be taken

Convict Ship Success, Built In 1790, Will Sail To Australia During Winter

BROCKVILLE, Ont., September 5 (Canadian Press). — The old British convict ship Success, built of teak at Moulmein, Burmah, in 1790, and reputed to be the oldest vessel now sailing the seas, entered Canadian waters here to-day to begin her long voyage under her own sail to Australia, where she will be converted into a floating museum as a reminder of the period in which she carried convicts to the country from Great Britain. Towed here from Alexandria Bay, where she has been upon exhibition, by the tug Salvage Prince, the old three-master was transferred here to the power of the sea-going tug S. A. Queen, which will tow her down the St. Lawrence and along the Atlantic coast to New York for re-conditioning. Her master, Captain Smith, then plans to sail her to Australia. When she crossed the Atlantic in 1912, the voyage occupied 98 days.

VIERKOTTER HAS MILE LEAD WITH NINE MILES COVERED; MICHEL NOW IN SECOND PLACE

German Swimmer Heads Off George Young, Who Quits Soon After.

COCHRANE IS THIRD.

Five Swimmers Left In — Cold Water Causing Many To Quit in First Lap.

LAKE SHORE, Toronto, September 5 (Canadian Press). — When Ernest Vierkotter had covered nearly nine miles of the Wrigley fifteen-mile race this afternoon, he was more than one mile ahead of Georges Michel. Neither Erickson nor Michel had finished their third lap when Vierkotter, the 1927 winner, had covered more than a mile of his fourth lap.

Michel went into second place to Vierkotter at three p.m. standard time, when Erickson had to be taken from the water. Only six swimmers are left, the only Canadian survivor being Garnet Cochrane, of Cobourg, Ont., who was third, five-eighths of a mile behind Michel, and two miles behind Vierkotter.

The field was reduced to five at 3:30 Standard Time, when Seward Holley, of Venice, California, who had been fourth was forced out by cold. Five were swimming in order, Vierkotter, Michel, Cochrane, Louis Nathias, of Long Island and O. G. Hammell of Illinois.

Myron Cox, of Los Angeles, who had been in fourth place, was pulled out of the water.

Water very Cold.

The long distance swimmers, in quest of fame and fortune, in Toronto's annual aquatic classic, the Wrigley marathon, were sent off on their fifteen mile journey through the ice cold waters of Lake Ontario at ten o'clock this morning.

For more than seven hours the contestants will stroke their grease-coated bodies through the waters, whose temperature ranges from 49 degrees outside the breakwater, where three-quarters of the struggle takes place, to 58 degrees inside.

Olive Gatterdam, Seattle, Washington, the second in the women's swim, was the only female starter to-day.

George Young of Toronto, went into the lead slightly ahead of Norman Ross of Chicago, with Ernst Vierkotter, winner of last year's swim, next, the three being in front from the start.

It was announced that 198 started. Before the race had been under way more than a few minutes seven were taken out. More than 100,000 persons packed the lake front. The weather conditions for the spectators were perfect.

Setting the pace from the start, Norman Ross, of Chicago, held a lead of 75 yards over George Young of Toronto, when the contestants completed the first lap of two and a half miles in the 15 mile swim.

Lyall Hubbard of Toledo,, who followed Ross for a mile and a quarter, was forced to withdraw owing to the cold water. The swimmers were strung out at intervals for more than half the course as Ross entered the second lap.

Ross and Young set a rapid pace for the first lap, their powerful arms sending them through the water at

FAYOLLE IS BURIED NEAR BY NAPOLEON.

PARIS, September 5. — Marshals Foch, Petain, Lyautey, and Franchet d'Esperey were the pall-bearers at the great military funeral of Marshal Fayolle in the Church of St. Louis in the Les Invalides building. The dead leader was the first of the French war-made marshals to die, and his burial near Napoleon's tomb sets a precedent.

It was proposed only a few weeks ago that Les Invalides should be in future used as the burial place for those who led the victorious armies in the Great War. The proposal still lacks the assent of Parliament, and the interment of Marshal Fayolle in the crypt is only temporary, pending a final decision.

Premier Poincare and the Ministers of War and Marine were among the crowd of distinguished people who attended the service, the expense of which was borne by the State. Wreaths were sent by all the Allied armies, and that from the American army bore the inscription, "In eternal admiration." Brig.-General William W. Harts, military attache, represented America.

MAIL PLANE ON LONG HOP

MAIL FOR VANCOUVER.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 5 (Canadian Press). — The longest cross-country flight ever attempted by a seaplane got under way when Squadron Leader A. E. Godfrey, of the Canadian Air Force, pulled the nose of a big Fairchild monoplane into the air at Shirley's Bay near here, and sped out of sight in a north-westerly direction, bound for Cormorant Lake, Manitoba, or Lac du Bonnet, should he meet with adverse winds. The take-off of the great yellow ship loaded with three hundred gallons of gasoline and with special mail for Vancouver was a most thrilling sight.

PASSES NORTH BAY.

NORTH BAY, Ont., September 5 (Canadian Press). — Reports have been received here of a yellow seaplane, presumably the Godfrey trans-continental plane, having passed over Lake Nipissing in a westerly direction at 8.15 (eastern standard time) to-day.

World Fool Proof Scientist Declares

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press.)—The prediction that evidence of the daily creation of iron in inter-stellar space is almost within reach of scientific demonstration was made last night by Dr Robert Millikan, physicist of the California Institute of Technology This and other evidences of elemental creation in progress in space were linked by Dr. Millikan with the assertion that nature made the world fool proof so that the earth was not likely to disintegrate in future time. Dr. Millikan said the world was likely to be much the same in millions of years as it is now and science might help man in future to live at least a million times more wisely than he now lives.

CONDITIONS OF FISHERIES ARE INVESTIGATED

Committee From Provincial Department Interviews Local Officials.

VIEWS HATCHERIES.

When Province Has Been Fully Covered Investigators Will Visit States.

Conducting an investigation of conditions in the lakes and streams of this section of the Province, as effecting the preservation and propogation of game fish, a special committee of inquiry from the Provincial Government, headed by the Hon. Finlay McDairmid, former Minister of Public Works and Game and Fisheries, arrived in Peterborough last night. To-day, conferences with representatives of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective association, with the superintendent of the Trent Canal relative to water levels in the Kawartha Lakes, and others constituted the program of the committee which, according to one of its members, has but one mission at present—that of gathering information. No comment on conditions as they had found them, could be obtained.

Other members of the committee are Charles Newton Candee, G. S. Bell whose father was the late Dr. R. W. Bell of Peterborough representing the Toronto Anglers' Association; Professor William J. K. Harkness, of Toronto University, is secretary of the committee, and J. Lewis Milligan, of the Department of Mines, assistant secretary.

It is a singular fact that Mr. Bell should be an old Peterborough boy while Mr. Milligan will be remembered by many as editor of the old Peterborough Review during 1913-14.

This is the second trip the committee of inquiry has made, it having recently visited the fish hatcheries in Western Ontario. Leaving Toronto by motor car at about noon yesterday, they travelled to Orono where a trout stream running through the reforestation plot, was inspected. From there, they motored to Omemee, going to considerable trouble to give the portable lunge hatchery on the Pigeon river, careful consideration. It is understood that when the Province has been covered, the committee will enter the United States to study conditions in certain of the fish hatcheries there.

87-YEAR-OLD MAN KILLED.

PRESTON, Sept. 5.—Moses Unger, aged 87, one of Preston's grand old men, died on Monday evening as a result of injuries sustained when he was knocked down by a motor car, said to have been driven by Roy Burns of Guelph. There will be no inquest. Unger was totally blind in one eye and partially blind in the other, and it is thought that he did not see the oncoming car and stepped directly into its path. Mr. Unger was born on the old family homestead at Roseville. Mr. Unger had 12 children, all of whom are living. He is survived by his wife, who is also over 80 years of age, one sister, 23 grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren.

GREAT FERVOR MARKS OPENING

MANY PRELATES ATTEND.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., September 5 (Canadian Press). — Scenes of splendor and fervor unparalleled here marked the opening of the Eucharistic Congress to-day. A dense crowd surged around the cathedral all day. One hundred and twenty archbishops and bishops, and every grade of the Catholic priesthood, with laymen holding papal knighthoods or decorations from the Pope, walked in the stately procession from St. Mary's grounds to the main entrance of the cathedral. An impressive wave of devotion swept the populace as the scarlet-robed figure of Cardinal Bonaventure Cerretti, papal delegate, passed. After the formal opening the meetings of the various Nationalists began, with addresses in a variety of languages.

A papal bull addressed to Cardinal Cerretti was read after the opening ceremony, and in it the Pope commented on the value of congresses as helping to perfect Christian life and to lead people to more frequent reception of the Sacrament. His Holiness said he was sure the Sydney congress would consider its theme of worship through the Eucharist with the reverence due to the Virgin Mother of God.

Wins First Step For Place

Agreement Reached to Support Movement To Give Re-eligibility To Spain.

AFTER MUCH DISCUSSION.

President Herluf Zahle Among Those Opposed To Proposal.

GENEVA, Sept. 5.— (Canadian Press.)— Spain last night won the first step of her contest for a semi-permanent seat on the council of the League of Nations. After a long discussion the steering committee of the assembly reached an agreement in principle to support a movement to give re-eligibility to Spain when, as is expected she is elected a member of the council.

It is understood that President Herluf Zahle, was one of those who took a stand against the re-eligibility proposals. His argument was not directed against Spain, but was in opposition to genera principle of extending the privilege to any member of the league. In this he was believed to have had the support of some of the smaller countries which fear that constant re-election of the same states would remove their coveted opportunity of becoming members of the council.

Should Make Exceptions.

Great Britain, France and Germany, who hold three of the five permanent seats, finally won their contention that an exception should be made in the case of Spain and that she should be permitted to ask for the right of re-eligibility immediately upon election to the council.

Final agreement as to the time for discussion of this before the assembly will be decided later after the text has been adopted by the committee.

Have Permanent Seats.

At present, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy and Japan have permanent seats on the council. The remaining seats are filled by election for three year terms and a nation may not succeed itself except by a declaration of re-eligibility by the assembly. The tendency too is to regard Soviet Russia's adherence as the biggest single event in recent international political history.

One delegate who claimed to be in a position to know what was going on in Russia told the Associated Press yesterday that its adherence indicated closer co-operation with the "capitalistic" western powers.

MIDWAY HERE SUNDAY NIGHT

CONCERT ON SUNDAY.

Webber Turner 'phoned from Toronto at noon to-day to announce that the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will positively open on Monday evening next week. The Greater Sheesley Shows will be here on Sunday, as will Cervonne's famous band from Pittsburgh. In fact the band will give a sacred concert in Victoria Park on Sunday evening at eight o'clock. All the exhibits will be in place and admission to the grounds will be free.

MAHARAJAH SUED BY DANCING GIRL

Prince Who Lost Throne By Trouble With One, Threatened With More.

BOMBAY, September 5. Canadian Press. — The former Maharajah of Indore, husband of Nancy Miller of Seattle, who lost his throne because of an affair with an Indian dancing girl, figured to-day in a sensational high court appeal case over another beautiful Indian girl.

The woman this time is Sowkabao Rajpurkar, who is claiming damages of $28,000 from the former Maharajah, alleging wrongful imprisonment, personal injury, an dsystematic cruelty by him. She alleges she and her daughter were decoyed from Bombay by the Maharajah's agents with an immoral design, both being ultimately confined at Indore for ten years. She said the Maharajah made indecent proposals to her, and when these were rejected he subjected her to cruel treatment.

H. C. BIGLOW IS FOUND GUILTY

Charged With Assaulting James Wilson On August 19th Last.

TRIED AT BETHANY.

(By Staff Reporter.)

BETHANY, September 5. — While Police Magistrate, Colonel W. H. Floyd, of Cobourg, assisted by Acting Crown Attorney Arch. Cochrane, held court around two tables, ranged together in one end of the town hall here on Tuesday afternoon, and while between seventy-five and a hundred citizens of the village and district sat about in a half circle, Herbert C. Biglow of the Township of Cavan, went on trial, charged first with common assault of James Wilson, a laborer, on August 19 last; and secondly with being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle,c ontrary to section 284, sub-section 4, of the Criminal Code.

Through his counsel, A. R. Wilmott, of Cobourg, he pleaded "Not Guilty" on both occasions, but at the conclusion of the first case, His Worship imposed a fine of $10 and costs, with the added stipulation that the accused be bound over to keep the peace for a year. Failing to find sufficient justification for a conviction of Biglow on the second charge, Magistrate Flood dismissed the case.

James Wilson.

The first witness called was James Wilson of Manvers. Sworn, he said: I am a laborer, 65 years of age, living about three miles from here on the boundary between Manvers and Cavan. I remember the afternoon of August 19th. It was on Saturday night. I went out in Mr. Bigelow's car. He sent the children up in the afternoon to tell me to be down at 7 o'clock that evening.

I cannot think of the name of the lake we went to. He said it was 125 miles. We went to get the rifle we went after. We left the house and the man was away. We went down the road to have lunch. This was Sunday morning. We had spent the night going. Then we went back to the house. The man had been home and gone, and had left the rifle. We looked at some cattle, and came back as far as Omemee. We called in at his father-in-law's. We had lunch there, came out and got into the car and went out on to the street to hit for home. I was sitting in the front seat. He told me to move my leg over, and I did. He hit my thigh, my arm and the back of my head, outside of Omemee. We went on, and he said: "Jim, I'm sorry for hitting you." We went on home, and he asked me to sit in for supper. I said I wasn't hungry. He said he would make me eat. He hit me in the eye. He hit quite a few times at me. A Home girl was there at the time. She stood between us to defend me. I had a black eye. There was another little girl. I know no reason for his striking me. I sat in the chair and was sitting down when he struck me. I stayed quite a while. There was nothing said between him and Cross-examined: Mr. Biglow and I always were good friends. When I was struck he had asked me to stay for supper. He was over-anxious to enforce his hospitality. I was not very angry; neither was he. I was not intending to lay any complaint. I did not give him a poke.

I was not feeling badly afterwards. I would not want to see him punished severely for what he had done. That is about the whole story."

"That is the case, your Worship," observed Mr. Cochrane.

Mr. Wilmott said he was not going to call any witnesses. It may be that Mr. Wilson got a colored optic but taking in view Mr. Wilson's attitude of good will I would suggest that your worship let this friendship continue unembittered by dismissing the case. Mr. Biglow has been punished by being brought here publicly, for he has had a good reputation in the community.

Mr. Cochrane: It is obviously a case of assault, and I must ask for a conviction, and that accused be bound over to keep the peace. It is obviously a case of bad temper, and I do not know that what we may do will cause any bitterness between the two.

Colonel Floyd, addressing Biglow: This is a regrettable case, but one in which the plaintiff is an old man. It goes against the grain to have one of his years and physique struck by you, who are physically fit. I cannot dismiss the case, and therefore impose a fine of $10.00 and costs, and further that you be bound over to keep the peace for twelve months, on a bond of $500.

Case Dismissed.

Some confusion was caused at the start of the hearing on the second issue when the defence counsel learned that the charge against Biglow—that of being intoxicated while in charge of a motor vehicle on August 19 last—had been amended to come under the Criminal Code, on instruction from the Crown. Mr. Wilmott claimed that he and his client had not planned their defence to cope with this amendment, which left no option of a fine in the case of a conviction. The original charge had been

LOU TELLEGEN IN BANKRUPTCY BLAMES "SLAPSTICK" MOVIES.

LOS ANGELES, September 5. —Lou Tellegen, stage star of prewar days, former husband of Geraldine Farrar and once leading man for Sarah Bernhardt, blames his financial downfall on acting in "slapstick" screen comedies.

Mr. Tellegen filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy here yesterday listing his debts as $20,901 and his assets as $2,200. His wife, Isabel Dilworth Tellegen, filed a similar petition setting forth like amounts.

Recounting his troubles which a five-year movie contract had brought him, Mr. Tellegen said in Seattle last night that he had been unable to resist the offer of "the biggest money in my lifetime."

"I knew the public would say 'we thought this man Teleigen was a dramatic actor and he is not even a second rate clown,'" he said.

SALE SUCCESSFUL.

Lakefield C.W.L. Ladies Serve Tea—Union Services Ended.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 5.—The afternoon tea and sale of home cooking held on Saturday in front of the Memorial Hall under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League was very successful in spite of a sudden shower of rain between four and five o'clock. However the tables were moved indoors and the sale went on, with good results in every respect. Among the ladies in charge were: Mrs. George Charlton, Mrs. Gibson, Mrs. J. J. McFadden, Mrs. M. Meade, Mrs. Louis Sabatino, and Misses Fortier, Armstrong and Kennedy.

The committees are hard at work to make the 1928 fall fair a record one. Changing times have made expedient several alterations in the program and this year's list will present many attractive features which are a novelty and which should hold the interest of the crowd.

The first of September saw the discontinuance of the union services between Knox and Regent St. United churches and also by the Baptist and Presbyterian churches and the regular schedule of services is being followed.

SCHOLARSHIPS ANNOUNCED FOR CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL

Students Will Receive Awards at Commencement Exercises Held Later in Term.

SCHOOLS OPEN.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—Nine o'clock yesterday morning was the official hour for the opening of school for the fall term. The attendance at the high school was slightly less than two hundred students, but this is usually the case according to the principal. He expects that the regular attendance rolls will not be fully made up for another two weeks. This was the case last year. The scholarships for both middle and upper schools have been decided upon and the names announced. The students will receive their awards at the commencement exercises held later in the term.

Ethel Olive will be presented with the Doctor S. A. Peake medal for the highest standing in the normal entrance departmental examinations. Muriel Thompson, Indian River, stood highest in the Middle School English departmental examinations and will be presented with the Bemersyde chapter I.O.D.E. scholarship The A. L. Riendeau scholarship for the highest standing in middle school Latin and French was won by Irene Dunk. The scholarship presented by R. H. McKelvie for the highest standing in Middle School Algebra and Geometry departmental examinations goes to Lawrence Marriott while Dorothy Henson won the High School Literary society award for the highest standing in Middle School British History.

LAWN SOCIAL HELD BY TWO CLASSES

Young People From Millbrook Enjoy Picnic On Seventh Line.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 5.—Mrs. Hilliard Lang, Seventh Line, Cavan, and her daughter, Miss Bertha Lang, were hostesses for a very pleasant social gathering on Thursday afternoon, when two of the Sunday school classes of the United Church, taught by Mrs. M. McDowell and Mrs. John Hatherly, were entertained, possibly thirty guests being in attendance.

The fine weather made an out of doors gathering possible, the large and well-shaded lawn being used for the games, etc., which, with music, filled the time pleasantly for the games, etc., which, with music, filled the time pleasantly for the young folk. The picnic tea, served on the lawn, was a popular feature of the happy event, Mrs. McDowell and Mrs. Hatherly assisting Mrs. and Miss Lang in serving the guests.

This was probably the concluding lawn party of the many which have been held during the summer months, the re-opening of school this week ushering in new duties and leaving no afternoons free for these delightful out of doors gathering.

Mrs. Lang, Miss Bertha, and the two teachers were heartily thanked for the pleasant afternoon provided through their joint efforts on Thursday.

STRATFORD, Sept. 5.—Liberty did not last long for the two lads who on Monday locked Turnkey Nicol in the Perth County Jail laundry and calmly walked to freedom through the jail offices. Last night both Joseph Farmer, 17, Toronto, and Kenneth Bethune, 17, North Bay, were in Huntsville lock-up, while Major A. T. Trethewey, jail governor, and Police Chief J. L. Broadley are on their way to bring them back.

BOY NEARLY DROWNED.

Wallie Rose, 5, Is Found Under Water Near Parents' Cottage.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, September 5. — Wallie Rose, the little five year old son of Mr. Charles Rose (who motored from Detroit to spend over the week-end) nearly lost his life through drowning on Sunday afternoon. The little lad in company with Alex. Langstaff, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Langstaff, was playing at the wharf at Mrs. Alex. Rose's cottage, where Wallie got in the water beyond his depth. Alex. Langstaff ran to the house to give the alarm, Mrs. Langstaff and Mr. H. F. McNichol were at once on the scene and waded in with their clothes on to find the child.

Little Alex. pointed out the exact spot where the unfortunate boy went in; Mrs. Langstaff was the first to find him, and he was taken ashore, where first aid was administered by the boy's father, and the boy was revived. Medical aid was called and the patient put to bed. He seemed none the worse for the accident.

MADOC BOY PASSES TESTS IN AVIATION

Cpl. T. E. D. Nickle, U. S. Marine Corps, Successful in Course.

MADOC, Sept. 5.— Cpl. T. E. D. Nickle, W.S.M.C. of Naval Flying Field, Pensacola, Fla., writes:

Just a line to say that on Friday, 24th of August, I passed the final exam. in flying big 'bombers,' and final 'checks' in the flying course. This means they have allowed me to become a qualified aviator at last.

Two of us have just finished and the other two will be ready for the final in a short time. It's been quite a struggle, and only four of us are left out of 84, and two of them not yet finished.

We have about one month of ground school work and we will get our aerial gunnery, bombing, torpedo, launching from ships' catapults and combat practice. We are all looking forward to the combat work, for these pursuit planes are the best type in the service and do aroun: 200 m.p.h. (miles per hour) straight away.

I don't know where we two marines go from here, either Quantico or San Diego temporarily, where we will receive our 'wings' from our own squadrons. In the meantime all we have to do is finish our ground school exams, pile up flying time and 'keep our noses clean.'

We won't know our grades until all are finished and ground school work is over, so I can't say how we stand, but we are all running neck and neck. Will tell you later.

GRADING HILL AT CAMPBELLFORD

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—Excavation and filling are accomplishing wonders toward the improvement of what is generally considered a dangerous hill. The excavator which did the work for the town pavement is busy removing some three thousand cubic yards from the crest of the Blakely hill about one mile south of Campbellford immediately west of the Brighton highway. The excavated material is being used for filler lower down the grade and instead of being an ordinary steep ascent, the hill will become a grade of about eight percent and will slope up evenly from the Brighton road to the brow. The banks will be properly trimmed and it is understood that the ditches will be tiled. This detail may be imperative since the ground is wet and springy.

Another improvement to the country roads in the immediate vicinity of the town is the cutting off of a sharp corner leading from the river road at Crowe Bay to the ninth concession of Seymour east. The road at this point was formerly very narrow and shaded so closely by trees that it was impossible for a motorist to see more than a few feet ahead of his vehicle.

MONTREAL BUSINESSMAN DROWNED, LAKE MANITOU.

MONTREAL, Que., September 5 (Canadian Press). — Gordon C. Bowie, manager of the Brooklyn office of R. G. Dun & Co., mercantile agency, and former president of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, was drowned yesterday at Lake Manitou, four miles from St. Agathe, Que., when a motorboat in which he was cruising struck a sunken log and sank.

Three other occupants of the boat, Mrs. Bowie, Dr. Winston C. Bushell, and Mrs. Bushell, were rescued by witnesses of the accident.

Word of the accident was received by long distance telephone. The body had not been recovered last night, it was stated.

HARVEST WORK MUCH REDUCED

Machinery Has Done Great Deal To Ease Burden of Task.

FIRST REAPERS CRUDE.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 5.—Harvest days, and threshing-time, with the machinery in use at this season, coupled with the amazing exhibit of farm machinery at the Exhibition with improvements carried out to an almost unbelievable extent, lead to some interesting investigation as to the development of modern machinery from that used in earlier years once the cradle and flail, and other handiwork for these operations had been superseded.

The first reaping-machine, it appears, was the invention of the Rev. Patrick Bell, who lived at Fergus, Ontario, from 1833 to 1837, when he held the position of tutor to the children of the Honorable Adam Ferguson, the founder of the town of Fergus.

It was, however, while living in Scotland that Mr. Bell made his great invention, the date being 1826; this reaper continued to be used in that country for several years, and it is claimed was so complete in detail and so satisfactory that machines built along similar lines in America by leading manufacurers, some six or seven years later, showed only comparatively slight improvements over Bell's machine. The original is preserved in the Kensington Museum.

Rev. Mr. Bell's death took place probably over sixty years ago but not so very much since his daughter, Miss Jessie Bell, who resides at Aberdeen, Scotland, sent a photograph of her father as a gift to Dr. A. E. Byerly, of Guelph, the latter having been actively interested in collecting data relative to the pioneer history of the county of Wellington, in which Fergus is situated. So far as is known this is the only picture of the inventor to be anywhere in America.

It was in 1831 that Cyrus McCormick gave demonstrations with the original reaper—to tell the truth judging from what history records, these were not very satisfactory. The adoption of the wave-edged knife invented by Obed Hussey in 1833, and now in general use, led to greater success.

Newcastle was early connected with the manufacture of reapers through H. A. Massey, who put on the market the Burrell and Massey, but so far as is known the first reaper to be used in this section of Ontario was a Hussey, brought into Hamilton township by Daniel McKeyes over eighty-five years ago, the date given being 1843. It had a number of drawbacks, however, since it is said to have been hard to pull; apt to choke if put into damp grain, and considerable speed was necessary to keep it in operation. The grain had to be raked off the platform by hand in all these early machines, and it was not until 1850 that a fairly efficient self-rake reaper had been developed.

Near Trenton, Ontario, lived two brothers, C. W. and W. W. Marsh, who in 1858 had a leading part in the production of the modern binder, their machine being provided with a wide conveyor belt and elevating belts, which carried the grain to the waiting arms of two men standing on a raised platform, who then bound the sheaves by hand.

Wire was used in the first self-binders, and it was not until about fifty years ago that binder twine took its place; one can imagine that

CANADIAN NATIONAL LINER LAUNCHED AT LIVERPOOL

Constructed By Cammell Laird Company For West Indies Service.

LUNCHEON HELD.

Sir Henry Thornton Tells Guests Canada Expects Big Grain Crop.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 5.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—"Canada is a daughter who has never lost her affection for the motherland, and although separated by 3,000 miles of sea her heart beats in unison with England," said Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, speaking at a luncheon preceding the launching yesterday of the 'Lady Drake," steamer constructed by the Cammell Laird Company for the Canadian National Steamships West Indies Service. The ship was launched by Lady Thornton, and was the third of five such vessels for the same service.

Expects Big Grain Crop.

Sir Henry declared that Canada was this year expecting the greatest grain crop ever produced and said that Canadian agriculture, minerals and water power, when properly developed, would make Canada as financially important as the United States. He predicted that Canada within a few years would rise from third to the most important gold producing country in the world and that with development of water power by Quebec and Ontario that area would become the most important manufacturing centre in North America.

Need Immigrants.

The C.N.R. president called on Britain to send help toward this development in the form of brain and brawn of selected immigrants, but warned that Canada was no place for those who were not, willing to work hard to support themselves and their families and thus the nation itself.

Among the persons attending the luncheon were W. L. Hichens, chairman of the Cammell Laird firm; F. R. Pauline, agent-general in London for British Columbia; Hon. George S. Henry, Ontario's minister of public works; S. W. Fitt, president of the Trinidad Chamber of Commerce; S. H. Bayley, managing director of the government transport of British Guiana; and M. E. Greenfield, agent-general for Alberta.

THE WEATHER

This morning the thermometer was down to 37 degrees, the lowest point it has reached since spring. While there probably was frost in places little damage would be done. Our first killing frost is usually due the third week in September.—W.P.

Girl With Cigarette Disgusts Visitor

While J. C. O'Leary of King's Wharf was sitting in Lane and Eano's store on Hunter street, a boy and girl stopped in front of the store and both lit cigarettes. The effect upon Mr. O'Leary was so disgusting that he almost fainted he told The Examiner.

Mr. Eano took Mr. O'Leary by the hand saying: "What's wrong?"

Mr. O'Leary said: "Did you see that girl light a cigarette?"

Mr. Eano said: "Why that's nothing."

TOWN COUNCIL ORDERS SIGNS

Campbellford Paved Streets To Be Through Streets, Council Decides.

SWEEPER TO BE HIRED.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, September 5.—All members of the council were present last night at the regular monthly meeting in the council chambers. There were many matters discussed regarding the paving, opening of the streets and stop signs. Only one request was made of the council, and this was for a load of gravel on Isabella street. Another phase which is new to the councils of this town was the appointment of a street sweeper to keep the paved streets in proper order. A "checkerboard" danger sign was recommended and ordered purchased for the intersection of the Havelock road with Queen street. This corner has generally been considered dangerous and all members of the council, with the exception of Councillors Cole and Abernethy, were agreed that the sign should be purchased and erected. The through and stop streets were also designated, and signs ordered for the intersections. Regarding the street opening celebration, the committee will meet in the office of W. S. Wiggins, stock broker, at seven-thirty on Wednesday evening. Friday, September 14th was the date set for the official opening.

William Clarke asked the council to gravel Isabella street from Booth to Oliver. He explained that the street was all graded and ready for gravel, and that the present season was as good as any for applying it. The work was ordered done, on motion of Councillor O'Sullivan.

Signs for the railway crossings was the next item for discussion, and it was left with the Reeve to secure further information regarding same. Mr. Bedford through Councillor Stone made a generous offer to the town to supply two teams and a driver for one or two days to haul gravel for the construction of a portion of a street leading to his property. Mr. Bedford appeared in the council chamber while the matter was under discussion and further agreed to give the corporation some 75 loads of material suitable for the construction of the street, and to assist in loading the material for them. He also agreed to be responsible for certain other minor details of the work.

The offer could not immediately be accepted since a railway crossing was involved and the sanction of the railway authorities had first to be obtained. This had been requested, but not yet received.

Sweepers Needed.

Deputy-Reeve Davidson pointed out the need of at least one street cleaner and perhaps two. One of the paving engineers had told him that one would be sufficient, but he had thought two would be required. A discussion as to the duties, hours, wages, equipment, etc., followed, and it was finally decided to purchase one street sweeping outfit and to have the Mayor interview certain men regarding the position and to have power to make the appointment. Two dollars a day was suggested as the wages for the work. This was not definitely fixed as the amount to be paid, however. It was merely as a working basis for the Mayor's information.

Through streets was the next discussion. It was decided that the necessary by-law should be prepared providing that all streets leading on to the paved streets should be designated as stop streets. The paved streets were to be the through streets. Of these, the thoroughfare formed by Sebastopol, Tice, Bridge, and Centre Streets will be the main thor-

MRS. F. FREE WINS C.N.E. GOLD MEDAL

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—Word was received here last night that Mrs. Fred de F. Free had succeeded in winning the gold medal for contralto soloists at the Toronto Exhibition. Mrs. Free is a pupil of Dorothy Allan Park at the Peterborough Conservatory of Music. An interesting feature is that her sister, Miss Margaret Dickson, Peterborough, and also a pupil of Dorothy Allan Park, was the silver medalist in the lyric soprano section this year.

BIRTH.

GAY. — In Campbellford, on Sept. 1st, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gay, a daughter (still born.)

Like Muffets? . . . yes, even you!

Don't like cereals? Ah, but then you don't know Muffets! Why, the minute you lay eyes on one you'll know that here's the dish for you.

Yes, it's whole wheat. But how! Cooked, drawn out to a filmy-thin, open-textured ribbon. Wound round and round to muffin size and shape. Baked. Toasted butternut brown.

QUEEN'S EXTRA TRAIN RIDE SWELLS ROYAL EXPENSE SHEET

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 5.—Expenses for the Scottish visits of the King and Queen this year will be augmented by several thousand dollars as a result of train charges.

Contrary to the generally prevailing opinion, the King and Queen do not get their transportation free when traveling over the railroads of England, but are required to pay the same charges and surcharges as paid by any wealthy person who has a special train for a private journey.

When King George went north for the grouse shooting in Scotland the journey cost him approximately $2,500.

Queen Mary traveled to Scotland alone this year, as she wished to go later than the King. This extra trip cost the British ruler an additional $2,500.

Special precautions were taken. The trains were signalled by hand as well as by the mechanical appliances, and there was one human signal every mile. In addition, all level crossing gates were closed at least thirty minutes before the passing of the royal train.

laid under the Highway Traffic Act.

Given a few minutes to consider, he and accused returned to the court with a plea of "Not Guilty," and the case was proceeded with. The first witness called proved to be James Wilson, plaintiff in the first action.

James Wilson.

When we went to the lake, Mr. Biglow had a bottle of Canadian rye and a bottle of Scotch. It was taken back to where we went for the ride. Some he and I drank in his own house before we left his house in Cavan. We had some more near the highway going out. I couldn't tell you how much was left.

Mr. Biglow had some on the way back. I had very very little. When he got home, I couldn't say he was drunk. It's pretty hard to tell it on him. He drove the car as well as anyone, both going and coming. He seemed out of humor when he struck me. There was no reason why he should strike me on the road unless he was drunk. I couldn't tell how many drinks he had. I had very few.

On the way home we had the drinks while on the road. We were in the car. The bottles were done before we got home. He had the last drink in Omemee. He seemed to be all right even when we got home. He struck me before he had supper. I was quite sober. I put up my hand to save my face. I stayed quite a while after that. I had no more to drink.

Cross-examined By Mr. Wilmott.

We left to go to the lake between 9 and 10 o'clock that Saturday night. He drove the car in a proper, careful manner. We had no difficulty in making the trip. So far as I know he was in his sober senses.

We didn't bring home the two bottles. We started out with one coming home from the lake. The second bottle stopped at Omemee. I didn't see it after it went into the house. We had nothing to drink after we left Omemee coming home. Mr. Biglow drove from Omemee home, just the same as he would to-day—as a sober man. We were passing other traffic. We had a lunch before we left the lake. We had tea. I couldn't swear as to whether or not it was brought along. Mr. Biglow put the stuff in the car.

Mr. Biglow and I had to go to get his wife when we arrived home. We hadn't got out of the car. He drove properly. The assault took place after we brought the family back and he was through driving. We did not have anything after a drink of tea.

After we came home from the lake and got out of the car we didn't drink anything.

I was not drunk at any time, and I couldn't say Mr. Biglow was drunk.

Answering Mr. Cochrane: We had our first drink going, down near the highway, in Cavan township. Mr. Biglow took a taste and I had a little. We were in the car.

Walter Thompson.

I am a township constable in the Township of Manvers. I received a call to go to Mr. Biglow's place about 9.30 on the night of August 19. The Magistrate called me. I found everything in an uproar. Mr. Wilson was on a chair, and Mrs. Biglow and one of the children was bathing his head. I heard a noise in the kitchen, and one little girl had recently been struck. Mr. Biglow was in the kitchen. He said, "What brought you here?" I told him I had been sent for. He was threatening one of his nephews. I asked him how he came to strike the little girl.

Mr. Wilmott objected to this on the ground that it was not directly related to the case. His objection was not sustained.

Answer: He said a salt shaker had bounced off the table and struck her.

I stayed till seven o'clock the following morning. I did not think it safe for the children to be there alone as Mr. Biglow seemed enraged or intoxicated. I could smell liquor strong off Mr. Biglow, and he seemed off his head. He could walk straight as anyone, but I would call him drunk.

Cross-examined by Mr. Wilmott: I couldn't say there were any bottles or glasses that looked suspicious, not in the kitchen or pantry. I had no search warrant.

I do not know what time they arrived home. It was some time before I was called about 9.30.

What he may have had would not have worked so quickly that he must have taken it after arriving home. He offered me a drink. I am sure I did not have a drink. He offered me what I thought was ale. It had foam on it. I did not know what strength it was. I did not see the bottle it came out of. This was produced after I lay down after one o'clock in the morning.

From Omemee to Mr. Biglow's home would be approximately twelve or thirteen miles. It is a rough road, and would take about an hour to drive. I ordered Mr. Biglow to put his car in when he offered to take Wilson home about 11 or 12 o'clock. He drove it into the garage quite properly.

I have been a constable here since last spring, and have never had any complaints about Mr. Biglow.

Richard Howden.

Richard Howden said he was Biglow's father-in-law. Biglow had been at his house in Omemee that Sunday with some old man. Nothing took place that I know of. Mr. Biglow drove the car. He was sober. He left what looked like liquor. It was poured out of a bottle. Mr. Biglow had it. He took some of it.

Mr. Cochrane: That is all. I'm not asking for a conviction, though I'm satisfied that Biglow was guilty of a breach of the Liquor Control Act. I think for his own good his liquor permit should be taken away from him.

Mr. Wilmott agreed that there was no justification for a conviction, and accordingly asked that the charge be dismissed.

Magistrate Floyd—The evidence does not appear strong enough to commit you, but I believe you were under the influence of liquor. You are travelling on tender ground.

You should have been charged with having liquor in a place where you had no business to have it. I therefore dismiss the case.

TOWN COUNCIL ORDERS SIGNS

oughfare, and the other paved streets leading on to these streets will be stop streets at such intersections. Thus Front Street becomes a stop street at the intersection of Bridge Street and a through street elsewhere. North and south bound traffic will also be required to stop when approaching the intersection of Frank Street and Grand Road with Tice Street.

Checkerboard signs came up again, and on the motion of Councillors O'Sullivan and Wilkinson, these boards were ordered purchased and erected. Suitable boards were also recommended for the steel column in the middle of the roadway at the C.N.R. subway. It was finally decided to have only one checkerboard at the corner where the Havelock road intersects Queen Street at the foot of the English Church Hill. This was opposed by Councillors Abernethy and Cole. They maintained that there was a white fence there, and that any driver who could not see that should not be driving a car. When the matter of erecting a board at the corner of Sebastopol Street, where the roadway is narrow, came up, Councillor Cole said that there wasn't a bad turn in the town of Campbellford. He tried to put an amendment that no checkerboards be purchased, but failed to get a seconder. The motion carried, with only himself and Abernethy objecting. This was the second vote on the motion.

To Celebrate Street Opening.

Deputy-Reeve Davidson then opened the discussion regarding the program and arrangements for the street opening celebration. This lasted for some time, and programs, advertising, invitations all came in for their full share of the argument. The date was definitely fixed for Friday, September 14th. This was by motion of Councillors Wilkinson and Stone. The topic was dropped after the committee had arranged to meet in the offices of W. S. Wiggins at half-past seven to-night, and were given power to add to their numbers. The entire Council was asked to be present at to-night's meeting.

While the matter of this kind was in the minds of the councillors, C. H. Davidson proposed that the Council start work on an Old Boys' Re-union for the summer of 1929. He spoke very strongly and enthusiastically in favor of the scheme, but nothing definite was done. It was hinted that the matter would be considered at the next regular meeting and the Deputy Reeve was reminded that there was to be an Orange walk in Campbellford next year.

28 Signs Ordered.

Pay-sheets and accounts were then passed and the Council adjourned to the clerk's office to inspect the sample stop street sign that was there. The sign met with the general approval of the councillors, but the price seemed rather high. It was compared with others and found to be quite normal. Twenty-eight of the signs were ordered. They will be placed as designated by the by-law now in preparation, and will bear the words, "Stop, Through Street," on one side and the name of the street on the other. The signs are black and white in color, and are twenty-four inches square. The painting and lettering are baked enamel and are of the highest quality.

Just before the Council adjourned to the clerk's office, D. W. Douglas asked that he be given some remuneration for the money he had spent in having the space between the curb and the walk in front of his place of business filled with concrete. He had had this work done before he was aware that the town purposed to do it. The Mayor informed him that it was the intention of the Council to refund certain money in these cases as soon as the work was all completed and the cost known.

Reeve Bygott recommended that signs giving the name of the town and the legal speed limit be placed at the four main approaches to the corporation. The present signs were not considered suitable. A motion was passed authorizing the placing of five signs suitably worded.

Councillor Stone advised the Council that he had learned from the paving men that gasoline and coal oil were very injurious to the asphalt surface of the pavement, and he thought the gas pump operators should be advised and requested to use all possible care in handling these materials.

TORONTO, Sept. 4.— In crossing from the north to the south side of Shuter street yesterday, Jack Roach, aged 23, of 77 Shuter street, was struck by the fender of an automobile. In falling to the pavement he sustained a fracture of the skull. An ambulance conveyed him to St. Michael's Hospital. The automobile that knocked Roach down was reported driven by John Penrose, 546 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough.

PEP

The First Step is Pep

HERE he comes. Bright eyes. Eager feet. Watch the chubby little fellow take his first step. What pep! What promise of bigger, stronger steps to come!

Take the first step to pep. Eat Pep for breakfast. Pep brisks you up. Makes you peppy all day long. For Pep is just pure whole wheat—a delicious, crisp cereal food, full of vitamins and body-building elements.

Contains bran, too—just enough to be mildly laxative. Helps prevent constipation. Keeps you healthy and regular.

Children love Pep. So do the grownups. Pep peps up the whole family. Serve it with cream or milk. Serve it any time. Try it with fruits or honey when your appetite needs refreshing. Comes ready to serve. Your grocer has Pep.

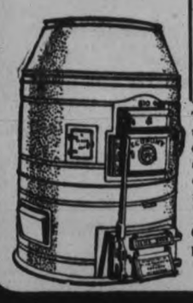
FURNACE

Some large houses are notoriously hard to heat on their upper floors. Even this difficult problem is efficiently mastered by the "Economy"—with perfect satisfaction. Read this letter from Mrs. John Henry, 592 Shebrooke St., Peterborough, Ontario:

"I am well satisfied with our Pease Furnace. It gives good satisfaction and keeps our house comfortable all through. I will gladly recommend it to others."



Two of the many reasons for this unusually high degree of efficiency are the double casings which insulates the hot air chamber and the exceptionally big radiator giving long fire travel. See this furnace for yourself and let us submit a tender.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE FIB ABOUT GASOLINE MILEAGE

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action.)

When you get married you take your partner for better or for worse. In acquiring an automoblie you take no such vows publically, but the two situations are not altogether dissimilar. You cannot keep from becoming very much identified with your car and to fly to its defense, quite unconsciously in case of attack on its virtues and vices.

It takes some occurrence, some rude shock such as enormous repair bills, and such other heart-rending incidents as being towed in through crowded streets where your friends are likely to witness your humiliation that you get to the point of contemplating divorce.

Ordinarily, however, every man is loyal to his own car. Our affection for the old bus increases as its market value decreases. Its weather-beaten features serve to endear the old faithful servant who has grown old and feeble for our sake. There are bound to spring up emotional attachments and sentiments after going through exciting experiences together.

We sometimes grow sentimental over the family car and refuse to trade it off and turn it out to pasture as a worn out horse. The attitude is one of true comradeship. We hate to have any dealer look it over with a view of placing a price on its head. It hurts not only our pride, but also outrages our sense of loyalty.

We fib about the gasoline mileage as we do about anything else connected with the car out of a sense of loyalty and on the grounds of common decency. Our friends gladly forgive us this sin because it is really a virtue. The man who will not lie for his car is no gentleman.

We fib about our gasoline mileage because it is expected of us. We also fib because we want to make a good impression, to show off our skill in buying a good car in the first place and in keeping it in good repair and in getting the most out of it. The chief reason, briefly stated is that in complimenting the car we compliment ourselves.

We fib about our gasoline mileage for the same reason that a mother always sides with her boy.

FAREWELL TO PETERBOROUGH

Mr. and Mrs. Langlois, who have been spending the past week in Peterborough, at the Tourist Camp Grounds, and the couple who have been spending their diamond honeymoon camping out and touring the country, have left the city, and Mr. Langlois says good bye in the following way:

With regret we leave you, Peterborough,
We can no longer stay,
As much as we would like to stop
We must be on our way.
We only came to stay one day,
But all was so clean and sweet,
We could not make up our minds to go,
So we have stayed a week.
And there is Mr. J. Gillespie
The keeper of the grounds,
A big good hearted chap—
No better could be found.
And though we go away to-day
We will return again,
And everywhere that we may go
We'll spread abroad your fame.

STILL SELL HARPOONS

SEATTLE, Wash, Sept. 5.—Although whaling as a profession is almost extinct, one concern here still receives orders for harpoons from isolated whalers in the North Pacific and Atlantic. A recent order received was for three heavy whale harpoons to be shipped to a Norwegian port.

THE BEST SINCE 1820

The First Requirement of a Fuel is Dependability

WHEN your winter's supply of fuel is in, then you must depend upon that fuel through the thick and thin of whatever weather may come.

Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite has weathered over a hundred winters—never failing, never disappointing—a dependable fuel under all conditions.

Experimenting with fuels is likely to be expensive. Many householders who have been led to change to "something newer", and who have afterwards turned back to Old Company's Lehigh, will testify that such adventuring is costly of both money and comfort. This quality coal assures you of adequate heat when the blizzard rages; it provides you with a steady but flexible warmth that maintains your home at the proper temperature through the weather's fluctuations.

Your local Old Company's dealer co-operates with Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite to give you an always satisfactory heating service. He will deliver your coal in prime condition and advise you to any desired extent upon its most efficient use.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1928

MR. DUTTON'S REMINDER.

The appeal of President James Dutton of the Chamber of Commerce, on behalf of Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition, is one that will be answered by the whole district next week.

Mr. Dutton is right in designating the Exhibition as "a real community affair."

It enlists the co-operation of the city man and the farmer, the manufacturer and the merchant, and is a veritable cross section of the business, agricultural, manufacturing and social life of this section of Central Ontario.

This whole-hearted co-operation has built the Exhibition to its present standard and ensures it steady development from year to year as new plans and new features are added to keep pace with the all round growth.

The public generally does its part by supplying a constantly mounting attendance record and there is every reason to feel confident that, with favorable weather throughout the week, this year will see still another high mark reached.

With more to educate, amuse and entertain its thousands of patrons than ever before offered here the 1928 Exhibition should have little difficulty in leaving all previous attendance records well in the rear.

OUR DEBT TO THE PIONEERS.

The fact that in connection with the celebration over the completion of the Huron road as a paved thoroughfare, just a hundred years after the first road was hewn through the great Huron tract, the memory of the sturdy pioneers of the district was honored by thousands, is of interest.

In this country we seem to be so busily engaged in other things that we have little time to acknowledge the debt we owe to the brave men and women who laid the foundation for our present prosperity by their labor and fortitude and courage.

It is gratifying, therefore, to find that the people of Huron in rejoicing over the opening of a modern road did not fail to pay tribute to the pioneers who first opened the district and left a glorious heritage.

There should be more celebrations like that held in Douro Township several years ago when due honor was paid to the early settlers, and a successful effort made to arouse Dquro citizens of to-day to a realization of how much they owed to the first citizens of the township.

This splendid Province in which we take so much pride was made possible through the undaunted toil of the pioneers of one hundred years ago.

Our gratitude should be more often manifested.

THE RURAL MAIL CARRIERS.

With the renewed request of the Canadian Mail Contractors' Association for the abolition of the contract plan in connection with the rural mail service, it is scarcely necessary to say The Examiner is in complete sympathy.

We have frequently condemned that system as, in the main, unfair, and see no reason now for reversing that opinion.

Whether or not $70 per mile, which is the rate asked for by the rural carriers as remuneration for their services, is a reasonable rate The Examiner is not prepared to say, but at all events there seems no reason why rural letter carriers should not be appointed on a permanent basis and given adequate pay for their work.

Under the present contract system the men who carry the mails throughout the country have no assurance that they will retain their position beyond the term of their contract, and the result is they sometimes have to choose between making a tender at a figure that leaves them little for their work or taking the risk of being left out in the cold completely.

Permanent carriers, sure of their positions so long as their work is satisfactory and able to count upon a standard income, would undoubtedly contribute more efficient service than is possible under present conditions.

ANOTHER SIDE TO TOURIST TRAFFIC.

The homeward trek of the army of tourists who have for the past two months penetrated into every section of the Province has begun.

In a few weeks, save for a small percentage who remain to try Ontario's hunting the visitors from across the border will all be home again.

They will be missed.

In their sojourn in Ontario they have spent many millions of dollars, and directly or indirectly the majority of our citizens have benefitted as a result.

But there is another side to this tourist traffic that is seldom referred to, even by agencies which exist for the stimulation of this profitable industry.

International good-will, a better understanding among the people of the earth, are being sought by the nations.

Is there any greater factor in building up a better feeling between the people of the United States and Canada than this yearly movement of millions of people across the border line?

Our American friends, some of whom have been coming into this district for many years, have learned to look upon us as dear neighbors.

The happiest months of the year to them are the summer months they spend on some lake or river in Ontario.

Many of them have a stake in this Province; they have purchased property here, and they come back year after year, eager to meet their Canadian friends.

In that yearly renewal of friendship, as in the constant visiting of the United States by Canadians, there is created a spirit of mutual admiration, liking and respect that cannot fail to have an effect on both sides of the line.

FINGERPRINTING IMMIGRANTS.

The Chief Constable's Association, in convention at Toronto, wants the finger-printing of all immigrants made compulsory by law, and is to ask the minister of justice to amend the statutes to that effect, says the Montreal Gazette. A very intriguing idea, and one the police are constantly flirting with. As we remember it, there were some enthusiasts two or three years ago who wanted the whole population finger-printed, but somehow the notion did not take.

However, the immigrants are easier to work on than the home population. If you confront them suddenly in the immigration shed at Quebec, they can probably be finger-printed before one could say "Jack Robinson," especially if they come from Rumania or Latvia and can't speak English. But it won't se so simple with the Britishers and Americans. The former complain bitterly about the formalities they have already to go through. It is being said in Britain that the endless questions each immigrant has to answer, and the inspections he had to go through are turning back prospective settlers by the hundred. Can you imagine what would happen if finger-printing were added to the list of indignities?

Implicit in the proposal that immigrants arriving in Canada should be finger-printed is the suggestion that the criminal classes are recruited from foreigners and people from Britain. At any rate that is the inference most laymen will draw from the Chief Constables' Association scheme. Is this a fair implication? If the report of the superintendent of Canadian penitentiaries for 1927 is consulted, a table will be found which gives the country of birth of every one of the 2,480 inmates in the federal prisons at the end of last year. This shows that Canadian-born make up the great majority of penitentiary inmates. There are 1,540 native Canadians as compared with 940 of all other nationalities. If British-born and American-born are excluded, the total foreign-born penitentiary population is reduced to 424.

Of course, the chief constables' idea is that finger-printing immigrants would not only aid in revealing the identity of crooks, but would warn others off. And they will say that honest, law-abiding immigrants have nothing to fear from being finger-printed. That may be true. Nevertheless, most honest and law-abiding people have a deep-rooted objection to such police methods. It would undoubtedly be a great deterrent to immigration as a whole, and particularly British immigration. Altogether, it looks as if the proposal had better be left alone.

ARE WOMEN GROWING FICKLE?

Are women, because of their new opportunities for careers, becoming less constant in love than men? Editorial comment in American Medicine suggests that the answer must be in the affirmative.

The contentions therein set forth are based upon the results of research by two students who published their findings in Harper's. These students sent out 400 questions to 100 married men and 100 married women. The interrogations had to do with intimate personal lives of the recipients. Although American Medicine seems to think that men would answer such questions more frankly than women, it describes the results as startling. A greater number of women than men confessed to extra-marital love affairs, the exact figures being forty-one women as against twenty-nine men. "In other words," the medical periodical says, "the emancipation of woman has led to her surpassing man in his emotional vagaries, outstripping him in a field which was once his exclusive province."

Answers by women are reported as indicating a belief is prevalent among them that if after five years a woman hasn't felt herself sentimentally attracted to some man other than her husband she is qualified as "pitifully repressed and reactionary." American Medicine somewhat doubtfully suggests that this may be but a temporary stage in the readjustment of women's lives to the greater freedom of the present age. It hopes that things will turn out all right, but fears that "marriage, the home and the family are in a precarious position, awaiting the decision of woman as to what role she is to adopt ultimately."

These remarks being by way of obiter dicta, it is perhaps too much to expect that they should be framed with that disipassionate regard of scientific method to be expected from American Medicine in the discussion of a purely scientific topic. Its article assumes that women are less frank in their answers than men, "as is natural in discussion of their intimate lives." That assumption is open to question. It is safe to doubt that, when women are sure their confidences will be respected, they are less inclined than men to discuss things which concern themselves most intimately. But a survey of 100 persons of each sex is too limited on which to base generalization of this kind.

In any group of 100 men some will be found ready upon slight persuasion to reveal their closest secrets; wild horses could not drag those secrets from other men. The same is doubtless true of any group of 100 women. "The result of the census indicates," says American Medicine, "that, socially and racially, an important change has taken place in recent years." This statement would be more impressive if accompanied by evidence as to what were the results of similar inquiries in former years. The probative value of these results depends upon facts, not assumptions, as to the relative constancy of other married women in other ages.

If we are to believe the cynics of bygone times there never has been an age in which all women were able to keep their affections to a single love. It is absurd to think in terms of ratios of fidelity and infidelity when there are no dependable ratios of yesterday to be compared with those of to-day.

If woman has been "emancipated" from the moral restraints of a stricter day, what about man? Has he been put under restraint in proportion as woman has been freed? With whom do these philandering modern females philander? If the 100 men and 100 women of this inquiry had been placed in a position in which they could flirt only with one another, it would seem that twelve of the dears would have had to go without companions in adventure, or else there would have been some pretty bickerings.

Times change, manners change, standards of conduct vary from generation to generation. As yet there is insufficient evidence to prove that human nature is much different now from what it has been.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough's big Exhibition is just round the corner which almost reconciles young Peterborough to the fact that the schools are open for the autumn term.

Toronto policeman named Worm caught a bandit the other day. This seems to be a case where the early bird got none of the breaks.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 5 (Canadian Press). — There was no change in prices for carlots of grain on the local market yesterday when trading was resumed following the holiday. The demand showed some improvement from country buyers and a moderate amount of business was done.

Prices likewise held steady in the market for spring wheat flour, the export trade being reported quiet. A fair amount of business was transacted for domestic and country account.

A good business continued to be done in most lines of millfeed and the market was fairly active, with a steady undertone. Rolled oats trading showed no improvement and the market was quiet and steady. There was no change in the baled hay market.

Egg receipts amounted to 1,158 cases yesterday. There were no new developments in the market.

Butter prices for pasteurized grades were marked up fractionally higher, but the volume of business was reported rather small and the market was quiet. The receipts were 489 packages.

The cheese market was quiet, with receipts of 5,846 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 5 (Canadian Press). — Wheat and corn were marked down in Chicago Board of Trade yesterday under pressure of the variety of moderately bearish elements that found the grain market poorly supported. September corn was the vulnerable sport, sagging 2½c to 2⅝c, while the deferred months eased off fractionally.

Wheat eased off at the start owing to Liverpool's reaction to rains in Australia and the Argentine. Canadian harvest weather continued favorable. Further losses followed during the early trading, influenced to some extent by the bearish private crop figures which, however, had already been taken into account by the trade. The forecasts ranged from 310,000,000 to 325,000,000 bushels of domestic spring wheat and a record Canadian crop between 470,000,000 bushels and 538,000,000 bushels, the latter report suggesting Manitoba's yield at 53,000,000, Saskatchewan at 310,000,000, and Alberta at 175,000,000 bushels. The world's exportable wheat surplus is reckoned at 300,000,000 bushels over the estimated importers' requirements compared with 104,000,000 a year ago. The seaboard reported one million bushels Manitobas taken for export.

Proximity of heavy Canadian wheat movements, appearance of hedging sales for the north-west and an increase of 3,774,000 bushels in the visible supply were the principal factors in the late weakness of wheat, which rallied fractionally and closed 1¼c to 1⅝c decline, September 110¼, December 115¼, March 119⅝ to 119¾, and May 121⅞ to 122.

Corn opened firm, but the buying power was listless and a downturn in September found prices undermined, stop loss selling becoming evident. The private crop estimates confirmed the trade's view of a three billion bushels harvest, the lowest figure given yesterday being 2,998,000,000 bushels, while one authority placed the crop at 3,122,000,000 bushels. The visible supply only decreased 712,000 bushels. Corn closed a quarter to 2⅞ cents down, September 92¼ to 92½, December 74½ to 74⅝, March 76⅞, and May 79¼.

Oats were dull, easing fractionally with corn, and closing ¼c to ½c lower, September 38½. Provisions were firm with hogs, lard 12 to 15 cents up, and others unchanged. September lard closed at 12.45.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, September 5. — Canadian Press. — Hogs 27,000; market closed steady to 10 higher than Friday's average; top 13.25 paid early for 180 to 210 pounds; shippers took 7000; estimated hold over 7000.

Vealers, milk fed, good and choice, 16.50 to 17.75; cull and common 8.25 and 13.50. Stocker and feeder steers, good and choice, all weights, 11.75 to 13.85.

Sheep 23,000; fat and feeding lambs active, steady to strong; not much change on sheep. Lambs, good and choice, 92 pounds down, 14.35 to 15.50; cull and common, 9.25 to 12.75. Ewes, medium to choice, 150 pounds down, 4.25 to 7.25; cull and common, 1.75 to 5.25. Feeder lambs, good and choice 13.65 to 14.35.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, September 5. — Price tendencies on the Toronto wholesale produce market are still upward. A sale is reported of a shipment of Ontario eggs at: Extras, 42 cents; firsts, 40 cents; seconds, 32 cents, delivered, cases returned. The ruling quotations on fresh firsts, buying, stepped up yesterday one cent, the price now being 36 to 37 cents. Quotations on selling prices of eggs are steady, while the entire produce market is marked by its continued steadiness, both in the buying and the selling divisions.

PETERBOROUGH GIRL WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Wedding Bells

ARTHURS—BLODGETT.

(Examiner Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, Sept. 5.—The marriage of Bruce Arthurs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Arthurs to Miss Grace Blodgett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Blodgett took place at the parsonage on Wednesday morning, Rev. R. M. Brown officiating.

The young couple left immediately for a trip to Toronto and other places west.

CASEY—McGRATH

(Examiner Correspondence)

MARMORA, Sept. 5.—Another pretty wedding took place at the Sacred Heart Church at 8 a.m. on Monday when Margaret, daughter of Mrs. James McGrath became the bride of Thomas Casey of Cochrane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Casey of Englishart. The officiating clergy were Rev. Father Kelley of Marmora and Rev. Father Buckley of Read. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Michael, was becomingly attired in peach georgette and wore a black velvet picture hat with facings of peach flowers. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid was Miss Elizabeth McGrath, sister of the bride. She wore a gown of orchid georgette and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. The duties of best man were discharged by Clarence O'Neill, cousin of the groom. The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. Casey and Mrs. D. H. McKinnon of Englehart, Mr. and Mrs. B. Callery of Read, Mr. James O'Neill, Mrs. Dennis Hogan of Millbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Everard McGrath and family and Mr. Desmond McGrath of Oshawa, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Keating of Oshawa, and Miss Stella Ford of Belleville.

The honeymoon is being spent in Montreal and other eastern points.

FORMER OFFICIAL GETS PRISON TERM

Mrs. Florence Knapp Sentenced For Misuse of State Funds.

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former Secretary of State, of New York, convicted of grand larceny, first degree, in connection with her administration of state census funds, yesterday was sentenced to serve thirty days in the Albany County penitentiary.

Mrs. Knapp was taken to jail while her attorneys fought for a certificate of reasonable doubt which would automatically act as a stay of execution.

Her sentence was the climax of two sensational trials early this year. The first time the jury disagreed, but the second resulted in conviction.

Seventeen Who Have Recovered From Paralysis Will Aid in Making Serum.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Enlisted in the fight against the spread of infantile paralysis, which has taken a death toll of eleven in Winnipeg, seventeen recovered victims of the dread disease have volunteered to give a few ounces of their blood for the making of a serum which it is believed will halt the infection.

HEAT!

"I Used 5 Tons of Coal instead of 12..." writes Customer

Look at this! Thousands of people are saving fuel and getting more heat by using the new Gilson Magic All-Steel Furnace.

"Gentlemen:

My house is heated with a Gilson Magic Furnace. I have used 5 tons of coal where I was using 12 tons before (without satisfaction). With my Gilson we have the best comfort.

L. Letourneau, Montreal."

Names of people living near you who are cutting their coal bills the Gilson way will be gladly supplied. They will tell you how they are now getting the largest amount of heat from the smallest amount of fuel they ever burned. The Gilson Magic burns hard coal, coke, soft coal, oil or gas.

What Users Say—

Gentlemen:

I am writing a little letter to tell you that we certainly enjoyed our No. 18TS Magic Furnace we got this fall. We have had great comfort with it, as it heats our house wonderfully, and the heat starts to come up as soon as we light it, and we are certainly glad we bought a Gilson.

Harold Griffith,
560, 9th St. W., Owen Sound

Heated 8 Rooms with 2½ Tons of Coal

We saved two tons of coal this winter, and had a warmer house and less work. We heated eight rooms day and night for 3½ months with 2½ tons of coal. A year ago we burned four tons of coal, and we did not heat all the house.

E. W. Gieger, Hespeler.

Great Fuel Saver

The Gilson Magic Pipeless Furnace that I bought from your agent has given the best of satisfaction, with all kinds of fuel. It is a wonderful heater, and a great fuel saver. We recommend this furnace to anyone as a very satisfactory heating system.

J. Henry Eamer, Cornwall.

Other Famous Gilson Products

GILSON FURNACE
makes many warm friends

This marvellous new heating unit gives more heat per ton of coal and is absolutely dustless and smokeless. While old style furnaces are made of separate pieces of metal with many seams and joints, the new Gilson Magic is electrically welded tight as if made from one single, solid piece of metal. No gas or smoke can leak. Keeps your house clean. Keeps your health safe. Special booster flues drive heat like forced draft. Heats the cold rooms. Toncan Plate construction radiates heat 3 times faster. Warms house in few minutes.

Only $10 Down—Easy Payments

$10.00 puts this wonderful new furnace in your home. Installed by experts. Guaranteed by manufacturer. Balance in small monthly payments over extended period. You'll save in fuel and in doctor's bills the cost of furnace, for pure warm air without gas or dust means better health and freedom from winter colds. You'll enjoy the comfort of June in January.

Fill out and mail coupon today. No obligation. We will send you free book "The Supremacy of Steel" and tell you how the Gilson Magic Furnace will give you greater comfort—and at a low fuel cost you have never known before.

MARION.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Paquin designed the original of this coat with multiple bolero effect and sleeve trimming to match. It is worn with a fox collar.

Certainly very interesting — the clothes shown by the influential French dressmaker for autumn—but withal conservative, in that not a single one of the well-known couturiers shows any desire to break entirely with the accepted fashions. So that while the higher waistline seems to be coming back, almost all of the dressmakers show long-waisted models. There are flared coats, but a surprising number of quite straight-line coats as well.

And skirts are very gradually growing longer. Three inches below the knee—remember—is the smart length for skirts for autumn, and when shorter skirts appear at all it is on evening frocks that almost touch the ground at the back.

Many of the dress details of the present time may be considered measures of compromise. The skirt that dips at the back or hangs with uneven drapery at the side is, of course, a compromise between the short skirt of which women were growing tired and the all-round long skirt which they were not ready to accept.

The frock with several belts ranging between hipline and fairly high waistline is a compromise between the out and out high waistline and the old-time low one. The multiple bolero originated by Paquin, shown in the sketch, is another such compromise.

There no longer seems to be any doubt on the subject of fur trimming on coats. All the well-known dressmakers have shown coats with fur trimming though there are furless models that will appeal to the woman who wants to wear a fox scarf. It is interesting too, to note that some of the new coats are trimmed with fur at the hemline. Premet has hit upon the clever idea of using furs in two colors on the same coat. Black fox and beige fox used together are decidedly smart.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

HERE'S another argument in favor of women breaking away, in some degree, from the home, and I think it's a mighty good one. It is sent in by a Peterborough lady who, naturally enough, desires to remain in the background.

• • • • • • •

Women of to-day, my correspondent writes, have a wonderful array of time- and labor-saving devices. They have ice-boxes and iceless refrigerators, carpet sweepers, electric water heaters, fireless cookers, electric washers, toasters, percolators, and what-not. They have carpetless floors, and they have done away with dust-collecting ornaments.

• • • • • • •

Most Peterborough women have beautiful, or at least pretty, homes, but they are not slaves to them. Money by itself does not make an attractive home; there must be intelligence also, and that women have this is demonstrated by the way they take up new ideas when their ancestors would have argued for the old regime.

• • • • • • •

A lot of energy is still required in the home, but surely a woman who drops her clothes into a pan and watches the electricity wash them should have something useful to fill in the time she saves! And when she runs an electric cleaner over her rugs instead of scatter tea leaves or wet paper to keep the whisk from stirring up the dust, surely she should be able to wring out a few minutes a day for her own pursuits!

• • • • • • •

How better can she use the time thus saved than by following up the profression in which she was qualified before marriage, provided it was worth while? She is then keeping her hand in, so that in case of emergency she would be ready to return to her own maintainance.

• • • • • • •

And probably, more important, she is retaining her contact with the world; keeping alive with her husband, whose daily work takes him into the world.

• • • • • • •

Which reminds me of the story about the man who said his wife would never go to bed before two o'clock in the morning. He admitted he couldn't break her of the habit, and when asked what she did until that time, said, "She waits up for me."

• • • • • • •

It is just a question, as my correspondent says, whether the woman could not do something after her housework is cleared up (and it should always be well done) than just wait around for her husband.

• • • • • • •

Let's hear some other opinions on this subject—a subject which is of vital interest to every married woman and every young woman contemplating marriage.

• • • • • • •

While sitting in the hairdresser's chair a few days ago I asked what style of hair dressing will be "in" this fall. The reply was somewhat startling, in a world that is fashion-ridden. "Styles have disappeared," said my hairdresser. "The smart woman is wearing her hair as she pleases, to suit her own individual style."

• • • • • • •

One thing that has aided women is the disagreement of barbers and hairdressers as to whether it should be long or short. Certainly, Peterborough streets and stores, and wherever women gather, show a wonderful diversity of style. In the midst of the argument, women can do as they please!

• • • • • • •

A barber who has only one style of haircut is distinctly out of the picture. He succeeds best who can frame his client's face in the most becoming manner—and Peterborough hairdressers seem to be apt at their art!

• • • • • • •

One can see, in any congregation of women, long and short, straight and curly, modish, or like the old masters' boys. In other words, readers, style for us is the best thing that exactly suits our type. Cheers for freedom!

• • • • • • •

A few weeks ago a correspondent wrote asking about the eating of vegetables. A writer in a current magazine sheds new light on the subject, and adds an injunction against eating asparagus with the fingers. Vegetables are usually served with no juice, and are served on the dinner plate, either in combination or with the meat. And then, of course, the fork is used, or the knife and fork, if we have adopted the European way of eating. "We should always use forks too for asparagus—not fingers, for it is really too "drippy" adds the writer.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

A fetching costume of rust brown wool seen in a local store will be attractive to some woman this fall. It could be worn with a fur scarf now, and under a coat later.

• • • • • • •

Camiknickers are chosen by many women for street and sport wear, as they combine the advantages of knicker and step-in, and ensure a foundation garment that is not at all bulky. I have had prepared a simple diagram pattern of a garment of this sort made in four pieces. If you would like a copy with sketch of completed garment and directions for making, I will send it to you at once. Just send in the coupon which appears on another part of this page, or drop me a note.

• • • • • • •

Early next week The Examiner will give you its Autumn fashion number, replete with ideas for your fall outfit. Just here I would like to give a little warning. In buying clothes don't forget that they are a very personal expression of your taste and knowledge of fashion. Make sure that the clothes are not only "fashionable", but that they fit your individual style.

CAPTAIN TRAINOR'S GIRL

By WILTON SPEAR

It was in Captain Jimmy Trainor's stateroom that Hilary Brook first saw the girl's picture. It was in a gold frame, that encircled the laughing young face, with its large eyes, cloudy mist of short hair and perfect throat. Hilary glanced at the picture again and again and then looked long at the tall, slender form of the captain with a sharp, handsome face and trim, small, black moustache.

"Is that your wife, Captain?" asked Hilary who had not known him very long.

The captain shook his head: "My wife died ten years ago," he murmured. "You are looking at that picture—that's my girl—my very best girl."

"Indeed?" remarked Hilary, rather surprised. "She is beautiful, Captain. I congratulate you."

The captain stared at him for an instant. "Thank you," he said drily.

A week later they landed and went their ways, Captain Jimmy Trainor going to his home near the ocean while Hilary Brook went to New York City where his business was located. Captain Trainor was now retiring from his seafaring life and because a legacy recently inherited made it possible for him to remain ashore and engage himself in the affairs of his real estate holdings, sometimes time dragged heavily upon the man who had spent such a busy life. To him one day came his charming daughter, Leslie.

"Father," she said, sitting down on the top step of the porch and lifting lovely gray eyes to his, "I have met the most charming man today—" Her eyes looked dreamily out at sea.

"What was his name?"

"Hilary Brook."

"I know him, Leslie."

"Someone at Mrs. Alison's began to introduce us when he smiled charmingly and said, 'Captain Trainor has told me about you—I saw your picture,' and as Mrs. Alison went away, he added, 'Please permit me to wish you happiness.' I murmured thanks—and since then I have been wondering!"

The captain threw back his head and laughed. "He was staring at your picture so much that I told him that it was my girl, never thinking that he would take it any other way than that it was my daughter. We must have him out here some day—fine fellow."

Leslie Trainor was silent, for her meeting with Hilary Brooke had made a deep impression upon her. She had many admirers and was as popular as she was beautiful. She cherished a saying of her lovely mother when she was a small girl: "When you love, Leslie, love surely, truly, because love lasts forever." Perhaps that was why at twenty-two Leslie Trainor had never really loved any man excepting her father. And now this vision of Hilary Brooke haunted her, stayed with her.

"Is this love?" she asked herself one day, and blushed hotly.

After that she met Hilary several times but as he seemed to avoid her, Leslie tried to forget him. She had put him in back of her thoughts and was very gay and young, when suddenly Brooke went back to the city again. It was some weeks afterward that Captain Trainor went to the city on business and ran across Hilary Brooke at his club.

"Why don't you come out and see us sometimes?" asked the captain. "Leslie says she met you around at places in our neighborhood."

"Thank you, I will come out some time," said Brook rather vaguely. "I met your finacee—she is more lovely than her picture."

The captain stared owlishly at him. "Come out soon Brooke, make a definite date."

So Brooke rather reluctantly promised to come out the following Saturday for the weekend, and Captain Trainor was amused when he asked if Captain Trainor was married yet.

"No," said the captain heartily, "indefinitely postponed, Brooke."

Brooke's coming was a surprise to Leslie. She had been sitting on the front veranda, facing the sea with wistful hazel eyes on the far horizon, when she heard a pleasant voice that was rather familiar, and there stood Brooke in his gray clothes, his face rather grave and troubled.

"Is Captain Trainor at home?" he asked her.

"I believe he is in his study. Won't you sit down?" In response to her ring, a maid servant came and went and a moment afterward Captain Trainor was shaking hands with his guest.

"Have you met my daughter?" asked Captain Trainor, and in another moment Brooke was leaning over Leslie's trembling hand.

Brooke lifted his head, threw back his shoulders and faced the captain.

"When you showed me that picture, captain, you said it was your best girl—and I really thought you meant your fiancee—I did not know that you had a daughter," he bowed to Leslie, his fine eyes full of happy light.

"She is the only girl I shall ever have," said the captain simply, and then he looked at Leslie and found her face aglow with a sweet tremulousness.

And that is the way it happened that Hilary Brooke married Captain Trainor's girl.

Answers to S.O.S.

CLEANING RED STOVES.

(Asked by Blue Eyes, Lakefield.)

It is very difficult to cover the red that shows in a steel-topped stove, but the following system ought to help. If any reader knows of others, I shall be glad to learn them to pass on.

Remove all grease spots, and rub off the rust with sandpaper. Mix the blacklead to the consistency of cream with vinegar and apply at once to the stove. When nearly dry, polish briskly with a stiff brush. The stove should be quite cold when the blacklead is applied. The vinegar helps the polish to "stick" on the red part of the stove. This is not, of course, a permanent cure for the blush.

SQUASH.

Squash can be cooked as a vegetable, in which case it is only necessary to peel and cut, cook 30 to 35 minutes, and mash with pepper, salt and butter. If the squash is old the seeds should be removed.

Here is another way to cook and serve: Cut off the top of a small squash, remove the seeds and stringy portion, place in pan and steam or bake about two hours until tender. Remove pulp from shell, keeping large shell intact; put pulp through ricer, season with salt, pepper and butter, and two tablespoons of cream. If desired, a little sugar or molasses may also be added, and return to shell. Smooth surface to a dome shape and score with knife, brush over with milk and egg, add specks of butter, then place in oven for a few minutes. Serve on a folded napkin on individual plates. Part of a second squash is needed to make a full shell.

Have any readers any other recipes for using squash?

THE EMPTY BOTTLE

Convert the empty hair tonic bottle, which has a device for permitting only a few drops to fall at a time, into a bottle for bluing. The amount of bluing then may be controlled easily and the fingers and clothes will not be stained after the operation as with the ordinary bottle of blue.

Assam teas are known by experts as the finest teas grown—a fact which explains why Red Rose Orange Pekoe has become so deservedly popular in Canada. For Red Rose Orange Pekoe is chiefly composed of Assam teas, which accounts for its distinctive quality and value. Every package guaranteed.

VXIII—SALLY ASKS FORGIVENESS

Sally had behaved horribly to Sanderson, and he was in trouble. Mrs. Kiff had spoken truly when she said that Sometimes was his only friend—dear old Sometimes, who had even forgiven her after she had hit him, and come back with eager eyes and hopefully waving tail, to lick her hand. Supposing he died? The thought squeezed her heart.

Never to hear the pad of his feet about the little cottage again, never again to hear his sharp, joyous bark, or the thud of his whip-like tail against the doors and furniture as he scrambled round after Philip.

And suddenly the vixenish little thoughts in Sally's mind changed, and she found herself saying over and over again in a feverish whisper:

"Oh, I hope he doesn't die! Oh, I hope he gets well! Poor, poor old Sometimes!"

Presently she groped beside the bed for her stick and banged on the floor, and after a moment Mrs. Kiff came reluctantly to see what she wanted.

"How slow you are!" Sally was crying unashamedly. "Didn't you hear me knocking? I must nearly have knocked a hole in the floor."

"I 'eard you all right," Mrs. Kiff said stonily. "And what is it you want?"

"I want Mr. Sanderson.

"Well, you can't have him, he's gone out, and he said he didn't know when he'd be back."

Sally's eyes grew big with alarm. "He didn't take the car?" she gasped.

Sally gave a deep sigh.

"Oh, well, then, he'll have to come back," she breathed in relief.

Mrs. Kiff snorted inelegantly.

"A lot you'd care if he never came again," she declared.

"Get out of the room," Sally commanded.

But it was late before Philip Sanderson returned. The afternoon dragged away, and the shadows closed down about the little cottage, and still he did not come.

"There ought to be a light on that there car of his," Mrs. Kiff said anxiously when she brought tea. "But I've 'ad a look all over it, and I can't see no tap to turn a light on by."

"It's safe enough where it is," Sally answered. "And, anyway, Philip will be in directly."

"Don't you be too sure," Mrs. Kiff threatened. "I know something about men, and even a worm will turn if it's trodden on for long enough." But Philip came at last, and Sally's heart thumped as she heard him open the door and shut it carefully behind him. She was so sure that he would come straight to her room and apologize in his clumsy way for having left her alone all day that it gave her a shock when he passed her door and went straight into the sitting-room, where Mrs. Kiff had lit the fire and drawn the curtains cosily against the grey evening.

Sally waited incredulously, she waited for quite a long time, then she thumped on the floor with "John," as Sanderson had nick-named her stick. But, contrary to her expectations, Mrs. Kiff came in reply, as a rule, if Sanderson was in the cottage he was with her as quickly as his long legs could bring him.

Sally flushed with anger.

"It's not you I want," she said shrilly. "I want Mr. Sanderson.

"Well, he's asleep," Mrs. Kiff answered bluntly. "Leastways, he looks as if he is, but perhaps he's pretending, like you do sometimes."

Sally's lip quivered.

"You're very unkind," she whimpered. "My back hurts me and I want to go to sleep."

Mrs. Kiff proceeded in silence to take off the dainty silk negligee which Sally was wearing in honor of Sanderson's presence, then she shook up the bed and generally prepared the girl for the night.

"And take the lamp away," Sally ordered petulantly. "I want to go to sleep."

But she knew she would not be able to sleep a wink until she had seen Philip Sanderson and healed the breach which she herself had made between them.

When Mrs. Kiff had retired to her kitchen a great silence seemed to fall on the little cottage, broken only by the crackle of the fire from the sitting-room where Philip slept, or pretended to sleep, and the sleepy twitter of birds in the dusky garden outside. Sally did her best to go to sleep, she counted sheep coming through a hedge, and said the alphabet through nine times, but she only seemed wider awake than ever, till at last she could bear it no longer.

Then she called softly.

"Philip!"

No reply, and she raised her voice a little.

"Phil-ip!"

She thought she heard him stir, and she waited breathlessly, but still he did not come, and she tried again more loudly.

"Philip! I want you, Philip!"

Sally knew just how to get the right note of pathos into her voice, only perhaps this time there was a certain sincerity about it, for after a moment she heard him move, push back his chair, and cross the narrow passage.

By the light of the lamp outside she could see the silhouette of his tall figure in her doorway.

Sally spoke his name again appealingly.

"Philip!"

"Can I get anything for you? I thought you were asleep."

Sally stretched out her hand, for once the cold unfriendliness of his voice did not anger or irritate her.

"Come here," she said.

After the slightest hesitation he obeyed, but still he kept too far away for her to touch him, and Sally said again, more gently than he had ever heard her speak:

"Give me your hand, Philip."

She heard him catch his breath with a little rough sound, and then he asked bluntly:

"What do you want with my hand?"

"Give it to me, and I'll tell you."

For an instant longer he did not move, then he came a step nearer and put his hand in hers.

"Well, what do you want?"

For answer Sally carried it to her lips and gently kissed it.

"Sally!"

He would have drawn it away, but she held it fast.

"Oh, please, don't go! I'm sorry I was such a little beast." She was talking quickly and incoherently, and crying softly. "I don't know what made me say that about Sometimes. I didn't mean it. I love him, too. I couldn't bear it if he died. Oh, Philip dear——"

He dragged his hand away from her and turned away.

"It's all right," he told her in a stifled voice. "And I'm tired of being made a fool of, anyway. It doesn't matter a curse what you said about the dog. I've forgotten it, anyway."

"But you haven't, you couldn't have done," she insisted, sobbing. "It would serve me right if you never forgave me, and if you turned me out in the streets. But I am sorry, I'd bite my tongue out to take those words back if I could. Oh, Philip, do believe me! I know I've been a little devil to you, and you've been an angel to me—"

He laughed harshly.

"A pretty black sort of angel."

She tried to reach him again.

"Give me back your hand."

"No."

"Philip, you're being rotten to me now."

"I don't flatter myself that you care how rotten I am to you."

"But I do. Oh, you must believe me!"

Sally was surprised at her own sincerity, she was almost angry because at the moment there was nothing she wanted so much as to be friends with him, to feel the old, kind grasp of his hand that had helped her through so many hours of pain, and to hear the surprising tenderness once more in his rough voice.

Then suddenly Sanderson said almost savagely:

"You're only making a fool of me, I know. For some purpose of your own, I suppose. I haven't shed a tear for God knows how many years, but if you don't let me go, Sally, I shall be crying like a damned kid in a minute.

Then, as if he had reached the end of his tether and could bear no more, he sat down in the armchair beside her bed and hid his face in his hands.

WOMAN SO NERVOUS COULD NOT SLEEP

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Masson, Que.—"I was very nervous, so nervous that sleep was almost impossible and I was all run-down. I saw your ad in the paper and have taken eleven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I could not wish to feel better than I do, and I recommend it to all."—MRS. DELPHINE LAFRAMBOISE, Masson, Quebec.

New Carlisle, Que.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down system and it helped me. My nerves are better and I have a good appetite now. The Vegetable Compound has been of great benefit to me and I will answer letters from women asking about it."—MRS. WILLIS BUTTLE, Jr., New Carlisle, Quebec.

U.S. ARMY FLIERS VISIT EXHIBITION

Squadron of Fifteen Reaches Toronto From Selfridge Field.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Swooping gracefully from the skies, a squadron of fifteen aeroplanes from Selfridge Field, Detroit, made a perfect landing at the Leaside Airdrome yesterday, after flying from Detroit to take part in the Canadian National Exhibition. Favored with perfect flying weather, the fliers, composing the United States Army Pursuit Squadron of Selfridge Field, made good time on their trip and before reaching the field flew over the city in perfect formation.

the domestic animals on the farm who had straw as an item in their diet, were well pleased with the change.

The advance in farm machinery is graphically shown at the Exhibition this year, the demands made by the big prairie farms, with fields streching to the horizon, having brought into practical being and use the new, special cultivating, seeding, and harvesting machines which are now being adopted by farmers in the eastern part of Canada as well.

The combination reaper-thresher is perhaps of outstanding importance; it is not exactly new since one firm claims its manufacture for twenty-five years past, but the attachments now shown have added to its usefulness and popularity. With a variable climate, such as prevails pretty generally in Canada, reaping and threshing in one operation was not found satisfactory—the grain does not ripen evenly enouhg for that.

Now, however, the 'swather', or windrow harvester, may be used, cutting the grain any length desired and leaving it in a windrow on the stubble; in a few days the thresher comes along, with a pick-up attachment, threshes the grain, cleans it, and leaves the straw either to be burned, plowed under, or hauled to the barns after raking.

A tractor, or horses, are necessary for haulage purposes, but costs are greatly reduced by the saving in labor ,time (for no stooking is necessary) and in binder twine since none is used. It also entails much less weather risk. The price is not extravagant, considering the features in which economy is possible; the figures run around $2,000, with attachments, down to $1,800 or $1,700, with a reduction for the smaller sizes.

CROPS SEEM GOOD IN WHEAT FIELDS

Hon. G. N. Gordon Sees Former Peterborough People Prospering In West.

The Honorable G. N. Gordon returned from Regina and Winnipeg this morning and said that from all indications in the districts he visited, the crop conditions were excellent. Grain-growers and elevator proprietors, however, claim that the extent of frost injuries could not be estimated until after threshing.

A number of people from Peterborough City and the County whom Mr. Gordon saw, he said, seemed to be prosperous and succeeding well, and they were enthusiastic about the prospects of the West, and declared that they had no desire to return East, as they liked the Western conditions so well.

Regina, according to Mr. Gordon, was experiencing a pronounced building boom, and new houses by the hundred showed the recent development of the city.

A gigantic distributing plant of the General Motors is now being established in Regina, and naturally the people are very much pleased with the industrial development of Regina.

MILK EMBARGO WILL BE LIFTED

IN FORCE 16 MONTHS.

ST. ALBAN'S, Vermont, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—The embargo on milk and cream from Montreal, which has been in effect since April, 1927, will be lifted to-morrow, customs authorities here were informed to-day. The embargo grew out of an epidemic of typhoid fever. Its removal will permit a considerable supply of milk to be shipped to Boston.

HARRISONS WIN SOFTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

DEFEAT SEPARATOR CREW 9 TO 1 IN SECOND GAME

Umpires Come In For Much Abuse From Losers At End of Game.

CALLED FOR DARKNESS.

Both Teams Play Good Softball in Early Part of Fixture.

Disheartened by an ever increasing score on the Harrison side of the tally sheet, the De Laval fielders lost interest in the game, and in the sixth innings of the championship softball game last night one wandered after the ball and two runs crossed the plate, making a total of sixteen for the Northerners, after which Lou LeBarr called the game on account of darkness, while the Separators only had one run on the score card. The uncompleted sixth innings makes the score revert back to the end of the fifth, with the Harrison men winning by 9-1. Although the winners were just the larger score better than the losers, Harrisons are softball champions of Peterborough by virtue of their win. When the game was called the field took on the aspect of Boyle's Thirty Acres the night of a prize fight. First the referees came in for abuse, then the whole team backed the referee and the consolations and congratulations were offered, while in various groups all over Confederation Square post mortems were being held, as to what should have been done to avert the disaster.

The game started out like a real ball game, and as in the former game, the De Laval looked strong in the first frame in comparison with Harrisons, who retired in order, while Ward reached third for the Milkmen.

In the second Dobson and Vinette scored for Harrisons, while the De Laval were scoreless. In the third Dorington, Dundas, Calladine, and Dobson all scored, increasing the lead to six, while the Separators were scoreless again. In the fourth Clark, Dundas and Dobson scored, adding three more to the Harrison side of the game, while the De Laval were still on the zero side of the sheet. In the fifth Harrisons were scoreless, while Ken Miller saved the factory lads from a complete whitewashing by finally scoring for them their lone run.

Ken. Miller furnished the grounds for a circus catch when he rolled one that bounced off Dundas' head and Ross at second caught it on the bounce and passed the ball to Calladine for the put out.

Galbraith for the De Laval was going good for the first part of the game, but he slackened considerably in the sixth before the game was called. Fowler was good at second, having a great number of assists to his credit. Jake Hall at third played a steady game, and was one of the steadiest men on the field, while Bob Miller at the plate was inclined to be a little erratic, and Carruthers was not so steady, walking four men, while Dundas walked one.

E. Vinette, in left field for Harrisons, was the most spectacular man in the field, cashing from one sector to the other for two consecutive flies. Dalin was practically his equal, performing practically the same game. H. Vinette at short was a stone wall of defence, while Dundas, the pitcher, hurled a nice game.

The Harrison men, the winners of the city softball championship, after last night's game, played the same steady ball that has carried them to victory in the last few games, and deserved the decision by the merit of their playing. Too much cannot be said of their styles that they have acquired within the last few games. Team work was what won for the Northerners, while a few bad breaks and the lack of team work was perhaps the cause of the downfall of the league leaders who played the season with only one defeat.

The teams lined up:

Harrisons—Dorington, 3b; Dundas, p; Calladine, 1b; Dobson, c; E. Vinette lf; B. Ross, 2b; Montgomery cf; Dallin cf; H. Vinette, ss; Clark, rf.

HARRISONS PLAY BRIDGENORTH HERE

League Champions and "Wildcats" To Clash in Confederation Park On Thursday.

Thursday evening at 5.45 p.m. sharp Harrison's Northenders, winners of the City Softball League, will meet the Bridgenorth Wildcats, winners of the Bridgenorth Challenge Cup. This game should provide plenty of good softball for the fans as the Wildcats possess one of the best softball pitchers in the game in Len Forsythe. He is a strikeout pitcher and has mowed down batters on some of the best teams in the district in this manner. It will be a real treat to see him in action. The rest of the team are all good and Manager MacWilliams figures his boys can take Harrisons for the count.

The game is booked for tomorrow night at 5.45 sharp and should draw a large crowd.

OLIVE GATTERDAM SWIMS TO-DAY

Other Four Women Allowed To Enter Have Not Announced Their Entries.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Olive Gatterdam, 16-year-old Seattle girl who finished second in the ten mile women's race last Wednesday will, it seems, be the only feminine natator to swim in the third Wrigley Marathon grind to-day. None of the others have yet indicated that they will enter the open swim but they are not officially asked to make up their minds before starting time to-day.

GOSSOOM WINS SECOND RACE

Detroit Craft Leads Kathea II, Lake Onntario Defender, By 50 Yards.

GREAT LAKES HONORS.

SUMMERVILLE, N. Y., September 5. — Coming up from a bad second position Gossoon of Detroit won the second race for the championship of the Great Lakes here yesterday.

She led Kathea II., of Watertown, Lake Ontario defender, by 50 yards, and Ardelle of Chicago, by 75.

Her victory in a 25-mile nor'wester, and a big sea, Kathea II's going, makes the victory of the Lake Ontario entry seem dubious instead of certain as it did at starting time yesterday.

In the first leg Gossoon stood far too high on the mark and lost one minute and four seconds. She gained two seconds on the beat home. On the next run she gained 22 seconds, sailing the same course as Kathea, and on the beat to the finish sailed rings over the heretofore invincible Kathea. Gossoon, aside from holding high on a mark that probably was set out of place, sailed a brilliant race. Wyatt Uhlein, Kathea's skipper, committed the basic error of letting Gossoon split tacks on the second thrash, and get away. It lost him the race, and quite probably the cup.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Last night saw the finish of the city softball league as far as the playing end of it is concerned when the Northenders clouted the Industrials down for the second game of the play-off series to win the decision that handed them the championship.

* * * * * *

Harrisons certainly deserve credit for the way that they climbed up in the standings to win a place in the play-offs and later to defeat the league leaders for the city honors. The DeLaval had lost only one battle throughout the whole season but went down to the dregs with the play-offs when they were defeated by large scores in both games.

* * * *

* * * *

The ending of the softball season took a pathetic turn last night when the losing team blamed their defeat on the umpires who may have made some mistakes but not enough to account for sixteen runs being chalked up against their one and to account for the fifteen to five defeat they suffered at the hands of the same team last Friday.

* * * *

After a season of real games that demonstrated a showing of real sportsmanship to have the final game end in such a chaos as some of the players were able to turn it into last night has something of a tragic note for the softball league and one that leaves a bad taste in one's mouth after the closing game. All over the field was heard: "It's too bad."

* * * *

The better team won the softball championship. The team that demonstrated the most team work in the pinches and who did not lose their head in the critical moments and who played championship ball in the last and final games.

ROBINS WIN 8TH STRAIGHT

Defeat Browns in Double-header at Boston By 3-2 and 9-2 Scores.

CUBS WIN 9-8.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—A wild throw in the ninth inning by Hargreaves, who was attempting a double play, gave Chicago the winning run and the final game of the Pittsburg series yesterday 9 to 8.

Twice the Cubs had a commanding lead, but on each occasion the Pirates deadlocked the tally and as the contest entered the ninth inning, the score was tied at 8 all.

Long hits by Stephenson, Grimm and Hartnett accounte dfor most of the Chicago runs. Stephenson and Grimm hit home runs with a runner on base.

Comorosky led the attack for the Bucaneers, with a home run and two singles. He drove in six of the Pirates eight runs.

Cy Williams' home run with one on and two out in the 9th inning gave the Phillies an 8 to 7 victory over the Giants in the second game of a double header at Philadelphia, after New York had taken the opener 9 to 4.

Jack Brown, put in the box in the last inning to hold the Giants' one run lead gained while Fitzsimmons was pitching, threw a ball Williams liked after Klein had singled and Williams promptly sent the ball over the right field fence. Leach for the Phillies and Welsh for the Giants also hit homers in this game.

Brooklyn took a double header from the Braves at Boston, winning the first game 3 to 2 in 10 innings and the second by a 9 to 2 score. The Robins now have a record of winning eight straight games here, losing only the first game they played.

Dazzy Vance held the tribe to seven hits in the opener and with the aid of Jake Flowers turned in his nineteenth victory of the season. Flowers scored the winning run in the tenth inning with a home run off Cooney which hit the top of the left field bleacher fence.

After Farrell's error had put Gilvert on base in the fourth inning of the second encounter, Herman started the scoring with a homer into the centre field bleachers and Del Bissonette followed with his 21st homer of the season.

COMMUNAL RIOTS CAUSE 11 DEATHS

Many More Injured in Fighting at Kharapur on Sunday.

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—It had been established that eleven were killed and thirty-four injured in the fighting on Sunday at Kharapur. Three were injured, one of them fatally, when police fired on a gathering of Hindoos and Moslems while four Mohammedams were found murdered when some houses nearby were raided.

It has been announced at Simla by the Indian Legislative Assembly that 149 persons have been killed and 1,345 injured in communal rioting in India since July 1, 1926.

Six Hundred Dead and Thousands Homeless as Result.

TOKYO, Sept. 5—(Canadian Press)—Despatches from Seoul, capital of Korea, say that continued rains in the north eastern section of that country are increasing floods in four prefectures there. Authoritative estimates place the dead at nearly 600, the missing at 100, and the homeless at 6,000, with more than 1,000 homes destroyed.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Thomas Lipton will make a try for the America Cup in 1929, he said yesterday before starting for Southampton, from where he will sail for New York. "It is still my ambition to bring that cup back," he said.

Three-Corner Tie Ladies' Junior Golf

LADIES' GOLF AND TENNIS CLUB, Thornhill, September 5.—Three players tied for the lead in the 18-hole qualifying medal round for the second Ontario Girls' junior championship here yesterday with cards of 99. The girls displayed an exceptionally good brand of golf, with 115 being the highest score to qualify. The three young ladies who tied for the lead in the qualifying round were: Winifred Robinson, of St. Catharines, Mary Howlett of Weston, finalist in the tournament last year, and Roselma Lake of Briars. The sixteen qualifiers will continue in match play the remaining days of the week, with the final on Saturday.

PHILLIES TAKE CLOSING GAME

Pittsburgh Defeats Senators 9-2 in Third Game of Series.

SOX WIN DOUBLE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—After losing a double header Monday the Philadelphia Phillies came back at Washington yesterday to defeat the Senators 9 to 2 in the third and closing game of the series.

Southpaw Walberg, pitching for the Athletics, proved a mystery. On the other hand, Gaston and Brown were easily solved by the Athletics who scored 2 runs in both the second and sixth innings, one in the seventh and four in the last frame.

Haas, Bishop and Simmons hit triples, the latter's hit scoring two teammates in the ninth inning. Washington scored a run in each of the fourth and fifth innings.

The Sox took four in a row from Detroit when they again won both ends of a double header at Chicago by scores of 3 to 2 in both games. After going along at a 2 up tie, Kamm opened the ninth with a double. Swanson attempted to sacrifice and when McManus fumbled, Kamm was safe at third and Swanson reached first. Falk batted for Redforn and was purposely passed. Hunnefield batted for Berg and hit a long fly to Pothergill, called a sacrifice. Hunnefield won the first game with a single in the eleventh inning. The Sox now one half game out of fourth place. This defeat marked the fifth straight for the Tigers.

A strong batting attack in the first and fourth innings at the expense of Hudlin was too much for the Cleveland Indians here to-day and the St. Louis Browns won the third straight game of the series by a 9 to 6 count.

VICTORS HIT ROYALS HARD

Maple Leafs Even the Series With Rival Canadian Club.

WIN CONTEST EASILY.

Maple Leaf Stadium, September 5.—Toronto made it safe and sure with Montreal here yesterday afternoon, batting the left handed Falk hard and often. Shinners started the hitting with a homer over left field fence to begin the second innings and the battering did not stop until Nicholls took up the pitching to start the seventh. He got by his two rounds without a hit off him. Shinners had a homer, a double and a single. Bedore two doubles and a single. Rabbitt a homer and a single. Alexander went hitless, but walked twice and stole second.

There was no opposition offered by Montreal and the Leafs romped home with the game.

Catcher Hungling reported to-day, and was put to work. He is a big right hand hitter, and had one hit and two walks. He looks like Alexander in size.

WIN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Campbellford Defeats Argyle By Winning Five of Seven Points.

AT BELLEVILLE.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—Saturday afternoon the local tennis team visited the Belleville country club and wrested victory from the Argyle players by winning five of the seven points in a postponed tournament in the Central Ontario Lawn Tennis Association. The match was to have been played during the month of June but circumstances would not permit the meeting on the date originally set. This completes the season play for the local club and all the members of the team report an excellent afternoon on the courts and a most enjoyable social hour at the club house afterward.

The honors for the men's singles were evenly divided. Armstrong of Belleville winning from Free of Campbellford, 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, while Hudgins of Belleville lost to J. H. Bell 6-4, 6-0. Kingston and Beatty of Campbellford won one of the men's doubles events from Rooney and Black of Belleville after a stiff battle resulting in the scores 7-5, 5-7, 3-6. Arthur Loucks and Dr. Johnston were defeated by R. D. Ponton and G. Faulkner of Belleville, 7-5, 6-2, in the second event of the men's doubles. Josephine Longmore won the ladies' singles from Miss S. Ross of Belleville, 6-0, 6-0, while Mrs. W. D. Douglas and Miss L. Smith won the ladies doubles from Mrs. L. Fozard and Miss L. Riggs 6-1, 6-2. The honors for the mixed doubles also came to Campbellford when Miss Jessie Weston and Dr. H. B. Longmore defeated Mrs. D. Hannah and R. L. Brown, 6-1, 6-3.

Thus when the final reckoning was made, the visitors had won five of the seven events.

3,000 MILE RACE STARTS.

ROOSEVELT, New York, September 5 (Canadian Press). — Thirty-seven planes took off to-day in a three-thousand-mile air race to Los Angeles. Each plane started in turn and the procession went to Harrisburg, Penn., the first of the sixteen stops on the journey, which is scheduled to take five days. The race to-day was for planes with motor displacement of less than 510 cubic inches. Two other classes start to-morrow and the fourth, the non-stop planes, get away on September 12.

ROWLAND IN LEAD.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, September 5 (Canadian Press). — Earl Rowland, of Wichita, Kansas, was the first to reach Columbus from McKeesport, where he led the cross-country fliers in landing from New York. The fliers stop here overnight before proceeding on the next hop of the flight to Los Angeles.

RECOMMENDATIONS ARE READ BY BOARD

to H. R. H. Kenner, of the Collegiate Institute was suggested as an immediate duty of the Board by its chairman, E. Bruce Fowler. While the assistant principalship would be more or less nominal, some encouragement would be given the appointee to learn the work of Mr. Kenner. The matter was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Playgrounds Successful

From James Abraham came a report of the Summer Playgrounds of which he was Chief Supervisor. Mr. Abraham gave interesting statistics regarding the attendance at the three playgrounds which had been kept open during the summer months, giving full credit to his assistants who had properly supervised the work and as W. R. Turner expressed it, two of the three playgrounds had been quite successful while the third—that at King George school, had failed to attract the children, not because of any fault of the supervisors but because the grounds is not particularly attractive or shady on a warm summer day. Mr. Turner therefore moved that the Board pass on a recommendation to the 1929 Board, that only two of the three playgrounds be kept open next summer. These will be at Central and King Edward schools, if this year's arrangments are followed.

VIERKOTTER LEADS; MICHEL IS SECOND

47 and 50 strokes to the minute respectively.

Ross Forced Out.

Raced into submission by George Young, winner of the Catalina Channel swim, Norman Ross of Chicago withdrew from the Wrigley fifteen-mile marathon race at the completion of five miles to-day. George Young thus went into first place about half a mile ahead of Ernest Vierkotter of Germany, who was in 2nd place.

Well along into the third of the six laps George Young kept his substantial lead over Vierkotter, with Mendell Burditt of Toronto racing up to gain third place. Byron Summers was swimming fourth. Young set a great pace after having completely shaken off the chill which threatened him earlier. Less than a score of the 198 starters were now left in the race.

The time for the first lap was one hour and seven minutes, five minutes faster than in the women's swim. Olive Gatterdam, of Seattle, the only woman starter, was forced out by the extreme coldness of the water before completing half of the first lap.

Summers Out.

Byron Summers was forced out by the cold, leaving 16 in the race. After Young, Vierkotter, and Burditt came Myron Cox, Los Angeles, Georges Michel, Paris, William Erickson, New York, 6th, and Herr Von Papenfuss, of South Africa, seventh.

Young Pulled Out.

After losing his lead in the Wrigley marathon to Vierkotter near the end of the third lap, George Young dropped out of the race.

It was another case of "too much Vierkotter." Young was pulled out just as he was about to go under. Two life-savers took him from the water. He was tumbled into a speed boat, wrapped in warm blankets, and rushed to the swim hospital at the National Yacht Club. Johnny Walker, Young's trainer, said the Catalina victor "just couldn't stand the gaff. The cold water beat him."

Ernest Vierkoetter was left with a great lead when Mendell Burditt, of Toronto, who was second, was forced out of the water. It took ten minutes to revive Burditt.

PETERBOROUGH CRICKETERS WIN

Defeat Birchcliffe Club By 6 Wickets and 70 Runs On Holiday.

ON TORONTO GROUNDS.

Peterborough C.C. scored a brilliant victory on Labor Day over the Birchcliffe C.C. of Toronto, by 6 wickets and 70 runs. Winning the toss, the Peterborough captain sent the homesters in to bat first, A. Robertson and Williamson opening to the bowling of Dunkerley and Dyer. The score mounted steadily to 25, when Wade bowled Robertson with a beautiful ball. With the score at 35 Williamson was stumped in running out to Elliot. The retiring batsmen had played well for 16, although lucky, being missed two or three times in the field. At this period the bowlers got the upper hand and no less than four more wickets fell at the same total. W. Dix, Vear, and J. Dix, however, made useful runs, and the total finally reached 68. Dyer, Dunkerley, Wade, and Elliot all bowled well for Peterborough, the first two capturing two wickets each and the latter three apiece.

Left with 69 runs needed to win, Peterborough opened their innings with Dunkerley and Imming. So well did these two bat that 32 runs were on the board before Imming was caught by Wilson. Thorpe then partnered Dunkerley, who was now scoring at a good pace. These two batsmen carried the score to 50 before Thorpe was smartly taken at point by Williamson, the fieldsman taking the ball near the ground. Smith was next in, and soon accustomed himself to the bowling, making some nice strokes, and the score was taken past the Birchcliffe total with eight wickets to spare. At 73 Dunkerley's fine innings came to a close, he being clean bowled by J. Dix. Jack Wade joined Smith, and these two punished the bowling unmercifully, Wade especially being severe. The score mounted rapidly to 138, when Wade was caught in hitting out to Dix. Time was then called. The retiring batsman was applauded for his bright innings. Smith carried his bat for a well played 25 not out. No less than eight bowlers were tried by the Birchcliffe captain in attempting to keep down the score.

Now for the social part of the outing. A splendid lunch was served the Peterborough boys at the West Hill hotel by the Birchcliffe officials, including the chairman of their Board of Works, Mr. Curwin. After lunch this gentleman gave a fine talk on cricket and the growth of the Birchcliffe Cricket Club. It was a splendid chat and was certainly appreciated by the Peterborough boys. Claude Elliott, the Peterborough captain, responded in an able manner in the absence of the Peterborough club's president. The players then proceeded to the Birchcliffe grounds.

After the game the Peterborough players, along with a number of the Birchcliffe members, were taken to the beautiful estate of R. W. McLean, of Rent-McLean's, Ltd. These grounds adjoin the cricket field and overlook the lake which is about 200 feet below. A more beautiful place can hardly be imagined. Fruit and flowers of every description were abundant. All kinds of beautiful nooks and little tea houses were dotted around and hidden in shady spots. It was indeed a wonderful sight enjoyed by all.

After these sights the players were taken to the wonderful summer cottage located in the centre of the grounds and there introduced by the Birchcliffe secretary, Mr. Harris, to the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. McLean. The house was thrown open and dainty refreshments were served, an array of good things, heartily enjoyed by all. After this came words of appreciation from members of both clubs to the host and hostess and to the Birchcliffe C. C. for their wonderful kindness. Mr. McLean, in responding, assured the Peterborough boys of their hearty welcome. A wonderful day's outing ended by the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

INCREASE IN USE OF SUGAR IS NOT CAUSE OF DIABETES

Health Department Officials Say Increase in Two Lines Not Connected.

ONLY COINCIDENCE.

Canadans Using More Sugar —More Dying of Diabetes.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5.—(Special to The Examiner.)—The increase in the consumption of sugar in Canada bears no relation to the increase in diabetes in the opinion of medical officials of the Department of Health. The returns of the vital statistics branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that there has been an increase in the number of deaths from diabetes and the trade figures of the bureau show an increased consumption of sugar per capita.

Health officials, however, consider this a coincidence and that the two facts bear no relation to each other. The increased consumption of sugar by the individual would not cause diabetes, intimated one medical authority. It would increase adipose tissue but that is all.

In 1923 there were 722 deaths from diabetes and in that year the consumption of sugar averaged 81.46 pounds. In 1924 the mortality was 637 and the sugar consumption 90.1 pounds. In 1925 there were 634 deaths and each individual in Canada consumed on an average 94.38 pounds of sugar. In 1926 there were 762 deaths and a consumption of 93.09 pounds of sugar. The death figures do not include those of the Province of Quebec, which prior to 1926 did not make returns to the Federal Bureau.

The actual number of deaths from diabetes, including Quebec, was 1,045 in 1926 and in 1927, 1,063.

PETERBOROUGH BOY WINS GOLD MEDAL

Stanley Northrop Winner of Out of Toronto Violin Contest.

Stanley Northrop of Peterborough was the winner of the Out-of-Toronto violin competition held in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. He had a total of eighty-nine marks while the second in the competition was Miss Helen McDonald, of Hamilton, who scored seventy-five marks. Miss McDonald was the winner of the open contest.

Stanley Northrop lives at 124 London Street and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Northrop. The winning of the contest made him the winner of the Out-of-Toronto gold medal. Mr. Northrop is a pupil of Miss Edwina Palmer.

COBOURG MYSTERY SOLVED

A three weeks' mystery surrounding the whereabouts of 15-year-old Pat Taylor, of Cobourg, Ont., was solved when he was taken into custody with J. A. Lachance near Holbrook, in Oxford County. He declares he left home voluntarily and was engaged in surveying work with Lachance. The latter, who declares he is a veteran of the French air force, mystified the jail authorities at Woodstock. He tells of a "Mr. Harrison" who, he states, accompanied him and the boy on their three weeks' trek, and whom he now expects to help him; although Pat Taylor declares he neither saw nor heard of any such person. Picture No. 1 shows Pat and Chief County Constable Markle, who arrested the two. No. 2 is a close-up of Lachance, showing him with his soft collar worn backward, in clerical style, a peculiarity which he affects. No. 3 is a full length picture of Lachance. Photos copyright.

"OLD IRONSIDES"

Thursday, Friday and Saturday

"Old Ironsides," the historical and romantic spectacle production coming to the Regent Theatre this week, is declared by motion picture experts to be the most perfectly cast photoplay ever produced.

In explaining the selection of players for the production, James Cruze, Paramount director, has this to say:

"Three entire months were required for the choosing of the players for 'Old Ironsides.' Each part was given the most careful and deliberate consideration.

"For the part of the boy, the leading male role, the requirements were as follows: He must be six feet two inches tall, and must weigh around 170 pounds. He must possess a rugged build and his personality must be ever changing. At times he must have the appearance of an awkward New England country boy. Again he must have the fire, daring and courage to sweep one of one's feet.

"This part was by far the most difficult to fill of any of the featured roles in the production. Think over all the players on the screen to-day, and see if you can find one who fills all of these requirements. Hundreds of interviews and scores of screen tests were taken of possible candidates before Charles Farrell was found.

"For the role of the gigantic master-gunner of the frigate 'Constitution,' George Bancroft was our first last and only choice.

"The mate on the windjammer, 'Esther' could have been played by no one but Wallace Beery. The part was written especially with Beery in mind.

"Several score of well known actresses were interviewed for the role of the heroine before Esther Ralston was finally chosen.

ported that there is a possibility that the company will be able to begin station cutting at the first objective of 125 feet by his time. The latest official advice gave the depth of the shaft as 70 feet at August 20th. Reports from Amos now state that the shaft is well over 100 feet with the vein still showing. After opening a station at 125 feet it is understood that the shaft will be continued to 250 feet where another level will be established and crosscutting commence. Malrobic is listed on the Standard Exchange but has not yet been called for trading.

Our Vancouver correspondent wires: "The Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, diamond drill crew, working on the George Copper, is reported to have cored into an 11-foot vein of $150 ore in an ore body 100 feet wide. The core was actually about 250 feet in copper ore running from 3 to 9 per cent. copper with some gold, but the angle of the hole would set the width of the ore body at 100 feet. The gold content is said to be in the neighborhood of $16 a ton. This news should lift the George Copper into a higher place in Smelter's family of companies.

George Copper was developed in its early stages by W. B. George of Stewart and Victoria. Victoria capital supported it until the Consolidated took control about a year ago. The big Trail company holds 1,395,000 shares of $1 par stock under option. William George holds about 40,000 shares and the public about 60,000.

The long-awaited Amulet report establish a record for conservatism as compared with the public's anticipations. The $10,000,000 plus in ore reserves is said to be chiefly obtained from diamond drilling and there is little doubt but that underground work will add to this total. A recent report from the property states that Amulet has discovered a new surface showing which may prove to be a new ore body. Anyway, the report's estimate gives Amulet 6 years of life at least, counting on a 200-ton mill.

Tretment of ore at Noranda smelter has been ranging in recent days between 950 and 998 tons per day. Gradually the amount or ore put through is being increased, moving towards a maximum rate of 1,500 tons, probably before the close of the year. Daily output of copper had been averaging 55 tons but 65 tons of the metal in blister form is indicated from 1,000 tons daily. This is about 93 p.c. pure copper, in addition to gold. Even allowing for $22 recovery and costs, including development, overhead and depreciation of $10 per ton, profits would be $12 per ton, or $4,300,000 per annum from a 1,000 ton daily treatment. With 1,500 tons daily, profits would work out at $6,600,000. In view of the much higher average values in the "H" and "B" ore bodies at depth, which appear to average $34 per ton, the average millheads obviously will have to be stepped up, as the $22 millheads are from ore in reserve about 300 feet only. Possibilities are that when the lower workings are stoped and added regularly to mill-feed from the shallower workings, the rate of profits would be close to $10,000,000, from a daily treatment of 1,500 tons. Noranda now needs a new shaft if it is to develop on the scale warranted by recent discoveries and at the same time maintain production.

So far between 500 and 600 tons of ore have been shipped from Waite-Ackerman-Montgomery, all high grade, and the rate is expected to increase as soon as underground developments will allow. Noranda is operating 30 drills, is using 2,500 horse-power and employing 700 men.

McIntyre Earnings.

It is reported that ore being handled at McIntyre so far during the current year has been averaging close to $9 per ton—with an average of around $8.20 being recovered. The report continues that during the eight months ending August 31, the mill handled close to 340,000 tons, and the output reached $2,700,000. At this rate the output for the full year will exceed $4,000,000.

News From the Mines

Through
Solloway, Mills & Company

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—Our field engineer from Rouyn visited Abana over the week-end and substantiates our previous statement regarding water trouble at this property. He states the present air pressure would be insufficient for underground work including keeping the mine dry. He estimates it would take three weeks to get their Diesel engine set up and working properly, which will easily take care of the present water flow as well as supply power for five drills which they intend using. Their present air supply is being used in excavating foundations for concentrating mill. It is estimated that when the new plant is properly working the mine may be dewatered within the course of three or four days.

Wainwell Oil

According to Wainwright advices, Wainwell Oil Company expect to have their Government test on the casing set within a few days when drilling with their shifts will go forward on their No. 2 hole. It is understood Wainwell intend retaining the services of a well known production engineer who will use his technical experiences in the bringing in of each hole to its extreme productivness as the sands are reached. Work on the refinery is well advanced and will be in a position to handle the output of both their No. 1 and No. 2 wells when the latter is completed.

McIntyre

Ore being handled at the McIntyre Porcupine so far during this year has been averaging around $9 a ton, of which approximately $8.20 a ton is being recovered. No effort is being made to force tonnage through the mill, in fact the average is a fraction under that prevailing a year ago. At present production, the output for the full year should exceed $4,000,000 of which it may be expected over half will be net profit.

Don Rouyn

The shaft at this property has reached its present objective of 75 feet and a station is being cut from which crosscutting will be carried out. It is intended to crosscut the entire width of the mineralized zone in which the high grade vein is located on which the shaft was started. The shaft followed the vein which dips at an angle of about 80 degrees to a depth of 60 feet in former sinking operations, but on the resumption of sinking the sides were slashed so as to make it vertical. The vein of high grade which was from ten to fifteen inches in width on the surface is said to have widened considerably before passing out of the shaft. On each side of the vein is a wide sheared zone assaying about one per cent. chalcopyrite on the surface, and it is hoped that crosscutting may show some improvement in the grade at depth.

Amulet

The very conservative ore estimate which has been officially given out by Mr. A. A. McKay managing director of Amulet Mines, was altogether unexpected. His estimate was based chiefly on diamond drilling results and a total available tonnage of 434,000 tons with an average value of $23.31 per ton or a total value of $10,000,000 was arrived at. Underground developments will undoubtedly add to this tonnage. However, with a daily production of 200 tons, at least six years' ore supply is already indicated and the engineers are considering plans for the erection of a concentrating plant in the near future. The balance sheet shows their treasury to be in a very healthy position. Current assets are shown at $333,670, which is made up of $7,486 in cash, $1,429 accounts receivable, $21,283 inventories of stores and supplies and $303,471 marketable.

Amulet and Noranda

A report from our field man in Rouyn states that Amulet have now drilled more than 50 feet in their "C" ore body, which so far has been in high grade chalcopyrite. This is a distinct improvement, as the body originally was thought to be zinc.

Regarding Noranda, he states that 998 tons were recently put through one unit of the smelter in one day.

Trend Changes Often On New York Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (Canadian Press).—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment, with wide swings in some of the high-priced specialties, characterized to-day's Stock Market. Call money held steady at seven and a half per cent. throughout the morning, although the banks called $15,000,000 in loans. Warner Brothers' issues were again the sensational features. The common stock opened three half points lower at 112, rallied to 121, broke to 111, and rallied around 117 by early afternoon. The "A" stock opened at 114½, rallied to 127, dropped to 113, and rebounded to 121. Erratic fluctuations in these issues brought about heavy selling by frightened investors and speculators in other sections of the list, particularly the motors.

New leaders were brought forward in the early afternoon and the market staged a vigorous recovery under the leadership of Radio, which rallied more than seven points to 222½. Rails showed consistent strength, with Kansas City Southern a strong feature.

THREE ADDITIONS TO TEACHING STAFF

The Peterborough Conservatory of Music re-opens for the season to-day. Mr. Gliddon announces three important additions to the teaching staff: Donald Hein, solo violinist, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music; Miss Gladys Renouf, pianist of the Mount Allison Ladies' School, Nova Scotia, and Miss Kathleen Baker, teacher of elocutionist. Madame Walsh will resume her French classes next week.

DELEGATES PRAISE ANTI-WAR TREATY

Chinese and Netherlands Spokesmen Discuss Pact in Assembly.

GENEVA, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press.)—Wang Ching Chi, spokesman for Nationalist China, hailed the Briand-Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war as a great instrument for peace when the League Assembly resumed to-day. The treaty was also praised by the Netherlands delegate, who also emphasized the importance of the Anglo-French naval accord and hoped this would accelerate the work of disarmament. He proposed that model treaties of non-aggression drawn up for the League be examined to see if they conformed with the Kellogg pact.

tion of high tension wires in the parallel ducts, "We won't be tied up."

These suggestions were made by the company.

Under an agreement at present existing, the city removed the company's poles from George street in 1920, agreeing to provide free space on a pole line on Water street if the company should require it. Meantime the company planned to use the ducts owned by the Machine Telephone Company, (those now owned by the city). The Mayor pointed out that if an agreement could not be reached the Utilities Commission had offered to give the company wire rights over a pole line up Aylmer street and into the back of the company's office, in lieu of the Water street line.

The City Solicitor will forward the plans of the Park street drainage area to the Provincial authorities to see if they are sufficiently advanced to permit of the assessment of the cost of maintenance of this drain being made. If not, he will take steps to get the work finished by F. T. Webster, the surveyor who made the map, and who was paid several hundred dollars by the city.

Ald Hamilton thinks that some of the patent medicine vendors on the market "get away with murder" and asked why the market by-law passed last year was rescinded. It was pointed out that it forbade the sale of fish, contrary to the Municipal Act, Ald Phelan remarking, sotto voce, "We were the fish." Ald. Hamilton asked Mr. Wearing to look up the act and see if medicine is covered, planning a new by-law for next year.

The chairman of the Property Committee was authorized to have sanitary conveniences installed in two houses to be paid for in five annual instalments.

Account Explained

"It's customary in all modern works to issue an order for such work to be done" said Ald. Stocker, questioning an account of $545.75 for sweeper repairs, of which he had known nothing.

The repairs and new parts included in the bill were two brooms at $125 each; repairs and overhauling in April, $150, before the season started; repairs during season accounting for the balance. City Engineer Parsons explained. A new broom is needed every thirty days, according to Mr. Parsons. The sweeper is not now in use.

Eating House licenses were granted E. M. Austin, Charlie Hum and Mrs. J. Fowler.

The action of the chairman of the Property Committee in engaging an extra man at the incinerator was confirmed.

A NEW MAGAZINE SOON ON MARKET

Flying Stories By McFadden Publications, Inc., To Appear October 23rd—Sales Promotion Manager Travels By Air To Meet Distributors.

Perhaps no more unique and appropriate method of introducing a new periodical has been devised than that now being utilized by Macfadden Publications, Inc., in connection with their new magazine, "Flying Stories," the first issue of which will appear on October 23rd.

Being a magazine of fiction, romance and adventure with a background of aeronautics in its various phases, it is entirely fitting that word of its coming should reach the distributors in the big selling centres by plane. Accordingly, one of the first subjects discussed upon each landing by J. E. Williamson, sales promotion manager for the Macfadden organization, who is now touring the country in the company's big Lockhead-Vega monoplane, is the coming of the new flying magazine, a publication for which Macfadden Publications, Inc., feels there is a large public demand.

A sort of combined "Message to Garcia" and Paul Revere's ride, the individuality of this manner of announcement makes a notable impression wherever the Macfadden sales representative drops down out of the sky.

NEW ISSUE OF McCARTHY STOCK

Company Compelled to Increase Local Manufacturing Facilities.

The H. B. McCarthy, Ltd., for many years in business in Port Hope are to extend their operations and in order to procure capital for the enterprise are offering a new issue of stock. The following letter from E. M. Thurber, President of the Company, will further explain matters. It reads as follows:

Incorporation.

H. B. McCarthy, Limited, was incorporated by Letters Patent under the Companies Act of Dominion of Canada dated January 15th, 1921, and Supplementary Letters Patent dated June 15th, 1927.

Capitalization.

Only sufficient capital was originally sold and used to build the business in compliance with the market demand for our products and acquire property for future expansion We have, however, recently experienced great difficulty in financing and keeping sufficient stocks of Raw Tanned Hides on hand and in transit from abroad to supply our growing list of customers with our products and give prompt shipping service. This situation from the standpoint of constructive business practically compels the Company to increase their manufacturing facilities and carry greater stocks both in raw and finished products. In consequence, it is now necessary and advisable to issue the balance of our unsubscribed Preferred Stock and thereby put the Company in a strong position to cater to and take full advantage of the excellent opportunities for expanding the Company's business and thus create an even more substantial industry for this section of the province

Earnings

The fact that our Company has paid its 7 p.c. Preferred dividend for the past seven years and at the same time has also gradually improved its position in manufacturing and supplying our extensive markets is ample assurance as to the soundness of the Company's business as an investment for those fortunate enough to acquire holdings at this time. The fact that the preferred shares bear 7 p.c. dividends and are cumulative and that the Common Stock should also earn dividends very shortly offers in my opinion an attractive investment. The future program of operations based on greater working capital to be provided by you is such, that the increased business we will secure in Canada and other countries should provide a safe and sound business and in addition to the element of safety surrounding the investment in our Company, we feel that the shares will prove very profitable.

Grain Trading Dull, With Prices Lower

CHICAGO, September 5. Canadian Press. — Grain trading was extremely dull on the Chicago Board of Trade to-day, with scattered selling, largely by local interests, easing prices down at the start. Wheat was 1-8c higher to ¼c lower than yesterday's closing figures and corn opened ⅛c higher to ¼c lower for future months while September was ⅛c to 1 1-8c down.

Early quotations remained within the initial narrow range and trading was without any apparent incentive to develop new activity. Oats were steady to 1-8c lower.

Opening prices were:: Wheat, Sept. 109 7-8; December 115. Corn, September, 91 5-8; December 74½. Oats September, 38⅛; December 40¼.

Oil Issues Leaders In Toronto Trading

TORONTO, Ont., September 5. — Canadian Press. — A general run on oil issues was experienced at the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. British American Oil reached as high as 40 but closed at noon today at 39½, with a gain of ¼ over yesterday's close. Imperial Oil registered a substantial gain of 1⅛ to 73. International Petroleum was up ½ to 28½. Interantional Nickle was not in demand, and with a moderate turnover was off 2½ at 115. Massey-Harris was off ¾ at 43½, and Twin City was off 1¾ at 35½. Hiram Walker advanced one to 59, and Riverside-Mills 1½ to 33.

Trading Featureless In Mining Exchanges

TORONTO, Ont., September 5. — Canadian Press. — Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning was dull and featureless. There was no sensational change in prices and losses and gains about balanced. Barry Hollinger, which headed the trading, reach 51 at noon with a gain of ½. Malartic was up two at 1.64; Noranda up 50 at 53.75, and Silvanite up ten at 2.80. Amulet decreased considerably in trading and dropped ten to 3.60 Mining Corporation was off 18 at 3.30. Teck Hughes five at 9.20, and Wright Hargreaves three at 3.43. Pend Oreille advanced ten to 14.00.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

As some blocks of Barry-Hollinger slid through at around 50 recently a trader in the board room was heard to say that there is "nothing about Barry to crow about." However, reports from the field state that operations are being pushed at the property on lower levels in the hope of encountering some extensions of the good stuff found at around 1,000 feet. Already it is reported that operations at the 1,250 foot level are shaping up well with a nice length of good grade ore said to have been developed. This probably accounts for the recent rise in this issue.

NOTICE

TO PETERBOROUGH INVESTORS

An allotment of H. B. McCarthy, Limited, Port Hope, capital offering is reserved for investing citizens of Peterboro District.

Over 50% of the total offering has been subscribed and paid for in full by citizens of Port Hope. This gives ample assurance of the high regard with which H. B. McCarthy, Limited, is held in that town.

THE H.B. McCARTHY, LIMITED, was incorporated in 1921 and has continued and developed a business originally established by the late H. B. McCarthy in 1897. As quality manufacturers of Lace, Leather Products and Tanners of high-grade India hides, this Company has paid full 7% dividends every year since its incorporation, and due to a program of expansion to meet the demand for the Company's products (both in Canadian and foreign markets), the future possibilities are exceptionally well regarded.

THE FACT THAT COMMON SHARES NOW HAVE A SELLING VALUE of $15.00 per share illustrates the soundness of this investment, which should pay substantial dividends as a result of the new and extended operations.

WE RECOMMEND THE PURCHASE of shares in this well-managed, successful Company as an investment of merit.

It is the expectation that this stock will be listed in due time.

OBITUARY

MRS. FRED GUERIN.

Mrs. Fred Guerin died this morning in St. Joseph's Hospital after a short illness. She was born in Peterborough and was very well-known throughout the city as a life-long resident.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her beloved husband and six children, four daughters, Mrs. E. Bartley of 521 Parnell Street, Mary Louise, Olive and Bernedette at home, and two boys, Edward at Detroit, Michigan, and Albert at home. There is also one brother, E. Barrette, at Preston.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, 257 Princess Street, on Friday morning at 8.45 to Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's Cemetery.

Around the City

Some of the local Oddfellows are planning to visit the annual session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, which meets in Montreal September 17th-22nd, with representatives present from all over the world.

This will be the fifth session of this body held in Canada since 1880, three times at Toronto, once at Winnipeg and now Montreal.

Three carloads of girls who are members of the Outdoor Club of the Y.W.C.A., enjoyed a happy picnic last night when they motored to a point near Nassau, on the other side of the river, for a corn roast, a bonfire and a sing-song.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

HON. G. N. GORDON VISITS REGINA

PRAISES MR. DUNNING.

The Regina Post gives the following report of an interview with Hon. G. N. Gordon, who attended the Canadian Bar Association in Regina:

"Given the opportunity, Hon. Charles A. Dunning, minister of railways and canals, will double the population of Regina and other western towns and cities within the next few years, was the opinion expressed this morning by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., of Peterborough, Ont., former minister of immigration and colonization in the Mackenzie King government, and deputy speaker of the House of Commons for five years. Mr. Gordon is in Regina attending the Canadian Bar Association convention.

In speaking of the achievements of Mr. Dunning, the distinguished visitor said that it was Mr. Dunning who had arranged for the completion of the Hudson's Bay Railway, the Flin Flon development, and that it would be he who would open the Peace River country, and add a third more population to the western provinces within the next five years.

"For action and obtaining results" said Mr. Gordon, "the Hon. Mr. Dunning is another Sir Clifford Sifton."

Praise for Regina.

Regina, according to the former minister's opinion, was equal in beauty to any city in the Canada, and Mr. Gordon said that he had seen practically every city in the Dominion.

"If the Hon. Charles A. Dunning is given a chance he will double the population of Regina and other western town and cities within the next few years," declared Mr. Gordon, adding that the minister of railways and canals had splendid vision, sound judgment and untiring energy.

"Immigration," Mr. Gordon said, "is slow in coming from the British Isles because farm labor there was helped by a minimum wage and old age pensions. In industrial centres very little more labor was needed, as every few months labor saving devices were put into use which cut down the amount of labor used. Even in the United States, immigration from the Old Country had not, by far, reached the quota permitted to enter."

Urges Homesteading.

Mr. Gordon said that if the Peace River district was opened up, and homesteading could take place again, Western Canada, and in fact, all Canada, would again experience the prosperous and expanding days which the Dominion enjoyed from 1900 for a decade and a half.

The distinguished visitor was enthusiastic about the tremendous extent of crops he saw on his way to Regina. All Canada depended upon the wealth of the West, he said, and eastern people watched the press reports anxiously to see what dangers were daily reported from the frost.

"All we need," Mr. Gordon said in conclusion, "is continued confidence, industry and the maintenance in office of statesmen of vision and energy who are ambitious to develop Canada's resources."

IN POLICE COURT

Because he had failed to produce his driver's permit, when told to do so by an officer, a man paid a fine of $2.00 and costs in police court this morning. He was the holder of a permit but was not carrying it at the time.

Charged with driving over the intersection, corner Water and Brock streets at a greater rate of speed than ten miles an hour, William Leporte was remanded until Wednesday, September 12th at the request of the prosecution.

Another man was fined $2 without costs for parking his car fifteen feet off a hydrant. This, the inspector explained, was the first case under the fire bylaw.

Dr. T. W. G. McKay of Oshawa, was fined $5 and costs for exceeding the speed limit on the highway west of the city, while Desmond Green, charged with driving his car thirty or more miles an hour down George street, at 10 p.m., on August 26th, was fined $10.00 and costs or ten days in jail.

Thomas Neil Sarginson of Havelock, was committed for trial at the next general sessions of the peace, having declined to elect or plead before the magistrate. Through his counsel, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K. C., Sarginson consented to be committed for trial on a charge of entering the Havelock creamery early on Saturday morning, September 1, and taking $40. One witness, Provincial Constable Thompson, was called. Bail was set at $2000, to be provided in equal shares by Sarginson and his father.

Wedding Bells

MURRAY—KERR.

A quiet wedding took place on Tuesday at 5 o'clock, at the home of the Rev. B. Greatrix, Park Street, when Sadie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kerr, Emily, became the bride of Kenneth, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Murray, Milan, Que.

Miss Belva Ruth of the city was bridesmaid, and Mr. John Murray of Detroit, Michigan, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

The happy couple left on a motor trip to visit the groom's parents at Milan, Quebec.

On their return they will reside in Maple, Ont.

SOLMES—CURTIS.

In Peterborough, on Tuesday, September 4, 1928, by Rev. B. Greatrix, at Trinity parsonage, a quiet wedding took place between Mr. Edward Solmes and Mrs. Rosanna Curtis, both of Peterborough.

WOOD—YELLAND.

Miss Thelma Mae Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood, of Frazerville, Ont., and Allin J. Yelland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Yelland, of Peterborough, Ont., were united in matrimony on Thursday, August 23, at 8 p.m., the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Davis at the Presbyterian manse, Trenton, Michigan, U.S.A.

GAMBLE—GRAHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 3rd, by Rev. Archdeacon J. C. Davidson, at the Church of the Messiah, Toronto, Verda Margaret, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Graham, 495 Aylmer street, and James Herbert Gamble, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gamble, Fenelon Falls, Ont.

CROSS—NOKES.

A very pretty wedding took place on Monday, Sept. 3rd at 3 o'clock in All Saints' church, when Lillian Mary, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nokes, of Gladstone avenue, became the bride of William A. H. Cross, second son of Mrs. Cross and the late Mr. John Cross, of Driscoll Terrace. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. D. Pa rson.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was charmingly attired in white crepe romain with deep radium lace collar. Her veil of silk net was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She wore white kid shoes with hose to match. Her bouquet was of sweetheart roses. She was attended by her twin sisters, who were becomingly attired in rose shot taffeta with black picture hats. They carried bouquets of sweetheart roses. Miss Joyce Lasenby made a dainty flower girl dressed in yellow crepe de chine and carried a silver basket of sweet peas and roses. The best man was Mr. Arthur Bromley.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride's parents, with about fifty guests present. The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. Later in the evening they left by motor for Oshawa and Toronto. On their return they will reside in the city.

The Health Force Within You

The energy which animates the body is generated within the brain. The spinal cord and nerves carry this life-giving force to every tissue cell. It is obvious then that the nerve [illegible] must be kept free of constriction to permit of proper transmi[illegible] of this health energy. Any derangement of the spine may interfere with nerve trunks as they leave the spinal canal. When this occurs, the life force is interrupted and the tissues supplied by the impinged nerves cannot function normally.

CHIROPRACTIC

is a scientific method of locating and correcting spinal derangements, thereby releasing nerve pressure and restoring vital force to weakened tissues. The result is Health.

CANADA PROSPEROUS.

Car Loadings On Railways Much Larger Than For Last Year. Vancouver Board Learns.

(Special to The Examiner.)

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 6.—Distinct and convincing evidences of Canada's prosperity were cited by E. W. Beatty, President of the C.P.R. in an address to the Board of Trade here. One of these, he said, was supplied by the railways through the car loadings, which indicated the volume of business in the country, another by the employment returns obtained from employers. The third lay in the field of finance, the fourth being the amount of building construction going on.

Cumulative car loadings to August 18 of this year totalled 2,136,000, an advance of 131,000 over last year. This increase in traffic had strengthened the confidence of the railways in the soundness of Canadian business.

"Canada," said Mr. Beatty, "has two large systems giving service which merit support. The accident of the character of the ownership of the two systems can have nothing to do with the problem in respect of rates. The fundamentals of rates, namely their reasonableness and their freedom from unjust discrimination, do not change with the character of the company's ownership. It had been stated that because of the ownership of the National Railways the people of Canada may elect that services shall be performed at unremunerative rates and the resulting deficits made up by increased taxation. No view could be more erroneous

SCHOOL EVENTS AT EXHIBITION

Each School Asked To Select Three Entries For Each Race.

FOR CHILDREN'S DAY.

Tuesday, September 11, Children's Day at the Peterborough Exhibition, will be a red letter day in the lives of many of the youngsters of Peterborough. The athletic events may result in the uncovering of many a future Percy Williams, and a real school boy spirit will be shown.

In other years the children simply went to the exhibition grounds and entered the events. This year, G. H. Roper of the Y.M.C.A., and his committee of school teachers, and others interested in children's events, decided at their meeting to introduce a different plan, which they believed to be more effective.

Instead of running just the one day of sports at the Exhibition, it was suggested, and the plan adopted, that it be made a school event. Each school to have its preliminary trials for each event, and the three best contestants will be entered in the finals to be held at the Exhibition Grounds on Tuesday.

This, they believe, will mean that much of the confusion will be avoided, and better events are promised the spectators.

Here a school spirit will be developed and the young rooters will be on hand supporting their school colors, and will cheer as enthusiastically for their schools as the college men cheer for their alma maters. For this reason it is thought that a greater interest will be aroused.

The schools in Peterborough are willing and wish to co-operate with the scheme, believing it to be for the best. The events are::

Boys.

25 yards, 10 years and under.
50 yards, 11 and 12 years.
50 yards, 13 and 14 years.
50 yards, 15 and 16 years.
Half mile relay race, 4 boys, each boy to run 220 yards.

Girls.

25 yards, 10 years and under.
50 yards, 11 and 12 years.
50 yards, 13 and 14 years.
50 yards, 15 and 16 years.
Relay race, 4 girls, each girl to run 25 yards.

All school children are urge dto wear their school colors and to be in the grandstand for the events.

SWIMMERS TAKE PLUNGE IN THIRD WRIGLEY MARATHON

The picture shows the marathoners diving off the starting float, just as the gun cracks. It indicates the difference in the way the long distance stars go to work. Some dive smartly at the start, others fall in, others slip in, while some wait for the rest of the crowd to get going before they make their leisurely way into the water. The Dalhousie City, which was loaded with passengers, can be seen in the picture.

PRIZE MONEY TO BE DIVIDED AMONG THOSE WHO DID WELL

Exact Division of $35,000 Has No Been Announced As Yet.

CONSOLATION RACE.

Those Not Getting Share Will Be Eligible For Race On Saturday.

Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Ont. Sept. 6.— The $35,000 of prize money for the men's event of the Third Wrigley Marathon swim is to be divided among the swimmers who made the best performance in yesterday's swim.

In addition there will be a consolation race along the exhibition water front on Saturday for the benefit of those who did not come in the money, and open to all who started in yesterday's swim. The distance for this consolation race is expected to be five miles, and it is probable it will be held entirely inside the breakwater.

This was the announcement of Chairman George Gooderham of the Canadian National Exhibition Aquatic Committee to The Examiner at the conclusion of the hour and a half meeting of that body to-day.

Mr. Gooderham announced that a limitation would be put on the number of swimmers to enter the Saturday race, the idea being that those who dropped out early in yesterday's race would not be eligible. No decision has as yet been reached as to how it would work out, but Mr. Gooderham's own view was that only those contestants should be allowed in the consolation race who had gone at least to the outer buoy on the first lap of the course.

The $5,000 prize money for the consolation race has been put up by the Canadian National Exhibition, the Wrigley Company not being concerned with this.

Mr. Gooderham's own suggestion is that the race should be up and down inside the breakwater, as there are yacht and dinghy races on Saturday and the closer course would make it better for the specatators.

MAIL PLANE RESUMES FLIGHT FROM OTTAWA TO VANCOUVER

Major Godfrey and Sergeant Graham Leave Winnipeg For Edmonton.

ONE STOP TO-DAY.

First Trans-Canada Flight Was Made By Donor of Aviation Trophy.

WINNIPEG, September 6. — Canadian Press. — Squadron Leader Major A. E. Godfrey, Royal Canadian air force, flying a big Fairchild monoplane, hopped off from Lac du Bonnet, on the second leg of his Ottawa-Vancouver flight, according to word received here.

Accompanied by Flight Sergeant Graham, Major Godfrey will make his next stop at Latta Lake, on the Big Saskatchewan River. There he will refuel and immediately take off again for Wabigan Lake, 40 miles west of Edmonton, where he should arrive before sundown.

The transcontinental flight started yesterday morning by Squadron Leader Godfrey, is not the first air journey across Canada. The first trans-Canada flight was made a few years ago by a Pittsburgh millionaire, named McKee, accompanied by Godfrey. McKee came north to fly over Canada and received considerable advice and assistance from the R.C.A.F. Finally he started on an across-Canada flight and invited Squadron leader Godfrey to accompany him. They made the flight but took over a week to do it.

Some time later McKee was killed while preparing to make a flight in his own plane to the Arctic. Before his death, however, he had expressed his appreciation of the R.C.A.F.'s courtesy and donated a trans-Canada trophy to be presetned annually to the Canadian pilot who did the finest work for aviation in the year. It is at present held by Captain Oakes, who was formerly in charge of the flying operations on the Western Canada Airways. It is not given for stunt flying of any kind.

WINDSOR, Ont, Sept 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Robert Putman, 36, Detroit, was killed, his sister, Mrs. Florence Tier, Detroit, was seriously injured, while seven others, three of them children, escaped with minor injuries in a head-on collision between two automobiles on Provincial Highway Number Two, two miles east of Maidstone, at 6.30 this morning.

The accident was due, police said, to an attempt by Adrien Rosen, Highland Park, Michigan, to pass three other cars ahead of him. The Putman car was struck by Rosen's, turned over twice, and completely wrecked.

SACRED BAND CONCERT ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Peterborough citizens will be pleased to hear the announcement that Cervonne's famous band, which is to play in front of the grand stand all Exhibition week, will give a sacred concert in Victoria Park on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

Miss Edna George, soloist with the band, will also appear on the program.

TORONTO CHILDREN GIVE BLOOD TO MAKE SERUM FOR WINNIPEG

Former Sufferers From Infantile Paralysis Help Victims of Epidemic.

WILL BE RUSHED.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press).—Responding to an urgent appeal from Winnipeg, a fast train will leave Toronto this afternoon for the western city bearing a supply of serum to assist in the fight against the infantile paralysis epidemic.

Following receipt of a message from Dr. Gordon Chown of the University of Manitoba, doctors on the staff of the Hospital for sick children, after examining the records, travelled through the city in motor cars and persuaded the parents of many former patients to allow the children to donate blood from which to extract serum.

About fifteen children bravely submitted to the ordeal and blood was obained which measures 800 C. C. or considerably over one quart in volume. This, when sterlized and separated, will yield about 400 C. C. of serum sufficient it is thought for twenty five cases.

STOP SEARCH FOR AMUNDSEN

Norse Officials Decide To-day That Men Must Be Dead.

WILL SEEK RELICS.

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Further search of the Polar ice fields for traces of Raold Amundsen and his five companions of the Nobile rescue expedition has been abandoned. This was decided to-day at a meeting of government officials and Polar experts at the ministry of defence.

The search will be continued, however, along the Norwegian coast, in the hope of discovering more relics of the seaplane in which the six men were travelling when disaster overtook them. A pontoon from the French naval seaplane, discovered a few days ago off Tromsoe, convinced officials that the men are dead.

GENEVA, September 6. Canadian Press. — The governments of China and Denmark have signified their intention of adhering to the Kellogg-Briand treaty, renouncing war.

THE WEATHER

For several mornings there has been a pronounced feeling that fall is approaching. This morning the river was "smoking" and in the valleys mist hung low. The temperature was down to 36 degrees. Soon, too soon, the trees will begin to assume their autumnal tints. Many migratory birds are beginning to assemble in flocks, and in places fifty to a hundred may be seen perched on the telegraph and telephone wires, apparently waiting for a leader or for the psychological moment to arrive for their departure to a warmer climate for the winter months.—W.P.

COLD WATER STIFFENS UP SWIMMERS FORCING MANY OUT ON FIRST LAP

Not a single swimmer of 200 that started finished the Third Wrigley Marathon, though the world's best were there. The grim and grisly affair worked itself out through eleven and and a quarter of yesterday's dramatic hours in and around the Exhibition seawall, and Lake Ontario won. It was not a race. It was never that from the moment of the first plunge at eleven in the forenoon, though there was many a spectacular scene and many a flash of courage which showed the stamina of men. The affair was listed as a race of man, but it was never that. Some believed it was; but that question was settled quite early in the game when Lake Ontario decided that the time had come to display her dominance over the human tribe.

The Third Wrigley Marathon was not a race, though the distance was fifteen and a half miles, while a year ago it was twenty one. It was instead, a test of endurance, and human flesh and blood lost the struggle at the hands of the cold waters of Lake Ontario. When the morning dip was taken, the water temperature stood at 52, several degrees below that of a year ago when three men fished. Those same three men — Ernst Vierkoetter, Georges Michel and William Erickson—were all in yesterday's struggle against the elements, and all three lost.

Of the three, Georges Michel, the Frenchman, displayed the greatest endurance. Ernst Vierkoetter, the German, manifested the greatest speed, and William Erickson showed the greatest improvement in his stroke; but endurance, speed and improvement in stroke were not sufficient to win against Lake Ontario and the lamprey eels. Nearly two hundred men entered the water. By noon, an hour after the start, there was less than a score left. The rest had passed out at the hands of the cold.

The affair was a grim spectacle. It produced many a shivering spectacle. It filled the hospital; it reduced men to shuddering wrecks; It all but paralyzed their limbs and it chalked up a big score against swimming marathons as they must be conducted under Lake Ontario conditions.

At the same time, it produced its highlights ,and it showed what men

Swimmers Tell Of Sea Serpent

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 6 (Special to The Examiner).—There are strange stories going around about weird fish and animals seen and encountered by swimmers in the lake during yesterday's marathon. Byron Summers, when he was taken out, said he had been bitten repeatedly by eels and he also told some sort of story about something else other than an eel that had attacked him.

Then along came Erickson with details a little more definite. He had seen something that looked like a sea serpent close to the course.

To corroborate this, Bill Bailey, one of the observers in Erickson's boat, says he took a photograph of the strange beast. Bailey says the sea serpent was about 30 feet long.

There have been reports from various places this year about the alleged appearance of sea serpents. The ogopogo of Okanagan Lake, British Columbia, has created great excitement out there. Residents of Sault Ste. Marie say they have seen a sea serpent or a small whale. Sir Conan Doyle says he has seen a sea serpent in the Mediterranean, and an English naturalist admits there may be a surviving form of "plesiosaurus."

DISPUTE OVER VILNA BECOMES CRITICAL

Private Negotiations Fail To Re-establish Normal Relations.

GENEVA, Sept. 6 (Canadian Press). —M. Waldemaras, Prime Minister of Lithuania, to-day confirmed reports that the Polish-Lithuania dispute over Vilna had reached a critical stage, following the failure of private conversations to arrange a settlement. All attempts by private negotiations to re-establish normal relations between the two countries, he declares, had ended in hopeless failure.

Rt. Rev. Joseph C. Hartzell Dies — Was Beaten By Robbers June 1.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press). — Right Rev. Joseph Crane Hartzell, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church for Africa, died here this morning. His death was due to injuries received when he was bound and beaten by robbers in his home at Blue Ash near here, June 1.

Bishop Hartzell, known as "David Livingstone of Methodism," gave twenty years of his life to the spreading of Christianity in the heart of Africa.

FIVE NEW CASES.

Winnipeg's List of Infantile Paralysis Sufferers Reaches 112.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—Five new cases of infantile paralysis were reported in Winnipeg yesterday, bringing the city's total up to 112 now sick with the malady. There are no new deaths reported.

LOVAT SENDS DENIAL CABLE

British Miners Not Used as Strike Breakers in Canada.

ANSWERS PAPER.

LONDON, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Saying that he understood there were mis-statements in the press about the British harvesters' movement, Lord Lovat has cabled to the Catholic Herald repudiating reports of British miners being used for strike breaking in Canada and of Catholic miners from Lancashire being found hanged. He asked the Herald to give full publicity to his cablegram from Canada.

WORKMAN HURLED THROUGH WINDOW

Employee of Lindsay Plant Badly Bruised By Explosion.

LINDSAY, Sept. 6.—(Special). — Bert. Williams, an employee of the Allan-Hanbury plant, here, had a narrow escape from being fatally scalded while working at the plant. He was standing close to a boiler of boiling milk, and while he was in the act of stirring it an explosion followed. Mr. Williams was hurled through a window and thrown across the C.N.R. tracks ten feet below. Following the explosion Williams' fellow workers instituted a search for him in the boiling fluid, and were greatly relieved when he was found unhurt save for a few bruises.

Nova Scotia Legislature Is Dissolved

Election Set For Oct. 1st

Premier Rhodes Issues Manifesto To Election With Announcement of Dissolution.

NOMINATION DATE SET.

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—The Nova Scotia Legislature has been dissolved. This was announced by Premier W. M. Rhodes here yesterday afternoon following a session of the Legislative Council. A provincial general election is set for Oct. 1, with nomination day on Sept. 24. Coincident with the announcement of dissolution, Premier Rhodes issued his manifesto to the electors. In it the Prime Minister reviews the activities of his government which assumed office following the election of June 1925. He compares the present condition of Nova Scotia with that in which the province found itself prior to his taking over.

Fifteenth Legislature.

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—The Nova Scotia Legislature which was dissolved yesterday afternoon was the fifteenth since Confederation. In the sixty-one years that have elapsed since the establishment of the Dominion, Nova Scotia has had only ten administrations, the longest of which was that of Hon. George H. Murray, who was Premier of Nova Scotia for twenty-seven years—from 1896 to 1923. For forty-one years prior to the assumption of office by Premier E. N. Rhodes in 1925, the province had been ruled by a Liberal government. This came into power under the Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, who held the reins for twelve years when, on his entry into the Federal field, he was succeeded by Mr. Murray.

Mr. Murray's regime lasted until he resigned from the Premiership in 1923, and was succeeded by Hon. E. N. Armstrong, who had served under him as Minister of Public Works. In 1925 Mr. Armstrong went to the country and was defeated. Thereupon Premier Rhodes formed an administration which had continued until now.

General elections in Nova Scotia are normally due every four years, but Mr. Rhodes has called the forthcoming one a year ahead of schedule.

The government of Premier Rhodes ecomprised the following:

Minister of Highways—Hon. Percy C. Black.

Minister of Natural Resources—Hon. J. A. Walker.

Attorney General—Hon. W. L. Hall.

Without Portfolio — Hon. J. F. Cahan, Hon. J. Fred. Fraser; Hon. B. A. Leblanc and Hon. W. N. Rehfuss.

In the last House there were forty Conservative members and three Liberal oppositionists

KING WITHDRAWS TWO NOMINATIONS

Makes Selection of Charles E. Hughes For World Court Unanimous.

GENEVA, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press.)—Premier Mackenzie King today sent a communication to the League of Nations Assembly, withdrawing the names of Mr. Justice Duff of the Canadian Supreme Court and Eugene Lafleur, K.C., of Montreal, as candidates for the Judgeship on the Court of International Justice. This was to ensure unanimity in the selection on Saturday of Charles Evan Hughes of the United States.

VERITABLE SEA OF FACES LINES SEA WALL ALONG COURSE

LAKESHORE, Toronto, Sept. 6.—(By The Canadian Press).—Georges Michel, baker of Paris, his flagging energy being constantly renewed by stimulants which consisted mostly of brandy, was swimming slowly and unsteadily under the glare of flood lights early last night, the only survivor of 199 long distance swimmers who plunged into the cold waters of Lake Ontario in quest of the Wrigley prize of $25,000.

Although at 8:45 p.m., nearly 10 hours after the fifteen mile race had started, the French swimmer of the English channel and second prize winner in last year's swim at the Canadian National Exhibition had about 4 miles to go. Approximately 150,000 people—a veritable sea of faces—lined the exhibition water front gazing out into the lake, over which darkness had settled early last evening.

The crowds were amazed by especially broadcast music which reached them through several loud speakers, and the enthusiastic marathon fans warmed themselves up by joining in the chorus of popular songs.

The race became a one man endurance test shortly after 6:30 p.m. when Ernst Vierkoetter, of Germany, another English Channel conqueror who won last year's 21 mile struggle, was compelled to give up when he was about two miles, or nearly a lap in front of Michel. Virtual paralysis seized Vierkoetter suddenly and almost without warning, as it did Norman Ross of Chicago, and George Young of Toronto, winner of the Catalina channel marathon, who held the lead during the early stages of the race and appeared to be going strongly.

93 YEAR OLD RESIDENT RECALLS EARLY DAYS IN PETERBOROUGH

City Had Two Brick Houses When Matthew Boyce Came Here.

SEVENTY YEARS AGO.

Learned Trade in Harness Shop Where Grand Hotel Now Stands.

Lying in his bed to which he has been confined for the past several months, ninety-three year old Matthew Boyce, of 540 Park street, spoke in a strong clear voice as on Wednesday afternoon he told an Examiner reporter the story of his life from the time he came to the city some seventy years ago, put in his time as an apprentice and launched forth for himself as a harness maker. Slightly hard of hearing, and with sight considerably impaired the old man nevertheless revealed throughout the conversation, a mental alertness far beyond the ordinary. He welcomed his caller in hospitable manner, volunteered general information freely but exhibited a reluctance born of modesty when questioned regarding his own work.

"I was born near Selwyn, in Smith township, shortly after my parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Boyce, had come to Canada from the United States," he said, when questioned. "Seventy years ago I came to Peterborough and went in to serve my time with William McBernie. The most of my life since then has been in Peterborough, though I was in Bridgenorth for six or seven years, working for the S. S. Kelly mill, repairing the harness of that company. I also worked for Thomas Donnelly, for Benjamin Shortley, who bought him out, and then for the next thirty two years I was employed by the B. F. Ackerman Company."

Peterborough, Then and Now.

"Peterborough was not much of a place when I came here first," he continued. "Only one or two brick houses were in existence. You know where the Grand Hotel now is on George street. Well, that is where I served my time. There was a blacksmith shop where the English Canoe Company later located on Charlotte street. I have lived here (his present residence) for the past 43 or 44 years.

"I remember one year, there was a flood in the spring, and it was worse than anything I had ever seen. You could get in a canoe at the Ackerman plant and sail down George street to the river. That was somewhere about 1870, though I cannot remember just the particular year. And I remember when they put in

PRESENTATION MADE.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hunter Honored By Members of Marmora Community Band.

Examiner Correspondence.

MARMORA, Sept. 6.—On Monday evening the members of Marmora Community Band visited Deloro to make presentations to Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hunter, who are shortly moving to Belleville, the former to take over the duties of choirmaster at St. Thomas' church, Belleville, while Mrs. Hunter has been engaged as organist of the same church.

Alighting at Deloro Public school the band marched to the residence of its highly esteemed leader, playing enlivening tunes. Following a little more music on Mr. Hunter's lawn, all entered his house to witness the presentations of a handsome wicker rocking chair to Mr. Hunter and a very serviceable wicker work basket to Mrs. Hunter. Mr. R. E. Bonter read a suitable address to which the recipients made fitting replies. The band members are pleased to know that Mr. Hunter will not be entirely relinquishing his services with the band since he intends to return twice monthly to further conduct their practices.

Miss Alice Andrews, of Peterborough, spent the week end with Miss Lucille Booth.

The members of Marmora Council No. 279, C.O.C.F. are planning to hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Narrie on Tuesday evening.

Members of L.O.L. 319 visited West Huntingdon L.O.L. 300 on Monday evening, the fraternal visit being enjoyed by the visitors and the visited. Interesting speeches were given by members of both lodges.

ASQUITH CLAIMS LEAGUE HIS IDEA

NEW YORK, September 5 (Canadian Press). — In his memoirs, which will be published here to-morrow, the late Earl of Oxford and Asquith asserts that the germ of the League of Nations lay in a speech of his delivered in 1912. Lord Asquith also shows admiration for the Hon. Winston Churchill, and the bitterness of his feelings toward Lloyd-George, a contemptuous reaction toward the Labor Party when it lost power, and high regard for Lord Kitchener.

MILITIAMEN LEAVE BARRIEFIELD CAMP

Grand Military Tattoo Winds Up Rural Units' Training.

The units which have been in training at Barriefield Camp marched out on Saturday independently after what was most certainly the most successful training period under canvas in the military district since the Great War.

The activities of the camp wound up on Friday evening with a grand military tattoo attended by approximately three thousand civilian spectators with over a thousand automobiles parked in the vicinity of the roped off enclosure where the spectacular event was watched.

The evening's programme was arranged by a small committee headed by Captain S. A. Lee, R.C.C.S., while Major H. L. Sherwood, the camp engineer, and his subordinates contributed much to the success of the spectacle, by arranging the lighting effects.

Ideal weather prevailed for such an event, the scene lit by a huge harvest moon, huge bonfire, multi-colored flares, and flood lights made the scene very spectacular under the clear sky.

Camp Commandant Col. W. B. Anderson, C.M.G., D.S.O., who was present with his whole headquarters staff, presented the trophy for the championship in track and athletic events to the winners, the Lanark and Renfrew Scottish Regiment (Highlanders), who obtained a total of fifty points.

The programme of the tattoo itself was most interesting, the playing, marching, and counter marching of

YOUNG HIDDEN FROM VIEW AS GERMAN REACHED HIM

On Board Vierkoetter's Boat—At 2:25 when Vierkoetter passed Young, Erichs Barensche, the German's manager and trainer, steered his row-boat between so that Vierkoetter could not see the pitiful spectacle. For at the moment of the overhaul, George Young, his face a ghastly blue, was pleading with the men in his boat to take him in.

"Please, please, take me in." He was treading water, his head wobbling with the ague of bitter cold.

And hidden from George in as sportsmanlike a manoeuvre as this city ever saw, the silent, changeless Vierkoetter went by.

At three o'clock, leading by two buoys, Ernst Vierkoetter had not changed the pace of his softly flailing arms in the slightest perceptible degree from what it had been at the start.

Except for the word "Langsam" which is German for "slow" Barensche has not, in the four hours, spoken to Ernst. The brown sleek figure that is sliding beside us seems unaware of us. He took coffee twice about noon and since then has refused it with a curt shake of his head. No. sign of what the cold must be doing to him is yet showing—no blue on lips or fingers. He is the spirit of dauntless courage and determination.

When we passed Young and Barensche steered his boat to hide the conqueror from the conquered, his eyes filled with tears and he exclaimed: "I do not wish to see that brave boy losing at his fight."

We have just been told that George has been taken from the water, but we are not going to tell Ernst yet.

Meanwhile, Vierkoetter went on tirelessly. Shortly he was 200 yards in the lead and rounding the buoy of the northerly leg.

"Don't touch that buoy," one shouted.

Two life-saving boats drew up close and at 2.50 p.m., after fifteen minutes of a thrilling swim battle Young was lifted from the water.

Believed Redskins At Indian River

(Examiner Correspondence).

OTONABEE, Sept. 6. — An amusing incident occurred in the early summer in connection with the arrival of some British youths being sent from St. George's Home, Ottawa, to farmers in Otonabee and Douro.

When the youths were being told their destination by those in charge at the Home, some were told they were being sent to Indian River. They protested strongly against the proposal and declared they wanted to be sent among their own kind of people, not Indians.

They were finally assured that the residents of Indian River are whites, not Redskins.

Largest Wheat Crop in History of Canadian West is Expected.

YIELD FAVORABLE.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 6 (Canadian Press).—The rush to move what is estimated as the largest wheat crop in the history of the Canadian West is on in earnest, with 2,325,759 bushels of grain marketed Tuesday at various points. The rush is earlier than ever before, railway officials said.

With threshing reported general all over the West, cutting virtually completed in Manitoba, and more rolling stock and general equipment massed at strategic points on the prairies than ever before, indications are that the whole operations of taking off the crop and marketing it will be completed in record time.

Cutting is reported to be seventy-five per cent. completed in Saskatchewan and fifty per cent. in Alberta.

Interior elevators are swept clean and ready for the pouring in of the new grain. Stocks in the lake head terminals have been reduced to 4,531,000 bushels.

Reports of wheat yields are favorable on the whole, and at most points the grading is high.

MAKING PLANS TO CELEBRATE

Committee Named For Opening of Campbellford Pavement.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, September 6.—Things are beginning to take on a definite shape for the grand opening of the three and one-half miles of paved streets which Campbellford has laid this year. The work will be all completed this week and the opening date has been set for Friday, September 14. Members of the Council met several interested citizens last night in the office of W. S. Wiggins and discussed the affair from every angle. Convenors of committees were appointed to attend to the various branches of the entertainment and the restricted areas were laid out.

The nine convenors appointed were —J. N. Stone, Entertainment Committee; E. C. Dolman, music; G. A. Kingston, imitation; J. M. Ferris, tags; G. A. Ironside, booths; C. H. Davidson, advertising; J. M. Bygott, reception; J. J. O'Sullivan, speakers and bandstands committee, also street barricades; George Nicol, finance; Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, program.

The rent for booth space was set at ten dollars, and tags are to be sold to men only at twenty-five cents each. Front Street north in the business section will be barricaded for street dancing, both square and round. There will be a no-parking limit on Tice Street and on Bridge Street as far as Rear Street intersection. The area may be extended.

GRATIFYING GROWTH.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition, granted favorable weather during next week, seems to be standing on the threshold of the greatest success in its history.

Certainly nothing that would contribute to the enjoyment or entertainment or education of its patrons has been left undone by the management.

While entertainment features loom large in the eyes of many visitors and these are to be furnished without stint yet the most remarkable growth and development are likely to be found in the live stock exhibits.

Many well known breeders will show here for the first time in spite of the substantial increase in accomodation that has been made for such exhibits it is already clear that shelter will not be available for all the animals to be sent here.

This growth in the agricultural side of the Exhibition will undoubtedly be particularly interesting to Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, when he visits the big Exhibition next Thursday.

A NEW CANADIAN HISTORY.

Through the courtesy of Premier Ferguson, Ontario's Minister of Education, The Examiner has been furnished with a copy of the new book on Canadian History, that has been authorized for use in the schools of the Province.

The author is Professor W. Stewart Wallace of the University of Toronto, who has succeeded admirably in catching much of the romance that permeates the history of Canadian development and in making clear the debt that Canadians of to-day owe to the pioneer settlers of this country.

In this respect the book fills a long-felt want and meets the requirements outlined by Premier Ferguson some years ago in pointing out the need of a history with more warmth and color in it.

The author in a preface acknowledges his debt to the Minister of Education for "many helpful suggestions as to the form this book should take" and among these suggestions undoubtedly was one urging that more attention be paid to the story of the early days and pioneer endeavor in Canada.

The book is written in a delightfully bright style, is splendidly illustrated, deals with Canadian development up to the present day and should be warmly welcomed by the schools of Ontario.

ONE RACE LIKE THIS ENOUGH.

It should not take the Canadian National Exhibition directors long to decide after yesterday's harrowing experiences that marathon swimming shall be eliminated from future Exhibition programs or at least that no more such contests shall be permitted under similar conditions.

Probably no athletic competition in Canada's history produced more suffering.

The world's fastest swimmers as well as the floaters and pluggers, whose endurance had been attested in many a gruelling contest, were paralyzed by the bitter grip of the icy waters of Lake Ontario.

Not one of the almost 200 who started the long grind was able to complete the course, man after man being dragged out of the water stiffened by the cold to such an extent that some of them were unable to move a muscle.

An athletic murder, Lou Marsh, well know sporting writer terms the competition and certainly in its effect upon the contestant the long swim was cruel in the physical torture it inflicted.

Attorney-General Price stopped marathon dancing in Ontario because he regarded such competitions as inhuman; what price then a contest in water hardly warm enough for a polar bear?

Certainly if there is to be any more long distance swimming in connection with the Exhibition it should only be tolerated when the lake temperature is high enough to justify a start being made.

SAVE THE FRUIT GROWERS.

The fruit situation in the Okanagan Valley' British Columbia, The Examiner believes deserves the early attention of the Dominion Government.

The joint committee of the United Boards of Trade of the Valley in bringing the important question to the notice of Eastern newspapers declares in fact that "it is necessary to take immediate action if the growres are to be saved from a grave disaster."

The situation is that the withdrawal by Orders-in-Council of the anti-dumping clauses of the Customs Act has left the fruit growers not only of the Okanagan but of the Kootenays, and of sections of Ontario and Nova Scotia at the mercy of American growers who are dumping their surpluses into Canada and taking the market away from the Canadian grower.

The fact seems to be that Canadian fruit growers cannot survive unless they are protected against the dumping by United States export houses of surpluses on the Canadian market.

As the Vernon, B.C. News puts it: "It is not that they cannot produce as cheaply—that has nothing to do with it. It is simply that the Americans in order to protect their home product and to obtain a profitable price therein will dump their surplus ino Canada as the market easiest of access. They will obtain all they can in this market but will use it without regard to the price they take. The dumping of two, or even five, or six per cent. of their crop causes them no concern if they secure a neat profit at home, while the dumping of such a quantity into Canada ruins the Canadian grower."

In the Okanagan Valley alone $40,000,000 has been invested in the fruit industry.

Surely it is good business to protect that investment.

The protection asked for by the fruit growers should be furnished by an immediate restoration of the anti-dumping law.

THE PROLONGED "BULL MARKET."

Wall Street proves a source of perpetual astonishment to competent observers. Even in the year of a presidential campaign, when business has dropped from its peak and there is considerable unemployment in the United States, the prices of high-class stocks and bonds continue relentlessly to seek higher levels and the oft-predicted collapse apparently is as far away as ever. It may be taken for granted that the vision of either Hoover or Smith in the White House fails to alarm in the slightest the intangible but powerful forces known as "Big Business," but that is not an explanation of a price trend which has continued with but temporary recessions for six years.

In the Atlantic Monthly an attempt is made by John Moody to explain the phenomenon. A six-year bull market is a remarkable picture, he declares, and it has amazed the entire financial world. Instead of the wide-open crash which everybody expected, Wall Street this year has displayed "new and mysterious force." Railroad issues, industrials, public utilities, bank stocks, bonds all have increased in value, and an investor, says Mr. Moody, who spread $100,000 over a diversified list in 1923 now would have a capital of nearly $400,000.

The writer goes on to refer to the panics of 1893, 1903 and 1907, and to declare they were due to special conditions which exist no longer.

"Banking conditions were always unsound; a large part of the period was checkered with radical anti-trust legislation; socialistic ideas were rampant in all directions; the financing of this initial era of big business was in large part crude, unscientific and ill-considered. It was the period of the 'trust-buster,' the muck-raker and the 'undesirable citizen,' and, in its later years, the shadows of the Great War were dropping down over the world."

To-day he finds all this changed. By 1923 business in the United States was recovering nicely from the deflation crash. Political and labor conditions were becoming stable, and the reparations problem was heading towards a solution. But Mr. Moody, in retrospect, finds there were other fundamental facts which still influence the market.

"The most important is that the position of the United States in relation to the rest of the world had completely changed. We had become a mighty creditor nation, whereas in the decades before the war we were still a borrowing nation. The sudden and dramatic events of the war period had increased the wealth and resources of this country to an extent which perhaps would not otherwise have been equalled within a generation or more. . . . An immense increase in our plant and producing capacity had taken place. . . . Another vital fact which had gone far to stabilize fundamental financial and business conditions in America was the founding of the Federal Reserve banking system."

These, he holds, were the principal reasons for the prolonged bull market, although there were other contributing factors, notably a new policy of caution in commercial buying, the decline of intense socialism and public ownership propaganda. More efficient business methods were brought into play in almost every line of activity, and he notes "the continuous trend towards consolidation of small units into large." At the same time the United States was becoming "a nation of investors," with 15,000,000 Americans owning stocks and bonds in place of 500,000 twenty years ago. Another "fundamental factor" was the growing conviction "of a real possibility of what might be called a general renaissance developing on the European continent during the coming generation."

It is more than a new era on Wall Street:

"In fact, a new age is taking form throughout the entire civilized world; civilization is taking on new aspects. We are only now beginning to realize, perhaps, that this modern, mechanistic civilization in which we live is now in the process of perfecting itself. Political problems nowadays are looming less large in the minds of men than are economic factors. The public more and more are thinking in terms of industry, wealth production, efficiency of method, income, and profits. What this portends for the longer future, no one can say; but it is a fact of great significance, nevertheless. . . .

"The mistake that many, no doubt, make is to assume that times have not fundamentally changed. They have changed. We are living in a new era, and Wall Street, in its present condition and activity, broadly stated, is simply reflecting this new era. It will continue to reflect it as the years go by, and if, as has been assumed, the present national and world trends continue without material change through the next decade, it is obvious enough that security values during future years will rise to higher levels."

Mr. Moody closes on a note of caution. There will be reactions and shocks in the months and years to come, he points out, "and perhaps there will be more than one massacre of the innocents on Wall Street," but all the same he finds it a new and remarkable era even if short of the financial millennium.—Ottawa Journal

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it 45,000 next week.

What a fight there would be if one of those marathon swimmers happened to hear a W.C.T.U. orator discoursing on the benefits of cold water.

More than one of yesterday's swimmers must have turned a cold shoulder on the Exhibition crowd.

At least the fact that all of the Toronto swimmers passed out will spare us a flood of testimonials about the value of certain foodstuffs, grease, cigarettes, etc.

American motor car skidded into the parlor of a Gananoque house. That seems to be taking those "Tourists welcome" signs too literally.

If the League of Nations is to take up the rum running problem it will require rare diplomacy to keep peace around the council board.

The Rockford-Stockholm fliers had to land on the Greenland coast because of lack of gas. Now watch the oil companies rush to put filling stations up there.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, September 6. — Active demand for choice butchers. Calves strong. Lambs weak.

Buyers showed a strong desire to acquire good quality steers and heifers. With nine hundred cattle from Tuesday and a light run yesterday, all cattle will be cleaned up.

Choice butchers and heavy steers $11.00 to $12.00, with common and medium cattle steady. Choice baby beeves selling well at $13.50 to $14.00. Stockers and feeders strong. Choice fat cows active at $8.50 to $9.00 with heavy bulls $8.50.

Firm trade on calves at $15.50 to $16.50.

Lambs very draggy with $13.00 for choice and indications all point to lower levels.

Hogs held steady at $13.50 f.o.b. for selects with packers bidding $13.25 f.o.b. for yesterday's loading.

Choice springers asked for at $100 to $125 for tops. Common not wanted. Choice milkers steady to a good trade.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 6 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in grain was very quiet here yesterday, the only important sale being a load of No. 2 feed oats at 9¾ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f. Montreal. Trade in car lots of grain on spot was steady with prices unchanged.

The volume of business for export account in the spring wheat flour market showed no improvement. A fair trade was done with local and country buyers.

The millfeed market was unchanged.

A firm feeling prevailed in the local egg market owing to the increasing scarcity of strictly fresh eggs, the offerings from producing centres being practically nil of late. Receipts were 2,936 cases.

Butter prices were marked up another ¼c per pound yesterday. This brings the price to a new high level on the move to date. A marked improvement in the demand from both local and outside interests was reported. The volume of business was the largest for several days past. Receipts were 103 packages.

There was more activity in the cheese trade with a decidedly firmer undertone to the market.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 6 (Canadian Press) — The present range of wheat prices failed to interest buyers yesterday, and another small dip resulted. Corn, too, had a sinking spell in the early trading, but made a turn about at the last when shorts took advantage of the dull day to cover up, and the close was at the highest figures of the day and a net advance over Tuesday.

North-west sellers appeared in the wheat pit from time to time with small offerings, with the usual depressing effect. The pressure was relatively light, however, and word from Minneapolis indicated that heavy hedging sales were still some distance away.

Export demand was rather indifferent, and the trade looked for more aggressive selling soon from the Argentine, with better weather prevalent there. The weather appeared to be favorable nearly everywhere yesterday, aiding the reapers in Europe and the growers in Australia. Canada officially confirmed frost reports, but none yet has calculated any serious crop damage. Winnipeg yesterday had 538 cars compared with 190 a year ago. Sales for export were reported at 300,000 bushels at the seaboard. Wheat closed easy at ⅝c to 1 cent decline, September 109¼ to ⅜, December 114⅛ to ⅝, March 118⅞ and May 121⅛ to ¼.

Corn made a slow start, scattered selling taking down the current month a cent below Tuesday's close while the later deliveries sloughed off ⅝c. Toward the end, however, buyers came to life. The low prices lured shorts into the market, and while demand for cash corn was improving country offerings were small. Light frosts were predicted for parts of the north-west last night.

Corn closed firm, ¼c to ⅞ cents higher, September 93¼, December 74⅞ to 75, March 77⅛ to ¼, and May 79⅝.

Vessel room was chartered for 250,000 bushels of oats to Georgian Bay. Country offerings were small, cats closing ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, with September showing relatively stronger than later deliveries, closing at 38⅝. Provisions were firmer, with fair buying by commission houses, finishing unchanged to 15 cents higher, September, Lard 12.57.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 6 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange closed here yesterday as follows::

Demand—$4 84 5-16 to $4.84 7-16.
Cables—$4.84; to $4.84 13-16.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Firmness is the feature of the Toronto wholesale produce market these days, with almost every price change that takes place being in the direction of a rising market. The egg market continues firm. Movement of supplies is understood to be somewhat better. The trend of the market is reported to be for quotations on extras to work higher. The price range for eggs, ungraded, cases returned, at present quoted by the wholesale buyers is: Fresh extras, 38c to 40c; fresh firsts, 36c to 37c, and seconds, 28c to 29c.

A Thought

EXTREMES.

Men are stoics in their early years, epicureans in their latter; social in youth, selfish in old age. In early life they believe all men honest, till they know them to be knaves; in late life they believe all to be knaves, till they know them to be honest. Thus somehow or other men pass in the course of living from one of these extremes to the otner, and from having thought too well of human nature at first, think at last too ill of it—Dr. Johnson.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe.—Prov. 29: 25.

Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for this day with its opportunities for service. We thank Thee for food and raiment. We thank Thee for friends, companions and loved ones. We bless Thy Holy Name for letting us have a part in the great work of telling a lost world of Jesus.

We pray Thee to make us channels of blessing this day. May the radiance of our Redeemer be reflected in our lives. May all who come in contact with us take knowledge that we have been with Thee.

Bless us as we go about our daily tasks. In the home; in business; in the classroom; yea, everywhere, may we be true to Thee and to Thy teaching. Whether we eat or whether we drink, or whatsoever we do, may we do all to the glory of God.

Be with our absent loved ones. Bless our city, and those who are in authority. Bless our Church and our pastor. Bless all who are engaged in Thy service.

Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. We ask it all in Jesus' name. Amen.

The new call book for the Manvers Municipal Telephone system is in the hands of the telephone subscribers. It consists of fourteen pages bound in thick red paper presenting a very attractive appearance. Twenty-three business men have placed advertisements in the book, the cost of which went toward paying for the printing and publishing.

This new system of calling will be a great help to the telephone operators, for with the increasing number of subscribers it has been rather hard to remember all the names and their phone rings.

Rev. A. Poulter occupied his own pulpit in the United church on Sunday evening following his vacation. His subject was on "Labor." Next Sunday he purposes to speak on "Observations by the Way". Miss Helen Byers' solo "He Shall Wipe Every Tear from Thy Eye" was beautifully sung and very much appreciated.

Next Sunday, September 9, the Sunday school will meet at 2 o'clock instead of 10.30, which has been the custom all summer.

Since Sunset came into the hands of practical women, the life of faded garments or drab draperies has tremendously increased.

A re-dyed wardrobe looks 100% new and colourful and in the height of fashion when Sunset-dyed in the popular smart shades.

Such economies are achieved, too, without loss of dignity for there's no home-dyed look in Sunset-dyed material. Whether the user is experienced or not, Sunset results are dependable, true colours.

It dyes all dyeable fabrics—silk, wool, cotton, linen (or mixtures of these fibres). Quick, easy, clean to use; and the colours are fast—gently boiled in to stay. Only with Sunset can you get the beautiful Sunset results.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE TRAVEL

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

It is said that Immanuel Kant, the great German philosopher and sometimes called one of the three greatest men of all time, never went beyond thirty-five miles from the village of Konigsberg where he was born, and where he died at the ripe old age of eighty.

I know a Connecticut Yankee who is well upwards of seventy years and has never seen New York City, though he might reach it in less than three hours by train or automobile.

These two incidents seem incredible to an age that is so given to travel. With improved means of transportation such as the automobile, the Pullman, the floating palaces we call ocean liners, and the airplane, travel has received an enormous impetus. Leisure time and available cash have also payed their part.

This is indeed the age of travel We are told that over two hundred thousand Americans will travel abroad this year, breaking all previous records. "See America first" will attract no less than forty million tourists. Tourist trade is already one of the most important of all industries. Many localities and several states depend upon it for a living.

The psychic reasons why we travel are restlessness, wanderlust, the desire to see life, stark curiosity and the urge to get away from the monotony of the daily grind, to acquire perstige, to enrich personality.

The German word, wanderlust, is expressive. It means an unconquerable longing to wander or travel. No doubt this trait dates back to our nomad ancestors who had no definie abiding place. They roamed about with their herds of cattle. We, their descendents, are poorly tamed. The old roving spirit crops out every so often. With some it is a chronic desire.

If a man without money or social standing takes to the road we call him a tramp. If he happens to have plenty of money and can afford to trot the globe in style we call him an explorer, a traveler, a tourist. But the motive is the same in both cases. It is wanderlust.

Why do you do what you do? Write Dr. Thomson, care of this paper, and send stamped envelope for reply.

GOITRE

This disease has been found in every country in the world, and many theories have been advanced as to its cause. For a long time it was supposed that the absence of iodine in food was responsible for this condition, and this idea is still being exploited by manufacturers in many parts of the country, but this cannot be the true cause of goitre since it is present in the female sex about six times as frequently as in the male, and both sexes presumably consume about the same amount of iodine. The fact that goitre is very prevalent in Switzerland and in other mountainous districts where people do not obtain much iodine in their drinking water or food, has been frequently used as proof of this statement. However, along the Jersey coast and in many parts of Japan, where iodine is plentifully supplied in both food and drinking water, goitre is frequently found. Excessive use of starch seems to be an important factor in producing enlargement of the thyroid gland.

It is a well known fact that the thyroid gland is slightly larger in women than in men, and this gland becomes swollen at various periods in a woman's life. In fact, many goitres in women originate and are associated with some type of female derangement; possibly one-sixth of the cases of women or about an equal number of the cases of men can be traced to toxic substances that accumulate in the thyroid gland and cause it to become enlarged.

The thyroid is one of the ductless glands that have furnished material for much research and probably more is known about the action of the thyroid than of the other ductless glands, such as the pituitary, adrenal, or gonads. This little organ, situated at the base of the throat in front of the windpipe, is shaped very much like two small kidneys, one at either side and connected together in front below the Adam's apple. Experiments tend to prove that it is a regulator of other glands, too much thyroid secretion speeding up, and too little causing a slowing down. A person affected with too much thyroid secretion will have a pulse of 130 or over, which is probably the most dangerous effect from the thyroid.

This friendly little gland can become your greatest enemy if it is irritated by toxemia. If your nervousness is increasing and your heart action more rapid, your little thyroid may be responsible.

There are many forms of thyroid derangement, but the two most common types are called simple goitre and exophthalmic goitre. The simple goitre is easily noticed as the thyroid gland becomes many times larger than normal. Even the layman can recognize this trouble by the enlargement in front of the neck.

In some of the mountainous districts of Europe, Japan and Oregon the enlargement of the thyroid may be so great that it hangs down like a large sack in front of the neck.

Most cases of goitre can be corrected by dietetic measures alone, and I will be glad to send anyone interested instructions for the treatment of this disorder if he will send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, in care of this newspaper.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. O. J. asks: "Will you please explain how to cook coddled eggs?"

Answer: Place the unbroken eggs in a deep pan which is not standing on the fire, and pour over them boiling water. At least one quart of water should be used to each two eggs. Allow to stand for from five to ten minutes. When broken open the eggs should have a jelly-like consistency, but should at the same time be so well cooked that there is no transparent albumen which has not been coagulated. If the pan is covered, less time will be required to get the same effect, but it is possibly more desirable to have the eggs cook very slowly for perhaps eight to ten minutes, as in this way they are cooked through more thoroughly.

Question—Mrs. H. asks: "Would you advise X-ray treatment for diseased tonsils and adenoids? Is there any danger of drying up the glands of the throat by the X-ray treatment? A woman who has taken this treatment is troubled with a pus discharge from the throat. What might be the cause of it?"

Answer: X-ray treatment for tonsils or adenoids is a very dangerous method to use, as the other glands in the throat and even the brain itself may be injured. The toxic cause of enlarged tonsils will remain even if these glands are shrunk by the X-ray and therefore a patient may continue to have an excess formation of mucus or still be troubled with pus pockets in the throat. You would be interested in my article "Save the Tonsils." Address your request to me in care of this paper and I will be glad to send you the article free if you will inclose a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SEYMOUR ASKS FOR ROAD GRANT

Township Claims Extra Work Entailed By Raising of Water Level.

ON BOUNDARY LINE.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 6.—Following a resolution moved and seconded by Councillor Allen and Deputy Reeve Peake, the Federal government will be asked for a grant of three hundred dollars for maintenance to the boundary between the townships of Seymour and Rawdon as was the case in 1915. This was decided at the regular meeting of the Seymour township council held in their rooms in the Ferris Block on Tuesday afternoon.

All members of the council were present and after dealing with the minutes of the previous meeting, the communications were heard. Among them was a letter from G. A. Payne regarding the rural light and power lines. After some discussion the letter was laid on the table till further information could be secured. A deputation waited on the council seeking repairs to the eleventh and fourteenth concessions and was promised consideration by the council. By-law number 1087 was presented by councillor Allen and was passed. It appointed Mrs. Thomas Dunham tax collector for the 1928 taxes.

The resolution asking for a grant from the Federal government was the next order of business. It was presented by Councillor Allen and Deputy Reeve Peake.

"That whereas the building of the Trent Waterways has raised the water at a point opposite lot No 26 in the first and second concessions of the township of Seymour, and whereas the raising of the water in the channel has lessened the flow of water from the streams and caused the creek to overflow portions of the boundary line between the township of Seymour and the township of Rawdon, and whereas the said townships of Seymour and Rawdon are jointly compelled to maintain the said road, and whereas in the year 1915 the Federal Government made a grant in aid of repairing the said road.

Therefore be it resolved that the council of the corporation of the township of Seymour do ask the Federal Government for a grant of $300.00 to aid in the construction of the said boundary road."

The resolution was carried. After passing the following accounts the council adjourned.

Imperial Oil Company $36.44; T. J. Horkins, $3.60; Pedlar People, 92.47; J. C. Birmingham, $18.30; John Ingram, $104.10; Miss K. Ferris, $30; G. A. Hay, $123.32; A. V. Light, $2.25; (Standard Bank Lights at Hoards) $35; Sawyer Massey, $110.33; Henry Watters, $3; H. Seaborne, $40.95; E. Brunton, $121.95; D. J. Petherick, $22.75; A. Brunton, $105.25; Harry Saunders, $105.25; Jos. O'Brien, $12; John Dorie, $100.25; John Grills, $108.50; Alex Tinney, $44.74; James Greenfield, 44.75; Ernest Haig, $76.55; Wellington Green, $80.75; Stanley Nelson, $32.50; John Little, $82.05; Harold Simpson, $2.50; Nathan Atkinson, $71.80; Fred Jeffs, $2; W. H. Smith, (school fair grant) $30; R. McKelvie, $38.

MILLBROOK UNITED CHURCH.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 6.—A special feature of the United Church service on Sunday was the singing of Mr. Luke Gasp, baritone soloist of the First Congregational Church, Chicago, one of the largest churches in that city.

At morning worship Mr. Gasp sang "The Lord is My Light", and "He Will Hold Me Fast"; and in the evening his solos were "Come Home," and "Peace, Perfect Peace."

The musical numbers fitted appropriately into the pastor's theme on Sunday morning, "Songs of the Temple", the sermon being the third in the series Rev. Mr. Jones has been preaching for the past month, the two previous subjects being: "The Worship of the Temple", and "The Prayers of the Temple." Next Sunday morning, "Towers of the Temple" will be considered.

The text on Sunday was chosen from Psalm 137: 4, 5, 6: "How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land? If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."

As an introduction the speaker outlined briefly the reasons why captive Israel could not respond to the demand, "Sing us one of the songs of Zion", in an alien land: (a) Their words and sentiment were inappropriate for a heathen audience; (b) The Lord's songs must have an origin in as piritual experience ;(c) Making melody to the Lord is for worship, not for entertainment.

Commenting on the great hymns of the church, and their writers, it was pointed out that through music's gate souls have been born into the Kingdom, that were left practically untouched by the minister's message.

There were good congregations at both services.

At the Symphony in your Home!

So true and lifelike is the music of the new Orthophonic Victrola,---you almost see the famous conductor---the magnificent orchestra!

... The plaintive note of a trumpet ... swelling ... receding Then the 'cellos. You move towards the edge of your chair. Again that wistful trumpet and again the 'cellos, followed by the violins and the brasses, as the melody weaves its pattern of beauty. You relax and enjoy a world-loved overture. You are at the Symphony Concert, in your own home! And you arrange the program!

You almost see the sensitive hands of the great conductor—the rhythmic rise and fall of the violin bows, the tilt of gleaming trumpets and trombones! You may listen to several orchestras the same evening, with encores end on end.. You may listen to anything in any kind of music.

The principle that applies "Smooth Flow of Sound" to the new Orthophonic Victrola—and brings it to your home, is "Matched Impedance",—Victor-controlled.

To do justice to this realistic music, you may have beautiful cabinets in artistic designs and fine woods. Electrically driven, if you wish, at slight additional cost. All instruments are self stopping. Prices from $1400 down to as low as $115—on convenient payments from all His Master's Voice dealers. Act now and begin to enjoy at once.

Miners' Leader Collapses While Denouncing Mond's Proposals.

DURING CONGRESS.

LONDON, September 6. — Canadian Press. — A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, fainted and collapsed to-day while addressing a meeting of the Trades' Union Congress. He had to be carried from the hall.

He was in the midst of a vigorous denunciation of proposals for industrial peace made a year ago by Lord Melchett, formerly Sir Alfred Mond.

Cook became internationally famous as "Emperor Cook, of the general strike," and has been one of the the most active leaders of the radical unionist wing.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Many different reports regarding Amulet were heard following the publication of the annual statement. The latest of these is to the effect that when the supplementary report is issued, which will be soon, an increase of from five to six million dollars of ore will be shown. The company is now said to have drifted some fifty five feet in 25% copper on the 150-foot level and yet have about 15 feet to go.

It appears as though public interest is again returning to their old favorite, the Pend Oreille. It will be recalled that this stock came from out of the blue and enjoyed a sensational advance on both the Vancouver and Toronto exchanges and then, after a drastic decline to around $12, it dissappeared from public view. A wire from Vancouver this morning states that Sir Herbert Holt and a group of C.P.R. officials visited the property over the week-end. This gave Vancouver something to talk about and it is heard that the visit is a preliminary to C.P.R. taking over the property. That would mean that Smelters would control Pend Oreille as the C. P. R. controls Smelters.

Following the official reports of a new strike on the Sudbury Lode property comes the advice that the company's finances are in good shape. The present diamond drilling program is paid for in advance and sufficient funds are available to carry on extensive surface exploration until the first of the year. Two permanent camps will be erected replacing the tents at present in use. Diamond drilling of the recently discovered 20-foot vein will be carried out at a later date.

The scene of the latest gold find is reported to be just south of the Crown Reserve at Larder Lake, where it is said that Dick Elliott, well-known northern mining man, has uncovered some rich stuff.

A despatch received this morning from Winnipeg reads as follows:—"Oro Grande's depth development is proving up the confidence of the mine management in the property. The main vein was cut 145 feet from the shaft on the 500-foot level and showed a width of 17 feet of high mineralized ore. At 135 feet from the shaft a new vein 2 feet wide was intersected, and after the main vein was crosscut through another parallel vein was cut some 12 feet further on with a width running between 4 and 5 feet. At the bottom of the shaft, the vein out while sinking was underway, was shown to be five feet wide. No. assays have been made but all the veins are heavily mineralized. Drifting north on the footwall of the main vein is now in progress on this level.

The purchase of 22 claims on Minakagan Lake, about 8 miles from the Flin Flon, by the Bailor Mining and Exploration Syndicate, is announced by William Bailor, manager of the syndicate. The purchase is said to have been around $100,000. With the purchase the Bailor Syndicate now have around 4,500 acres in the Pas and Cold Lake mining districts, in addition to a property in the Red River Hills in the south end of Reindeer Lake.

Recent drifting on the 525-foot level of Robb-Montbray is said to have disclosed some high grade ore. Directors are now visiting the property and are said to be well pleased with recent development work.

Strike at Sudbury Lode Mines Regarded as Important

An important surface strike has been made near the north end of Sudbury Lode property near Ross Lake. On the property which covers the west end of the Sudbury Basin, a vein 20 feet wide, with length not yet determined was recently uncovered. Impressive surface samples, with lead the predominating mineral, have been brought down to Toronto.

The Financial News Bureau was informed that as the trench across the vein deepens the ore is increasing in richness. A test pit is to be put down to a depth of 15 feet and further stripping along the length of the vein is to be done immediately.

A gang of men are now busy stripping this new find, working independently of men who have been engaged on the main showing on the southwest corner of the property which consists of 2,360 acres, and is recorded as the third largest group in the Basin, with Treadwell-Yukon and Sudbury Basin holding down first and second positions.

Sudbury Lode's property extends north and south at the west end of the Basin for 3 miles, while the property swings at right angles to the east on the south and extends 2½ miles in that direction, a section being directly south of where Sudbury Basin is understood to have made sensational finds within the past two months.

On the Lode's main discovery at the southwest corner, diamond drill hole No. 1 cut the contact at 500 foot depth, though apparently having undershot the ore body. No. 2 hole is now being sunk in the side of a fairly steep hill at an angle of 30 degrees, and in a cross-section is expected to cut ore at around 450 feet.

Kirkland Lake Operations Reported At Interesting Stage

Although official confirmation of the report that the Federal Kirkland had cut a 12 foot vein carrying $8 values on the 400 foot level is yet lacking, the Financial News Bureau is assured that the company is at an interesting stake where news may be expected any moment. Upon receipt of the report the head office of the Federal Kirkland in Toronto immediately despatched an engineer to look over the property and report on development.

The property, north of the Sylvanite and the Tough Oakes Burnside is in a way testing out the "north break" theory of the camp. According to calculations the workings are now close to the point where the vein is thought to be. Thus it is seen that the report is not out of place and more attention was given it than has been accorded the rank and file of the usual public service reported."

Four levels have been established at this property—200, 400, 550 and 700—but lateral work was centred on the lower horizon. At the 200-foot level, which was part of the old workings before being taken over by the present management, some drifting and crosscutting was done on the vein on which the shaft was sunk.

Several strikes have been reported in recent weeks, the latest being the news of the cutting of the vein on the 700-foot level.

John E. Day, K. C., a director of the Coniaurum Mines, Limited, is president of the company. The property consists of 300 acres, situated on an 8,000 foot break and paralleling the break upon which the producing mines Lake Shore, Teck and Wright-Hargreaves are situated.

News From the Mines

Through
Selloway, Mills & Company

Jackson Manion

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—It is officially reported that this company in the face of the drift on the 250 foot level encountered 8 feet of $28 ore approximately 57 feet south of the shaft. It is on this vein at the 250 foot level that drifting operations are being concentrated. In the crosscut on the same level there was recently located 17 feet of $16 ore and a further 11 feet assaying $21.96.

Noranda

The sharp decline in this issue yesterday may be attributed to New York selling, probably influenced by a report in the Wall Street Journal which says in part: "At Noranda the development is too meagre in the new find to enable any such increase in value to be shown. Any valuation for Noranda shares is therefore at this time highly speculative." It is our opinion that this writer is not very well posted on his subject, or he would readily see that indicated ore in the "H" ore body alone almost fully warrants the present selling price of this issue.

Robb-Montbray

Recent drifting on the 25 foot level of Robb Montbray has disclosed some quite high grade pockets of ore. Good values are also being had where the gold is associated with tell urides. The directors are now visiting the property and are said to be exceptionally well pleased with recent development work.

Wright-Hargreaves

This company have already drifted 150 feet on the easterly extension of the north vein at the 1,350 foot level. This is an excellent grade ore running approximately $11 to the ton. Both the shafts are now completed to the 2,000 foot level, and will be conditioned to that depth within the course of a few days. Crosscuts will then be commenced simultaneously to connect both shafts. Following this, drifts will be started both east and west on each of the two veins which are about 500 feet apart. During the sinking of the north shaft a high grade vein, believed to be the north vein entered the shaft at the 1,975 foot horizon. Only a part of the vein came in, but it was of splendid grade showing considerable visible gold.

Mill heads are being maintained at a higher rate than was the case during the first part of this year, and tonnage is being kept at from 700 to 750 tons a day. Conditions at the Wright-Hargreaves are very much improved over what they were a few months ago.

Premier

The high grade shoot opened up some three weeks ago to the south of the main ore sone has been proven to be 70 feet long, 10 feet wide and about 60 feet deep, averaging around $100 per ton. No ore has been found so far in the No. 6, or bottom tunnel. Above this, however, there is 450,000 tons of $15 ore broken in the stopes, and apparently sufficient ore yet to be mined to maintain present production of 800 tons per day for many years to come. It seems reasonable to suppose that with their mill and mining equipment on the ground, within easy reach of a number of undeveloped and partially developed properties, some of these will be acquired in addition to those properties over which control has already been acquired, and that Premier will still be a going concern twenty years hence.

Vipond

The strength displayed in Vipond during thep ast two days may be attributed to a report from Timmins that is blasting the vein at the 700 foot level a width of 17 feet was disclosed and previously reported values of $8.50 over drift width are said to have considerably increased.

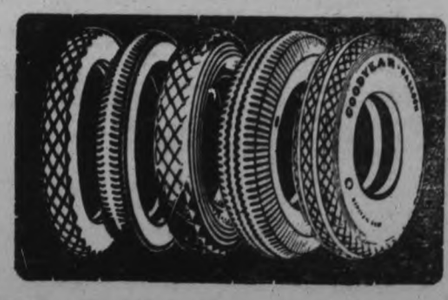
Now Everyone can have the Tires he wants



FOR a couple of years some car owners had to get along with short-mileage, troublesome tires.

Now it's altogether different. Bigger sales have brought Goodyear Tires down to where everyone can afford to buy them.

And, of course, it's admitted that Goodyears are far and away the best buy on the market, especially when they can be bought at a price as low as you were asked to pay for "cheap" tires.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

NONE OF STARTERS COMPLETE 15 MILES

could do if water conditions were at all favorable .Ernst Vierkoetter, who raced for 21 miles a year ago, and who greeted his stand of spectators at the end with an airy wave of the arm, was forced from the water at approximately twelve miles, after he had been in the water for seven and three-quarter hours and had been reduced to a state of complete collapse. At the end of his grind, the German could barely raise an arm above the water. Georges Michel, who remained in the water for upwards of fifteen hours in the same affair of 1927, was the last to drop out after being in the lake from eleven in the forenoon until ten-fifteen at night. Erickson passed out at the end of his third lap, after being in the water for slightly more than six hours; and he is the man who lasted for nineteen hours a year ago.

That tells the story of the handicap which the worlds best swimmers faced in their struggle against Lake Ontario.

Some Money To Be Paid.

Until a meeting of the Aquatic committee of the Canadian National Exhibition is held to-day nothing will be decided with regard to the big unfinished Wrigley Marathon of yesterady.

At this meeting it will be determined who, if anybody, won the Marathon. The question as to the distribution of prize money will be settled. Whether it will be given out in toto or in part is a matter to come before the committee. If another Marathon will be held, along the same or modified lines, is also one of the many "ifs" to be settled at this momentous caucus. All Elwood Hughes, when seen late last night, would say: "It was wonderful, but cold."

Lakeshore, Toronto, Ont., Sept. 6. —Canadian Press. — Ernst Vierkotter, of Cologne, Germany, was pulled out of the water after covering twelve miles of the Wrigley fifteen mile swimming marathon at 6.42 p.m., last evening, when he was about two miles ahead of Georges Michel, the Paris baker, who automatically became the leader.

Vierkotter was too exhausted to move as he was held up by a rope.

His eyes closed, and he was apparently unconscious. It took three boats to hold him before he was hauled on board the Red Cross boat.

As he lay prone in the boat blankets were piled on the 1927 21 mile champion and he was rushed to the National Yacht Club, the marathon hospital. "The water was just too cold," his trainer said.

Vierkoetter's surrender to the elements was followed by the waving of the white flag by the trainers of Louis I. Mathias of, Long Island, N. Y., who was in third place a lap behind Vierkoetter. This left only Michel, who was second last year, in the water to battle the frigid waters of Lake Ontario for the $25,000 purse.

It seemed hardly likely that Michel, who was completing his fourth lap when Vierkoetter and Mathias were forced out, would be able to continue much longer.

Michel showed signs of distress shortly after he started the fourth lap and kept on going only after much coaxing by his trainers, who shouted words of encouragement in French and gave him a stimulant. Thereafter he moved very slowly, at times merely floating and unable to move his arms sufficiently to push him forward.

Vierkoetter was the third leader to be rendered hors de combat by the cold water. Norman Ross of Chicago, who led for the first five miles, was compelled to quit when George Young of Toronto, overtook him at the five mile buoy, after holding the lead for a mile and a half. Young's trainer wave dthe distress signal and the Catalina channel champion was hauled out of the water.

Succeeded Young.

Vierkoetter succeeded Young as leader and led the field, which had then diminished to a baker's dozen, for about 5½ miles, before he too quit.

Michel is the only survivor of 199 starters. Lottie Moore Schoommel, long distance swimmer of New York, was in Michel's boat urging him onward, but he was barely moving.

Given Reception.

Vierkoetter was given a tremendous reception by the large crowd at the hospital when enveloped in blankets he was bundled on to a cot and given medical attention. The paralizing cold had proved too much for his will, but despite his defeat he was able to acknowledge the sympathetic and encouraging cheers of those who gathered around him.

While masseuers worked on his body he was able to take hot nourishment, Mathias followed the Teuton to the hospital. He rapidly responded to stimulants.

Despite the fact that only one swimmer remained on the course, thousands lined the water front, and evidenced as much interest as though a neck and neck race was being fought. Michel plodding through the water, 28 strokes a minute, was using the sidestroke as he started down inside the breakwater to the deafening cheers of those who lined the bank.

The sun was setting and the air was becoming decidedly chilly. The Frenchman had still about five miles to go and the opinion was widely held that he would be unable to finish.

"It's cold," yelled Michel to his trainer as the latter stood up in the boat waving a flag, and shouting encouragingly. It was the Frenchman's first admission concerning the chilliness of the water.

OBITUARY

JAMES MOONEY.

(Examiner Correspondence).

ROSENEATH, Sept. 6.—The remains of the late James Mooney was laid to rest in the Roman Catholic Cemetery at Warkworth on Wednesday morning, and was largely attended.

In seemingly the best of health until a few moments prior to his death, the late James Mooney, aged 70 years, was stricken with heart failure, and passed away before medical aid reached him.

Deceased was a very highly respected gentleman.

The funeral proceeded from the residence of his brother-in-law, John Wilson, to Burnley Roman Catholic Church for Mass, conducted by Father Ferguson, who delivered a message of comfort and cheer to those in sorrow. Mr. Mooney's death being the last member of his family, he leaves no near relatives.

WILLIAM BOYD.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MARMORA, Sept. 6.—A life marked for nigh half its length with physical infirmity was closed on Monday as William Boyd, highly respected citizen of Marmora, passed away in his sixty-third year. Deceased was born in Belmont Township the son of George and Matilda Boyd, pioneer settlers. His mother's maiden name was Finkle. As a young man, the late Mr. Boyd followed the mining occupation at Cordova. About thirty years ago, following the sinking of a well upon his property, he was stricken with a form of paralysis, which compelled him to use a cane in getting around. For a number of years, though in this plight, he cheerfully labored for the Pearce Company, showing wonderful spirit and making light of his affliction, while for the past three years he was the popular mail driver of Marmora, R.R. No. 3. He was a life-long Conservative, and was a member of the Orange Order for a number of years. He leaves a widow and two children, Carl and Flossie, to mourn his loss, besides which he is survived by one brother, Isaiah of Campbellford and three sisters, Mrs. R. Woods of Belleville, Mrs. J. Doupe of Trent River and Mrs. C. Duncalfe of Campbellford. The funeral service was conducted at the Marmora United Church on Wednesday afternoon, the officiating minister being the Rev. Adamson of Eldorado.

the massed bands and pipers flanked by torch bearers created a great deal of enthusiasm. There were some forty pipers on parade. The massed bands under W. J. Christmas were composed of over eighty-five pieces.

The boxing bouts were of great interest and created a lot of enthusiasm. The first contest was between Sergeant Walker of the Frontenac Regiment and Private Hardman of the Durham Regiment, while the second bout was between Private Myatt of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and Private Stevenson of the Frontenac Regiment.

All four men were finished boxers and the bouts were well contested, the judges feeling in each case that any decision under the conditions in which the bouts were held would be unfair.

Mr. Boyce was also a keen sportsman and among the happiest days of his life were those spent in hunting, fishing and trapping. He has been a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, and lives with his daughter, Mrs. H. A. Jobe, at the Park street address. Another daughter, Mrs. Jennie Leaney, resides in Toronto, while five members of the family of seven have passed away. Mr. Boyce had married a Peterborough girl by the name of Margaret Stutt, who died about five years ago.

Moderation his Keynote.

Moderation has always been the keynote of the old man's life, for he smoked moderately, never drank to excess and has always partaken of good wholesome food. Even yet he takes his three meals a day and a remarkably strong constitution has withstood to a remarkable degree his lengthy illness.

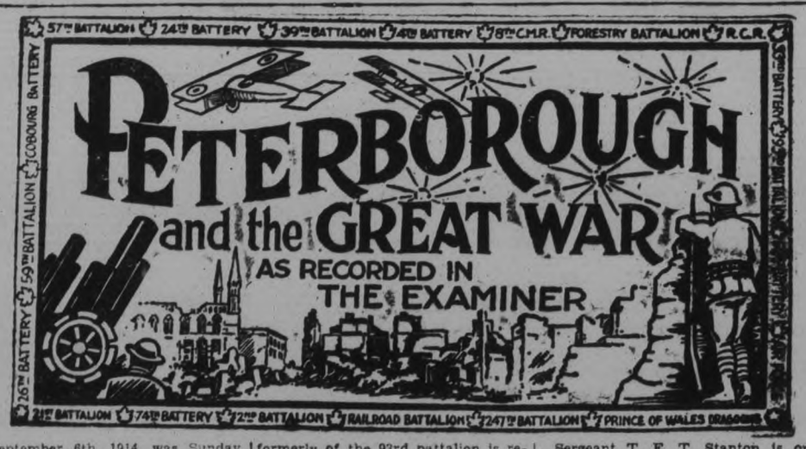
Interesting Reading for All the Family



September 6th, 1914, was Sunday.

September 6th, 1915, was Labor Day.

September 6th, 1916, no paper.

SEPTEMBER 6, 1917.

Peterborough men will reinforce famous battalions. Peterborough men called into service under the draft scheme will eventually be sent to reinforce the 2nd and 21st Eastern Ontario battalions and probably the 4th and 5th C.M.R., in which many Peterborough men have already served. They will probably receive their preliminary training in Kingston, then in England before being drafted to France.

To-day's casualties are:

Lance-Corporal K. H. MacKenzie is reported wounded. He was formerly of the 93rd and boarded at 212 Aylmer street while in Peterborough.

Private F. E. Johnson of the Sportsmen's battalion, a brother of Arthur Johnson, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, has been gassed.

Vice President Fred Long, Treasurer Peter Victor and Comrade Tom Baxter of the Great War Veterans of Peterborough went to Lindsay to organize a branch there.

Sergeant T. E. T. Stanton is on the medical staff at the Whitby Convalescent Hospital.

The G.W.V.A. wants war souvenirs to make its exhibit a success.

Total casualties since August 25th are 8,100.

Sergeant A. C. Cole has been reported killed in action. He was well known in Peterborough and Millbrook and a member of the Millbrook unit of the 247th Battalion.

The Business Girls Club give $100.00 to the Red Cross.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

You say, no matter how they taste,
You just can't let things go to waste,
And find cold pork is more delicious,
A day like this, than hotter dishes.
The things you eat because you ought
You find are better than you thought.
Yes, many a virtue is detected
Because no virtues you expected.

Now, all good cooks philosophize,
And this they learn, for cooks are wise:
That discontent is just a matter
Of wanting chicken on life's platter.
We don't like this or that or such
Because we all expect too much.
If anything would quite content us,
We'd be surprised at what God sent us.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1928.

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

Although astrologers find this rather an unimportant day in planetary direction, the rule is adverse.

All the influences appear to be destructive rather than constructive, and it is wise to be on the guard against despondent and discouraged attitudes of mind.

Under this rule suicides increase and crimes of violence are more numerous than usual.

Those who read the stars find little promise of improvement in the records concerning vice and crimes of many sorts, but they do see in the distant future the most sweeping reforms.

It is well to watch the temper through this day in which it is supposed to be easy to lose self control. Women may be irritable and disinclined to smile at their husband's thrice-told tales.

A London astrologer says that September from now on may be most unfortunate for the world in general, making slaughter, war and an invasion ofterritory.

Roumania, Russia, Bulgaria and Turkey are subject to the most malefic aspects that may contribute to new chapters of sadness for the planet Earth, the seers announce.

There is a good sign for those who deal in dry goods or who manufacture them, for they will profit by new modes, if the stars are rightly read.

Under this rule men may be exceedingly wary of feminine attractions, but nevertheless exceedingly susceptible.

There will be many autumn marriages and the birthrate will increase, the seers predict.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid all financial risks in the coming year, which will bring temptation to speculate by the advice of friends or relatives. Many of these subjects of Virgo care too much for money and position.

Children born on this day probably will have ability in more than one line of effort. The subjects of this sign are usually good students and many have musical talent.

The Planter of the Tree

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

SALLY SINGFIELD, dancer at the Faun, a night club.

PHILIP SANDERSON, rich young man of wealth who early one morning, when drunk, runs over Sally, badly injuring her. Sanderson loves Sally.

SOMETIMES, Sanderson's dog.

MRS. KIFF, his landlady.

Josh Akers, hearing of Sally's probably permanent injury, says he is through with her, and Sanderson assumes her care. He gets a cottage in the country for her and Mrs. Kiff. At first Sally hates it, and is heartless to Sanderson—even telling him she is glad when Sometimes is injured by an automobile. But gradually she becomes somewhat reconciled, and even looks more kindly on Sanderson's love for her.

XIX—SALLY AS COMFORTER

Sally lay motionless, but her own face was wet with tears, and presently she said in a choked voice:

"Philip, please put your arms round me and let us cry together if we've got to cry at all."

"You're laughing at me."

"I'm not. Come here and see for yourself."

Then suddenly he broke down. He put his arms gently round her helpless little body, lifting her till she lay against his shoulder, then he hid his face against the bright wings of her hair.

"I'm so unhappy, Sally."

He was like a boy; she had never dreamed that he could be so young or so pathetic, but the stifled appeal woke up what was best in her, and she raised her arms and put them round his neck, holding him fast.

"Don't be unhappy. Sometimes will get well; I'm sure he will. Tell me all about it."

"It was my fault—all my fault again, you see, just as it was with you. I took him to the club. I suppose I had more to drink than I should have done, and, coming out, for the first time in my life I forgot him. I suppose he was asleep—never heard me go——" It seemed so hard for him to tell the story. "I was halfway down the street before I missed him. I went back. He was in the middle of the road, looking for me. Like a damned fool I whistled, and you know his way—he dashed across the street to get at me, and a car—not the driver's fault—just caught him and knocked him down—went over his hind quarters——"

He broke off, for a moment unable to control his voice, then he went on again with an effort:

"I picked him up—he didn't seem in much pain—and I took him home in a taxi. I got a vet. to come and look at him. He's got internal injuries. I suppose I'm a fool—I know you think I am. I know the dog's only a mongrel, but—damn it all, when a chap's got nothing else, damn it, you must care about something!"

She was unconscious of speaking the words till they were out.

"You!" Sanderson would have put her away from him, but she resisted.

"Yes, me," she insisted tremulously. "I know I'm hateful—common and selfish—not a bit the sort of girl you ought to know——"

"Rubbish! Don't say such things."

"It's true. You're a gentleman, and I—well, I'd kill anyone for saying I'm not a lady, but I know I'm not. You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear," she added with bitter cynicism. "But I'll try to be better—nicer to you—more grateful, Philip. After all"— she was crying again now, her face turned against his shoulder—"I've got nobody but you, have I?"

"You've got me always—for ever. If you could just love me a little, Sally——"

"I do, in a way—but not the way you want, perhaps. But I'll try, I'll be ever so nice to you. I have improved just a little since we came here, don't you think?" she questioned eagerly. "And perhaps if the vicar comes to tea more often—he will if I ask him——"

Sanderson laughed gruffly.

"You silly kid!"

"He's kind. He's the sort of man who understands things," Sally insisted with unusual wisdom. "He'll help me to improve, I know."

"I don't want his interference. I can look after you myself," Sanderson broke in jealously.

Sally laughed contentedly.

"As long as you don't get fed-up!" she submitted, half in fun, half seriously. It was surprising how happy she felt. The clasp of Sanderson's arms was so strong and yet so tender, they were like a sure shield between her and life.

"And where is Sometimes now, then?" she asked after a moment.

"I had to leave him at the vet.'s, I stayed with him all night."

Philip's voice had a note of pain again, and he turned his face away.

"You left him for me?" Sally asked slowly.

"I'm glad now that I did," he answered.

Sally tried to draw away from him. "Why don't you bring him down here?" she asked eagerly. "He'd be much happier here with you, and the country would do him good." She laughed like a child. "He could ride beside me in the chair when you take me out. Oh, Philip, please—please bring him here!"

"We'll see to-morrow."

But she would not have that.

"No, to-night—go at once," she insisted. "I shall be quite all right. You drive so fast. You'll be back in London in less than two hours, and then to-morrow you can come back again and bring him with you."

Philip hesitated.

"If he's alive," he said with an effort.

"Oh, but is he so ill?" Sally cried in dismay. "Then if he is, the sooner you go back to him the better." She tried to push him from her. "Go at once!" she commanded. "How can you waste the time? Go at once, Philip!"

"Are you so anxious to be rid of me?" he demanded.

"Of course I am." Sally was quite enjoying herself.

She had just discovered that the best way to keep a man with you was to tell him to go before he wished to go.

"You be off at once," she ordered. "I'm the mistress of this house!"

Philip laughed, but there was a note of relief in his voice.

"Well, if I must obey—Sally, will you kiss me?"

"If you want me to."

"If you want to!"

"Stoop down, then!"

Sanderson bent his head, and their lips met in the first real kiss Sally had ever given him.

"There, now! Are you happier?" she whispered.

"Much, much happier."

"And I shall expect you early to-morrow."

"If Sometimes is alive—or fit to bring."

"He will be fit to bring," Sally insisted.

It was a change for her to be the one to inspire hope and courage; hitherto she had spent her life demanding it from others. She felt happier than she had felt for months when Sanderson had gone, and presently she heard him starting up the car at the garden gate.

A moment later, and he was speeding away down the road just as Mrs. Kiff came bustling in, full of anxiety and importance.

"Has Mr. Sanderson gone?" she demanded.

"Yes," said Sally, in a muffled voice from her pillows.

"There now, what did I say?" Mrs. Kiff demanded excitedly. "I knew as you'd try 'is patience once too often. Gone—and he'll never come back no more, from what I know of men." She bent over Sally through the darkness, and shook her work-roughened fist in the girl's face.

"Oh, you little fool, you!" she said.

Sally giggled.

"The guards never retire!" was her only retort.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Every-days Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S HAT

"Where is Uncle Wiggily?" asked the Squiggle Bug.

"He has gone to the store to get a bag of rice so I can make a pudding for Baby Bunty who is sick," answered Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"He is a long time away," spoke Mrs. Longears looking at the clock. She was beginning to get worried about her rabbit husband. "I hope nothing has happened to him," she said.

"I'll go take a look," offered the Squiggle Bug.

"But how can you?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper. "You have a lame wing."

"It is better now," said Squiggler. The Bug with red spots on its wings had been staying in Uncle Wiggily's bungalow until it could find a new home. For the Squiggle Bug's house on top of the cattail plant had burned.

"Well, be careful," begged Nurse Jane as the Squiggle Bug flew out of the hollow stump. "And if Uncle Wiggily is in trouble you had better call the Police Dog."

"I will help him myself," buzzed the Squiggle Bug. "Uncle Wiggily was kind and helped me and now, if I see him in trouble with his bag of rice, I'll help him." Which was very brave and noble of the little Squiggle Bug, I think.

Truly enough Uncle Wiggily was in trouble. Coming from the store the Goofie had tried to catch the rabbit gentleman. But the bunny jumped out of the way of the Goofie's long sharp claws, which, however, tore a hole in the bag of rice. And hopping home, Uncle Wiggily looked back to see the white grains scattered all along the path.

While Uncle Wiggily was picking up the scattered rice, and very slow work it was, the Goofie saw what was going on and said:

"I'll run and get the Fox and together we can catch that rabbit while he is picking up the rice."

Now about this time along flew the Squiggle Bug who had left the bungalow to look for Uncle Wiggily and when the Bug saw its rabbit friend bending over and stooping down, the Squiggler buzzed:

"Poor Uncle Wiggily! He has the rheumatism so badly that he can't straighten up and that is why he is late getting home."

"Oh, no, that isn't the reason," said Mr. Longears who heard what the Bug said. "The reason I stoop over is to pick up all these grains of rice that spilled from my bag. But it is such slow work!"

"No wonder!" cried the Squiggler. "You must let me help. And I will call some friends of mine who will also help!" So the Squiggler called: "Ho bugs and ants and birds who love Uncle Wiggily! Come and help him gather the scattered rice!" When the Fox and Goofie heard this they were frightened and ran away. So they didn't get the bunny.

In a short time about a million other bugs, ants and birds came flocking around and they helped the Squiggler pick up all the grains of rice for Uncle Wiggily so he could take them to Nurse Jane, who would make the rice pudding to help Baby Bunty get well.

But when the rabbit put back into the bag the grains of rice the million birds, bugs and ants helped him gather off the ground, lo and behold, the rice all ran out again! For the Goofie's long, sharp claws had torn a large hole in the bag.

"Dear me!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "This will never do! I am as badly off as before. How can I carry the rice in a torn bag?"

"Why don't you use your hat?" asked the Squiggle Bug.

"What hat?" asked the rabbit.

"The one on your head," buzzed the Bug. "Take off your hat and put the rice in that. Your hat has no hole in."

"Yes it has," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Where?" asked the Bug.

"In the place where I put my head!" chuckled the rabbit. "If my hat didn't have a hole in I couldn't put it on."

"Oh, well, turn the hole upside down and your hat will hold rice," said the Bug. And, truly enough, when all the rice was gathered and put in the rabbit's upside down hat, no more spilled out. Thanking the bugs, ants and birds, Mr. Longears hopped home with the rice, Nurse Jane made the pudding and Baby Bunty was soon well again.

PICKUP LUNCH

Bits of cold meat, an egg or two,
For almost anything will do
For pickup lunch. A last night's salad,
Looking a little pale and pallid,
Some crumbling remnants of a cake,
Or pie that someone wouldn't take,
That's pickup lunch—just things left over
Too poor to serve, too good for Rover.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

THE season is advancing now when many parties will be given, and again the anxiety when you are serving jelly and you haven't enough individual molds.

• • • • •

A very splendid idea was given me a few days ago. One of this city's prominent hostesses asked me this question, after I had related my trouble in getting enough molds of similar size and shape. "Did you ever use waxed paper cups for jelly molds?"

• • • • • • •

Most certainly I had not. Very often one would like to serve some sort of jellied salad or desert at a party, but this is rather inconvenient if you haven't enough molds of similar sort.

• • • • • • •

The small-sized cups that are very often used in serving biscuit tortoni and other frozen deserts may be used if you want to use the molded jelly for refreshments.

• • • • • • •

The little cups are moistened before the jelly is put into them. Put these in the refrigerator without letting them actually touch the ice. Moisture from the ice might be soaked up by the outside of the paper cups.

• • • • • • •

Have you ever tried grated cheese on salad? Use yellow cheese dry enough to be grated and then after you have added a little mayonnaise to the salad, sprinkle the cheese lightly on top or pass in a little dish with mayonnaise. It is especially good with a salad from cold cauliflower.

• • • • • • •

The words "labor-saving" have a fascination of their own for the busy housewife. One is not surprised to find that such devices are being continually introduced into the home as aids in cooking and cleaning, and from time to time, many of these have been mentioned in this column, and I wonder how many readers have taken advantage of those mentioned in helping them.

• • • • • • •

Next to a good stove, something which is very desirable is a kitchen cabinet equipped with shelves, etc., where various cooking ingredients can be kept altogether. By adopting such a plan tired feet are saved many steps.

• • • • • • •

A kitchen cabinet is a pleasing piece of furniture, and very often porcelain tables may be purchased with the cabinet. Such a table is very useful in making pastry; only those who have one really know their value. One does not need to scrub at these as is the case with wood.

• • • • • • •

"Two-in-one" and "three-in-one" saucepans and other kitchen tools, not only save labor but time and space. Those handy little peelers for apples and potatoes, if not exactly a labor-saving tool, is twice as quick as a knife; so also is the pastry cutter and decorator combined.

• • • • • • •

Scissors hold a very prominent place in the kitchen, too. Their value is proved in many ways, especially when they are used to cut the rind off bacon, which is otherwise hard to get off with a knife.

• • • • • • •

Certainly, within the last few years housekeeping has been simplified in a thousand ways and of the many domestic inventions that help to make the art of home-making, there may be mentioned stainless cutlery that is not only hygienic but also saves energy by not having to be cleaned on a knife-board which in turn must be cleaned after using each time.

• • • • • • •

Pleated skirts are exceptionally popular with the young ladies in Peterborough. An excellent sports costume is made up of a pleated skirt with one of the fashionable sweaters which are being shown in many store windows at the present time.

• • • • • • •

Pleating is the most simple and practical method of turning a length of material into a separate skirt. Many shops are this summer offering lengths of material suitable for skirts already pleated and sewed to a narrow band to aid the dressmaker in completing a two-piece frock.

• • • • • • •

Sunburst pleats are used for modish separate skirts ready to wear which are of assorted striped plaids on light grounds and plain colors on white.

• • • • • • •

Always wring out table linen by hand. Otherwise, you will have creases that will be very difficult to iron out.

• • • • • • •

While at a social function recently, I noticed that evening shoes chosen and worn by smart Peterborough women, show greater simplicity than ever. Few of them choose slippers elegantly trimmed with motifs and sparkling buckles.

• • • • • • •

I wonder how many housewives in this city are contemplating getting new hangings for their windows. Very often these are bought without any attention being paid to whether they will harmonize with the wall paper and furniture in the room.

Figured hangings should be chosen only for rooms in which plain papers are used. Use plain colors for hangings when the wall papers are figured, and this will make a great improvement in the looks of the room.

• • • • • • •

This week's help consists of instructions and diagram for making the new undergarment known as a camiknicker or camibocker. It is a one-piece garment consisiting of knickers and a camisole, and is convenient for wear with street frock or suit. Te diagram pattern will be sent you if you will fill in the coupon and enclose a two cent stamp to cover postage.

MARION'S MAIL.

Dear Marion:

I enjoy your page very much, especially the Whatnot. It is almost the first thing I look at.

"Blue Eyes", Lakefield, was looking for something for a steel-top stove that got red.

I had a very good experience with what you call black ink, which you get at the hardware store. I put it on the stove by directions, and it is very good.

Yours truly,
MRS. M. P."

Thank you, Mrs. P., for your hint, which I am sure Blue Eyes will be glad to receive. And thank you, too, for your kindly words about the page. Write again.

"Dear Marion:

In nearly every other town I know of there is a band that is called the "Citizens' Band" or some such name. I think this city is away behind the times when it has not one.

Wouldn't it be a great thing for our boys if they had a chance to get a real musical training through some such organization? And in some places there are girls' bands too, too. I think it would be great if you would take this up and push it. We have piano education in the schools now—why not take up other instruments?

Yours sincerely,
BANDY."

That is a good idea "Bandy", and I think you will find it taken up very soon. It was simply marvellous to see so many small towns and villages with bands at Toronto Exhibition, competing for the prizes. Such organizations must help a lot in building civic spirit.

"Scotty", Mrs. L. H., and Mrs. J. H. (Indian River): Your enquiries have been received and will be answered as soon as possible.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1928

Good and evil planetary influences conflict today, according to astrology which reads in the stars many forbidding omens of ill luck.

There is an aspect of promise for those who work with their brains. The sway should be helpful to lawyers, teachers and writers.

Gradual crystallization of thought is indicated for this early autumn period when both men and women will form strong opinions.

New leaders are to arise in science, art and politics, before the end of the year which is to bring many surprises as the autumn merges into winter.

This is not a lucky day for constructive work of any sort and much that has been laboriously built may be torn down.

Both the material and the intellectual field may be affected by this position of the planets which has an iconoclastic effect.

It is wise to protect the mind against suspicion and pessimism while this configuration prevails, for the inhabitants of the Earth are progressing toward tremendous achievements, astrologers declare.

Under this planetary government peace plans will flourish, but there is to be much bloodshed in distant lands as well as one not far off.

This is a fairly favorable day for pushing small projects or personal plans, but it is not auspicious for launching large enterprises.

Those who till the land may be subject to discouragement and disappointment at this time when those who occupy places in the Sun will fail to comprehend pressing problems.

Storms and even earthquakes will mark the autumn, astrologers predict, as if they are reflections of the fermentation of public thought.

Mexico may suffer from a frightful ebullition of nature as well as form internal political troubles, it is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather a disturbed year, marked by changes and uncertainties. Men may find women friends of relatives especially helpful.

Children born under this sign should be accurate in all they do. These subjects of Virgo have a maximum of talent and energy. They succeed equally well as financiers or as artists.

Just a Joke

A REASON FOR IT.

"I wish they'd invent a new expression occasionally," said John as he perused the account of a recent wedding. "It's always the blushing bride."

"Well," replied Mrs. John "when you consider what sort of husband most girls have to marry you can't wonder at their blushing."

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The printed chiffon frock at the left shows the new bertha collar. The solid toned purple chiffon frock at the right has one of the new tiered side flounces.

Before the tremendous present vogue for the gown of printed fabric the feeling prevailed that plain colored materials were simpler to handle and safer to wear. But now I find among some women the feeling that plain materials are more difficult in every way. Morning, noon and night, indoors and out, in town and country they have worn fabrics of broken surface—stripes, checks, figures or tweeded effects—until as they stand in the dressmaker's fitting room trying on one of the new frocks of plain surface they almost gasp at their mirrored image.

There are, of course, plain colored materials among the new frocks and wraps and some women will prefer to choose them in preference to the figured materials—feeling that the broken surface has become over popular. But don't forget that many of the leading French dressmakers are using the figures quite as much among their autumn collections as they did six months ago.

Word comes to us from Paris that these patterned materials are everywhere extremely important.

Printed taffeta is stressed for evening frocks by Martial et Armand, Philippe et Gaston, Drecoll, and many others. There are new small-figured velvets unlike anything we have had before Worth, Doiret, Drecoll, Lanieff, use them extensively. There are new woolen materials with wide and narrow tweeded effects that have been chosen for street frocks and daytime wraps.

Lelong is one of the few of the prominent dressmakers who throws the weight of her influence in the balance with the plain unfigured materials—and even she shows some figures. Lelong's autumn collection is extremely interesting. Skirts even for street wear hang three inches below the knees, but she retains the fairly long waistline. And though her evening gowns have considerable fullness they maintain a straight silhouette with almost no flare.

Leafs Even Series With Royals In International

TORONTO BEATS MONTREAL 5-3

Win Puts Leafs Within Few Points of Two League Leaders.

RABBITT IS STAR.

Maple Leaf Stadium, Toronto, Toronto, September 6. — Toronto made it an even break on the series with Montreal by beating the Royals 5 to 3. Rabbitt's triple and theft on the plate brought in the winning run in the eighth. Another tally came over in the same frame but it was superfluous. Bedore's batting featured. He had four hits and fielded in splendid style. Thormahlen was touched up freely but went the route. Fisher improved as the game progressed keeping the invaders in subjection after the 6th. There will be two games with Rochester to-day.

ROCHESTER BACK ON TOP OF HEAP

Beats Bisons By Hitting Many Home Runs—Keys Break Even.

BUFFALO, Sept. 6.—Rochester won a tug-of-war baseball affair from the Bisons yesterday, 6 to 4, thus regaining first place in the league race. The Wings used the home-run tactics right back at the Bisons yesterday to win, Gelbert clubbing his nineteenth of the year over the left-field fence with two on bases in the fifth, and Southworth lofting another over the right-field ramparts in the same round. Manager Clymer of the Bisons used seventeen men in a vain effort to overhaul the Wings, but Herman Bell came to the rescue of McCracken when the home guards were threatening in the eighth and stopped them cold. Kauffman of the Wings hit safely in his twentieth consecutive game.

KEYS BREAK EVEN.

READING, Pa., Sept. 6. — Nell Dougherty's single in the seventh frame, pinch-hitting for Dalrymple, scored Lake with the run that enabled the Keys to take the second game 1 to 0, after losing the first to Baltimore here yesterday by a score of 6 to 2. Guy Cantrell allowed 11 hits in the opener, but kept them well scattered as his team-mates battered out 13 off Nick Harrison, Danny Clark's homer featuring the offensive. In the second tilt Eddie Lautenbacher and Chambers hooked up in a duel, the Key hurler earning the edge by holding the Birds to six blows, while Reading garnered nine.

NEWARK WINS.

NEWARK, Sept. 6.—The Bears defeated Jersey City here yesterday afternoon 9 to 3 and thereby won the series, 4 to 1. Vic Aldridge, recently obtained from the Giants, was on the mound and held the Cats safe practically throughout. On the other hand, Burleigh Horne, who opposed him, was hit hard.

In the seventh with the bases populated, Kingdon hit for the circuit. He was the third Bear to perform the sting this season. Malone and Jacobson contributed the fielding sensations.

YANKEES RETAIN TWO-GAME LEAD

Break Even With Senators in New York—Detroit Wallops White Sox.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The Yankees retained their two-game lead over the Athletics when they broke even with Washington in a double-header yesterday. The visitors took the first game 3 to 1, but the world's champions came back to bat out a victory in the second by a score of 8 to 3.

In the first game the Yankees lost for the second time within a week to Sam Jones, former New Yorker, who held three previous decisions over the Yankees.

"Lefty" Burke lasted only four innings against the New Yorkers, letting in six runs. Jim Weaver, Washington's six-foot six-inch recruit, finished the game and made a fair showing. Seven double plays were made in this game.

Detroit batsmen hit about everything tossed at them yesterday, crushing the White Sox 10 to 2 in their final series here this season. Five pitchers, Walsh, Adkins, Blankenship, Cox and Dugan, worked for the White Sox, but every member of the Tigers batted at least one hit except Gehringer.

The Tigers put the game on ice in the ninth inning when the first six men got on base. Stoner and Carroll of Detroit limited Chicago to eight hits, only one of which was for extra bases.

BOSTON TAKES DOUBLE HEADER

Giants Gain Half Game By Winning While Cardinals Rest.

OTT HOMERS TWICE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. — Boston cleaned up both ends of a double-header with the Brooklyn Robins at Boston yesterday by scores of 9 to 2 and 7 to 1. It was Brooklyn's last appearance here, and gave the Braves an opportunity to better their record. The first encounter between the two teams was the only game the home team had won from the invaders from Flatbush up to that time.

Ed. Brandt, who pitched the first game of the season, went through the loose first game, allowing 13 hits, but keeping them well scattered. Bobby Smith held the flock to two hits in the second encounter, but both of them came in the fourth inning and deprived him of a shut out.

Blasting out 22 hits off Willoughby and Walsh, the Giants closed their Philadelphia visit by defeating the Pirates 14 to 3. Larry Benton won his twenty-third victory of the season, letting the Phils down with seven hits.

By winning yesterday the Giants gained half a game on the league-leading Cardinals, who were idle, and trail by four games. In the series with the Phillies, New York has won five out of six.

Mel Ott, rightfielder for the Giants, hit two home runs in the game, each coming with one on base. The first was hit in the fourth inning and the second in the ninth. O'Doul and Rees each got four of the Giants' 22 hits, while Jackson beat out three bunts. Klein got a homer for the Phils.

PRINCIPAL CONTESTANTS IN THIRD WRIGLEY MARATHON SWIM

All of the contestonts in yesterday's swim were forced out of the water by the cold. The principal among them are shown above. No. 1 is Norman Ross of Chicago, brilliant swimmer who did not complete here last year. No. 2 is George Young, Toronto's hope, winner of the Catalina swim, who proved to be such a disappointment in the race last year. No. 3 is Ethel Hertle, who distinguished herself in this year's women's swim by winning the ten-mile event in remarkably fast time. No. 4 is Ernst Vierkoetter, winner last year. No. 5 is Wallace K. Mullin of Kansas City, who did well last year. No. 6 is Byron Summers, the "Flying Fish," was was another of last year's favorites to break down from the cold. No. 7 is the big South African who also swam last year, Herr Van Papenfus of South Africa and Hollywood, Calif. No. 8 is Lyle S. Hubbard, speedy swimmer, who holds several Port Dalhousie records. No. 9 is Myron Cox of Los Angeles, who was one of the American swimmers who remained in the water the longest time last year. He stayed for 14 hours, 15 minutes and was on the third lap when he quit. No. 10 is Mark Wheeler, the Los Angeles policeman. No. 11 is Joseph Le Draint of France, who trained in Montreal.

CAMPBELLFORD PLAYERS WIN

Miss Josephine Longmore Wins Ladies' Singles in Belleville Tourney.

WESTON IN RUNNING.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 6. — At least one winner in the Labor Day tournament in Belleville came from Campbellford and there is a possibility that there may also be a second from here. Miss Josephine Longmore succeeded in winning the ladies' singles against a field of nine starters and Clifford Weston is still in the running for the men's singles. The finals will be played this Saturday. On that day, Campbellford will meet Tweed in the Tummon cup finals at Belleville country club and the men's doubles between Tweed and Belleville will be replayed. The Tummon finals will be played on a sudden death basis and with the same list of events as in the Central Ontario Association.

Miss Longmore arrived at the top of the ladder by defeating Miss Rupert of Madoc 6-4, 6-2. She was then matched against Mrs. Dewart of Peterborough and won 6-0, 6-3. Her third opponent was Miss Brown of Tweed, whom she defeated 6-3, 6-2.

In the men's doubles, Weston of Campbellford defeated Dr. Dales of Tweed 6-0, 6-1. This gave him the right to oppose Armstrong of Belleville and Weston won his second round, 3-6, 6-3, and 6-1. This left him still opposed to Earl Allen of Kingston and this match will be played this Saturday afternoon at the country club.

In the men's doubles, the Campbellford players, B. H. Beatty and W. Kingston were not so fortunate. M. A. Neale and W. R. Strike of Bowmanville, put them out of the running in the first round by defeating Campbellford 5-7, 7-5 and 9-7.

In the ladies' doubles, Mrs. D. W. Douglas and Miss Jessie Weston defeated Miss Grant and Miss Haultain of Port Hope, 6-1, 6-0, in the first round. Their second opponents were Miss Graham and Miss Harris of Tweed and to these ladies the Campbellford players submitted to the score of 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 Tweed was then pitted against Peterborough and defeated Mrs Hewitt and Mrs Cranfield 6-2, 6-2, giving honours to Tweed

Baseball is practically over for the season and now we come to rugby. A meeting of the Peterborough Junior Rugby Association will be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night at 8 p.m. and all those who are in any way interested in this form of sport are cordially invited to attend. There is no age limit. Prospects for the coming season were never brighter and it is considered likely that teams will be entered from DeLaval, Lockworks or C.G.E., Collegiate old boys and Peterborough juniors. Directors of the league would play intermediate or junior rugby with any outside centres such as Oshawa, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Cobourg.

Riley and Hickey, bantam champions in the city league go up to Toronto to meet the St. Francis team, top-notchers for that city on Saturday. The return game will be played here on the following Saturday.

* * * * * * *

Raybestos will have to step lively in the series with Stouffville, the first game of which will be played at James Stevenson Park on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. Stouffville put out the Toronto entry and easily disposed of Penetang in two games, the scores of which were 10-0 and 8-2.

* * * * * * *

The advance notices on the Stouffville team indicates plenty of batting workouts in their games to date and should be in good shape to handle a tough assignment.

* * * * *

There will be no advance in the admission charge for the Stouffville-Raybestos game at the weekend, and the Raybestos management is looking for a big crowd. The Rays have done their part in providing good baseball throughout the summer, and they are entitled to receive the support of the fans as they dash onward to the Intermediate title.

Small Crowd At Labor Day Shoot Of Lakefield Rifle Association

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, September 6. — The regular Labor Day shoot of the Lakefield Rifle Association was held on Monday morning, with a rather smaller attendance than usual, and with poor weather conditions. The shooting was done at 200 and 250 yards quick firing and at 500 yards. Owing to the rain the 600 yards shoot was omitted. The following are the scores:

STOUFFVILLE TO MEET RAYS

Play Brakeliners Here in Opening Contest On Third Round.

ON SATURDAY.

Stouffville defeated Penetang yesterday by 8 to 2, making it two straight to win their second round Intermediate O.B.A.A. series and will come here on Saturday afternoon to meet Raybestos in the opening contest of the third round. The winner of this round moves into the finals.

In the west, Stratford is one game up on Leamington, 1927 champions, and the second game will be played at Stratford next Saturday. The round winner plays Niagara Falls, and the victor will represent the West in the finals.

Stouffville will bring a strong team, supported by highclass pitching. Manager Mather is a former resident of Peterborough.

The game will be played at James Stevenson Park at 3 o'clock. This move is necessary as Exhibition Park is being made ready for the Exhibition next week, and the playing field is not available.

Pig-Skin Stops Swim To Rescue Pet Dog

TORONTO, Sept. 6.—Pig-Skin Peters of Birdseye Centre, was taken out of the marathon swim yesterday afternoon in the most heroic of circumstances. He was doing well, and it looked as if he might survive the cold with Vierkoetter.

But Rusty, his dog-mascot, who was swimming with his master, suddenly got a cramp in his tail, and it looked as if he might drown. Without a second's hesitation, Pig-Skin stopped swimming and gave up all hope of victory and the $25,000 to rescue his dog.

That's the kind of a man Pig-Skin Peters is, and the crowd gave roaring cheers for his heroic sacrifice.

IN POLICE COURT

A Peterborough youth pleaded guilty this morning in police court to the charge of being intoxicated in a public place. He had no record and this was his first offence. He was fined $10.00 and $7.00 costs to be paid immediately or in default ten days' imprisonment at hard labor. His Worship in issuing the sentence warned the lad that he was charged with the lightest offence and it would have been much more serious if the charge had been, and if it had been proven in court, that he had liquor in his possession without a permit.

The boy asked for time to pay his fine but as the act will not allow this he will be kept in custody until the fine is paid

The second case was that of a youth from Monaghan, who was charged with having liquor in an illegal place. He was the one who obtained the liquor on his permit and caused the trouble. He was not intoxicated .He was fined $15.00 and $1.00 costs to be paid immediately, or in default 30 days at hard labor in jail. He also asked for three days to pay his fine, but has to be held until it is paid.

In issuing the sentence His Worship also explained to the youth in the way of a warning that if he had been charged with supplying liquor to a minor the offence would have been one of the most serious under the act and that there would be no option of a fine but the sentence would be a term of imprisonment. He also warned the youth that a second charge of a similar breach of the liquor control act under which he was charged would go harder with him.

This lad had his permit taken from him as a result of the charge.

KING'S SONS LEAVE FOR AFRICA TO-DAY

Will Visit Egypt and Then Go Hunting in Kenya.

LONDON, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press.)—The Prince of Wales and his handsome younger brother, the Duke of Gloucester, are sailing from Marseilles to-night to hunt for big game in Africa and also to spread Imperial good will. For days the two adventurous sons of King George have been busy packing for the trip, while the newspapers of London have been carrying accounts and pictures of the regions and the black people they will see. Sailing from Marseilles the Prince and his brother will go to Alexandria and then to Cairo and from there by motor to Osmanliya on the Suez canal. Here a British India steamer will embark them for Nombassa and there they will entrain for the interior of Kenya.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 96 per cent. and now it is sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you, or costs you nothing.

ETHEL'S MOTHER HAPPY

There was nobody at the third Wrigley marathon swim at Toronto any happier than Ethel Hertle's mother when the New York girl took the $10,000 first prize in the women's division of the big marathon. This picture shows Mrs. Hertle greeting her daughter at the finish of the 10-mile swim as she climbed from the water.

TOURIST PARTY ROBBED

Held up at revolver point by a lone bandit who stole eight dollars and a gold watch from them at 2.45 in the morning, Mrs. Frank Sutherland, her husband and daughter, American tourists seeing Canada, were ordered to keep quiet until dawn or they would be shot. The bandit took the key to their car, but did not touch the machine itself. The party borrowed $30 from another tourist to permit them getting back to their home in Castile, Wyoming county, New York.

LARGE MIDWAY HERE FOR FAIR

Greater Sheesley Shows Contain Many Novel Attractions This Year.

RIDES ARE NUMEROUS.

The big tents and red wagons, with all the din and glitter of the circus, are coming to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, opening next week. The Greater Sheesley Shows, known as one of the largest and most modern of outdoor amusement enterprises of the collective type, will arrive here on Monday for its, first showing at the Peterborough Exhibition.

The Sheesley Shows, headed by Capt. John M. Sheesley, one of America's best known showmen, have been playing engagements in Canada this season, including Montreal and Quebec, and will appear at Lindsay, Ont., following the Peterborough engagement. It is said by A. J. Linck, special agent, who is here in advance, that the show will present an immaculate appearance. The thirty special railroad cars are in orange and maroon, the big circus wagons in tartar red and yellow, with gaily colored banners, gold leaf wagon showfronts and myriad vari-colored lights.

Among the modern thrillers to be presented are the monster caterpillar, whizzing whip, Parker carriage Ferris wheel (an innovation here); Coney Island Flyer, giant carousal, known as the most beautiful and capacious on the road, and a veritable ball of fire by night; Fun-on-the-Farm (the latest in crazy houses); Through-the-Rapids, the great laugh-maker of all time, and ever popular with belles and beaux; Pepper Box Revue and Funland, the crystal Maze.

Featured among the tented attractions will be Sheesley's Famous Georgia Minstrels, and their jazzy band and orchestra and company of talented colored artists; Land of Wonders, with fifty varieties of freak animals, born when Nature was in prankish mood; Monkey Hippodrome with tiny simian race drivers propelling their autos on a big track; big circus sideshow with strange and curious people; world's war museum; Nelson's miniature horses; Francis-Marie, the double bodied baby; "Happy Jack" Eckert, world's prize fat man, and the Vampire and others. Then there is the thrilling autodrome, with Capt. E. E. Ketring and other daredevil riders on the "wall of death," with wild lions and a Canadian riding bear, and the Broadway Revue, miniature musical and plastic poses.

There are more than 500 prformers and animals in Captain Sheesley's big company, and ten acres of ground are required to properly display the attractions on the huge joy plaza.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Ester Ralston Plays New Role in 'Sawdust Paradise" at the Capitol To-night, Which Ranges Between Comedy and Drama—The Women's Marathon Swim, at the Toronto Exhibition An Added Attraction.

Ester Ralston's newest picture, "Sawdust Paradise," which opens at the Capitol to-day, shows glorious blonde in a new and altogether satisfying type of role.

As a dyed-in-the-wool ballyhoo girl with a cheap travelling street carnival, Miss Ralston plays a part that ranges between the light and broad comedy parts which have featured her previous starring roles, and real drama.

The serious moments of "The Sawdust Paradise," which is a miniature epic of its sort, bring forth vividly Miss Ralston's strength as a dramatic actress It is reported that Paramount plans to give more emphasis to drama in the star's future pictures.

The story has a well knit plot. It concerns Esther, in spangles and pink tights as the ballyhoo and spieler for the Six Diving Venuses; Reed Howes, her sweetheart who is a grifter operating one of the carnival's crooked concessions, and Hobart Bosworth, a he-man evangelist whose tabernacle, across the street from the carnival, houses only a handful of persons nightly.

Reed Howes is excellent in his role which is similar to that of the prize fighter in Clara Bow's "Rough House Rosie." Hobart Bosworth is splendid as the evangelist, a character which he never lets veer from the human Alan Roscoe and Mary Alden give characteristic strong performances.

First pictures of the women's marathon swim, taken at the Toronto Exhibition last week, will be shown as an added attraction.

AT THE REGENT.

Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

When Paramount determined upon the almost superhuman task of filming "Old Ironsides," glorious, romantic and historical tale of the early merchant marine and the frigate "Constitution," now playing at the Regent Theatre, it was with a full knowledge of the tremendous amount of effort and number of hardships that lay before it. From producing "The Covered Wagon," "The Ten Commandments," and other big pictures, it was realized long beforehand the stupendous task that awaited.

This realization, however, acted more as a stimulant than a deterrent. Despite all obstacles it was determined to make the production the greatest, most vital drama ever flashed upon the screen. Not only that but it was planned to present to the world the finest historical document of the early American Navy and merchant marine ever recorded upon celluloid.

To James Cruze, director of "The Covered Wagon," and "The Pony Express," fell the task of producing the photoplay. It was Cruze's plan to make the production the real achievement of his career. And he has!

"Put something besides Air in your tires"

COMMON-SENSE wants to be pumped into them too. Because they're filled is no guarantee that tires are fit for the road. They must be properly filled to the correct pressure for their size and load. Over that pressure, is uncomfortable — under it, is expensive.

If you want good mileage, come in here once a week! Let our tire man test the pressure—gauge it, not guess it. Let him examine the casing for flints, metal splinters and nail ends. Better ten minutes wait at the Dominion Tire Depot than half an hour's work on the roadside.

Eight Per Cent. Money Checks Price Advance

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (Canadian Press).—High money rates again blocked the path of speculators for the advance in to-day's stock market. Call money renewed unchanged at seven and a half per cent. but advanced to eight when banks called $25,000,000 in loans. Persistent selling of Radio, General Motors and some of the other recent favorites, in the face of advancing prices in other sections of the list, was attributed, in part, to fears of a large increase in Federal reserve brokers' loans after the close of the market.

Trading started off at a brisk pace as powerful pools absorbed blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares. More than a score of issues, including United States Steel Common, were lifted to new high records for the year on gains ranging from fractions to four points. Oils, which have been the only important laggards in the current bull market, attracted a large following. Texas Corporation, California Petroleum, Barns Dall, Warner Quinlan, and Tidewater Associated all moved into new high ground for the year.

Bullish demonstrations also were staged in a number of chain store, food, amusement and public utilities shares.

Nickel Shares Feature Otherwise Dull Session

TORONTO, Sept. 6 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of International Nickel and International Nickel Rights, trading this morning on the Toronto Stock Exchange was rather dull and scattered throughout the list. Prices remained mostly steady, although Nickel, after reaching 119, dropped to 116 7-8, closing at noon to-day with a loss of one point at 117. Nickel Rights, with the heaviest turnover of the session, were up ten at 5.60. Canada Dredge, with light trading, was up two at 51½, while Dredge Preferred was up three at 153. Cockshutt Plow was up a half at 29½, and Bell Telephone was up a half at 164. Brazilian Traction was off a half at 58, Goodyear off one at 157, and Canadian Canners Second Preferred off a half at 20.

The oils dominated the curb section. British American was a half lower, selling at 39½, while Imperial was up a half at 72½, McColl up ¾ at 30, and International Petroleum up ¼ at 39¼. Hiram Walker was in demand, selling at 60½, with a gain of one point.

Wheat Prices Lower At Opening To-day

CHICAGO, Sept. 6 (Canadian Press).—Lower wheat prices prevailed at the opening of the Chicago market to-day. Continuing the gradual downward trend that has characterized the market recently, wheat started unchanged to 3-8 cent below yesterday's finish. The Canadian crop movement was still a prime factor at Liverpool and weakness there softened prices here. Corn opened steady to a little easier at 1-8 cent higher to ¼ cent lower. Oats and provisions were steady.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 109 1-8; December 114. Corn, September 93; December 74 7-8. Oats, September 38 5-8; December 40½.

VISITS RELATIVES BY PLANE ROUTE

Cleveland Doctor Flies To Downeyville For Week End Holiday.

LINDSAY, Sept. 6.—(Special).—Dr. Joseph Carroll, of Cleveland, and son of the late Thomas Carroll, of Emily Township, visited his relatives via the air route during the week-end. He hopped off at Cleveland on Sunday afternoon and arrived by plane at Downeyville on Sunday evening. He landed at Fenelon Falls enroute for a short period, and made the flight without a mishap. He left for Cleveland on Monday, arriving home safely.

WEDDING BELLS

GILMOUR--ROGERS.
On Monday, September 3, the marriage was quietly solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart of Geraldine M. Rogers, and Sandford W. Gilmour. The Rev. Father Moloney performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Gilmour will reside in the city.

DRISCOLL—McMURRAY.
A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday morning in St. Joseph's church, Douro, when Mary Philomena, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. McMurray, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Frances Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Driscoll. The bride who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strain of the bridal march played by Miss Mabel Allen, looked charming in a gown of white satin with tight bodice and full scalloped skirt with a corsage of orange blossoms at the waist line. She wore a large picture hat of white silk mohair with large flower at the side, and white satin shoes and silk hose and gloves to match. She also wore the groom's gift, a three strand necklace of pearls, and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses.
Miss Anna McMurray, sister of the bride, made a very pretty bridesmaid, gowned in pastel green georgette in cape effect, and bandeau of pastel green tulle, with back velvet shoes and silver hose. She carried a bouquet of Columbia roses. Mr. Joseph Rice, cousin of the groom, was best man.
During the progress of the nuptial mass, Miss Stella Brady sang very sweetly Rosewig's "Ave Marie," and several other hymns. After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served to about 60 guests.
After a short honeymoon the young couple will reside in Detroit, Mich.

JENKINS—BLAKLEY.
At 24 Wellesley Street, Toronto, on Wednesday, August 29, at 6 p.m., Gertrude Ruby Mae, daughter of Mr. James Blakley of Warsaw and Cecil Alexander Jenkins, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jenkins, of Norwood, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. E. Crossley Hunter, B.A., performed the ceremony.
The bride was attired in a gown of chin-chin blue georgette, with silver lace and touches of ostrich. She wore a felt hat in matching shade, light grey hose and black satin pumps, with rhinestone trimming.
After the signing of the register the happy young couple left on a motor trip from Toronto to Corbetton, Mount Forest and other points, the bride travelling in a Prince of Wales navy blue tricotine coat. She carried a light grey French purse and wore an Isabella fox fur, the gift of the groom.
On their return trip they attended the Canadian National Exhibition. Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins will reside on the groom's farm near Cottesloe.

TOWNSLEY—GRAY.
The wedding took place quietly at Knox Manse on Wednesday, Sept. 5, of Florence Pearl, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Gray, of Peterborough, to W. J. Townsley, also of Peterborough. Miss Annie Townsley, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Vertle Reynolds, cousin of the bride, acted as groomsman.
The bride looked charming in a dress of white flat crepe and bridal veil with white shoes and stockings to match and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses, while the bridesmaid wore pink georgette with hat to match and white shoes and stockings and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.
After the ceremony a large number of guests assembled at the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding lunch was served. The house was prettily decorated in pink and white. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pin set with diamonds and to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links.
The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. After their return from their honeymoon, which is being spent in the States, they will reside in Peterborough.

SOANES—THOMPSON.
A quiet wedding took place at 7 o'clock this morning at Knox church manse, when Gladys Dale, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, Patterson street, was united in marriage to Stewart M. Soanes, of Peterborough, youngest son of Mrs. K. Soanes, and the late S. E. Soanes of Lindsay.
The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William McDonald, B. D.
The bride who wore a becoming gown of cocoa shade georgette and matching hose, navy coat with fur trimmings, and small hat of brown velvet. Her gloves were brown kid. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.
The register was signed by Mrs. Norman Crowe and Stanley Thompson.
Mr. and Mrs. Soanes left on the 7.35 train to spend a honeymoon in Toronto and Buffalo.

FERGUSON—THIRD
KINGSTON, Sept. 6.—The marriage is announced as having taken place on Tuesday of Mrs. Jean Third, widow of the late Dr. James Third, of this city to Augustus G. Ferguson, Montreal a well known financial man and a son of the late Sheriff Ferguson, of Frontenac county. The couple have left on a trip to the Pacific Coast and to Alaska and the Yukon. The bride was originally from Campbellford, her maiden name being Koch.

OBITUARY

PATRICK HICKEY
(Examiner Correspondence.)
DOWNEYVILLE, September 6. — The death occurred yesterday morning of Patrick Hickey, aged 55 Mr. Hickey, who lived with his mother a mile east of the village, was taken suddenly ill on Sunday while preparing to go to church. He regained consciousness and the last rites of the church were administered. He was stricken again on Sunday afternoon and again on Monday. He is survived by his mother, four sisters, Mrs. Patrick Meehan of Grand Rapids, Mich. Mrs. Robert Lynch of Toronto, Mrs. Timothy Carroll of Peterborough and Mrs. Patrick McAuliffe of Ennismore, and one brother, John, at home.
The funeral takes place to-morrow morning to St. Luke's church, and cemetery, with Requiem Mass at nine o'clock.

MRS. WILLIAM G. MONTGOMERY
The funeral took place on Saturday last of Mrs. William G. Montgomery, 557 Water street, interment being made at Gamebridge, Ont. Mrs. Montgomery was the younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Rennie, of Woodstock, and a niece of the late George and the Hon. Andrew Pattulo, of that city. She had lived in Peterborough for twenty years and enjoyed the esteem and regard of a large circle of friends in this city who will mourn her loss. Surviving relatives are her husband, William G. Montgomery, of the Trent Canal staff, one sister, Mrs. A. B. Gamble, of Hamilton, and two brothers, Thomas Rennie, of Detroit, Mich., and George Rennie, of San Francisco, Cal.

MRS. E. J. HOTSTON.
A life long resident of Peterborough, Viola Evelyn Palmer, beloved wife of Edward J. Hotston, died on Thursday, Sept. 6, in Peterborough, at the age of thirty-three years. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer, who survive their daughter, and with her husband mourn her loss.
The funeral will take place on Saturday, Sept. 8, from her late residence, 372 George street south, at 3 p.m. to Little Lake cemetery.

MINER HARVESTERS CAGED, DELEGATES SAY

HUGE AIR MAIL CHAIN TO SERVE TWO COUNTRIES

ONTARIO CITIES ARE INCLUDED IN BIG SYSTEM

Quebec Will Be Hub of System Serving Maritimes, New England and Ontario.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL.

Various Systems Link Together Making Transit Possible From Ocean To Ocean.

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 7 (Special to The Examiner).—A conference between General O'Ryan, president of the Colonial Airways, Ltd., and officers of the Canadian Trans-Continental Airways Ltd., in connection with the formation of a huge international air mail chain linking up Canada from east to west and the United States from the American border to the New England States, New York, and as far west as Detroit, was held here last night. General O'Ryan had flown to Quebec from Detroit especially for the meeting.

Quebec will be linked with Halifax, St. John, and other maritime cities in the east, with New York City and New England to the south, as well as Montreal, Ottawa, Albany, Buffalo, Detroit, and other intermediate cities to the west, according to the present plans. When the service is in operation, air mail and express packets will be carried, with the possibility of passengers being transported later on.

Many Connections.

In Montreal the mail from the east will be transferred to outgoing Montreal-Albany planes and Montreal-Toronto-Ottawa planes for flight to the south and west. The former flight, which is operated by the Colonial Airways Company under the direction of General O'Ryan, connects in Albany with other planes operated by the same company from Detroit, Buffalo, Schenectady, Syracuse, and other United States cities.

A flight is also operated from Albany to New York, Boston, and other great eastern cities and Canadian mail would also be transferred to these planes for flight to the American metropolis and other points.

On the other hand, mail from Halifax, St. John and Quebec destined for Western Canada and the United States' cities would be transferred from the Canadian Transcontinental Airways planes in Montreal to planes operated by the Canadian Airways Company for flight to Ottawa, Toronto, Kingston, Hamilton and other Ontario cities.

Toronto Important Point.

Toronto also figures in the International air mail chain, for the Colonial Airways operate a line between Albany, Buffalo and Toronto, thus rendering possible further changing of the mail which is consigned for western United States' cities. This link in itself is highly important in view of the fact that from Toronto the mail may be flown to Detroit and from there rushed to any point in the United States over the fast chain which crosses the southern republic.

In Toronto also the mail may be transferred to western mail planes for flight to Winnipeg and other Western Canadian cities. The potentialities of the service may be realized when it is considered that if necessary the mail from Quebec may be flown across the continent to San Francisco, Calif., and other West Coast cities.

WILL HAVE TENT.

George Street Co-Workers Class To Serve Lunches at Fair.

The Co-Workers' Bible Class of George Street United Church held a meeting in the Sunday School Hall yesterday afternoon. The president, Mrs. J. Spencer, occupied the chair and opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. B. M. Frederick, convenor of the Finance Committee, then took charge of the meeting, and arrangements were made for having a tent at the Peterborough Exhibition, where they will serve lunches as in former years. A strong committee was appointed to look after the arrangements.

Lodge's Red Socks Bother Scientists

GLASGOW, September 7. — Canadian Press. — The red socks worn by Sir Oliver Lodge at two full dress affairs of the British Association for the advancement of science, have caused many "Whys?" among the delegates, but thus far no one has had the temerity to put that question to Sir Oliver.

Two scientific view points have been used to consider the the subject. Those who have looked at the socks subjectively, say, "He must be color blind."

Those who have viewed them objectively have sighed, "Well, genius can get away with anything."

SAVE 12 MEN.

Run Small Boat Alongside Blazing Steamer—Big Ship Total Loss.

(Special to The Examiner.)

S. S. Marie, Ont., September 7. — Trapped on the blazing steamer India, 500 feet from the shore of East Mary Island, 12 miles from Little Current, on Tuesday night(the crew of 12 men miraculously escaped with their lives in a small gasoline boat attending a pulp wood raft near by.

At the risk of their own boat igniting and being blown to Smithereens, the men operating the small boat unhesitatingly drew alongside of the steamer and took off its crew when all other means of escape seemed blocked.

Starting under the boiler from an unknown cause, the flames spread rapidly over the 225 foot craft, making it impossible to launch the yawl boats.

Three vigorous attempts by William Seigman, the second engineer, of the Soo, to reach the boiler room to start the pumps, were in vain. In the last attempt he slashed his right arm badly on the pump throttle valve.

Arriving here yesterday on the Steamer Manitou from Little Current with a few members of his crew, Seigman, who has been in other wrecks, told his story.

He was working up forward with the oiler. The supper bell rang and he then stopped work. He was not gone more than three minutes when he heard a roar. Looking under the boiler room he saw the whole place ablaze.

The crew had just left the steamer when the forward end went under. An inspection yesterday revealed only a foot of the stem and a small section of the smoke stack above the water, which is 28 feet deep at that spot.

Built 28 years ago at Garden Island, near Kingston, the India, valued at $50,000 and owned by Captain Percy Ramsay and William Ramsay of the Soo, is now a total loss. The ship was in charge of Robert Wright, of Owen Sound.

HUMANE SOCIETY BEGINS MEETINGS

Junior Members Hold First Weekly Meeting, With 14 Present.

The first weekly meeting for the season was held by the Peterborough Junior Humane Society on Thursday in St. John's Parish Hall.

The President, Miss Freida Kilcher, presided.

The meeting opened with members singing "The Marching Song." The saying of the pledge followed this.

The roll call showed fourteen in attendance. "This could be greatly increased if the members would only all turn out" said Miss Kilcher.

The song "Ring the Bells of Mercy" was then sung. The treasurer's report followed. This showed a balance of $18.50.

The program for next week was then arranged. Miss Vera Kilcher presided at the piano.

FORMATION OF SUPER-CABINET CAUSES WORRY

Conservative Press Alarmed at Result of Labor Move.

SOCIALISTS MIGHT RULE.

Drift Toward Labor Strong in Britain During Late Years.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The suggested formation of a "super cabinet" within the Labor party consisting of representatives of the Socialist party the trade unions and co-operative trading organizations, as announced at the trades union congress, has alarmed the Conservative press, which suggests that if labor is returned to power in the next election, such a body would actually control the Labor government and be the virtual ruler of the country.

Consultative Committee

However, there is at present a national joint consultative committee engaged in linking together the various activities of labor bodies in Great Britain, but excluding the co-operative movement. It is now proposed that a grand council of labor be formed for the purpose of co-ordinating all activities, thus representing labor in its three aspects of consumer, producer and citizen.

Drift Toward Labor

Labor's present contention is that such a council ought to influence a future Labor government because it will be in touch with the full political, social and economic life of the majority of people in Britain, but on the other hand, the Conservatives say that such a body would most likely control labor in power in Downing street.

Noticeable in late years has been the rapid drift towards labor of the whole co-operative movement, which has enormously increased its business turnover since the war.

FLIERS COME DOWN OUTSIDE EDMONTON

Mail Plane Crew Unable To Proceed Because of Rain.

EDMONTON, Alta., September 7. —Canadian Press. — Struggling against stiff head winds and unable to see because of rain and smoke, Major A. E. Godfrey and Sergeant-Major Graham were forced to land here at 6.30 p.m., yesterday after completing the second jump of their Ottawa-Vancouver flight.

After leaving Lac Du Bonnet at 8 a.m., the two fliers completed a distance of more than 1400 miles, stopping for lunch and re-fuelling at Ladder Lake o.. the way.

RIVERS FLOODING SOUTHERN STATES

Flood Waters Menace Roads and Crops in North Carolina.

ATLANTA, Ga., September 7. — The rivers in Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina to-day, were mounting above their banks to wreak destruction to the highways and the crops. The worst conditions obtained probably in North Carolina, where hundreds of square miles of farm land were reported inundated, and thousands of bales of cotton damaged in the flooded warehouses.

INSPIRING ADDRESS GIVEN KIWANIANS BY A. H. CUTTLE

Speaker Stresses Fact That All Have Part in Building Country.

FOR BETTER OR WORSE.

Urges Members To Make Lives and City Grander and More Glorious.

"Living in a glorious land, let us live gloriously—in a grand city, let us make our lives and our city grander." Thus spoke A. H. Cuttle, Vice-President of the World's Sunday School Association, before the Peterborough Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting to-day. Citizenship, applying to the home, to industry, and to civic life might well have been the title of a remarkably fine discourse that was as unusual as it was profitable and at its conclusion Charles Lacheur moved a sincere vote of appreciation. To Jack Comstock had fallen the pleasing duty of introducing the man "who," he said, "had been instrumental in having the 1930 convention of the World's Sunday School Association, secured for Toronto."

Boost the Exhibition.

The booster at to-day's luncheon must have been travelling incognito—at any rate, President Joe John spoke in his behalf, urging the Kiwanians to get behind the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition one hundred per cent and to show this good will by turning out to luncheon at the Exhibition grounds next Friday at 12.15. Joe Wearing, W. E. Taylor and Harry Boyle held the prize tickets.

Whether it was or was not good advertising—opinions differ— Herb. McCannon stood up undismayed and "harmonica'ed" his way through two selections—"a sample," he said, "of what might be expected at the Made-in-Canada Fair Harmonica contest." The introduction of guests was a pleasant affair, Joe Wearing introducing his father-in-law, Dr. Campbell, of Grand Rapids, Mich, and Ed. Wood presenting his son Arthur.

Had Pictures Taken

True to the announcement made during the luncheon by Jack Craig, a photographer from the Roy Studio was on hand at the close of the meeting to take a photograph of the club for use in the Made-in-Canada fair publicity work. The north entrance to the Customs Department building yard was the chosen setting.

The Speaker.

Expressing a doubt regarding his ability as a speaker to live up to Jack Comstock's somewhat flattering introduction, Mr. Cuttle defined "elocution" as an English school boy had done—a method adopted in America for putting people to death. Then going to the popular fun magazine "Life" Mr. Cuttle told of a cartoon found in a recent issue in which the farmer, looking at a brood of pigs, had answered "yes, they are nice pigs" to the young woman beside him who had exclaimed at the beauty of the landscape, stretching far to the horizon.

"That cartoon might well have taken the title of the magazine, 'Life'," he declared, "for it revealed the two outbreaks—materialistic or something far beyond that is in the nature of a vision.

"We should also get something of the vision of the young lady, that of

Fly Your Flags For Fair Week

A good showing of flags is requested of the merchants of Peterborough for Fair Week. The directors hope that the storekeepers will put them out on Monday morning early and have them out all day every day of next week. Thus they will show visitors to the city their interest in the fair, and make the city look as if every citizen is behind the best Exhibition between Toronto and Ottawa.

WILL DISCUSS SEWER SERVICE

Committee From City Council Will Interview North Monaghan.

COUNCIL MEETS.

Over opposition by Aldermen Stocker, Phelan and McIntyre, who favored more drastic steps, a committee was appointed at a special meeting of the city council last night to interview the North Monaghan council to find out why the agreement for sewer services has not been signed. Mayor Denne, Ald. Hamilton and City Solicitor Wearing were named on the committee.

Ald. Stocker's contention was that the residents along the edge of the city have sponged off the city, getting city privileges for township taxes for years and will be content to do so for many years if some action is not taken. A mistake had been made in giving them city water in many cases, as this enabled the residents adjacent to the outfall sewers to make use of them. If the agreement is signed, he said, they will be wanting the capital cost wiped out at the end of the ten year term.

Mayor Denne was in favor of a policy of conciliation, rather than an ultimatum, and predicted that most of the area will be in the city before the ten years is up. By getting the agreement signed the city will be able to collect for this year.

Ald. Phelan charged that the township authorities have been dilatory in the matter. They have had several moiths to deal with the agreement, but have not done so, although the city had reduced the price to be charged.

The visit of the Honorable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, to the Exhibition next Thursday, will be taken advantage of by the council, which authorized Ald. Macdonald, chairman of the Reception committee, to arrange for a complimentary luncheon for the distinguished visitor.

Ald Cotton was authorized to have the new floors laid in the north section of the fire hall sanded and steel channels laid for the wheels of the trucks to prevent the chains from gouging out the floors in the winter time. The laying of the hardwood was done by the firemen.

WAS RELEASED FROM ST. JOHN SIX YEARS AGO

Doctor Says Real Name is McGrath and Malady Is Recurrent.

NEVER OVERSEAS.

New Liskeard Man Identifies Prisoner As Hotel Employee in North Country.

COBOURG, Ont., September 7 (Special to The Examiner). — The entire story of John H. Lachance, now in Cobourg Jail on a charge of theft, appears to have vanished into thin air as the result of a letter received to-day by Chief of Police Ruse from Dr. C. V. Anglin, superintendent of the Provincial Hospital at St. John. Lachance, whose real name is McGrath, had been released from that institution in May, 1922, since which time Dr. Anglin has had no further information about him.

According to the records of the St. John institution, McGrath was born in Chatham, N.B., and is 33 years of age. His mother is Mrs. Ambrose McGrath, of Chatham, and she had to work for a living. Some time between the years 1916 and 1918, McGrath joined up with the Militia, but never went overseas. He lived in both Sydney and Halifax.

Lachance, or McGrath, has been examined at the local jail here by Dr. T. C. Lapp, who is not yet ready to give a report. He is to appear before Police Magistrate Floyd on remand in Police Court here to-morrow, when another remand will be made. According to Dr. Anglin's opinion of McGrath, his mental disorder is of the recurrent type, with his attacks few and of brief duration far between. Dr. Herriman, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital, visited Lachance in jail to see if he could identify him as there was a report that Lachance had been confined in the Orillia Hospital, but Dr. Herriman was unable to identify him.

A visitor to Lachance to-day was Charles Curtin, of New Liskeard, who knew Lachance in that town in 1926 and 1927. While in New Liskeard, Lachance was employed as a stableman at the Windsor Hotel, and he claimed that he had a silver plate in his head as a result of injuries received in the head while overseas with the Canadian forces. According to Curtin, Lachance had a good education, but was unable to do much owing to the attacks he received as the result of his mental disorders. From New Liskeard Lachance went to Haileybury. In both places he was going under the name of Bert Enright.

Assembly Votes To Allow Non-Permanent Members To Be Re-elected.

GENEVA, Sept. 7. — (Canadian Press).—Spain today won the first round in the effort to make her a semi-permanent member of the council of the League of Nations when the Assembly voted to revive the special rule making it possible for a non-permanent member to be declared re-eligible immediately after serving one three year term.

MacDonald Leaves Heart In Rockies

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7—(Special) "My heart is in your mountains, I must come back for it, and when I do, I hope I shall find that it has grown as much in the graces and riches of life as Canada itself, since I was here before." This was the answer Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald made when he was asked for a last message to the Canadian west before he boarded the Canadian National train on his way back to England. Mr. MacDonald, who left the train at Portage La Prairie to motor through one of the finest sections of Manitoba's farming country yesterday, spent a day and a night in Winnipeg. He came direct from Jasper Park Lodge where he and his daughters enjoyed the mountains they loved so much, by riding the trails, motoring and golfing. The former Prime Minister will go from Winnipeg to Ottawa, leaving the capital for Montreal on Monday and going from Montreal to Richmond and Quebec on Wednesday.

CITES CANADA AS SYMBOLIC OF PRINCIPLE

Premier King Says She Has Fulfilled League Policy For Century.

MONEY FOR INDUSTRY.

Disarmament Brings Prosperity As Well As Preventing War, He Tells Assembly.

GENEVA, Sept. 7. — (Canadian Press Cable).—The Briand-Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war was praised by Premier Mackenzie King of Canada in an address before the Assembly of the League of Nations today. Mr. King pointed out that Canada was particularly concerned because of its associations with both France and the United States and because of the undefended frontier between the Dominion and the United States, which he termed a symbol of the policy of renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy.

In achieving racial concord and international peace with its great neighbor, Canada for more than a century had fulfilled the two great fundamental principles of the League of Nations of to-day, Premier King declared. The public money of Canada was saved and utilized for the purpose of productive industry. "That is why we believe in disarmament, not merely as the means of preventing war but as essential to prosperity," he declared.

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS SAY STORY FALSE

No Underground Cage at Winnipeg—Police To Keep Intruders Out.

INQUIRY PROMISED.

Parliamentary Visitors Assure Complainants They Will Conduct Investigation.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 7 (Canadian Press).—British Labor members yesterday afternoon dropped a bombshell into the conferences of colonization arranged with delegates of the Empire Parliamentary Association. Thomas Johnston, Labor M.P. for Stirling, Scotland, charged that at a station he believed was the C.P.R. station, he had seen British harvesters kept in an underground cage. There was an armed soldier at the door. There were a couple of dozen policemen at the door. They were forbidden to go out. They were herded together like sheep. "British citizens," Mr. Johnston declared, "are not in the habit of being treated that way."

Rt. Hon. Thomas Shaw, Minister of Labor in the Ramsay Macdonald Government, declared he had accompanied Mr. Johnston and seen the conditions with his own eyes.

Investigate Conditions.

Viscount Peel said he had no personal knowledge of the conditions described by Mr. Johnston, but he had no doubt that at the proper time an investigation would be held and the matter fully looked into.

F. W. Crispo, chairman of the Migration Committee of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, pointed out that the immigration hall was under control of the Department of Immigration. As there seemed to be some basis for the charges made, he thought it would be a fitting thing for the Winnipeg Board of Trade to send a telegram to the Immigration Department, asking for an open investigation.

The conference opened with statements on work done by the Immigration Department of the Winnipeg Board of Trade; the Canada Colonization Association, and the Hudson Bay Overseas Department.

Heard Grievances.

Mr. Johnston said he had met some of the 250 British harvesters who left Winnipeg Wednesday night for home, and he had heard their grievances. The men, he said, had come out in the belief that they would make from three to five pounds per week above their food, and that, for this sum, they would be able to pay the reduced sum for their return if they could not find permanent employment in Canada at the end of the harvest. "Our party knew some of the men we saw Wednesday night," Mr. Johnston went on. "They are not wasters. Some of the men, two hundred miles from here, were offered a dollar a day. Some were offered two dollars a day, with the cost of food deducted from the two dollars. Others had similar grievances."

Mr. Johnston wanted to know who was responsible for the conditions in what were called the immigrations in Winnipeg. He declared that no blankets were provided, and, he added, "I am sure that the quality of the mattresses of the hall and the general arrangement they would never last 24 hours if a responsible body interested in immigration would go and look at them."

"Let us get down to brass tacks," he proceeded. "If the next four or five hundred men go back with bad stories and their stories are reported in the British press, they will give the worst services that can possibly be given to the cause of immigration."

Denies Statements.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7.— (Canadian Press.) — Statements made at the colonization conference yesterday, charging improper treatment of British harvesters at Immigration Hall in Winnipeg, were declared false by Thomas Gelley, local immigration commissioner to-day.

Mr. Gelley denied the charge made by Thomas Johnston, Scottish Labor M.P., that British harvesters "were kept in an underground cage" and declared that the immigration authorities here have not detained harvesters in any way. At the Canadian National Railways immigration hall in the Union station there is a grilled gate and policeman. Two Royal Canadian mounted men and one Winnipeg officer were stationed at the gate on Wednesday night while arrangements were being made to ticket three hundred harvesters back to England.

"These police officers," said Mr. Gelley, "were stationed at the grilled gate, not for the puruose of keeping the British harvesters in the hall, but for the purpose of keeping unauthorized persons out."

Teddy Oke Backing Young

Backer of Toronto Swimmer Challenges All Comers To Meet His Protege.

DID NOT QUIT.

Says Condition of the Water Forced Young Out of Race.

TORONTO, September 7. — A challenge to meet any swimmer in the world, any place, for a bet of $25,000, was thrown out yesterday on behalf of George Young, by his backer, Teddy Oke.

"There is a lot of talk about Young quitting Wednesday," said Mr. Oke. "I am prepared to back George against any swimmer who thinks he can beat him at any distance from seven to ten miles. Let us have it at that distance. He swam about seven miles Wednesday. And that goes for Vierkoetter, too, who says Young was ill-advised."

"We will swim anywhere where we can be assured of decent water," added Mr. Oke. "It was the water that beat Young, not his condition or a desire to quit."

Mr. Oke's challenge comes following nasty statements that Young quit and was not forced out through the frigid condition of the water.

"That challenge is right at Vierkoetter, who thinks he can beat Young," declared Mr. Oke. "They tell me that Vierkoetter said Young was yellow. Let him get some backing and come along. We will swim him providing we can get proper water conditions. And it goes for any other swimmer who thinks he can beat Young."

Young's Eyes Shut.

In discussing Young's withdrawal, after going seven miles, Mr. Oke explained that for two hundred yards before he was unconscious, George was swimming with his eyes shut.

"He did not know what he was doing. Walker shouted at him. He could not hear him. His hand had become paralyzed. If Vierkoetter thinks Young quit, why didn't he finish the race? He had the same chance to go on and win, but he could not stand it.

"Bunk!" replied Mr. Oke in regard to Vierkoetter's statement that Young was ill-advised in being trained to beat Vierkoetter and not trained to swim the 15 miles in cold water.

"Pure bunk!" he added. "It was not Vierkoetter. Vierkoetter was far behind before Young nearly passed out. If George had been let out, Vierkoetter would have been farther behind. George had been held in."

Regarding the reported engagement between George and Miss Jewel Cheatwood of Terre Haute, Mr. Oke said George had purchased a ring in Montreal, following the swim in that city which Miss Cheatwood is wearing.

"Whether that is an engagement ring I do not know," he added. I was glad George was friendly with Miss Cheatwood. She is a very nice girl and it kept his mind on his training."

Of the future, Mr. Oke said there is the possibility of another race, especially in view of his challenge.

Best in the World.

"He was never forced Wednesday, at any time in the race," said Walker. "They said he was swimming 60 to the minute. He never went over 48, and did most of the distance in 46 to the minute." There is nothing else to it but that Young was frozen," said Walker. "That is the whole story and it is proven by the showing of the others."

Regarding Vierkoetter's statement, Walker said: "He is absolutely wrong. He is trying to get at me because I trained him last year. Teddy Oke is ready to back George up to $25,000 against anybody and that includes Vierkoetter. Mr. Oke is quite satisfied with George's showing, and is proud of the boy. And I still think he is the greatest swimmer in the world. They talk about him quitting. If he had wanted to quit he would have grabbed at the two life saving boats near-by. Instead of that he stayed in and struggled to be left in. When he was being pulled out he struggled to get away.

ACUTE SHORTAGE OF HARVEST LABOR IS REPORTED IN WEST

SASKATOON, Sask., Sept. 7. There is now an acute shortage of harvesters in this district labor handling concerns reported yesterday. Canadian Pacific Railway officials stated they had vacancies for at least 200 men ,with preference in these jobs to British harvesters, but no help was in sight. Canadian National officials report a similar situation, with demands coming constantly for more Britishers, with a similar scarcity of men.

C. Nethercote, of the Labor Bureau, declared for the first time this year labor demand was acute, and farmers were offering bigger wages to secure help to get their grain threshed.

Mr. Williams said every effort was being made by the Government to retain all the Britishers, and he considered that every man who wished to stay would be able to find steady winter employment.

THREE S.S. CLASSES UNITE FOR PICNIC

Zion Church Young People Enjoy Outing at Presqu'ile.

(Examiner Correspondence)

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Sept. 7.—The annual picnic of the three intermediate classes of Zion Sunday School was held on Labor Day at Presqu'ile and was a most successful event. A heavy downpour of rain just before the noon hour threatened to put a damper on proceedings, but the clouds cleared away and after everyone had enjoyed the picnic dinner provided by the ladies, some repaired to the beach for an after-dinner swim while a number engaged in softball. However, all enjoyable afternoons must come to a close, especially for farmers who have milking to do and quite early the party began the home journey having enjoyed the outing immensely. The teachers of the three classes taking part are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum and Mrs. Lorne Barnum.

The Sunday evening service was taken by a representative of the Lords Day Alliance in the absence of Rev. Mr. MacTavish who is holidaying. There will not be any service at Zion next Sunday as the church is being redecorated. Sunday School is also withdrawn.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dickson and daughters, Elsie and Helen, Mrs. K. Hanley and Miss Jennie Mundell of Sunbury spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Brunton.

Miss Hannah Webster of Lakefield has been visiting her friend, Miss Gladys Simpson.

Miss Hazel Brown, Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum.

Messrs. Everett and Earl Fairman closed their holiday season with a most enjoyable motor trip to Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo, including and airplane trip over the falls. Friends here wish these two boys every success in their new school's as the long period spent in this community makes them seem like native sons of Petherick's Corners. Everett takes charge of the Trent River school while Earl will direct the destiny of Connolly's Seymour West.

THE WEATHER

Forecasts.

Lake Superior—Fresh to strong southerly winds; partly cloudy and warm; becoming unsettled.

BUSINESS POLICY TALK NO. 1

DO YOU INDULGE IN SHOPPING?

Pertinent Points in the Purchase of Printing

STARTING to-day, we propose to enunciate our business policy in story form and give the buyers of printing the benefit of our experience and observations. These talks, we hope, will draw us closer together in mutual understanding and thus prove to be beneficial to our customers, prospective customers and The Peterborough Examiner, Limited.

Years ago the printer used to barter on price with his customers and prospects, and, in many cases, does so to this day. The customer would ask the price of a certain piece of printing, the printer would make a guess (with very little, if any, foundation, in fact). Sometimes he would lose and sometimes the customer would lose. History shows us that this type of printer did not and does not survive the battle of business, because no business can be operated without a profit.

The only thing this "guess method" accomplished was to make the buyer of printing suspicious. The result is that many buyers of printing have become "shoppers," and for every printing job they spend considerable time seeking prices. They do not place any value on their own time or the printers' time, but think because they get a low price out of the lot they have saved money. This is a myth because one gets only what he pays for, whether it be printing or an automobile.

We do not believe in bartering over price, but always "give the same treatment to one and all."

"Have confidence in YOUR Printer" is the subject of the next talk.

C.G.I.T. GROUP OPENS SEASON

Wide-Awakes Decide To Hold "Bacon Tea" Next Tuesday.

MILLROOK NEWS.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 7.—The Wide Awakes C.G.I.T group held its regular meeting, after the holiday season, at the leader's home on Wednesday evening with a good attendance, considering the fact that some of the girls are starting to school out of town, and some are still away from home.

The chief item for discussion was the holding of a 'bacon tea' at the Grove, an outing that was highly successful about this season last year. It was decided to have the picnic party on Thursday immediately after school, the leader and one or two helpers to go on ahead and have the campfires built for cooking the bacon, coffee, etc., when the others arrived.

Two new members were added to the membership roll—Misses Frances and Beatrice Jones. As a number have not yet been initiated, a 'Dedicatory Service' will be held in the near future. It will be necessary to elect a new president and vice-president, as the two girls, Misses Elsie Spence and Flossie McMahon, who have held these offices, will attend school away from home this year.

The devotional period was opened with the usual ritual, the Scriptural lesson being read in unison, and the leader's talk being based upon the passage found in Isaiah 54: 2, "Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thy habitation", a wider life and its possibilities being the thought developed.

The usual social hour, with music, was enjoyed at the close.

A recent issue of the Halifax Chronicle contains an article of interest in local circles, when it states: "Some one hundred ladies were present yesterday afternoon at a delightful tea given at the new electrical appliances demonstration offices of the Tram Company, when tea was served by the hostess, Miss M. E. Needham, of Millbrook.

"A dainty tea-wagon, with flowers and the most tempting looking cakes, was arranged in the windows, and the afternoon shopping crowd thronged into the flower-decorated rooms where Miss Needham and her assistants, Misses M. L. Simpson and B. L. Selig, served a dainty tea.

"Miss Needham is in charge of the demonstration of the new McClary Oven control which may be said to make a chef of the most inexpert cook. The prettily arranged tea tables were centred with bouquets of crimson sweet peas in tiny green baskets, and shaded lamps also graced the tables where the delicious cakes, cookies, and tea had all been made on the McClary range by the demonstrator, Miss Needham.

"Another tea was scheduled for Thursday afternoon from 3.30 to 5 o'clock."

Miss Needham expects to return from her Maritime tour in time to take up her duties this fall as one of the judges in ladies' work and domestic science, under the Department of Agriculture, at the fall fairs in various parts of the province.

WIFE OF CHATHAM BARRISTER ENDS LIFE IN THAMES RIVER

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 7. — (Canadian Press)—Mrs. Louise Hope Meir, aged 35, wife of H. G. Meir, Barrister of this city, ended her life in the Thames River some time during the night. Her body, fully clothed, was found in shallow water near the Gasco plant.

For some time, Mrs. Meir had been in very poor health, and, it is reported, had threatened to take her own life. Her husband was busy at his office until after midnight, and, on entering his home on King street west, believed Mrs. Meir to be asleep in her room. Yesterday morning he discovered that her bed had not been disturbed, and on the cover was a letter indicating her intentions. Her wedding ring was near the letter.

Mrs. Meir was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Heaton, of Toronto. Mr. Heaton is fire marshal of Ontario.

Coroner McRitchie decided an inquest is unnecessary.

The remains are to be removed to Toronto Friday. Burial will take place in the Prospect Cemetery on Saturday.

Scientist Delivers Address

Tongues of Prehistoric Men Could Not Form Words.

MEETING AT GLASGOW.

Primitive Man Sang, Grunted Or Roared To Express Emotion.

GLASGOW, Scotland, September 7 (Canadian Press). — Tongues of prehistoric men could not form words and the initial communication between members of the human race was mostly by gestures, said Sir Richard Paget, specialist on the development of inventions, to the British Association for the Advancement of Science yesterday.

Sir Richard, who combines scientific research with his work as a barrister and a member of Parliament, said that primitive man sang, grunted or roared to express emotion.

To illustrate his ideas of the evolution of speech, the speaker used a pipe, an organ reed, and a cork plunger. With this apparatus he was able to produce numerous sounds of human quality, including some recognizable words.

Sir Richard said that in addition to his animal-like vocal productions, primitive man used pantomime of face and limbs to convey his ideas to others. As he pantomimed with his hands, his tongue naturally followed these motions. Then our ancestors developed crafts and his hands became too busy for speech.

Relied on Gestures.

This stage, said the speaker, led man to rely upon gestures of the face and tongue and lips. Finally the time came when the hands were retired and the tongue took their place.

Man then found that if he sang, roared or grunted while using his lips and tongue for gestures, there was a mysterious effect on the vocal part of the conversation. It got so that the mouth pantomime could be recognized by ear, and could even be understood in the dark or when the pantomimist was out of sight of the listener. Then humanity had speech.

Professor Douglas Johnson of the Physiography staff of Columbia University, New York, discussed the theory that the Atlantic coast of the Northern United States was slowly sinking. He believed that such a movement had taken place gradually through several thousand years, but that it had stopped some 3,000 years ago.

Professor Johnson said that the physiography of the coast north and south from New York does not support a theory that a recent shift of sea level permitted an emergence of approximately 20 feet of land. He believed rather that there had been a differential movement of land rather than a change in the ocean level.

He emphasized that the coast around New York is very stable and that inhabitants of the big city need not worry over the possibilities of destruction of their skyscrapers by earthquakes. He said that a survey just completed showed no changes in the land levels in the last 25 years.

LAKEVALE SCHOOL HOLDS FINE PICNIC

Young People Enjoy Program of Games and Races.

FOWLER'S CORNERS, Sept. 7. — A very enjoyable picnic was held in Joseph Hunter's Woods by the Lakevale Sunday School on Monday afternoon, September 3, with about fifty present. The young people enjoyed a game of ball, followed by races for the children, led by Mr. McMillan. Supper was served at five o'clock, and the Sabbath School scholars were treated to ice cream and lemonade.

The social evening of the Lakevale Y.P.S. was held at the home of Miss Olive Fife on Tuesday evening, Aug. 28th, with over twenty-five in attendance.

After the meeting the remainder of the evening was spent in games, with refreshments following.

The devotional night was held in the church and was taken by Miss Grace Tully.

COBOURG MAN WINS PRIZES

Poultry Expert Takes High Place in Competition.

AT TORONTO "EX."

COBOURG, Sept. 7.—William Jenkins, whose fine poultry have won many prizes at various fairs throughout the country, carried off nine prizes at the poultry show at Toronto Exhibition on Labor Day. Mr. Jenkins exhibited nine birds. The following were the classes won:

English Red Caps, 1st: cockbird, 1st and 2nd; hens, 1st; cockerel, 1st, and a pen of birds, 1st prize.

SCHOOL WINDOWS BROKEN AT NIGHT

Only Two Windows Left Whole at Galloway School, Manvers.

BETHANY, Sept. 7.—The public schools in this district opened for the fall and winter term on Tuesday. Teachers and pupils alike appeared very glad to get back to work again after the long holiday. On Tuesday night some person broke every pane but two in the windows of Galloway's School, Manvers.

The rural school fair is to be held this year on September 14th at the Lotus school grounds.

Mrs. P. Fitzgerald of Peterborough spent Tuesday afternoon with her aunt, Mrs. Arthur Flack.

Mrs. L. Arnott was in Lindsay for a few days with her sister-in-law, Mrs. William McMullen, who was ill.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Price and Mrs. F. C. Dawe were business visitors to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. F. W. Reynolds attended the Toronto Exhibition on Thursday.

IMPRESSIVE SPECTACLE AT EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS.

SYDNEY, Australia, September 7 (Canadian Press).—More than 100,000 men filled the Sydney show grounds last night for one of the most impressive spectacles of the Eucharistic congress. In an atmosphere of complete solemnity Bishop O'Doherty of Galway preached a sermon.

During the benediction by Cardinal Cerretti, papal envoy to the congress, the electric lights around the field were dimmed and each man held aloft a lighted taper. This was supposed to symbolize the living faith. The effect of the ceremony was somewhat marred by a high wind.

Children will be the centre of the program to-day. It is expected that 20,000 boys and girls will assemble in the show grounds while Cardinal Cerretti celebrates pontifical high mass.

TWO KILLED IN CAR CRASH

Automobile Collided With Canadian National Railways Train at Montreal.

SMALL BOY INJURED.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 7 (Canadian Press).—Lieutenant-Colonel A. Black, divisional head at Lachute, Que., for the Province of Quebec roads department, and Lomer Fugere, an engineer of the department, were fatally injured here yesterday when their automobile collided with a Canadian National Railways train.

Although Mr. Fugere could not save his own life, he retained sufficient presence of mind to open the door of the car and threw to safety his seven-year-old son. The lad was uninjured.

The dead men were connected with well-known Quebec families. Colonel Black was a brother-in-law of J. A. Boullanger, Deputy-Minister of Roads, and Mr. Fugere was a nephew of Sir Lomer Gouin, former Premier of the Province, and former Minister of Justice in the Dominion Government.

TWO CASES IN DIVISION COURT

Eleven On Docket At Campbellford But Only Two Are Heard.

THREE OTHERS SETTLED.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 7.—There were eight cases on the docket for the sitting of the eleventh division court of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham held in the public library rooms yesterday afternoon before His Honor Judge Huycke of Peterborough. Of the eight cases, only two were heard. Three plaintiffs were awarded judgment when the defendant, the same in each case failed to appear in court or to express his intention of disputing the case. Two cases were tried as one since the same money was involved in one as in the other. The case of Scott vs. Fitzpatrick and an appeal from the magistrate's decision in the case of Sampson vs. Rogers were laid over till the next regular session of the court.

The first case to be called was Blake and Son vs. Heenan and the Town of Campbellford. The amount involved was $20.88 and the case consisted of a dispute and a counter claim. After hearing evidence for exactly two hours, Judge Huycke gave judgment for the difference between the claim and the counter claim, $3.53. The case centred about the repairs made to a grocer's delivery

SWIFT . . .

Look for the Branding

MANY buy Swift's Premium Bacon in cartons because identification of the genuine is certain.

Now you may purchase Premium Ham or Premium Bacon with equal assurance.

In addition to the name branded on the rind, a new method of branding the name "Swift" in dots down the side of the ham or bacon makes identification of even the smallest purchase easy. This branding resembles the rich brown color of the broiled ham or bacon.

Now you know the genuine.

wagon by a local blacksmith. N. A. MacColl appeared for Frank Blake, the plaintiff, while D. J. Lynch appeared for the defense.

Blake was the first witness called. He identified the account for groceries which he had submitted for the defendant and also the counter claim statement was work done to his wagon. He claimed that he had only used the wagon for a few days when the wheels all went to pieces. He had paid Heenan for the blacksmith work, but had refused to pay for the wood-work on the wheels. Later he had had the wheels repaired by R. J. Bibby, blacksmith, at a cost to himself of $20.50. This amount, he claimed, Heenan had said he would pay. D. J. Lynch cross-examined the witness regarding the accounts and Blake was unable to recall defintely the dates in question. He said he had bought the vehicle about three years ago when he purchased the business It had been included in the deal. But he did not know how old it was. It had been bought from J. C. Anderson, he said. Heenan had promised a first-class job, but there was no guarantee either written or otherwise, save Heenan's word. He had not examined the wheels when he brought them back from the blacksmith shop, but put them right on the wagon and drove them. Bibby had repaired the wheels in May, 1928, according to the account as presented in court.

Robert J. Bibby, blacksmith, was the second witness called. He said he knew both the defendant and the plaintiff. He had first heard of the wagon in the spring of this year and Heenan had asked him how much he would charge to make the necessary repairs to it. He had set his price at about twenty dollars and Heenan had told him that he and Barrie had fixed the wagon before but that it had fallen apart. Blake had been the man who actually brought him the wheels, so he expected to get his pay from him There had been no definite contract made with Heenan nor had there been any bill sent to him. In his further evidence, Bibby explained the condition of the wheels as he had found them and thought that the work was not first class and that it would tend to bring about the condition in which the wheels then were. He, Bibby, would not call the material first class and he claimed that Barrie had admitted to him that they were second class rims. He could not say how many spokes had been put in. He had been in business for twenty-seven years.

Examined by Mr. Lynch, Bibby said he had not discussed this matter with either Heenan or Blake the previous year. He could not tell the age of the wagon since the wheels had been painted. All four wheels had been "ironed."

Duncan Thompson, carriage maker, said that the rims had been improperly bored and there were three small pieces off them when he received the wheels. They were not in very good condition. To Lynch, he said that he did all the woodwork for Bibby and Graham, and that Barrie usually did the same work for the other blacksmiths. He then went on to describe in detail the work he had done on the wagon wheels. When Mr. Lynch had finished his questioning, Mr. MacColl recalled the witness to ask what material had been put in the rims. Witness said he understood that it was double X.

Heenan, the defendant, was the first witness called for the defence. He said that he had disposed of his business here about the last of June last year and gone to work in Gananoque. He had carried on a blacksmithing business in the same building with Thomas Barrie and had not dealt with Blake at all until after he had fixed the wheels in question. He had seen and inspected the wagon when the deal was made for the work. Blake had told him that he did not want to put too much money into the old wagon. The regular charge for spokes was fifty cents each, but they had put in twenty-one at thirty-five cents each. The job was all right when he was finished with it, and went to work in Gananoque. Blake had not complained to him till after he returned to Campbellford in the fall, the latter part of October. Barrie had offered to fix the wheels free of charge but Blake would not allow him to do it.

To Mr. MacColl he told the same story as he had told to Mr. Lynch. He thought Barrie quite capable of doing this sort of work. He had already paid four dollars on the account and with the charges he had made for the iron work on the wheels, had believed his account to be settled. He had never laid any claim to have been given a job at six dollars a day at the paper mill, but had said that he had applied for a job there. Mr. Lynch conducted a brief re-examination and then Thomas Barrie was called.

Barrie said he had been in business for fifty-two years. He recalled the wagon having been brought in and said that he had put in twenty-one double X hickory spokes and new rims of the same material. All the work was properly and correctly done. He had offered to make amends by repairing the wheels if they were not right, but Blake would not allow him to do so. He saw nothing wrong with the wagon when he examined it after he had heard the complaint. The material and work had both been first-class and the parts had been made to "fit to a shaving."

Mr. MacColl began his examination of the witness by asking him if he had not started in business early, or at least began to learn his trade. Barrie replied that he had started at his trade in 1871, and had been in business for himself since 1876.

Mr. MacColl—How old are you?

Barrie—How old do you think I am? I'm over sixteen.

Q.—You won't tell me your age?

A.—Sure, I'll tell you my age. I'll be eighty years of age on the twelfth day of October.

"Yoy hold your age remarkably well, sir," said His Honor.

Regarding his accounts for the work, Barrie expressed a preference for holding an account against Heenan rather than Blake. He also claimed that any wrong condition of the wheels was not the result of either his or Heenan's work but more likely the result of the treatment to which the vehicle had been subjected.

This was the case for the defense and Blake was recalled by MacColl for a brief examination. Neither counsel wished to present an argument to His Honour so Judge Huycke proceeded to give a detailed resume of the case. He said that the original claim had been for a grocery bill for $29.38. The defendent had paid four dollars cash on the account and his work amounted to four dollars and fifty cents. This left a balance of $20.88. But Blake still owed for the woodwork on the wheels and there was a further claim of $17.35. The evidence, His Honour thought, tended to show that the wheels had been in good condition when they were taken from the shop and that the plaintiff had not succeeded in attaching the blame to either Heenan or Barrie. His Honour therefore gave judgment to the plaintiff for the difference between the two accounts, $3.53.

The only other case to be heard was that of Hay vs. Hinds vs. Standard Paving Company. This was a dispute about the rent and other money connected with the house and occupied by James Hind teamster. The amount claimed was $70.00, but after hearing the evidence, His Honour Judge Huycke, awarded the plaintiff the amount of $20.00. G. A. Payne appeared for the Plaintiff, John L. Hay, and N. Alec. MacColl appeared for the defense. John L. Hay and T. L. Diamond were the principal witnesses for the plaintiff and Mr. and Mrs. Hinds were the principal witnesses for the defence. Both Hay and Diamond were recalled after the case for the defense had been closed.

In passing judgment, His Honour expressed the opinion that the evidence was most unsatisfactory and that the plaintiffs were most careless. He did not think them untruthful or dishonest but believed them to be very careless to come into court with such hazy ideas. Then after a detailed resume of the case, Judge Huycke awarded the plaintiff $20.00.

The court was closed at five thirty five.

FARMERS MAY HAVE FREE WHEAT TEST

Sprouted Grain Should Be Tested Before Being Sown.

With regard to your enquiry of the 20th inst., regarding sprouted wheat, I may say that we have tested some wheat that has been sprouted a little when the germ has not been broken as represented by the short sprout, and such wheat will grow again. However, if the sprout is a little bit long, say over a quarter of an inch, it is likely to be broken, such injury having been done either by the threshing machine, the seed drill or other handling and only a small percentage of it will grow. It might be safe to say that any wheat that is sprouted more than 20 per cent. would not make satisfactory seed.

As fall wheat may be sown as late as the middle of September, it would be wise for you to advise farmers generally who think of sowing sprouted wheat, to have some of it tested, either by us or tested themselves in soil. As you know, any one may have up to three samples tested free of charge.

Unfortunately a great deal of the wheat produced in the province this year has either sprouted in the shook or while it is standing in the field.

Yours truly,
T. G. RAYNOR,
District Inspector.

WEDDING BELLS

LANE—HOCKADAY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, September 7. — The marriage took place quietly at the parsonage of the Regent street United church, Lakefield, on Wednesday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, of Edna Hockaday, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hockaday, Young's Point, to Russell Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lane, also of Young's Point. OBITUARY

ISAAC CORNELIUS

WARKWORTH, Sept. 7.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral service under the Orange Order for the late Isaac Cornelius was held from the United Church on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Cornelius was a life long resident of this vicinity with the exception of the last two years when he had been living in Toronto where he died Monday. He was a well respected citizen and had a large circle of friends, being one of the oldest members of Percy Orange Lodge.

Besides his wife he leaves to mourn his loss one son, Ezra Cornelius of Percy Township. Interment at Warkworth Cemetery.

GEORGE WOOD.

George Wood, a life long resident of South Monaghan, died at his home yesterday afternoon after a short illness, at the age of eighty-five years. He was born in South Monaghan, and has become very well known, living there all his life, and attending the Bensfort Methodist church.

There are left to mourn his loss one brother, Thomas, of South Monaghan, a daughter, Lila, of Toronto, two sons, Amos of Edmonton, and Everett, at home, and also two grand children, of whom he was very fond, Beryl and Trevor Wood, in South Monaghan.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his son, Everett Wood, lot 11, concession 12, South Monaghan, on Saturday, September 8th, the service being at two o'clock Interment will take place in Dawson's cemetery.

recorded in some quarters of the market, where 40c was paid for No. 1 creamery, delivered, although trading involved only small quantities at any price-level, and many dealers relied on their storage holdings to meet current requirements.

The advance came as a culmination of the week's firm undertone and constitutes the second fractional rise since Tuesday. Yesterdays gain was attributable to the strength of the Montreal market, and also to the dwindling volume of fresh receipts. Higher prices at Montreal have naturally attracted shippers in Eastern Ontario, and the flow of Ontario butter to the Quebec market has consequently had the effect of still further reducing the available supply in Toronto.

Trading Is Dull.

The poor demand for butter in the Toronto market has apparently had little effect on the rising price trend, partly because of the profitable outlet at Montreal and also due to the fact that sellers are standing firmly behind their asked prices. On the other hand, distributive dealers have been compelled to draw upon their storage holdings as an alternative to paying prices above 39c, with the result that stocks are being depleted to meet retail demands.

The outcome of this situation is yet too distant to permit accurate forecasts by those in close touch with the market, but opinion leans to the belief that large quantities of New Zealand butter may be required to meet consumptive requirements during the winter months. The extent to which New Zealand butter will be used will naturally depend largely on the volume of butter taken out of storage before New Zealand shipments make their appearance in Ontario.

Egg Market Is Firm

Wholesale egg prices were unchanged in a quiet market yesterday, and sentiment generally remained firm. Wholesale quotations to country shippers remained at 38c to 39c a dozen for strictly fresh extras, delivered in Toronto, with firsts at 35c to 36c. Quotations to the retail trade were firm under active demand at a range of 45c to 46c a dozen for fresh extras in cartons, or at 40c to 41c for firsts.

Quiet cheese trading revealed no change in prices of 22½c to 23¼c a pound for finest Government graded No. 1 new large waxed cheese, delivered in Toronto.

salary of ten thousand dollars a year in his new position. The hospital at present is on board the ship on which Dr. Fallis is journeying to Brazil, but a building is to be erected in the immediate future. Mr. R. I. Fallis also went to Toronto to visit his brother before he left for his rather distant destination.

George Fitzgerald, of Regina, was the guest of his mother, Mrs. John Deyell, last week. Miss Gertrude Fitzgerald has returned after a pleasant holiday in Toronto, where he was the guest of his mother, Mrs. John formerly of Millbrook.

Mr. Norman Church, of the Bank of Toronto staff, at Cochrane, Northern Ontario, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Russell over the week end.

Mrs. E. S. Burnham is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham, Peterborough, this week.

Postmaster T. H. Collins spent the holiday week end with friends in Toronto, and attended the Canadian National while in the city.

Harold Nattress motored to Toronto and spent the holiday week end in the city. Mrs. E. McConnell and three children, who have been guests of her parents here for the past week or two, returned to their home in Toronto, accompanying her brother on his trip to the city.

Rev. Canon Allen conducted the baptismal service in Saint Thomas' church after morning worship, the rite being observed for the little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Young, Kathleen Ann. The godparents were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Allen, and Miss Isabell Baxter, of Kingston, Mrs. Young's sister.

Clergyman Leaving.

The many friends of Rev. P. C. and Mrs. Howard will regret to learn that they are shortly leaving the village to reside at Havelock, the Bishop having appointed Mr. Howard as rector of Saint John's church in that town. During the two years that Mr. Howard has been assistant clergyman of the parish of Millbrook and Cavan, both he and Mrs. Howard have endeared themselves to a wide circle of friends here. Owing to the illness of the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, the major part of the clerical work of the parish has fallen upon the shoulders of the assisting minister, and have been very faithfully performed. Both Mr. and Mrs. Howard have given special help to the work among the young people and have built up the A.Y.P.A. in membership, attendance, and interest. The new position will be entered upon by October first.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1928.

THE LURE OF THE MIDWAY.

There are those who say of an exhibition that "the midway is the whole show."

That contention, of course, will arouse controversy and would be difficult to prove.

In an exhibition like the Peterborough Industrial there are so many features of interest that it would be folly to call any one of them the "whole show."

But the midway undoubtedly has a fascination all its own, and, therefore, it is satisfactory to learn that in this respect, as in all others, the Peterborough Exhibition is able to offer something distinctly worth while.

The policy of booking a carnival company to supply the midway features instead of depending upon wandering owners of shows and rides has amply justified itself in the past, and in the selection of a midway exposition upon this occasion the local management has been fortunate indeed in being able to secure such a well-known organization as the Greater Sheesley Shows.

There will be few dull moments along the brightly illuminated midway during next week's bigger-than-ever Exhibition.

A GALA WEEK.

The suggestion that the merchants of Peterborough should put out their flags and keep them out all next week in honor of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition should be complied with cheerfully.

Exhibition week is a gala week in Peterborough, and visitors to the city should be impressed with the fact that the whole community is behind the Exhibition and recognizes the importance and value of the annual event.

Flag-lined streets will do much to create that impression, and the thousands of out-of-town patrons of Peterborough's big fair will go away convinced that the Exhibition is an outstanding success and has been made so because everybody co-operates with the Exhibition Board.

There should be a carnival spirit in evidence throughout the city for the whole week, and merchants in particular can do much to supply the needed atmosphere by seeing to it that flags are flying everywhere in the downtown sections of the city.

A RECORD ATTENDANCE.

The fact that 700 pupils have registered at the local Collegiate Institute, and that over 300 of these are pupils who have just passed out of the Public Schools, indicates that additional accommodation has been provided none too soon.

This is a record registration, and the number of new pupils is also a record.

The commercial, industrial and household arts courses which will be given in the new Vocational School are responsible for about 57 per cent. of the registration, but the number of pupils desiring to take academic courses is high, over 300 registering for such training.

It should be gratifying to the public generally to know that the new facilities provided are to be taken advantage of to such an extent, and that the opening of the institute next week will see the largest attendance in local history.

Large as the registration is now, it does not require the vision of a seventh son to predict that the attendance total will climb considerably higher within a remarkably short time.

Schools that look capable of taking care of the demand for years have a disconcerting habit of rapidly becoming too small.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Whether or not the desired attendance objective of 2,000,000 people will be reached depends, of course, upon to-morrow's patronage, but in any event the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition are to be congratulated upon scoring a tremendous success this year.

In a number of features this year's Exhibition has been outstanding, and the boast—"the greatest annual fair in the world"—has been proven to be no idle one.

As a demonstration of Canadian enterprise, growth and development Canada's National Exhibition has earned and is receiving the support of Canadians generally.

Especially is this true of the people of Ontario, whose patronage must play a very important part in building up the Exhibition's attendance records, and who look upon the "Ex.," not as a Toronto enterprise, but as a Canadian institution that is a yearly proof to all the world of the material richness of this country and of the ability of the Canadian people to do big things on a big scale.

The Canadian National Exhibition has become Canada's show window, and it is gratifying to know that each year the attendance from outside of Canada is increasing.

INTRODUCING THE HIPPO-FISH.

Beyond question we shall hear more of this fellow called a hippo-fish who inhabits Williams Lake in the Cariboo country of British Columbia. On the authority of a preacher and his family, to say nothing of "another carload" of assorted tourists, we have it that this latest monster is "shaped like a hippopotamus" but complicates the description by doing itself up in coils. Quite apparently it is no kin to our old friend Ogopogo, who lives in the Okanagan Lake some distance away. Ogopogo, we have been told on equally indisputable authority, has a head like that of a sheep, a long body which undulates, and he howls like a fire siren.

Coming back to the hippo-fish we learn it was seen first a year ago, and was thought then to be nothing more than a huge sturgeon. Then it went into seclusion, and campers and residents swam freely in the lake in blissful ignorance of its awesome inhabitant. This summer the sturgeon reappeared, only it turned out to be this outrageous and unbelievable creature they have called "hippo-fish." Quite a number of people have seen it and they are ready to take affidavits and everything. A ministerial eye-witness and his party had a close-up view and this is what they say they saw: "With great head, and shoulders of tremendous girth, the beast wriggled towards the shore, its huge mouth opening and shutting languidly as it gobbled up small fish that were swimming about." The Indians, it is said, will have nothing to do with the lake unless it is covered by two feet of ice. Less than that, it is well known, is nothing at all to a hungry hippo-fish.

Unfortunately there are no photographs with this circumstantial story, but we should not be too skeptical. Even press agents must live.—Ottawa Journal.

NO DEFENCE AGAINST AIR ATTACKS?

The recent air monoeuvres over London proved two things. They demonstrated the marvelous efficiency of the British air service. They showed that no air defences could save London from partial devastation against an attack by so powerful and skillful a force as the raiders in the mimic battle. It is true that theoretically only 18 of the 114 raids were completely successful in evading the defence, but (in theory) the successful raiders dropped tons of bombs on the metropolis. The Manchester Guardian says the lesson of the manoeuvres is that London, even in broad daylight, cannot be defended against hostile airplanes. It is easy to say that London could be evacuated, but where would its millions find a refuge? In camps, even more exposed to attack than a city with tall buildings that provide some protection against gas and with vaults and subways that provide some shelter against the far more terrible high explosive?

"Paris or Cologne could be bombed by English airmen—indeed, reprisal would be the only possible defence against air attack on London—but London is the largest of these cities and nearest to whatever hostile bases may be chosen, and therefore the most easily destroyed. Paris and Cologne would be about as exposed as Manchester. And let anyone imagine what Albert Square would look like if it were hit by only one of the bombs (gigantic compared with those used in the Great War) that would be used in the war of the future. Albert Square would be a huge pit, surrounded by a desolation of wrecked masonry, littered with torn and shattered bodies. Then let him imagine what London would look like if it were hit by a hundred—no impossible figure—of such bombs, and let him try to visualize the ruin and the carnage and to hear the screaming of wounded human beings that anyone who has been through a war knows to be more inhuman and uncanny than noises made by any animal.

"If a Government cannot understand what the people think and fear, it would do well to reflect on the events of ten and eleven years ago. The Governments of Russia, Germany, Austria and Bulgaria were overthrown by revolutions. Nor did the breath of revolution leave the victorious powers wholly uncaressed. In 1917 French regiments turned their backs on the front and began to advance on Paris with cheers for a new social order. In the next war the victor will suffer more than the vanquished did in the last, and its rulers will hardly escape the vengeance of the ruled. The memory of what may follow another war should not leave the Governments, or, indeed, the governing classes (for what happened in Russia may happen elsewhere), wholly unimpressed. To make another war impossible is the first duty of every Government, and should be a test by which every Government must stand or fall. The aolition of war should dominate all foreign policy and should be the supreme issue in every election. No candidate should have a chance who is not pledged to this. Public opinion in England has been deeply stirred by the lesson of the air manoeuvres. The Government cannot afford to remain unresponsive."

This is strong language, but the Manchester Guardian is one of the weightiest journals in Great Britain—probably the most influential in the British Empire. The situation must be grave, indeed, to move the Guardian to issue such a warning. Some newspapers and technical critics contend that the lesson is that the air defences of London must be strengthened, but Mr. Lloyd George, speaking with the responsibility of his leadership of the Liberal party, declares that "of all the armaments that should be cut down armament of the air is most urgent." Mr. Lloyd George means, of course, that air armaments should be reduced by international agreement, having regard to the appalling results of aerial warfare. If another great war breaks out it will be fought to a large extent in the air, and high explosives and poison gases will be the weapons. In such warfare civilians will suffer more than soldiers. As civilians make wars and then summon soldiers to do the fighting, the dread possibilities of aerial-chemical attacks will have, and already are having, a sobering effect on Governments and nations.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Do your part in giving Peterborough's big Exhibition a new attendance record next week.

The Canadian National Exhibition will close to-morrow, and Toronto people will get a chance to sleep in their own beds again.

That sea serpent story suggests that some of the marathon swimmers are suffering from water on the brain.

Apparently a lot of motorists have yet to learn that parking on the west side of George street in the business section is forbidden.

Premier Rhodes of Nova Scotia has little excuse for precipitating an election at the present time. Party and not public advantage, of course, promoted the action, which is getting all too common in Canadian political circles.

It's getting so a company has a hard time cutting a melon these days without somebody complaining about the operation.

The Question Box

Mrs. W. H. (Trenton): Q.—Will you please advise me through your paper if an 1842 Bank of Montreal penny is of any value?

A.—It is not likely that this is rare or valuable, unless it is a side view. Please put a piece of paper over the coin and rub with a pencil to bring up the image. Then send me the paper and I can give you a definite answer.

A Thought

DRUDGERY.

Drudgery is essential in all good work. Some drudgery must precede high effort and attainment in any and every sphere. Mixing colors is the drudgery in the greatest artist's painting, as surely as in that of the young beginner in his profession. He who is not willing to do the needful drudgery in the work he undertakes will never be a success in any high realm of aspiration. No man who is not ready first to tread the lower rounds of a ladder can ever hope to stand by and by at the top.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Bow down Thine ear, O Lord, hear me: for I am poor and needy. Preserve my soul; for I am holy: O Thou my God, save Thy servant that trusteth in Thee. Be merciful unto me, O Lord: for I cry unto Thee daily. Rejoice the soul of Thy servant: for unto Thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. For Thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive; and plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon Thee.—Ps. 86: 1-5.

O God, our Heavenly Father, we worship Thee. We thank Thee for rest through the night, and for the light of the morning. Thou art the light of our spirits! As in all nature the plants turn toward the sun, and the flowers even in dark and shady places reach out toward the light, so we look up to Thee, Thou Sun of Righteousness! May the influence of Thy Spirit be felt in our hearts all the day long, cleansing our thoughts, purifying our motives, strengthening us in every good purpose.

Be with us, whether in work or in study, in recreation or repose. If trials fall to our lot, may we be patient; if crosses come to us, may we bear them with courage; if sorrows, may we find consolation in communion with Thee. We pray for our friends and our neighbors. We think of those who are in spiritual darkness, in want and loneliness. Manifest Thy mercy to all mankind, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, September 7. — Even with a holiday this week a good clean up was made. Choice cattle of all classes are readily purchased. Medium and common grades sell after the fleshy cattle are disposed of.

Heavy steers bring 12c with fancy higher. Choice butcher steers and heifers in demand, 11c to 12c. Baby beeves touched $14.50 for tops.

Not enough feeder steers to supply demand. Prices are high in the west—allowing few to come to Toronto, except those on order.

Fat cows strong at $8.50 to $9.00, with fancy $9.50. Commission houses advising shipments of kosher cows for Jewish trade, as their New Year is September 15.

Calves held steady at $15.50 to $16.50.

Bulk of lambs $13.00, with a few better quality $13.50.

Packers bidding $13.00 f.o.b. for yesterday's hogs, and salesmen trying to hold price steady.

Receipts: Cattle 66, sheep 260.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 7 (Canadian Press). — Local exporters stated there was practically no demand for any line of grain for export account on the local market yesterday. There was some demand from United States exporters for odd loads of berth ocean freight to the United Kingdom at steady rates. Owing to the further advance in oat futures in the Winnipeg market spot cash prices for car lots were marked up 1 cent per bushel yesterday. The volume of business was small.

There was practically no change in the condition of the spring wheat flour market, prices being maintained with a moderate amount of business reported for export. The demand for the domestic account was about average. Winter wheat flour was again inactive and prices were unchanged.

A stronger feeling developed in the millfeed market, with bran and shorts generally marked up $1.00 per ton. The increase was attributed to the steadily increasing demand for supplies from local and country account.

Jobbing trade in eggs was steady, with prices unchanged. Receipts were 3,389 cases.

The butter market showed no changes in prices, but the undertone was very firm. The improved demand from outside sources for supplies was fully sustained, and considerable business was transacted. Receipts were 797 packages.

The cheese market was active and strong, with an advance of ¼c to ½c per pound, attributed to a good general demand from foreign buyers. Receipts were 12,738 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 7 (Canadian Press). — Hedging sales held off long enough yesterday to permit wheat prices to recuperate a little, and at the close of an unsettled session the principal grains all rested at a slightly higher level.

Both here and abroad the start was dilatory, but buyrs found wheat attractive at 1.24 for the December, and Chicago rallied simultaneously with Liverpool, Winnipeg, and Buenos Aires. Canadian wheat was rolling into market rapidly, with 336 cars at Winnipeg, and inquiry drew response from Germany that there would be wheat for export there soon. On the other hand, one market critic averred that the trade had already discounted the Canadian market movement at present prices. Country deliveries in the Prairie Provinces on Wednesday were 2,710,000 bushels, compared with 257,000 bushels last year. Still receipts were regarded by some houses as lighter than expected, and some felt that with farmers holding their wheat, an advance in future quotations would give a strong impetus to receipts. The forecast of unsettled weather in Western Canada was a strengthening factor at Winnipeg, and showers were looked for in northern Minnesota by Friday evening. Rain, however, was not feared as a menace to the crop, but as hindrance to deliveries. Wheat closed half to ⅞ higher, September 120, December 114⅞ to 115, March 119½ to 119⅝, and May 121⅞. The seaboard reported 1,000,000 bushels of wheat taken for export.

Local pressure sent corn down after a firm opening, but strong cash prices led the September future back to shore and the later months trailed. The cash basis was unchanged to one cent higher. Cool and unsettled weather over the corn belt and light offerings had a strengthening influence, corn finishing a shade to 1 cent higher, September 93⅞ to 94, December 75 to 75½, March 77⅝, and May 79⅝.

Oats steadied with other grains, ending ¼ higher for September at 38⅜.

Provisions steady, ribs unchanged bellies up 10 cents, and lard 5 to 7 cents higher, September 12.65.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—Butter prices scored a further advance of a quarter-cent to a half-cent in the Toronto wholesale market yesterday, finest No. 1 creamery moving within a general range of 39¼c to 39¾c a pound for supplies, delivered in Toronto. No 2 creamery was also firmer at 37½c to 38½c, on the same delivery basis. Even higher prices were

Glaring Headlights

Night Time Terror of the Roads

Learn How To Test Headlights

Send a postcard to the Department of Highways, Toronto, and you will receive, without cost, complete and detailed instructions.

If you will follow these instructions carefully you can quickly get your headlights in focus.

Glaring headlights make a motor vehicle a danger to its own driver and a terror to the drivers it meets. When headlights glare, other drivers are prevented from seeing the offending vehicle or other cars.

Headlights glare because one or both of them are out of focus. Any good garage mechanic can adjust them. A driver can do it himself if he will follow simple instructions.

Test headlights often to be assured they are BOTH in focus. Carry spare bulbs so that you can replace immediately those that break. It is against the law to drive with only one light in front or no light in rear. Traffic officers and municipal police are summoning those who disobey. Night driving must be made safe.

Keep brakes and steering gear in perfect condition. Have your garage man test them often. Your car must always obey instantly. You are responsible if it does not.

Heap into each half a tablespoonful or more of ground seedless raisins and bake for about 20 minutes with a little water in a tightly covered pan. Serve hot or cold with cream.

Questions and Answers.

Question: J. L. asks: "Can a person be anemic and have high blood pressure at the same time?"

Answer: It is possible to have anemia and high blood pressure at the same time, as high blood pressure is caused either by hypertension of the arteries, or due to hardening of the arterial walls. Anemia is a condition where there is a lack of red blood cells and hemoglobin.

Question: W. H. J. asks: "What is a pignolia?"

Answer: A pignolia is the same as the pine nut, a seed of the pine tree which is frequently used in confectionery and eaten raw, roasted and salte as are other nuts. Most of them are imported from Italy, Spain and France, but some excellent varieties are raised in Mexico and the western states. They are an excellent food, rich in protein and fats and may be used as the principal part of a protein meal.

Question: R. S. asks: "Will you please explain what is meant by an internal bath? One woman I know is drinking a quart of warm water night and morning, and another is using two quarts of warm water as an enema night and morning. Which is correct? Also, is a warm tub-bath all right when one hasn't a shower?"

Answer: When the term "internal bath" is used it usually refers to a washing of the colon by what is otherwise known as an enema. It is true that one can wash out the stomach by drinking large quantities of water, but this has a very different effect upon the intestines, as the water is absorbed mostly in the stomach. You can arrange a very satisfactory shower by securing one of the shower attachments which connects with your bathtub faucet. A shower can then be taken while sitting or squatting in the tub. It is better to use cool or cold water, as the warm water is always enervating.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HAVE GALL

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

We speak of an impudent person with brazen assurance and insufferable effrontery as "fresh," as having a lot of gall or nerve. The Englishman calls it cheek.

Ignorance and bad manners account for a great deal of cheek and gall, especially in the cruder and more pronounced forms. Inherent selfishness is at the bottom of it, unbridled selfishness that has not been tempered by culture.

However, there are subtle manifestations of this attitude that are more accurately described by egoism than by selfishness. The egoist is not necessarily selfish in the worst sense. He is more likely to be self-centered. And all of us are self-centered to some extent.

In so far as the average person exhibits cheek or gall he is prompted by his self-assertive impulses; to see what he can get away with, to dominate a person or situation, to show off, to get something for himself.

The desire to secure recognition from our fellows accounts for a great many of our acts as it does for a certain type of checkiness. Some people can get recognition in no other way. Hence they intrude and otherwise make themselves conspicuous.

It is not easy to draw the line between legitimate self-assertiveness and the thing we call gall or nerve. Frequently it is merely a difference in the point of view. What tothe outsider looks cheeky is interpreted by the person in question as simply standing for his rights.

Of course the gall that most of us exhibit is merely the misinterpreted intention of looking out for our own interests. We have no desire to offend or defraud another as the vulgar person is said to do when he is cheeky.

Why do you do what you do? Write Dr. Thomson, care of this paper, and send stamped envelope for reply.

A Statement that cannot be successfully challenged

In the Better Homes of every nation Eno's "Fruit Salt" is recognized as the finest, safest and most pleasant aid to good health.

In the Better Hotels and Camps, on Trains and Steamships, in the equipment of experienced travellers and tourists, everywhere you will usually find a bottle of Eno's "Fruit Salt." These people know that Eno keeps the system free from those irregularities which often arise from change of climate, food and water.

In the Better Schools and Colleges students of both sexes, the world over, take the regular morning glass of Eno's "Fruit Salt." For Eno, besides being a pleasant and refreshing beverage, gently, safely assists nature, keeping the body alert and the mind keen.

Anywhere — Everywhere there is more Eno's "Fruit Salt" used than any other health beverage. This is because for 60 years Eno, surely and pleasantly has made possible that inner cleanliness which means so much to physical and mental health.

There are many imitations—but only one

SUB CREW BURIED.

Men of L55, Sunk in 1919 By Russians, Laid in Naval Cemetery.

PORTSMOUTH, England, September 7. Canadian Press. — With full naval ceremony, the bodies of 41 officers and men of the Submarine L55, which was sunk by the Russians in the Baltic, in June, 1919, were buried in the naval cemetery here to-day.

the higher life, in our business and our city life. I would not belittle the farmer's work nor the city man's industrial life, but if these things alone fill our lives, then we are getting downward instead of upward. Look beyond the smokestack to the parks, educational movements, and such.

"It is a good thing that we are trying to show our children the beauty of education, but we should bring to them the glories and the beauties of life as well, for we've got to lift up the people of our community.

"This life of ours will be measured by the kind of boys and girls which the city will send out into the world."

"To be his city's keeper, is the task wherever one may live. In 1607, thirteen years before the Mayflower set sail for America, a small company of men sought from the King and were granted certain trading rights. They came out, suffered the winter, and turned again homeward.

"But thirteen years later came those on the 'Mayflower,' determined to remain and build a great nation. They stayed.

"It depends a great deal what the motives are behind our business, and I would that we should be aware of what our heritage has cost in hardship and bloodshed, and should build and live useful lives on those foundations, built by a generation that has lived, has served and has died."

Quoting the words of Sir John Marriott, "I believe I see in the making, the capital of the world Empire here in Ontario and Canada. I am staggered at the future of this conception," Mr. Cuttle went on: "This is the land in which we live and you and I will make it something lower or something higher in things worth while.

"Living in a glorious land, let us live gloriously—in a grand city, let us make our lives and our city grander. Take with you the portent of a famous Japanese admiral's message which said, 'After a thousand different thoughts, one purpose.' Make your one purpose to lift those with whom you associate to a higher life worthy of Canadians. Live grandly and gloriously!"

OPENS FUND FOR MICHEL

Andrew D. MacLean Gives $1,000 To Supplement Prize Money.

DISTRIBUTION UNFAIR.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 7. (Special) —Indignant that Georges Michel, the gallant Frenchman, who swam for three hours after he was almost all in, "for the honor of his country," was awarded only $2500, Andrew D. Maclean, commanding officer of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, has started a fund for the French swimmer with a cheque for $1000.

"It is obviously unfair to Michel to think that he should stay in the water that much longer arriving to pass Vierkoetter's mark, and then receive nothing more than if he had quit even sooner than the German,"

"I do not think that the distribution as arranged by the Sports Committee, reflects the wishes of the people of Toornto. I believe that the people think that the Frenchman should receive something more than the others and for this reason I want to give the public a chance to right the wrong that has been done to him," he said.

Three Enter Consolation.

TORONTO, Sept. 7. — Canadian Press. — According to an announcement made to-day by officials of the Canadian National Exhibition, the aquatic committee will hold two three-mile swims to-morrow afternoon. These will be in the nature of "consolation races," one event for those who were awarded money and the other for those who competed but received no money.

The only entries for the first event are George Young, Toronto; Norman Ross, Chicago, and William Erickson New York. Vierkoetter and Michel have definitely stated that they would not enter the race.

Prize money amounting to $3000 will be awarded the winners, but details of the distribution are lacking. Mr. Maclean said.

SCHOOL ENTRIES ALREADY CHOSEN

Already the schools of the city and district are choosing their best runners for the events at the Exhibition grounds on Tuesday. Confederation School leads the list, with the names in the hands of G. H. Roper, who is in charge of the sports to-day. This school will be represented by the following:

Boys ten and under, Walter Wood, Ernest Hanson and Alfred Johnson.

Boys eleven and twelve, George Martin, George Rutherford, Kenneth Wood.

Girls, ten and under, Helen Langtob, Lillian Barnes, and Olga McMillan.

Girls, eleven and twelve, Dorothy Leeson.

½ ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas, or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

zinc sulphides. In addition to copper and zinc, some gold and silver values were found, the whole making an average value of approximately $27 a ton.

Lateral work carried out during the last few months has disclosed the extension of the deposit east of the dyke. This has already been drifted on for a length of 250 feet, making with what had already been located in the west, a total length of over 700 feet of splendid grade ore. In addition to the main deposit it is known there are at least two paralleling bodies, but the lateral extremities of these are as yet unknown.

Probably the most outstanding information coming from the mine is the official confirmation given recently of the downward continuation of the main body with indicated widths at least equal to those of the upper levels. The precious metal content of this ore is higher at lower horizons and it is now apparent that this will bring total values considerably higher.

Mine ore reserves have been officially announced as more than 1,000,000 tons, which will be seen from the grade of ore as something like $30,000,000.

The foundations for the 200-ton concentrator are now being laid, and it is anticipated that a concentrate running better than $60 a ton will be made. Several test shipments of ore have been made from this mine and from these it is seen that a net profit of at least $12 a ton will be derived. However this should be increased considerably should the C.N.R. decide to run a spur line into the property from Dupuy. We understand two officials of the C.N.R. and a consulting engineer are at the Abana property to determine whether or not this spur line will be built. In any event, should they decide against it, undoubtedly the road will be conditioned by the Quebec government and large tractors will be used in hauling the concentrates to rail. It is estimated the cost of this should not exceed $1.50 to the ton.

Everything on the property is rapidly assuming the proportions of a real producing mine. A new hoist has been installed and a new 550 h.p. Diesel engine is now on its foundations. This original power unit will take care of six machines, including pumping necessities. All the machinery for the concentrator is on the ground and construction is proceeding as circumstances warrant. This is being constructed so that should enlargements be necessary, further units may be added. A second Diesel engine will supply power for the mill unit. Everything will be electrically driven, the two Diesel engines supplying the motive power for the motors.

Despite the limited facilities available to a property so far from railhead many years' profitable operation is obvious, and from present indications everything is in the mine's favor that future development work will prove up ore greatly in excess of presently indicated reserves.

AMULET AND AREA.

We have advice from Rouyn that the drift in Amulet's "C" orebody has now been driven for a length of 65 feet. The first 20 feet is massive chalcopyrite, running approximately 20 per cent. copper, the second 20 feet is high grade chalcopyrite with a small amount of zinc, while the last 25 feet is massive zinc and chalcopyrite of about equal proportions.

We understand that the Area drill is being moved again, and that Mr. J. C. MacGregor, who had so much success at Amulet, has returned from the west to study the geology of this property.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Sept. 7.— McIntyre is reported to have struck the south ore, near the Hollinger line, at the 2,375. The ore, as on the three levels above, is very rich but patchy. The long end-to-end drive at the 3,075 has advanced about 1,200 feet now. An average of 42-45,000 tons monthly is being worked toward. Ighitly greater tonnage may be had in temporary limits. Recovery continues to be the highest in Porcupine. McIntyre is one mine that has gone up in grade now being well over nine dollars.

Bidgood has started drilling on its new showing, 600 feet north of the Moffatt Hall line, and toward the east centre of the property. Here free gold has been found in a closely spaced series of narrow veins and veinlets of graphitic quartz, the whole property probably making ore over the surface shown width of 22 feet.

Advice from Rouyn is to the effect that the drift in Amulet's "C" ore body has been driven now for a length of 65 feet. The first 20 feet is said to be massive chalcopyrite running approximately 20 per cent. copper, the second 20 feet is high grade chalcopyrite with a small amount of zinc, while the last 25 feet is massive zinc and chalcopyrite of about equal proportions.

It is understood that the Area drill is being moved again, and that J. C. MacGregor, formerly of the Amulet and now with Mandy, has returned from the west to study the geology of this property.

Strength in Barry-Hollinger may be attributed to the fact that mine manager Richard Treloar, is now in the city and is expected to make some important announcements soon states a report on the street to-day. Another factor in the rise was from the north which stated that Barry was in very rich ore in a raise from the 1,125-foot level.

Activity in Vipond comes as a result of a report which states that slashing at the 700-foot level has shown the width of the vein to be at least 17 feet. Previously reported grade was about $8.50 but the present report states that values have increased considerably.

Despite the illness of J. B. Tyrell, mine manager of the Kirkland Lake Gold, it is said that he left for the property last night and that news of development may be expected very shortly. This company is at an important stage of development and Mr. Tyrell's theory that the two rich zones on the property converge at around 2,000 feet depth will hinge upon the results of the next few days.

A despatch from Amos states that a rich strike has been made on the Bosquet property, which adjoins the Thompson-Cadillac. No further details were given. Officials of the company could not be reached at the time of writing but official news will be forthcoming shortly.

An electrical survey has been completed on the property of Brett-Trethewey in Clifford Township. A wide mineralized zone has been traced across the property and encouraging values in copper have been obtained. The electrical survey was undertaken with the idea of determining the best point at which this might be attacked.

Favorable Progress at Wright-Hargreaves

Wright-Hargreaves Mines has driven 150 feet on the easterly extension of the north vein at the 1250 foot level. This is reported to be an excellent grade of ore running $11 to the ton. Both shafts are now completed to the 2,000 foot level. After stations are completed and the shaft continued, crosscuts will be started from both shafts to connect them. When the two main veins which are 500 feet apart are encountered, drifting will be carried forward. During the sinking of the north shaft, a high grade vein entered it at the 1975 foot level, believed to be the north vein. Only a part of the vein came in, but it is showing splendid grade, with considerable free gold. The higher millheads previously reported are being maintained, with treatment of 700 to 750 tons daily.

Premier Gold Mines

The high grade shoot opened up three weeks ago to the south of the main zone on Premier Gold Mines has already been proved for 70 feet length, ten feet wide and 60 feet deep, averaging $100 per ton. No ore has been found yet in the 6th or lowest level. Above this, however, there is 450,000 tons of $15 broken ore in the stopes and apparently sufficient ore yet to be broken down to maintain the 800 ton mill for some years to come. Meanwhile, the company's various subsidiaries are coming along well and promise to maintain Premier's output for a much longer period.

Barcelona Declares Dividend on Preferred Stock.

The Barcelona Traction Light and Power Company has declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾% ($1.75 per share) in respect of the fixed dividend of 7% per annum on the non-comulative, participating preference shares, payable October 1st to shareholders of record at the close of business on September 21st.

Imperial Tobacco Ex-Rights Friday

The ordinary shares of Imperial Tobacco will go ex-rights to the 20 per cent. stock onus next Friday and in the meantime the level for the shares, "cum bonus" is around 11. On Friday the stock will sell off approximately the value of the rights but the possibility of the market remaining this ground is good. A purchaser of the stock around current levels will get one new share for each five shares held, an average cost of from $9.15 to $9.20, bringing down the investment per share and increasing the income yield.

Increase in Gross and Net of Jamaica Public Service

For the twelve months ending July 31 last gross earnings of Jamaica Public Service Company, Limited were $703,656 as compared with $675,324 for the preceding year. The net earnings amounted to $292,033 as compared with $275,487 for the immediately preceding twelve months. The surplus after charges amounted to $224,286 for the year ending July 31, while for the preceding year it amounted to $201,728. In the month of July alone similar increases were noted, the gross earnings being $55,646, as compared with $54,738 for July 1927. Similarly the net earnings had increased fr $20,032 in July 1927 to $21,806 in July 1928. The surplus after charges in July stood at $16,466 as compared with $13,958 in the same month of 1927.

XX—A HAPPY DREAM

When Mrs. Kiff went in the following morning to draw Sally's curtains and take her a cup of tea, she found the girl already wideawake. As a rule Sally was a sleepy-head in the morning and resented being roused, so Mrs. Kiff stared in open-eyed astonishment.

"Guilty conscience, I'll be bound," was her first triumphant thought. She was sure that Sally and Sanderson had quarrelled badly the night before; therefore it was rather disquieting to meet Sally's bright eyes and happy smile.

"Couldn't you sleep?" Mrs. Kiff demanded tartly.

"Never slept better in my life," Sally answered serenely. "For the first time for weeks you didn't wake me with your snoring."

"Snoring, indeed!" Mrs. Kiff jerked back the curtains with an irate hand, letting in a burst of spring sunshine. "I've never been known to snore in all my life!" she declared indignantly.

"The garden smells like the Garden of Eden, that it does!" she said with one of her unusual outbursts of eloquence.

Sally giggled.

"How do you know?" she asked with sarcasm. "You never told me before that your name was Eve."

Mrs. Kiff drew her head in quickly. "Well, at all events I wasn't the serpent," she said flatly. "And what's the matter with you, anyway, that you're so bright and early this morning?"

She stood with her arms akimbo, staring at the girl with disapproval that struggled with affection.

"I ain't seen you look so well for weeks," she admitted reluctantly.

Sally flushed faintly without knowing why. It was true that she had not had such a good night for years; true also that she was feeling happier than she had done ever since Philip brought her to Ash Hill. She had slept soundly and dreamlessly, and had awakened feeling rested and good-tempered.

"The Lord alone knows why!" she thought blankly. She never connected her change of feeling with anything Philip had said or done; she would have suggested that her peaceful state of mind was owing to the new pact of friendship made between them.

"And you've got to get a move on you," she told Mrs. Kiff severely. "We're going to have early visitors."

"Oh, hare we?" When Mrs. Kiff was unusually perturbed she was always generous with her aspirates.

"If it's that vicar——" she threatened.

"Well, it isn't," Sally interrupted. "It's Mr. Sanderon and Sometimes—at least, I hope it will be Sometimes as well," she added wistfully. "Philip went back last night to fetch him, and we're going to nurse him down here and take him out in the chair with me."

Mrs. Kiff stared. She wanted to be sarcastic and disagreeable, and say it all only meant extra work for her, but there was something so happy and contented about Sally's face that her heart failed her. She cynically suggested that the cottage should at once be turned into a nursing home, and went off to get breakfast. But she also "got a move on," as Sally had warned her, and by half-past nine Sally was dressed and installed in her long chair in the little front garden, and there was a special bone cooked and set aside to cool for Sometimes, and fresh flowers had been put in the sitting-room and in Philip's bed-room.

Sally superintended everything herself from the garden.

"I'm mistress here, and don't you forget it," she said when once Mrs. Kiff raised her voice in protest; then she settled her golden head comfortably into the pillows and prepared to watch the white road for the first sign of Philip's car.

He came before ten o'clock, driving more slowly than usual, and for a moment Sally's heart almost stood still as she tried to make up her mind that the worst must have happened; but as Sanderson drew nearer she saw that he was smiling, and when he waved his hand to her she gave a great sigh of relief.

Sometimes could not be dead, or Sanderson would never have smiled; Sometimes must be a little better, or she was sure that Sanderson would not have come at all.

When he reached the gate and stopped the engine he called to her:

"I've got him. He's better."

Sudden tears welled to Sally's eyes.

"Oh, I am glad!" she breathed fervently.

She really was glad; since last night she had understood what a very real tragedy the death of the dog would have been to Sanderson. She watched with glistening eyes while he lifted Sometimes gently from the seat beside him; a poor, broken-looking Sometimes, tenderly wrapped in an old coat of his master's; a pathetic-looking Sometimes, who yet managed to feebly wag a whip-like tail when he saw Sally and heard her voice.

"I think he's better. I really think he's better," he said anxiously.

In the sane light of morning he was almost afraid of Sally and of last night's memories. Was she thinking what a fool he had been? Was she once more ready to jeer at him? He looked at her with scared eyes. But Sally was smiling through undoubted tears as, with one hand gently caressing the dog's head, she looked up at his master.

Last night you kissed me," she said shyly.

Sanderson flushed crimson.

"I thought perhaps—last night was different," he said awkwardly.

"Try!" she whispered; so Sanderson bent his tall head and kissed her, much to the mingled chagrin and delight of Mrs. Kiff who arrived at the door that moment with the bone for Sometimes in her rough hand.

"I've never known such sunshine," Sally said at least half a dozen times while Sanderson pushed her invalid chair down the leafy lanes and over rough footpaths where only strong and skilful hand could have manipulated the ruts and narrow turnings without causing unnecessary pain to the two invalids.

Sometimes was perfectly happy, also. Now and again he turned a languid head and licked Sally's hand, glancing up apologetically afterwards at his master, towering above him, as if to say, "I'd lick you too, if I were stronger, and you weren't so far away."

They found primroses at the mossy foot of some trees in the woods, and delicate white anemones, and a few spiky bluebells just pushing their way out into the world.

Sally was as excited as a child over the primroses.

"I've never seen them growing wild before," she told Sanderson delightedly. "I've only seen them in bunches in the Piccadilly flower-girls' baskets. Oh, don't they smell just—wonderful!"

"They are wonderful," Sanderson said in his gruff voice; but his eyes were upon Sally and Sometimes, the two creatures he loved best in the world—the only two whom he loved.

They went back to late lunch, and afterwards, because the sun was still warm, Mrs. Kiff allowed them to have tea in the garden.

"But only just this once, mind you!" she threatened. "And you'll go to bed directly afterwards, mind," she added, shaking a warning finger at Sally.

But Sally rebelled.

"I won't! I needn't—need I, Philip?"

It was the first time she had ever appealed to him in just that sort of way, and the blood beat up into his dark face, and his heart seemed to miss a beat for sheer happiness.

"If you're very good you may stay up an hour later tonight," he said whimsically.

He was almost afraid to speak, almost afraid to move for fear he should wake up and find he had only dreamed this happy day. He was ashamed because he distrusted Sally; try as he would, he could not rid himself of the feeling that perhaps she was just being kind to him for some reason of her own which would presently transpire and spoil everything. He kept looking at her from beneath his heavy brows with pitiful suspicion. How long was he to be kept waiting? How soon would she shatter his dream?

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1928.

Until late today the planetary government is unfortunate, according to astrology, which reads in the horoscope certain evil omens.

It is especially unfavorable to women who may be exacting and unreasonable while this rule prevails. Husbands should exercise patience and diplomacy.

This is read as rather an unlucky wedding day since it presages extravagance on the part of the wife and failure to grasp financial questions.

Actresses of stage and screen may find this direction of the stars rather trying, since it awakens aspirations that may never be realized.

There is a sign that seems to presage a new interest in beauty of diction and quality of voice. This will extend to new exactions for stage and screen.

Speech will occupy extraordinary attention at this time when oratory will take on an added significance and will outweigh the written word in importance.

While this configuration prevails the wise will avoid dealings with banks, if they desire any sort of favors. It is not a lucky day for those who seek loans.

Editors and writers may be extraordinarily captious and critical under this sway. It is not an auspicious day for seeking free publicity.

The evening is read as auspicious for public meetings and for promoting personal popularity.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather an interesting experience in new friendships during the coming year. These subjects of Virgo are apt to be exacting regarding family and social prestige.

Children born on this day may be restless and desirous of frequent change. They are usually capable of carrying out all their plans, even though they appear visionary. They should be endowed with good looks and fine manners.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Today's Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE GRASSHOPPER

Once upon a time, as I have told you before, the Fox and Wolf asked the Bald Eagle to catch Uncle Wiggily for them, as they thought the big bird was very clever. So he was, though he wasn't exactly bald-headed. It was only white feathers on his topknot that made him look that way.

And while the Bald Eagle was flying toward the bungalow of the rabbit gentleman, with the Fox and Wolf following on the ground, ready to nibble when they got the chance, Uncle Wiggily was out in front cutting the grass.

Mr. Longears had mowed most of his lawn when, all of a sudden, he heard a voice chirp something about cutting off legs.

"What was that you said, and who are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who,

"Well, here I am!" the Eagle screamed.

"I am a Grasshopper," was the answer. "I'm down here in this grass you are cutting and, as I said, you nearly nipped off my legs."

"Oh, I'm so sorry for that!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "I had much rather let my grass grow as high as the church steeple, than nip even the legs of a Grasshopper. Please crawl out where I can see you."

So the Grasshopper crawled up the handle of the lawn mower and truly he was a fine green jumping chap, with long, hind legs which folded up like the hinges of the screen door.

"I'm glad to see you," said Uncle Wiggily to the Grasshopper.

"And I to see you," chirped the insect. "But I had rather not see you here," he added.

"What do you mean?" asked the rabbit.

"Hush!" whispered the Grasshopper. "I smell danger!"

"Where?" asked Mr. Longears.

"In the air! Up there!" and the Grasshopper pointed one of his long, jumping legs at the Bald Eagle circling around in the blue sky.

"What! That bird?" asked the rabbit. "I'm not afraid of him!"

"You had better be," said the Grasshopper. "He has been sent by the Fox and Wolf to get you. I can hear them sneaking along in the tall weeds. You had better run to your bungalow."

"Thank you. I will," said Uncle Wiggily. "You have very sharp ears, Mr. Grasshopper. I promised you some molasses. So if you will come to my bungalow now I'll give it to you."

Being very fond of molasses, the Grasshopper skipped along with Uncle Wiggily and they were soon in the hollow stump bungalow, the bunny saying he could finish, some other time, cutting the grass.

"There! Now Uncle Wiggily has escaped us again!" said the Fox, who, with the Wolf, was hoping the Bald Eagle would catch the rabbit.

"Oh, he can't get away from me as easily as that," screamed the big bird. "I see he has left one of his bungalow windows open. I'll fly in that, catch him in my strong claws and fly out with him."

"Good!" cried the Fox and Wolf, though I think it was rather bad. But no matter about that. In through the window soared the Bald Eagle, most impolitely interrupting Uncle Wiggily, who was asking the Grasshopper how he liked his molasses, whether on bread or butter.

"Well, here I am!" screamed the Eagle, not even seeing the hopper insect because of looking so hungrily at the rabbit. "Here I am!"

"So I see, to my sorrow," answered Uncle Wiggily. "I should have closed my window."

"I'm going to carry you out to be nibbled!" went on the bird. But just then the brave Grasshopper jumped off the back of a rocking chair and landed on the head of the Bald Eagle. "Oh, what a ticklish feeling," cried the bird as the Grasshopper crawled on his bald head. "Burr-r-r! How funny it feels!"

The Grasshopper, whom the Eagle could not see, kept on crawling around and tickling the bald head of the screaming bird until at last he could stand it no longer.

"Excuse me!" screamed the Eagle to Uncle Wiggily. "I must go to the barber shop and get something to stop this tickling. I'll carry you off in my claws tomorrow!" And out of the window flew the Eagle as the Grasshopper jumped down. The insect had saved the rabbit and all was well. Mr. Longears was very thankful.

LYRICS OF LIFE

BACK IN SCHOOL

When school let out in June how glad
The children were! No more than Dad.
For school keeps children mighty busy
And Dad's not very happy, is he?
But when the days of school were past
Dad rubbed his hands and said, "At last!"
But Mother, also rather lonely,
Said, "Well, perhaps," and said that only.

For matters didn't work the way
Dad thought they would that summer's day.
A weekend there, a party yonder,
So summers wane and children wander.
To someone's cottage they drive down
While Father has to stick in town.
And Mother's footsteps echo sadly
Through rooms that need the children badly.

But summer's over, school is here,
And house and home take on new cheer.
They're buying books and talking courses,
Not tennis, golf and riding-horses.
They've turned the whole house upside down,
But anyway they're all in town.
They're back in school, and now, God love 'em,
Perhaps we'll see a little of 'em.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

This dinner frock reflecting the present tendency for greater fullness and closer drapery is of cherry-colored georgette.

Never, never were women's clothes more colorful, and though some of the well-known French dressmakers still make some of their most interesting models in black satin, they are all using colors more lavishly than ever before. And for evening wear it is the more substantial colors, like cherry, bright blue, green and the new reddish brown called vanilla that they seem to favor.

Greens are still favored. A lovely rich tone called Veronese green is used for afternoon and evening. Premet uses a new light mint shade and revives bottle green. Doeuillet-Doucet—who you know have recently combined—is showing a new blue precisely like our Yale blue for afternoon and evening. A dull dark blue called night blue is shown by a number of the dressmakers, and there are various steel blues given special prominence by Lelong.

Lelong also uses raspberry for many evening gowns and there is every reason to believe that these luscious fruity reds will be extremely important for autumn and winter evening wear.

And beige has reappeared. It has been mentioned repeatedly in word received of the French collections and seems to have won back any ground lost to gray in the warmer months. Vanilla, the much-talked-about new tone for autumn, sometimes assumes a real beige hue. In fact, vanilla doesn't seem to be a single tone but a whole range of them.

Before one of the windows of a prominent shop recently women—and men aplenty—stopped to look at three test tubes adroitly displayed in the foreground before two or three recent importations in the new vanilla tones. The test tubes contained nothing more nor less than extract of vanilla showing up as the light struck through them the fact that vanilla has innumerable possibilities. And unless you happened to be one of those who stopped to gaze, I advise you to go to your kitchen and get out the vanilla bottle and gaze at it in the light—because then you will have an excellent opportunity to fix in your mind the possibilities of this color which I venture to say will be most important for autumn and winter.

TURBANED HIPS

The swathed hipline gives way to the turbaned one. Burnt orange and soft brown blend to fashion the turbaned hipline of a brown satin, with front panels of both colors swinging free.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

NOW that school is well under way for another term, wouldn't it be a good idea for parents to adopt the plan suggested by a reader who says they should keep up with their children. "I have started," she says, "to do the same homework as my children do, and I find it very interesting.

• • • • • • •

I believe that by doing this I will understand them better and they will know me better. Then, too, it makes homework like a game when mother joins in—and I'll be avoiding that fear of all parents, falling behind the youngsters.

• • • • • • •

Of course, it's hard work. I haven't done such sums in years, and my mental processes are all rusty. I have stopped half a dozen time a day to practice so that I would not show up poorly at night.

• • • • • • •

It seems to me, however, that this is just another proof that I need the exercise!"

• • • • • • •

I think the idea is very good, Mrs. T., if one has the stamina to keep up the work. One must be careful not to start with too great a fuss, in case one has to stop. The starting and stopping would not be a good example for the children.

• • • • • • •

I think all of us recognize the need for a directed course of study to keep our mentalities alive and active. There are, of course, good correspondence courses, but it strikes me that you plan would be a very good substitute if for any reason one did not wish to take a course.

• • • • • • •

Another correspondent asks me for an idea on how to make money at home. I know of several women who have started little home businesses that have been successful, but I hesitate to paint too glowing pictures for fear someone else trying the schemes might not be so successful.

• • • • • • •

One woman, for instance, made patchwork quilts that sold for good prices—so good that the returns kept the house while her husband was ill. Cheap remnants and discarded clothing supplied the material; the designs came from her fertile mind, anu all the work was done on a sewing machine equipped with ruffler and all othe accessories.

• • • • • • •

Rag mats brought nice returns to another woman. She made them from her own designs, and sold them to her acquaintances, who were glad to get them.

• • • • • • •

It seems to me a similar plan might be worked with the new apparatus seen at Toronto Exhibition last week. A handy needle carries the rags, and stamped bases can be obtained cheaply.

• • • • • • •

I have heard of women who have solved their problem of making money by means of shampooing, hair-dressing, and various beauty treatments. In nearly every neighborhood, even in a city as small at Peterborough, there should be room for someone to make a little extra money this way.

• • • • • • •

One of the women now keeps two or three appointments in her neighborhood every day and still has plenty of time for her home duties.

• • • • • • •

Many mothers, you know, dislike to take their children to barber shops, and are really delighted to give the work to come competent person who will come into their houses to do it.

• • • • • • •

Almost any fastidious woman can give a shampoo satisfactorily, and the cutting and trimming of children's hair may be learned in a few weeks at one of the schools. In fact, some mothers have gained considerable skill merely through practice with their own children.

• • • • • • •

None of these things may be what my correspondent desires. I shall be glad to learn from others how they earn their pin-money.

• • • • • • •

Camiknickers, that combine knickers and camisole in one garment, are gaining favor, and many women prefer this type of undergarment to any other for wear with street and sports clothes. This week's help for the home dressmaker gives a diagram pattern for one of these new bits of lingerie, and on receipt of your coupon I will send you a copy at once.

2 quarts green tomatoes.
2 quarts cucumbers and 2 quarts onions put through the food chopper.
Salt separately overnight.
In the morning add 2 quarts cooked corn off the cobs.
Make a dressing of 1 quart vinegar.
4 cups brown sugar.
2 teaspoons celery seed.
½ teaspoon tumeric.
½ teaspoon mustard.
½ cup flour.
Cook and pour over the pickles and continue cooking until a golden yellow.

MARION'S MAIL.

Senorita: A great many girls have your trouble—they can't think of anything to say when they want to keep up a conversation. There are two things for you to do. First, try to make conversation by finding out what the other person is interested in. Then talk about that. The other thing you can do is to make notes on everything that interests you yourself. Jot these notes down in a book every night. These notes can be about all kinds of things—what you read in a newspaper, what you hear and what you think. Then before you go out anywhere glance over your notes. One trouble with you is that you can't think of the thing you want at the right time. You have plenty of things in your head to talk about, but you can't get at them when you want them. Probably you often remember afterwards something that you might have said. Your notebook will help you to remember before instead of after. I wonder if you are thoughtful of the other girls and if you try to add to their pleasure as much as you can. Or are you wondering all the time what they are thing of you? Suppose you try for one week not to think about yourself at all but simply to see how many things you can do and how many things you can say that will help or cheer up somebody else. You know everybody is looking for friends. The way to make yourself wanted is to be a friend. Try it and then write me and tell me how it works.

V. L.: Thin scrawny hands need to be massaged with a fattening cream. You may use cocoa butter or almond oil. First wash the hands with warm water, and then massage from the finger tips backward toward the wrist. If this treatment is pursued daily you will note a great improvement in a couple of weeks.

Olga: I have written for the information you ask, and will send it to you when received.

A Tip or Two

Dark purple and violet tones will be smart for formal wraps this fall.

Persian lamb and krimmer will again be favorites in the curly haired furs this fall.

SCARF RINGS

A new piece of jewelry is the scarf ring, an ornamental ring through which the kerchief slips, instead of knotting. New fall frocks made wide use of it, sometimes to hold self-scarf collars. One beige satin uses a gold ring to hold a lace kerchief.

CREW NECKS

Autumn sweaters show wide use of the crew neck, or other close fitting necklines. One pale green angora has a crocheted string run through and tied in a little bow in front.

That one of this year's prettiest court debutantes was Miss Nancy Beaton, kin of the Lady Mary, Queen of Scots, and her crinoline frock of white tulle and each flounce was powdered with tiny silver stars, and the skirt was attached to a tight-fitting sleeveless corsage of silver, while her train was of flounced tulle powdered also with silver stars.

That judging from the advance collections of evening dresses presented to date in New York, formal frocks have definitely taken to irregular hemlines, and they are offered in variety, with dipping length manifested at the sides and back, skirt fronts still sponsoring a length that is just below the knee.

POST'S BED BUG POISON.

Post's Bed Bug Poison is composed of carbolic acid, Methyl Hydrate and Corrosive sublimate. When this preparation is used according to directions it is sure death to bed bugs, cockroaches and insects of all descriptions. Two or three applications are all that is necessary, but as it is very poisonous, this preparation should be kept out of reach of children.

Royals Must Play Third Game With Lizzies

ROYALS LOSE 3-2 DECISION BY AN ERROR

Hartley Drops Ball With Two On in Final Inning.

TIGHT CONTEST.

Probably Play Third Game at Oshawa On Saturday.

A dead-lock at 2-all—an extra innings with the Petes retired in their half—two of the enemy sluggers down and two on the paths—then a hard drive that caused Hartley his first, and a very excusable error. Thus came about the 3-2 defeat of the Peterborough Royals when they met Toronto Elizabeths at Stanley Park, Toronto, in the return game of the Provincial Junior semi-finals yesterday afternoon, and thus was made necessary a third game, probably at Oshawa, to decide which of the two teams will meet Walkerville in the O.B.A.A. Junior finals. A peach of a battle to win, and by the same token, a tough struggle to lose.

Petes Looked Good.

In defeat the Petes looked every bit as good as the Lizzies, and with Holmes travelling steadily, if not spectacularly, turned in a better nine-man battle. Levinsky, the portly flinger for the Stanley Park outfit, stood out like a sore thumb for the winners, having no less than nine strike-outs and walking three, but at that, he was nicked for five good hits, while his team-mates were garnering seven, and the fact that the Petes played their chances for what they were worth is proved by their six runners left on bases as compared with the eleven of the enemy, and two errors as compared with the Lizzies' three. Particularly encouraging was the work of the outfield, Hope accepting five chances without an error; Beavis flagging three from the ceiling, and L. Hollingsworth having an idle afternoon. Not a fly came his way all afternoon. In keeping with the garden rangers, Jones, Hartley, Red Hollingsworth and Gordon being responsible for a total of seventeen put-outs and nine assists. Holmes and Gordon did the rest, having four strike-outs down on the books.

However, any team that's good enough to outscore the Royals with that performance must be good, and such were the Elizabeths. Levinsky certainly was their chief stock in trade, not only on the defensive but with the willow as well, and his fellow henchmen showed a knowledge and inclination to support him both at the swat dish and out. Caplan, Eckler, Samuels and Miller were an unusual faculty for getting in the way of Holmes' slants.

Tough for Holmes.

The fact that both teams went scoreless in all save two of the ten sessions, and that there was but one extra base hit (though Hatton's looked good while it lasted) truthfully indicates a lot of good twirling, with Holmes mixing and scattering the fruits of the opposition's bats save in the third. He had forced Caplan, head of the batting order, to lift a high one to Hartley when Eisen shot one through short to the left garden. Then came Samuel's mighty clout that scored the runner and landed him on third—a sacrifice fly by Miller did the rest and Levinsky's long fly to Beavis retired the side.

Came the tenth, when the winning run was counted. Holmes had had the satisfaction of seeing Samuels go out to Hope only to have a scorching single go to the centre garden from the bat of Miller. The situation was considerably aggravated by Levinsky's presence at the plate and a free ticket averted the danger temporarily, for Jones came in fast on Kramer's grounder, and shot it to first for the second out, but not before runners had advanced. Then with a good chance of an even break, Salsberg got his eye and his stick on the next pitch by Holmes—a dirty grounder at Hartley. Over-anxious, and with a full realization of what the out would mean, he went after it too fast—and that was all. The previous innings, in which there had been no scoring, were brightened by smart fielding work by both outfits.

First Innings.

The Petes, being the visiting outfit, took first pokes and with true hospitality, intentional or otherwise, Levinsky handed Hope, lead-off man, a free ticket to first. The latter took advantage of the confusion caused by H. Hollingsworth and Beavis as they struck out, and went to second. He stole third, and when Doug Hatton drove a nice single to centre gardens, crossed the plate with what was destined to be the Royals' only counter for more than eight ensuing sessions. Hatton was caught trying to steal second, Eckler making a smart through to Miller. Thus the Petes got one run, one hit, with no errors recorded.

Caplan laid down a bunt that he beat to first and advanced to second, when Eisen sacrificed, being thrown out at first by Holmes. Samuels was thrown out, H. Hollingsworth to Gordon, while Beavis pulled down Miller's long fly to centre. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Inning.

L. Hollingsworth flied out to Caplan, in left field; Jones hit through second for a safety, but was caught at second when Miller picked off Hartley's drive an dthrew to Eisen, who covered second. Hartley was safe, but Gordon lifted a long fly to Samuels in right field. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Levinsky led off with a hard drive through second base territory, and went to second, when Kramer lifted one to Hope. Salsberg was hit by the pitcher, but was out at second, when Red Hollingsworth took a [illegible] on a grounder off the bat of Eckler. Gibbel was thrown out, Hollingsworth to Gordon. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Innings.

Holmes flied out to Miller. Hope was safe when Eisen fumbled his grounder but H. Hollingsworth was thrown out, Levinsky to Gibbel and Beavis bounced one into Gibbel's hands. No runs, no hits, 1 error.

Then followed what proves Holmes' single bad inning when the Lizzies got their only runs of the regulation three-quarter dozen. Caplan had flied out to Hartley, when Eisen singled through to left field. Samuel, picking out one that looked made-to-order, drove it for three bases, the only triple of the day, scoring Eisen and placing him in a position to register on Miller's sacrifice fly to left field. Beavis made a nice effort in pulling down Levinsky's sky scraper for the third out. 2 runs, 2 hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Doug. Hatton, first man up for the Royals, lost a possible chance to score later by attempting to stretch a beautiful drive to centre field into a triple, being caught at the red light corner on a nice long heave from Salsberg to Kramer. L. Hollingsworth drew a pass and so did Jones. The former stole third while the latter went to second unchallenged. But Hartley and Gordon struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Kramer was thrown out, Jones to Gordon; Salsberg struck out and Eckler was thrown out, H. Hollingsworth to Gordon. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Holmes struck out. Hope was thrown out, Miller to Gibbel and H. Hollingsworth whiffed. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Gibbel struck out. Caplan sent a hard drive to left for a single, Eisen walked but was out at second when Red Hollingsworth picked off Samuel's grounder. Miller was out, Hartley to Gordon. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Beavis was thrown out, Kramer to Gibbell; Hatton lifted a high one to Eisen and Samuels made a sensational catch of L. Hollingsworth's floater to right. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Beavis robbed Levinsky for the second time during the afternoon when he pulled down the big fellow's high fly. Kramer was hit by Holmes, but the Petes pulled a double play, the first of the day, when Salsberg hit to Hope who ran half way to the street out of the park to make the catch. He returned the ball to Hartley who threw to first, Kramer having overlooked the necessity of touching the first sack before starting out after the fly had been caught. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Jones flied out to Miller; Hartley did the same to Eisen. Gordon drove a scorching single to left field, but Holmes struck out. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Eckler flied out to H. Hollingsworth. Gibbell drew a free ticket and was put out by H. Hollingsworth, who once again took a fielder's choice, this time on Caplan's drive. Eisen was thrown out by Hartley. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Hope shot a single through third base territory and H. Hollingsworth got on through Eisen's error. But lo, alas and bedarned! Eckler threw to second when Hope was taking a long lead, and though the Peterborough boy seemed to have made the bag again, Miller, underneath in the scramble, raised up, lifting him off for a put-out. Beavis struck out and Hatton was thrown out, Eisen to Gibbel. No runs, 1 hit, 1 error.

Red Hollingsworth committed his first error after four put-outs and three assists, when he fumbled Samuel's grounder, but he made up for it a minute later by taking Hatton's perfect throw to tag the runner at second. Not satisfied, Red tore back into the gardens and pulled down Miller's high one for the second out. Holmes did a wise thing by walking Levinsky and Kramer managed to get hit for the second time. Both died on the paths when Salsberg flied out to Hope. No runs, no hits, 1 error.

Ninth Innings.

L. Hollingsworth flied out to Miller, but Jones looked good with a neat single through third, scoring when Hartley hit to left field. Gordon hit into a double when he hit to Eisen, who threw to Miller at second, thereby heading off Hartley. A quick return throw by Miller caught Gordon at first. 1 run, 1 hit, no errors.

Caplan flied out to H. Hollingsworth after Eckler had hit to left field and Gibbel had struck out. Eisen whiffed for the third out. No runs, 1 hit, no errors.

Tenth Innings.

Holmes hit into Gibbel's mitt and Hope struck out. H. Hollingsworth got a life on Miller's error, but was caught between first and second when Levinsky threw to first, catching him on a long lead. Miller and Eisen were also in on the play before Gibbel finally put it on the runner. No runs, no hits, 1 error.

Samuels went out on a long fly to Hope, but Miller hit through to centre field and Levinsky walked. Kramer was thrown out, Jonse to Gordon, leaving two out and runners on second and third. Then Salsberg drove a hot one at Hartley, who committed his first error of the game and the winning run went across the platter, before Jones, who grabbed the lost ball, could throw it to Gordon. 1 run, 1 hit, 1 error.

RAYS STRONG AT THE BAT

Meet Stouffville in First Game of Important Series To-morrow.

AT RIVERSIDE PARK.

In the important series which opens at James Stevenson Park to-morrow afternoon, the Raybestos team will have the best wishes of the fans who have followed the East Peterborough League contests and the O.B.A.A. games. The Rays have been formidable at the bat; their infield is conceded to be one of the best Intermediate inner works in years, and the battery work to date is one of the reasons for the team's proud position as a contender for Ontario honors. Furthermore the players are a lot of likeable chaps who put everything they have into the game. Baseball fans should give the team a bumper crowd at the Riverside ball park to-morrow afternoon.

SAYS TRI-COLOR WILL BE STRONG

Players Expected Back on September 15—Practice Starts 17th.

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—Preparations are being made for the return of the rugby players to Queen's University, and plans have been made for the holding of the first practice on Monday, September 17th, though most of the players will be asked to be in the city on September 15th.

Prospects are exceedingly bright for the Tri-Color's senior squad, while the influx of young players will mean that the junior and intermediate teams should be better than ever.

Regulars Expected.

"Bubs" Britton, captain of the team this year, will be here on the 15th, and it is expected that the following regulars from last year's team also will be ready for the first practice: Warren, Carter, Sutton, Kilgour, Handford, Agnew, Mungovan, Baird and Abbott. In addition Waugh will be ready for the first workout, and Bob Basserman, Jimmie Wright and a few others who were eligible last year, are all set for the coming season. "Irish" Monahan, the star middle wing, will be back on the job, and will plug in the hole left by the graduating of Cliff Howard.

Youngsters.

On top of this there will be several youngsters coming in, including such players as Bob Elliott and Tommy Boyd, and it's going to be a hard job keeping them off the regular lineup.

PETES VS. DELORO GORDON SOCCER CUP

Kick-off Is Scheduled For Three O'clock—Game at King Edward Park.

The first of the local soccer cup ties takes place on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park when the Canadian General eleven play the Deloro aggregation in the G. N. Gordon trophy. Kick-off is scheduled for three o'clock. Referee Alex. McKinley.

In an exhibition game recently the visiting team defeated the select team that represented Peterborough and created a favourable impression with the fans who witnessed the encounter.

The local boys will have to field their best so as to go into the next round, because the Deloro team intend playing their full eleven. They were minus three of their regulars and expect to come to the city at full strength.

Both executives do not know what players will represent them until the time of the kick-off.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Raybestos will play Stouffville and important fixture in James Stevenston Park to-morrow afternoon

Playing good ball against worthy opposition all through the city league baseball season, Riley and Hickey bantam champs for Peterborough enter the finals to-morrow at Toronto against the fast St. Francis crew winners of the western section. The Clothiers have a reliable pitcher in Gatfield and given any kind of support by his teammates this youngster should do well against the Queen City champions.

* * * *

Errors proved costly for the Bridgenorth Wildcats last night when two misplays by the fielders and a wild pitch by the hurler accounted for their 3-2 loss to Harrisons in the softball fixture held at Confederation Park.

* * * *

The game was one of the fastest that has been seen in the square for quite a spell. Len Forsythe, pitching ace for the losers put up a stellar exhibition of hurling, fanning six of the Harrison crew and holding them to four hits. Dundas for the victors did his usual work aided by the air-tight support given by his teammates.

* * * *

Regarding the final play-offs in the O.B.A.A. in the intermediate winner of Peterborough-Stouffville series will meet the victors of Niagara Falls, Leamington-Stratford series. Nickle Belt was given a bye. Depending upon their third game which will most likely be played on Saturday at Oshawa for a winner Toronto-Peterborough will meet Walkerville-Meriton victors. Timmons was given a bye.

* * * *

Peterborough baseball fans will be given an opportunity of sizing up the prospects for next year's senior baseball team when Raybestos go into action against the fast Stouffville team at James Stevenson Park. It is no secret that the officers of the Raybestos Club have been approached with a view to securing the majority of their players or the team intact for the 1929 entry in the Central League. And if the Rays play the baseball they are capable of playing, the fans will not be disappointed.

* * * * * *

Neither Stouffville or Raybestos have lost a game in their O.B.A.A. playdowns. Both clubs are strong in all departments of the game. As the winner of this series goes into intermediate finals, both teams may be depended upon to give everything they have in order to win. The second contest will be played at Stouffville next Wednesday.

* * * * * *

The Stouffville club will arrive in the city early tomorrow morning, and the team will be the guest of the Y.M.C.A. The game will start at three o'clock.

LEAFS TOSS AWAY CHANCE TO LEAD

Double Victory Over Rochester Would Have Meant First Place.

TORONTO, September 7. — Warren Cote, usually a very dependable cog in the Toronto baseball machine, slipped a couple of gears in the second game of yesterday's pastiming with Rochester and prevented the Leafs from walking off with both ends of the doubleheader. Two costly errors by the diminutive shortstop, one a wild peg, permitted three Rochester runners to register at the plate, whereas the side should have been retired. It was a slight lapse on the little infielder's part, and excusable, considering how well he has handled the shortfield position all season. But it was a bad place for the Leafs to toss away a game. The leadership was at stake, and Bill O'Hara's men had a chance to oust the Red Wings from top place and occupy that prominent position themselves.

As it happened the team got an even break, the Leafs winning the first game by 6 to 3, and losing the second by 4 to 2. Rochester still holds first place, but the Leafs moved up a notch when Montreal defeated Buffalo.

Royals Beat Bisons.

BUFFALO, September 7. — The Montreal Royals set off a charge of dynamite under the Bisons pennant chances here yesterday afternoon by staging a four-run rally with one out in the ninth to wipe out Buffalo's advantage of 4 to 1 series and win the opening game of the series 5 to 4. Five straight batsmen socked Palmero for safeties with one out in the ninth before Stryker went in and restored order.

Urban and Moore rapped home runs to give the Bisons an early lead against Sherrid. Dunagan hurled the last two frames for the Royals, and had the Bisons completely at his mercy.

ONLY TWO GAMES IN MAJOR LEAGUES

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Al. Thomas, White Sox pitcher, added another victory to his season's total in an airtight hurling battle with John Mijus yesterday, defeating Cleveland, 2 to 1.

Two hits and a walk gave Chicago two runs in the first, and in the same frame the Indians scored on a walk, a single and Mostil's wild throw. After that the moundsment pitched flawlessly.

Cards Beat Pirates

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Pinch-hitting in the last of the tenth, when two runs meant victory, George Harper pounded the ball out of the lot, scoring Willson ahead of him, for a 4-to-3 victory over the Pittsburg Pirates in the series opener at St. Louis yesterday.

The Cardinals closed the fifth with a two-run lead when "Chick" Hafey hit for the circuit driving Bottomley in ahead of him. Then Paul Waner tied the count in the ninth in truly dramatic fashion with a homer, followed by a run in the first part of the tenth. But it took Harper to steal the elder Waner's thunder and bring the Cardinals victory.

DEFEATED BY HARRISONS 3-2

HURLERS GOOD

In a game that took only thirty-five minutes to play, Harrison's Northenders defeated Bridgenorth Wildcats by the score of 3-2.

Last night's game was one of the fastest and best games witnessed at Confederation Square in many a moon. Two errors, both these going to Bridgenorth, was the total count of fielding lapses.

Len Forsythe was pitching for Bridgenorth and he turned in a stellar exhibition. He fanned six of the Harrison crew and restricted them to four hits, but two misplays and a wild pitch by himself caused his downfall.

Bert Jopling's work in left field on a couple of fly balls stood out at the fielding features, although both teams played great ball, and the fielders accepted everything that came their way.

Harrisons opened the scoring in the second. Dobson, first up was out on a foul tip, but Vinette lashed one to deep left for a triple. Ross hit to Dormer at short and he fumbled long enough for Vinette to score and Ross take first. Montgomery struck out and Dallin rolled to first.

In the fifth Harrisons got two more. Montgomery, first up, walked. Dallin also walked. Clarke sacrificed the pair around. Dorrington hit to short, and Montgomery came home when that player fumbled. Dallin scored a minute later on a wild pitch, Dundas hit to third and Dorrington was caught off second. Calladine flied out to Jopling and Dobson rolled to Bradshaw.

Bridgenorth scored both their counters in the eighth. Bradshaw leading off went out, Dundas to Calladine. G. Dormer beat out a bunt. Jopling forced Dormer at second, Dundas to Dallin. Wilson singled over first, Jopling stopping at second. Baker hit a long drive to left, Vinette just failing to get it. He was out trying to stretch it into a homer.

The teams:

Harrisons—Dorrington, 3b; Dundas, p; Calladine, 1b; Dobson, c; E. Vinette, lf; Ross, 2b; Montgomery, cf; Dallin, ss; Clarke, rf.

MANY PLAYERS AT PRACTICE

PROMISING CANDIDATES

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—Sixty rugby footballers were out on the M.A.A.A. gridiron this week for the first serious practice drill of the fall season for the local Interprovincial Union squad and the champion M.A.A.A. junior team. It is many years since there has been as many and as promising candidates in uniform at the Winged Wheel grounds. There are more to report this week, so that by the time Bill Hughes and Clarry Foran shake the squads down to the stiff grind there should be some 80 odd footballers working for places on the teams. The turnout gives tangible evidence of the new lease rugby football is expected to experience this fall around the Montreal Big Four camp.

The Montreal club apparently intends further to open up the game in the Interprovincial series, judging by the fundamentals Hughes and Foran are stressing in the early season drills. It was on wide open football that Bill Hughes won fame as coach of the Dominion championship Queen's University teams. The system employed by Hughes from the start of his reign over tri-color squads was to have his teams perfectly drilled in straight rugby football. There was little attempt at hidden plays, but Queen's players were taught to rise as one man and seize every opportunity presented. They became famed especially for their ability to capitalize on the miscues of their opponents. Hughes always stressed the kicking game and the downfield work of his wings. A good kicking halfback, fast outside wings and end-running backs always featured his Queen's teams.

It appears that the same general Montreal seniors in the Big Four strategy will be employed by them this fall. In the past Montreal has not been able to play an open game due to a mediocre backfield. But this year Hughes and Foran have enough clever backfield stars and wingmen to enable them to open up the game wide.

THEATRES

"SAWDUST PARADISE."

This is an interesting and very unusual feature picture, which shows the triumph of religion over the excitement of modern life. As Glory O'Grady, the lovely blonde, Esther Ralston, has the stellar role and has a fine support, with Hobart Bosworth as the Rev. Isaaih Morgan, the evangelist who changes her views toward life and Reed Howes as 'Butch' Harper, her lover and also the "grifter," as it is called, of the street carnival show with which Esther travels. She is the ballyhoo artist and speller for the Six Diving Venuses and the Rev. Mr. Morgan is the evangelist who conducts a street mission across the way from the carnival.

The District Attorney goes through the shows before condemning them and finds that Glory is running a crooked game. She is arrested and brought up for trial. She is given a sentence of ninety days, but Morgan asks to have her paroled to him and the judge consents.

At the evangelist's tent, Glory befriends a poor woman who dies unexpectedly and leaves her the baby to care for. She looks after the infant and gradually becomes interested in Morgan's work. She brings back a lot of the men who have been backsliding and calls it Morgan's "Salvation Show." At the end of the ninety days, "Butch" comes for her, but she refuses to go with him, on account of the child, saying it must go straight and be free of evil influences.

That night, when "Butch" and his gang come in to break up Morgan's "Show," Glory preaches and "Butch" and his men are added to the list of converts.

With the program is a funny comedy and the interesting pictures of the Women's Marathon Swim last week at Toronto Exhibition.

AT THE REGENT.

"OLD IRONSIDES."

James Cruze's "Old Ironsides," now playing at the Regent Theatre, might truly be called a picture of miracles.

Although ten thousand people were engaged during the filming of the Paramount photoplay, not a single serious injury marred the making of the production. All the more astounding is this when it is considered that "Old Ironsides" is declared to have more thrills and more intense action than any other picture ever produced.

Eight sailing vessels were sunk in a terrific storm off Cape Hatteras while towing them to the Pacific coast for use in the photoplay. No lives were lost in the storm.

Three masts snapped aboard the frigate "Constitution" when the ship was caught in a heavy ground swell. One of the yard-arms, weighing eight hundred pounds, landed but a few feet from Director Cruze, Esther Ralston, Wallace Beery, George Bancroft, Charles Farrell and Johnnie Walker.

The entire company was lost at sea in a storm for seventy-one hours.

Six cannons exploded when overenthusiastic gunners filled them with overcharges of powder during the terrific battle sequences.

District Churches

ST. ANDREW'S, WARKWORTH.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Sept. 7.—Rev. Mr. Mark of New Westminister, B.C., had charge of the services in the Presbyterian church on Sunday and gave two excellent sermons. In the morning the Old Testament lesson was Malachi, first chapter; New Testament lesson was twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew. The text was part of the twenty-fourth verse: "I knew thee that art an art an hard man." The entire address was based upon the severity of Jesus when teaching a moral standard, what it means to be a disciple and also with regard to temptation. When temptation comes from enemies one knows more how to deal with the tempter but when temptation comes from friends it is unexpected and quite often those tempted fall into temptation. One has to be severe in dealing with temptation. Temptation brings out the best in us and for this reason we must be severe with our temptors even if they are

Nickel Back In Lead On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press).—International Nickel regained some of its prominence lost during the last couple of days when, in very active trading, it fluctuated between 117¼ to 122⅜, closing at noon today with a net gain of 4¼ points at 212⅜. The bulk of morning trading was well scattered throughout the list, but only fractional gains and losses and were registered. Canada Dredge preferred failed to retain its gain of yesterday and declined three points to sell at 152. Canadian Industrial Alcohol was largely featured in to-day's market, gaining ⅝ points to 44. Alberta Pacific grain, with light trading, lost one. Oils were firm on the curb section, British American advancing ⅛ to 39¾ while Imperial eased off ⅛ to 72¼ and International Petroleum remained firm at 392. Hiram Walker was unchanged at 612.

Grain Market Firmer On News From Abroad

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press).—In face of mixed news from abroad, the grain market here had a firmer tone at the start today. Improved demand for Manitoba at Liverpool was reported but was offset later by increased offering. Wheat opened unchanged to ¾ cent higher and corn started unchanged to ⅝ cent up. September corn acted tight and advanced more than 1 cent above the previous close during the early part of the session. Oats were firmer.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September, 110; December 115. Corn, September, 94⅝; December, 75¼; Oats, September, 39⅛; December 40⅝.

Mining Market Dull With Prices Firmer

TORONTO, September 7. Canadian Press. — Little activity was manfested during the morning at the Standard mining exchange to-day, and the market was practically featureless. Prices were of a firmer tone but trading eased off considerably. Barry Hollinger, after making slight advances during the last couple of days, declined to-day and with a fairly good turnover eased off 1¼ at 58⅜. Sherritt Gordon was off 14 at 7.01; Noranda 25 at 53.25; Sudbury Basin 20 at 6.70, and Wright Hargreaves five at 3.35. Area, with sluggish trading, was up four at 31; Nipissing 10 at 3.40; Teck Hughes 10 at 9.20; and Tough Oakes three at 33.

Sweeping Advance Puts Ticker Half Hour Behind

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press.) — A sweeping advance in prices which carried nearly two score issues to record high levels on gains running from two to nearly twenty points was Wall Street's response today to the unexpectedly small increase of $54,000,000 in federal reserve brokers' loans. Trading was in enormous volume, with the ticker half an hour or more behind the market during the early part of the session.

Call money held steady at seven and a half per cent. despite the calling of more than $20,000,000 in bank loans. Easier call money rates were widely predicted for next week when the return flow of Sept 1 dividend and interest payments is completed.

Montgomery Ward was a sensational feature, soaring 19⅛ points to a new peak and then falling back several points on profit taking. So swift was the advance in this stock and so late the ticker that the price was quoted on the tape around 229 when the record high was being established on the flood. Timken Roller Bearing, Motor Products, International Nickel, Sears Roebuck, Rossia Insurance, Purity Baking common and preferred, Electric Auto-Lite and Case Threshing all advanced four and a half to eight and a half points to record high prices.

Similar gains were recorded by Wright, Radio, Midland Steel Products preferred, Adams Express, American Sugar Refining, Warner Bros' 'A,' A. M. Byers, American Tobacco 'B' and Curtiss, although they did not reach new high ground.

News From the Mines

Through
Solloway, Mills & Company

ABANA.

TORONTO, September 7. — The third base metal producer in the north-western sector of the Quebec mining field appears with the commencement of building operations for the concentrating mill on the Abana property in Deameloizes township. Following the exploration work carried out by this company during the past two years, the downward continuation of the values existing at the 300 foot horizon would appear to place a value on this mine in the Rouyn copper-gold district second only to Noranda. Official figures recently made public estimate indicated reserves of something like $30,000,000.

The deposition on which all previous work has been concentrated, is on an east-west break with a slight northerly trend, and the shaft has been sunk on this to a depth of 300 feet. Levels were established at 100 foot intervals but only a small amount of work was carried out on the 100 and 200 foot levels, only sufficient work being done on these two to establish the continuation of surface ore zone.

On the 300 foot level the orebody was drifted on for a distance of 450 feet when it was cut off by a diabase dyke. This orebody is continuous for an average width of more than 25 feet. This should be considered as one of three sections. The north part of the vein is composed of copper-

Stands By Gelley

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 7.—(Canadian Press)—W. J. Egan, Deputy Minister of Immigration, said today that the department was prepared to stand by the statement of Thomas Gelley, Commissioner of Immigration at Winnipeg, in which Mr. Gelley denied certain allegations of Thomas Johnston, Scottish Labor M.P., with regard to the treatment of British Harvesters.
Mr. Egan declared that the Department knew that anything Mr. Gelley said was reliable. There were no underground cellars at immigration quarters in Winnipeg where men could have been "hoarded," Mr. Egan said.
The whole situation, Mr. Egan said, was that a number of the men were on their way back to England because they were dissatisfied. It was their right to go back if they so desired. Some of them had been offered work at $4 a day and had refused it.

ROYAL PLAYERS IN CAR ACCIDENT

Automobile Carrying Five Players Upset After Hitting Cow.

NO PERSON INJURED.

Returning from Toronto last night following their game with Elizabeth Juniors, five members of the Peterborough Royals had a narrow escape from injury when their motor car turned over in a ditch about a mile west of Welcome and it is understood that the car was badly damaged.
Fortunately none of the players were disabled, and all will be able to play in the third game at Oshawa to-morrow afternoon.

ROYALS AND LIZZIES TO PLAY IN OSHAWA

Game To-morrow Starts at 3.30 Daylight Saving Time.

Peterborough Royals and Toronto Elizabeths will attempt to break their deadlock to-morrow afternoon when they meet in the third and deciding game of the Provincial semi-finals, the winners to meet Walkerville.
The Royals won handily at home last Monday and on Thursday afternoon force the Lizzies to go ten innings before losing by a 3-2 count at Stanley Park diamond.
Feeling somewhat more at home in Oshawa, and with Kitchen well rested and prepared to go the route, the Petes are out to cop the game to-morrow which will take place on the lake shore grounds, starting at 3.30 daylight saving time.

COLLARD—HILLMAN.

At Lakefield, on Saturday, September first, 1928, Allan B. Collard, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Collard, Stouffville, to Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hillman Lakefield. Rev. S. A. Kemp, of Regent Street United Church, officiated.

COLLARD—HILLMAN.

A quiet wedding took place at Lakefield on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hillman, became the bride of Allan R. Collard, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Collard, Stouffville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. S. A. Kemp, of Regent Street United Church.
The bride wore a becoming ensemble suit of rose beige crepe, with shoes, hat and gloves to match and corsage bouquet of sweetheart rose buds and gypsophila.
Miss Jean Colalrd, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid and wore a very becoming dress of rose crepe with hat to match and bouquet of pink rose buds.
Mr. Harry Stabler, cousin of the bride, acted as best man.
The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a beautiful stirling silver compact and to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links.
Mr. and Mrs. Collard left for a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara, Buffalo and Rochester.

Chicago Gang Leader Assassinated

SHOT DOWN ON STREET BY GUNMEN

One of Assailants Arrested Unwounded By Policeman Off Duty.

BODYGUARD KILLED.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—Tony Lombardo, president of the Union Sicilano, and reputed to be one of Chicago's gangland's "big shots," was assassinated late yesterday at one of the busiest corners in the city.

Lombardo met death by the guns of three men, who also shot down his bodyguard, Joe Ferrari. Both Lombardo and Ferrari battled back as they lay bleeding on the sidewalk, while thousands were endangered by the fusillade of shots.

One of the assailants, Frank Krejio, was arrested unwounded, by Maurice Marcusson, a policeman out of uniform and off duty, who was walking across the street in the press of the rush hour crowd. He ran through the heavy traffic and collared his prisoner while the remainder fled.

Thrown Into Confusion.

The busy street was thrown into wild confusion, as mounted policemen, drawing their guns, went galloping toward the scene, while bystanders dived into areaways, alleys, and into the paths of cars in search of refuge.

"Lombardo never had a chance," declared Policeman Marcusson. "He was walking peacefully along the sidewalk when those three gunmen stepped up to him. Two were in front of him and one was behind him.

"They all jerked out automatic pistols at once and let him have it. They plugged Ferrari at the same time. Before Lombardo died he had his own gun out of his pocket and was shooting, but he was too far gone to hit anything.

"I ran as fast as I could, fighting against the crowd that was pushing against me going the other way, and I saw the two down. This Krejio was trying to run, but I crocked him with my sapper and stuck the cuffs on him."

When other policemen, reinforced by seven detective bureau squads with machine guns, arrived at the scene, they found Marcusson standing over his prisoner and the two wounded men, holding a curious crowd at bay with his pistol. Bystanders were unable, up to that time, to know but what the policeman was another ganster.

The police found four automatics lying in a heap beside the wounded men. Lombardo died without a whisper.

SWIMMING MEET HELD AT Y.W.C.A.

Girls Show Great Improvement at First of Fall Meets.

The first swimming meet at the Y.W.C.A. pool for the fall session was held last evening. A large number of swimmers attended and competed in the program of races. Spectators and swimmers showed great excitement in the relay race. In the speed test Viola Harvey won the first place, Jean Harvey second, and Doris Rogers third. In the diving Doris Rogers and Viola Harvey tied.

The junior swimmers showed great improvement in their swimming. Mary Kingsoury led in the speed tests, closely followed by Marion Harvey and Margaret Currie.

Sports hour is held every Friday evening and is open to all swimmers of the Association.

New York Lady Pays 15-Minute Visit

In this age of hurry and speed, a New York woman paid a flying visit to Peterborough to-day. Arriving from New York about 11.45 this morning, she met her young child, for whom she had made a special trip, and caught the noon train for New York. All she saw of Peterborough was the station, as she practically stepped from an incoming train on to the outgoing train.

MUSIC AT THE "EX"

Monday, Opening Day.

In the evening, commencing at seven o'clock, at the George street entrance band stand, the Band of the Peterborough Rangers will play, under direction of Lt. W. H. Peryer. They will be assisted by Bert Caldwell of Toronto, the favorite baritone singer. Their program will be as follows:

March: "The Thin Red Line," (Alfred.)
Overture from the opera "Mirlla."
Waltz: "Smiles and Kisses," (Ancliffe.)
Vocal solo: "Mother in Ireland," by Bert Caldwell.
Selections from the Musical Comedy," Mr. Manhattan."
Marche Slav, "Entry of the Bulgars." (Latter.)
Waltz: "Ramona." (Wayne.)
Selections from "The Country Girl." (Monckton.)
Vocal solo: "The Sunshine of Your Smile," by Bert Caldwell.
March: "De Molay Commandery," (Hall.)
God Save the King.

MEDICINE MAN DRAWS CROWD

Buyers and Sellers Alike Numerous On Market To-day.

PRODUCE PLENTIFUL.

A large "medicine man" with a universal panacea held the attention of the crowd at the farmers' market this morning. The basket section and the open mart were alike thronged with people, who elbowed each other as they surrounded the stalls where plenty of produce was offered for sale. It was one of the largest markets of the year. In and out among the crowd a boy on roller skates made a rapid way.

Butter and eggs and fowl were very plentiful in the upper hall. Butter was priced quite generally at 45 cents a pound and eggs ranged in price, in varying sizes, from 38 to 43 cents a dozen. Young chickens were 35 and 40 cents a pound, and year-old birds were 25 and 30 cents. Ducks were 35 cents a pound. One woman who trussed up her birds very neatly, with sprigs of fresh, green parsley, asked a little higher price for them, but seemed to have a large patronage.

Thimbleberries were offered at $2 for a ten-pound pail. Blueberries were 20 cents a quart and elderberries were 50 cents for a large basket.

Potatoes were 20 and 25 cents a peck, and $1 a bag. Tomatoes in 11-quart baskets sold at 40, 45, and 50 cents, with green tomatoes at 30 cents.

Greengage plums in small size were 50 cents for 11-quart baskets, and larger fruit was 10 cents a quart. Blue plums were 30 cents a gallon and red and yellow plums were 70 cents a large basket.

Yellow Transparent apples were 40 cents a peck, with St. Lawrence fruit at 50 cents and Duchess apples at 25 cents a peck. Pears in large size, in 11-quart baskets, were 75 cents, smaller green preserving pears being 50 cents a peck.

Celery was selling, 3 bunches for 25 cents, string beans, late but good in quality, were 2 quarts for 25 cents, and large "broad" beans were 3 quarts for 25 cents. Upstairs, white corn was 12 cents a dozen and Bantam 20 cents. On the open market, corn sold generally at 15 cents a dozen. White pickling onions were 25 cents a quart. Cucumbers were 20, 25 and 30 cents in a basket of 6 quarts, and gherkins were 60 cents a large basket. "Telegraph" cucumbers were 5 cents each.

Fresh trout was 23 cents a pound.

Amber honey in five-pound pails sold for 50 cents and clover honey in the same containers was 65 cents. Combs were 25 cents a-piece.

On the open market, collie pups were very plentiful, one family of four attracting a great deal of attention. At three months of age, they could be bought for $1.50, or at $3.00 for a three-weeks-old pup. Others were $1 and $2 a-piece.

Two white Angora rabbits were offered at 80 cents for the pair.

HOLDING MEETING.

Were Told That Wrigley Representative Insisted On Present Split.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 8 (Special).—There's another big blow off coming in connection with "the big swim." The squall will probably be at its fiercest to-day at the Administration Building at the big fair.

It threatens to develop at a meeting of the aldermanic members of the Aquatic Committee of the C. N. E. which handed out the share and share alike division of the $35,000 which has caused such a fierce display of public feeling because Georges Michel, the giant Frenchman, who outstayed and outdistanced every one in the uncompleted race, was treated on exactly the same basis as the fourteenth man as far as the distribution of "gratuities" was concerned.

The aldermanic members of that committee, Ald. Quinn, Ald. Wright, Ald. Somerville, Ald. Dibble, Ald. Pearce, and Con. Wemp, are meeting to-day on the suggestion that they issue a public statement on what occurred at the famous meeting at which the much discussed division was made.

"The whole blame is being unfairly laid upon the aldermanic members of that committee," said one of the aldermen to-day, "and we do not propose to stand for it. When that meeting was called to decide upon the distribution of the money one of the aldermen advocated the distribution of the money on a basis of time in the water."

"That met with the views of the other aldermen on the committee and would have been an equitable arrangement and one which would have met with the approval of the general sporting public, for that would have given Michel, Vierkotter, Mathias and the rest of them who stuck it out the longest pull in the division. But that proposition was balked when Commodore George H. Gooderham of the R.C.Y.C., who is chairman of the Aquatic Committee, told us plainly that Allan Ross of the Wrigley Company would under no consideration agree to anything else but an even stephen division of the prize money in the form of gratuities."

The temperature of the water for this afternoon's swim will be at least 10 degrees higher than it was Wednesday. The temperature to-day on the course was 54 at Sunnyside and 51 inside the breakwater. Last night the temperature at the C.N.E. inside breakwater was 54 and outside 57 degrees.

MISS G. COLLINS WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Peterborough Girl Gets Ladies' Prize at Toronto Exhibition.

A further honor has come to a student from Dorothy Allan Park's studio at the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, in connection with the competitions held at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. A success, not only gratifying to singer and teacher, but one of which citizens generally should be proud.

The directors of the C. N. E. give scholarships of $75.00 each to the outstanding contestants among the ladies' voices, men's voices, violinists and pianists.

The winner of the scholarship for ladies' voices is Miss Geraldine Collins, 283 Stewart street. Those competing came from all over Canada, including Toronto, thus making the success of Miss Collins a real achievement.

Miss Collins is well known to citizens, and has always been generous in helping, by her beautiful voice, any worth-while object.

LOCAL DOG WINS.

Model Swamp Jack Best of Breed and Show Champion.

Model Swamp Jack, an American Fox Hound, made an excellent showing on August 31st and Sept. 1st at the dog show of the Aberdeen Academy, Hamilton, when it carried off the first winners, best of breed and gained its championship at the show. This dog is owned by W. Thomas, of Brownton Kennels.

SIXTY-NINE SWIMMERS START IN CONSOLATION EVENT TO-DAY

Also Rans of Wednesday's Marathon Racing For $3,500 To-day.

OVER 3-MILE COURSE.

TORONTO, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—Sixty-nine swimmers, the also rans in Wednesday's third Wrigley marathon, plunged into the water at 2.14 p.m. standard time, in the consolation stakes for prizes totalling $3,500, inside the breakwater at the Canadian National Exhibition. The temperature of the water was 59 deg. when the sprint of 31-8 miles was commenced, compared with a temperature of 44 to 52 degrees last Wednesday, when cold forced out every starter.

At the end of one-third of the race Hershel Martin of Kansas City had a lead of a few yards over Dave Billington of England, with Byron Summers of California right behind the Englishman.

Byron Summers of California, was leading when the swimmers in the Consolation stakes passed two miles of the three and an eighth mile distance. Five yards behind came Clarence Ross, and Hershel Martin of Kansas City, was in third place, another ten yards back.

NEW PASTOR INDUCTED AT ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. C. V. McLean Formally Installed As Minister of Congregation.

INSPIRING SERMON.

Speakers Tell Duties of Pastor and Congregation To Each Other.

The Rev. C. V. McLean, the new pastor of St. Andrew's Church, who was called here from Toronto, was officially inducted into the ministry of the church last night. The Rev. William McDonald of Knox Church conducted the induction service, while the preacher was the Rev. J. V. McNeely of Keene. The Rev. David Wren of Trinity Church addressed the new minister, while the Rev. T. M. Wesley of Lakefield addressed the congregation.

Mr. McNeely took the Bible reading from the 15th chapter of Corinthians, verses 20-28. He spoke to the congregation on the ancient question, "If a man dies shall he live again?" "This is an ancient question," he said, "one that was asked by Job. Terminals on earth are now fast disappearing from our experience. They have become take-off places and a plane goes into the uncharted areas to return with the news that the world is the parish of man.

"The question is a challenge. The very age attacks this question. It is a problem for everyone and is paramount wherever man is to be found. Three kinds of answers have been given the question. Some have said 'No,' which is the negative party; the agnostics have said that they did not know, while the positive have replied in the affirmative that there is another life.

"The first group is small and does not need to be bothered with. Confucius, the great Oriental sage, answered the question by saying, 'I cannot tell you, for I do not know. If I knew that there was another world brighter and happier this would be an empty world at present.' Robert Ingersoll said that life was merely a veil between two peaks of eternity. These men have no certain words in this effect.

"The positive group are all through the ages. Egypt engraved upon her tombs that the dead shall live again and perfected the art of embalming in order that the body might be preserved for the soul. Greece and Rome likewise found a misty shadowy place where the dead live and called it Hades. The Teuton and Norseman had their after life and the North American Indian his happy hunting ground and were buried with the necessities to carry on with.

Mohammed teaches that there is a hell for the faithless and a heaven for the faithful. Christians answer 'yes,' to clear the darkness of the future.

"The immortality of the soul is expressed through our personality, expressed through our bodies. The soul is not subject to the laws of our bodies. It does not decay and wither away. It was seen in the ancient times that the soul was separable and the living element.

"The world in which the soul lives and in which we live is a vibrating world, a living world, where life is always on the advance.

"Life is always changing from one form to another. The laws of physics show us that nothing is wasted, that everything is saved. An illustration of progress is given by the caterpillar that changes into the brilliant butterfly. So it is with the deeds of men. Wonderful art and poetry are made by man and if the work lives on and is immortal so shall the producer be. As an instance, we are celebrating this year an anniversary of John Bunyan, the writer of Pilgrim's Progress—surely that is immortal.

"Everyone in this world chooses some task in life, and often that task is not finished. Surely there is a day when this unfinished task shall be finished. Many die early in life with unused energy and surely there will be a place where they will use these talents. We think of many great men and saints that have died in agony, while sinners have died in peace, and surely there is a place where all these wrongs shall be righted.

"Man shall live after death, because of the faith we have in Jesus. Jesus Christ has abolished death and in Him we find, life and immortality, the essence of life, the very gift that Christ gave the world. Where Jesus is there is immortality of the soul. Heaven is a state in which we live as well as a place where we shall live. In Jesus we have the germ of immortality, and in Him we find the answer to the question: 'If a man dies shall he live again?'

Adopts Light Rays To Stop Train Wrecks

BERLIN, Sept. 8.— Light rays in future will prevent railroad disasters if the invention of a Munich engineer named Baeseler stands the test, according to the Neue Berliner Zeitung. His device consists of a number of mirrors which, placed along the tracks, control the speed of trains and have power to halt an engine if it runs past the block stations.

As a train passes, light from the locomotive strikes the mirrors. If the section is closed the rays are transferred to a selenic cell, which becomes a conductor, closes the electric circuit and automatically puts the brakes in action.

To prevent too sudden a stoppage of the train the mirrors are placed at special distances apart. On passing the first mirror the speed will be reduced to 60 kilometers (about 37 miles) in case of danger; the second and third mirrors bring the speed down to 40 and 20 kilometers, while the fourth mirror stops the train completely.

GOOD MUSIC AT EXHIBITION

Excellent Variety of Band and Solo Numbers Has Been Arranged.

HOME AND VISITING BANDS.

Music at the Exhibition this year promises to be as attractive a portion of the program as in other years. An excellent variety of band and solo numbers have been arranged for the different days.

Cervonne's Band from Pittsburgh will again be here and will play for the vaudeville performances before the Grand Stand, as well as giving half-hour concerts every afternoon and evening in front of the Grand Stand, commencing at two o'clock in the afternoon and at 7.45 in the evening. Monday is excepted from the afternoon program, the Band playing on Monday night, however.

The Band will be assisted during the week by the soprano soloist, Miss Edna Joyce of Pittsburgh.

The second soloist of the week will be the favorite baritone, Bert Caldwell, of Toronto, who will sing every afternoon and evening on the stand at the George Street entrance, at 2.30 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 and 9.15 o'clock in the evening.

On Monday evening, at the George Street entrance band-stand, the Band of the Peterborough Rangers will play. On Tuesday afternoon, the band here will be that of the Juvenile Salvationists, with the Senior Salvation Army Band on Tuesday evening at the same place.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening, at the George Street entrance, the band of the Peterborough Rangers will be the attraction, and on Thursday and Friday afternoon and evening, Bob Bailey's Band from Toronto will play.

The Band of the Peterborough Rangers will play on Saturday evening in front of the Grand Stand.

All band concerts at the George Street entrance will commence at 1.30 in the afternoon and at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Cervonne's Band from Pittsburgh, which has been engaged to play again at the Exhibition this year, will arrive in the city at noon on Sunday, and will give a concert in Victoria Park on Sunday evening, commencing at eight o'clock. They will be assisted by Miss Edna Joyce of Pittsburgh, who will be the soloist at the Fair with the Band during the week.

NAVAL ACCORD NOT ABANDONED

Official Denial Issued To Reports By Two London Papers.

REPLIES AWAITED.

LONDON, Sept. 8.— Canadian Press).—Official denial was made to-day of reports published in two London newspapers that the Anglo-French naval accord would be abandoned. The reports said that adverse criticism of the understanding had come from various quarters and particularly from hostile United States sentiment. Government circles pointed out no action on the naval accord could be taken until an answer is received from United States, Japan, and Italy, to which governments proposals have been submitted. Officials recognize it may not meet the views of one or more of these countries, in which case it may be necessary for the British and French to use some other method in bringing about an understanding on naval disarmament.

REDS ACTIVE AMONG MEN ON PRAIRIES

Scottish Communist Backed Up By Winnipeg Members of Movement.

DISCREDITING SCHEME.

Some Measure of Failure Must Be Expected, Says Ramsay MacDonald.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—Communists in Winnipeg are reported to have been active among the British miner harvesters who, dissatisfied with conditions in the Western grain fields, returned to the city and are now en route to their homes in Great Britain. A Communist from Motherwell, Scotland, is reported by R. C. M. P. authorities to have originated among the workers a movement to discredit the whole movement of harvesters from Great Britain, and is alleged to have been assisted by local Communists. Investigation has been commenced by both police and immigration authorities.

WINNIPEG, Man., September 8 (Canadian Press). — Fifty-two British harvesters are at present waiting in the immigration hall here, some of them for work and others waiting to be sent nome to the Old Country. Interviewed, the men did not complain of the treatment received at the hands of immigration officials.

"We have had fair treatment from railway officials, except that we have not been able to get work as we understood we would get when we came out," stated one young miner from Newcastle.

Some of the men declared they had been offered work for two or three days and they had talked with many harvesters who had gone from one job to another and received only $1.50 to $2.00 a day.

"Of course, there are good and bad among farmers," one remarked, 'but we seem to have been unfortunate in striking the bad. We are going to stay with it just the same, but want a guarantee of a decent wage before we go."

The majority of the harvesters at the hall are waiting to be sent home. It is stated that they have been offered four dollars a day, with a possible increase to five dollars should they prove satisfactory, which they refused.

DISSATISFIED WITH CONDITIONS

OTTAWA, Ont., September 8 (Canadian Press). — The following statement was issues yesterday by the Department of Immigration and Colonization regarding the return to the Old Country of a number of British harvesters: :

"The 328 British harvesters who left Winnipeg on Wednesday night last to return to the Old Country are not returning because of lack of employment, but because they organized opposition to accept employment at four dollars per day, and some of them were unfitted for harvest work. Their return was brought about in accordance with an understanding between the Canadian Government and the British Government reached in connection with the transfer to Canada recently of several thousand Britishers for harvest work.

"The Division Commissioner of Immigration at Winnipeg refutes a statement made by a Labor member of the British Parliament to the effect that these men were kept under restraint. When tickets were being arranged for return and on the evening they left Winnipeg, it was necessary to keep the public from mixing with the men returning, and out of this necessary precaution has grown the story of the men being placed under guard. The Division Commissioner states that at no time since the harvesters have been in Canada have they been under restraint, and even their return to the British Isles is at their own solicitation."

Was Experiment.

OTTAWA, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press) —The movement of British harvesters to Canada is in the nature of an experiment and both Canada and Great Britain should be prepared for some measure of failure with respect to it. This was the view expressed by Ramsay Macdonald, leader of the British Labor Party, who arrived here to-day. Mr. Macdonald will speak at the Canadian Club luncheon at noon. He will be the guest of the Government at an official dinner to-night.

"Projects of this sort are always risky experiments," said Mr. Macdonald. "The whole scheme should be treated as an experiment and carefully studied as a guide to the future. I am not expressing a personal opinion. I am telling you the attitude of the British Labor Party in the case."

The Labor leader did not care to offer any opinion at present concerning allegation of unfair treatment to British harvesters at Winnipeg.

British Labor, said Mr. Macdonald,

Four Swimmers Get Extra Prize

FOURTEEN QUESTIONS SENT BY CHEESE MAKERS ASSOCIATION HOLD ATTENTION OF DELEGATES

Speaker Refers To Record Made in Central Ontario As Enviable.

MANY ADDRESSES.

Cheesemakers Need Co-operation of Producers To Be Successful.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MARMORA, Sept. 8.—Fourteen questions took up most of the time and attention of over seventy milk producers and cheesemakers assembled at Springhill Factory, Madoc Township, on Wednesday evening for the sixth monthly meeting of the enterprising Madoc District Cheesemakers' Association. These questions have been sent by the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association to each district under their control. Under the able presidency of W. E. Brennan, they were disposed of at Wednesday's meeting as follows:

Questions.

What is your opinion and are you in favor of the stamping on cheese and box, the month and day of manufacture? Vote 13 to 4 in its favor.

Are you in favor of the grading of all cheese at Central Ontario shipping points now established before loading on car or boat? Unanimous vote in favor.

Do you think your salesman or president should insist on this when desired by the cheesemaker, irrespective of opposition from any source? Vote 10 to 1 in favor.

Would you recommend to the Ontario Department of Agriculture that dairy instructors or inspectors appointed for that purpose be advised to visit farms and make an inspection and state whether milk coming from certain farms, where conditions are wrong, should be accepted for manufacturing or not. Cheesemakers voted 17 for and 1 against.

Are you in favor of placing powdered milk plants, condenseries and such other industries on the same basis as cheese factories and creameries? Vote 18 to 0 in favor.

What in your opinion is the cause of rancid flavors? What steps do you suggest to overcome it? Greater research work along that line.

Should the acidity of milk be one of the determining factors in accepting milk at our cheese factories? Yes.

What in your opinion is the maximum percentage of acidity at which milk should be accepted? 22 per cent.

Has the present system of dairy instruction reached the peak of perfection? If not, what do you suggest to improve the same? It was suggested that instructors visit makers who are in trouble rather than those who are making 100 per cent.

Do you think the Ontario Department of Agriculture should insist on a certain vote of money to be used in connection with dairy research work. In particular as it affects the cheesemaker and the cheese industry? There was a unanimous vote in its favor.

Is it your opinion that the Eastern Dairy School should devote its time and energies to research and experimental work, rather than to commercial purposes? 10 in favor.

Have you any suggestions to offer regarding the granting of certificates to makers? Should allowance be made under certain conditions? Allowance should be made to the Department to solve problems as heretofore.

Have you any suggestions to offer as to the improvement of the grading regulations or its administration? A motion was passed that recommendation be sent to C.O.C.M.A. that grading certificates be sent to makers direct instead of the factory presidents.

What effort are you making to get the official organ of this association, "The Ontario Milk Producer," into the hands of each of your patrons? Are all the cheesemakers in your association now subscribers? If not, why are they not?

James Irwin

Grader of Belleville, in a very pleasing speech, referred to the record of Central Ontario as an enviable one and said that the record of Hasting's County was better than in 1927. He gave his opinion that the association was responsible for the splendid quality of cheese this year. The next item of business was the passing of a motion that a letter of condolence be sent to Mr. Publow in his recent bereavement. John Hall, visiting maker from Rednersville who had earlier in the meeting taken an active part in interesting discussions, now followed with a few words of congratulation to the association and the host of the evening, George Spencer.

Next to address the meeting was Instructor C. Linn. Having congratulated Mr. Spencer on his factory and showing, he said to the makers present: " Stick to your guns for the rest of the season." Speaking of factory visitations he mentioned that he visited his makers every two weeks. The association he was convinced was doing a great thing.

Rich Boy Slain By His Playmate

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Louis Victor, Jr., thirteen-year-old son of Louis Victor Sterling, wealthy stock broker, this city, was shot to death yesterday afternoon at the fashionable Lake Placid Club at Lake Placid, while Sterling and nine other playmates were playing the game of war.

Dexter W. Hewitt, Jr., twelve-year-old son of Dexter Hewitt retired millionaire broker, according to Secretary H. W. Hicks of the club, is the boy who fired the fatal shot, believing the small calibre rifle he was using was empty. Hicks declared the tragedy occurred while the boys, all sons of rich men, were having a final frolic before returning to their homes for the opening of school.

Young Sterling was spending the summer here with his mother and three sisters. He was rushed to the Lake Placid General Hospital immediately after the accident, but, despite the efforts of physicians summoned from Saranac Lake and vicinity, died several hours after the shooting.

Detective Captain Ordered Removed

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 8.—Canadian Press. — Immediate removal from office of Charles Beckman, captain of the city detective force, was recommended by the grand jury yesterday. A few minutes later Mayor Mackay ordered Beckman suspended, pending trial before the civil service board.

The jury which is investigating bootlegging and gangster shootings, in its second report in a week, found that Beckman "is not fit to hold any office under the mupnicipal government."

"We report," the document set forth, "that our investigation thus far among other things, has developed that there has been and is now in this county a direct connection between certain members of the police force and a well organized group of persistent law breakers, comprising the most dangerous element in our community, defiant even of the fundamental rules under which our citizens live."

SCHOOL OPENS AT ROSENEATH

Miss Jean Craighead and M. Davey in Charge For Coming Year.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, September 8. — Once again we are reminded that summer is gone and the holiday season is over, when the school bells ring their message and the cheery voices are called to order.

Miss Jean Craighead has resumed her duties in the junior room, while Mr. M. Davey continues teaching the senior room.

Barton Roberts has accepted his first school at Lang, Peterborough county.

Wilfred Davey has returned to his school at Kinmount, and Lewis Roberts continues his duties at Fenella.

A few farmers have finished their harvest, while others are nearing the end. Some have threshed part of their grain and report an average crop, but not until the farmer has completed his harvest and threshing does he study the yield of grain to the acre.

COMPETELY RUN DOWN.

Symptoms That the Blood is Thin Should Not Be Neglected.

Weak, run-down, lacking strength, energy and ambition, nervous, sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms named by a great majority of people who have been benefitted by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These tonic pills correct the condition described and if you have any of these symptoms you should give these pills a trial. Their great value in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. James A. Tibbetts, Halifax, N.S., who says:—"I was completely run down in health. My blood was thin and watery, and my nerves so bad that I did not sleep well at night. My appetite was poor and the least exertion left me weak and trembling. When I went out I would have a severe headache, and would have to lie down as soon as I got in the house. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I soon found they were helping me and by the time I had taken the sixth box I felt like a new woman, and have enjoyed good health ever since. For this reason I can highly recommend the pills to anyone run-down or troubled with their nerves."

Not only do Dr. Williams' Pink Pills help the nerves. Their main function is to enrich and increase the blood, and as the blood supplies the whole body, the new life is given to the entire system. Better sleep, steady nerves, improved appetite, increased vigor—all these can be yours by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Begin them to-day. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail post paid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LEADERS ARE GIVEN $2,000 BY WRIGLEY CO.

SUMMERS GETS $1,000.

President of Wrigley Marathons Says Split Was Fair and Just.

TORONTO, September 8.—Georges Michel, Ernst Vierkoetter and George Young, will each receive $2,000 from the Canadian Wrigley Company, because these three men gave all they had in the hope that they would complete what they had so courageously undertaken.

Allan Ros, president of Wrigley marathons, announced this yesterday during the course of a statement in which he concurred in the distribution of the prize money for the third Wrigley marathon, in which no contestant completed the course of 15 miles.

Mr. Ross later announced the company had decided to award Byron Summers $1000 for his courageous effort, on the grounds that Summers would, and could, have gone on, as did Michel, Vierkoetter and Young, if he had not received instructions that no prize money would be awarded unless the swimmers finished.

This award to Summers completes the list and no further special awards will be made, Mr. Ross declared.

The statement of the president of Wrigley's marathons follows:

"It is my opinion that the decision of the board of the Canadian National Exhibition dealing with the matter of awards to the swimmers in the third Wrigley marathon, September 5, 1928, was fair and just. It was an outstandingly generous act of sportsmanship. Under the terms of the contract, whereby the third Wrigley marathon was awarded to the C. N. E. it was necessary for me to concur in the decision of their committee before the awards became final.

"Whe nthe third Wrigley marathon ceased to be a 15-mile race and developed into an endurance contest, I would have preferred to see all the swimmers come out of the water before they exhausted themselves, on the grounds that I am entirely opposed to an elimination swimming contest. However, it was beyond human judgment to decide, even in the late hours of the race, that no swimmer would complete the 15-mile course.

"The race started at 11 o'clock a.m., Sept. 5, with a cloudless sky overhead, perfect weather conditions, 196 swimmers lined up for the start and upwards of 100,000 people lining the Exhibition shore. If a vote had been taken among these spectators and swimmers on the question whether the race should be postponed because the water was 52 degrees, the answer would have been almost unanimous to go ahead. There is no precedent in Lake Ontario for what a human being can do in a 15-mile swim with 52 degrees water. I can positively state, based on last Wednesday's experience, that no future Wrigley marathon will be staged under like conditions.

"Having in mind my statement above, with regard to the fair and distribution of the entire $35,000 prize money, and acting as a private individual, the Canadian Wrigley Co. has decided to award Michel, Vierkoetter and Young each $2,000. These three men gave all they had in the hope that they could complete what they had so courageously undertaken.

"While Michel went farther on the course than Vierkoetter, and Vierkoetter went farther on the course than Young, it is my conviction that Young, who led Vierkoetter almost the entire time that Young was in the water, and Vierkoetter, who in turn led Michel in the same manner, contributed in the deed of their performances a factor fully offsetting Michel's marvellous exhibition of staying in the icy water longest.

"We are glad of this opportunity to do something for these three courageous swimmers and which the Canadian National Exhibition committee quite rightly and entirely unable to do so

"(Signed) ALLAN ROSS,
"Pres. Wrigley Marathon."

Convict Escapes From Devil's Island, Thousands Try But Few Ever Succeed

PARIS, Sept. 8.—A brief cable to-day from the convict settlement in French Guiana tells of the dramatic escape from the prison of Dr. Pierre Bourgrat, prominent Marseilles physician and member of a well-known family, who in March of last year was sentenced to hard labor for life for the murder of Jacques Rumebe, a bank collector. Although he was sentenced a year and a half ago, the doctor arrived in Guiana only a few weeks ago. He was working in the prison hospital.

Two other prisoners escaped with the doctor, and squads of armed men are now searching the wild country into which the trio fled. The details, which are sure to be absorbing, are still lacking.

In the long and gruesome history of this French penal colony few inmates have ever escaped, and the few who have got away have undergone remarkable experiences.

The Bourgrat case was one of the most sensational in recent years in France. The bank collector, with a large sum of money in his possession, had called on the doctor professionally and then disappeared. His body was found months later in a closet in Bourgrat's office.

The prosecutor showed that the doctor suddenly had a lot of money following the visit of his patient.

Only two other men are known to be living who have escaped from the penal colony of Guiana. The convict settlement is on the mainland, but there are three islands near by where the most incorrigible prisoners are sent. It is by the name of one of these Devil's Island, that the convict settlement is generally known. It was on Devil's Island that Captain Dreyfus was imprisoned.

It is estimated that about 1,000 prisoners a year attempt to escape. The only two living known to have reached another shore are Edward Guerin, one of the most expert bank thieves and international criminals in the world, and Eugene Dieudonne, French Apache and member of the famous Jules Bonnot gang.

NEW MACHINE 'WELDS' SHOES

Weston Shoe Company First in Canada To Have One Installed.

SHOES WEAR LONGER.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 8. — First of its kind in Canada is the new machine for the manufacture of fine shoes which has just been installed and put in operation in the factory of the Weston Shoe Company here. It is expected that this device will be the means of revolutionizing certain costly and intricate operations in the process. The machne has been imported directly from Europe and went into operation in the regular production line of the factory yesterday.

By the new method, shoes for men women and children will be made without either either nailed or sewn soles. There will be no channels in the soles and the wear will be that much longer. They simply can not squeak. The sole is welded to the upper and is therefore waterproof. They are easily repaired and are guaranteed to keep their shape till worn out. The new process also makes the shoes flexible and easy on the feet.

A few of the business men and members of the town council and the press were invited to see the machine in operation yesterday. Among those present were the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, George Nicol, manager of the Bank of Montreal, Gordon Lapp, manager of the Standard Bank, John MacGregor, town clerk, A. T. Linton, merchant and others. The machine was demonstrated by M. M. Mayer, of Boston, Mass. The shoes will go on the market under the name of Queen City Shoes, Welded Process.

The machine which was being demonstrated was shaped like a large drum, about five feet in diameter. About its rim were individual places for twenty single shoes. The machine may either be revolved and operated automatically or by single stages by the operator. Its power unit is a one half horsepower electric motor. The machine weights 4500 pounds and is capable of turning out three hundred pairs of shoes daily when aided by the auxiliary machinery usually employed to prepare the leather.

The machine is the first of its kind to make its appearance in Canada and one of few on the continent. The shoes which it produces will be of a higher grade than the ordinary sewn and nailed kinds and will go on the market at only slightly increased prices. The vice president of the company here does not expect that the difference in price will amount to more than a few cents.

Each shoe must be made of genuine leather in order for the chemicals to do their part o fthe work. The cement, a special patented kind, is applied and allowed to dry on the roughed leather. When the shoes are ready to go in the machine a second solution is applied and the chemical action which takes place under the pressure is nearer vulcanizing than any other process generally known. Each shoe is subjected to a pressure of fifteen hundred pounds evenly distributed throughout. The pressure is hydraulic and obtained through the medium of a water jacket under the shoe. Each press has an individual set of machinery. The result is a sole of satiny smoothness which is capable of outwearing any ordinary sewn or nailed sole.

A few of the details imperative to the manufacture which are of interest to the consumer are that the material must be of clean dry genuine leather in order for the acetone solution to take effect. For the last theirteen years the machines have been in operation in Europe and millions of pairs are imported into the United States annually. The orginal patents on the idea have been traced back as far as 1876, but the only machine which has proved satisfactory to the trade is the one which has been installed in the factory here. There is no heat involved. All the work is done by cold hydraulic pressure.

Weston Shoe Factory located in Campbellford in 1903. Since then it has increased in size and in volume of business till it has arrived at its present status. The foresight of the men at its head may be understood to a certain extent when it is recalled that Mr. Weston journeyed to Boston in order to see one of the machines and succeeded in being the first Canadian manufacturer to install one.

Mr. Weston said the shoes would be the first of their kind to reach the Canadian trade and that the samples would be on the road within the next week. He expected that his travellers would have them by September 12th. The factory would be in a position to fill orders within the next thirty days.

At the present time the output from the single unit installed will be an increase over and above the usual factory run. But it is expected that as time passes, the new method will oust the old and as more machines are installed the old method of manufacture will pass into oblivion except for the brands of children's shoes which, for economical reasons only, could not be made on the machines.

Industrial progress is a great factor in modern life. You find it exemplified in the advertisements from day to day. Read them, advertisements and keep up with the history of your own times.

MORE CASES OF DREAD DISEASE IN MANITOBA

Fourteen Deaths Have Occurred Since Infantile Paralysis Epidemic Started.

VERY FEW ADULTS.

Reported Disease Becoming Widespread in Province and Saskatchewan.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 8. Canadian Press. — Ten more cases of infantile paralysis in Manitoba, were reported to the health authorities yesterday, two in Winnipeg and eight from other points in the province. The two new Winnipeg cases are women. Very few adult cases have been reported so far. Since the epidemic started 14 deaths have occurred and 125 cases have been reported.

While it appears that the epidemic is abating in Winnipeg, it seems to be becoming more widespread in the province, and reports from Saskatchewan show that the disease has broken out there and that two children have died.

Medical men pointed out to-day that the serum being shipped from Toronto is not being obtained because of any scarcity of the antidote here. It was ordered as a precautionary measure, to be in readiness for emergencies.

Two in Saskatchewan.

REGINA, Sask., September 8. —Canadian Press. — Infantile paralysis has appeared in Saskatchewan, with two deaths recorded, the health officials stated yesterday. The number of cases of the disease is not known.

Schools have been warned, physicians have been asked to watch and visitors from Winnipeg are being scrutinized wherever possible by the civic authorities in an effort to prevent an epidemic of the disease in Regina. Reginians here were urged not to encourage visitors to come here from Winnipeg.

SHOWER HELD.

Miss Mable Walker Honored By Friends at Lakefield.

(Examiner Correspondence).

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 8—A very pleasing social event took place on Thursday evening, when about fifty ladies gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garbutt for one of the neighborhood parties for which the west side of the village is famous. Miss Mabel Walker, whose marriage to Dr. J. C. Smith takes place to-day, was the raison d'etre for the party which was informal and very delightful. To the accompaniment of the "Bridal Chorus," played by Miss Etta Garbutt, two dainty little girls, Jean Clark and Ethel Millar, drew in a decorated waggon on which was placed a handsome solid walnut chesterfield table which was presented to the bride-elect with the hearty good wishes of the Presbyterian Church and other friends. The address accompanying the gift was read by Miss Duff and expressed in graceful terms a welcome back to Lakefield to Miss Walker, who spent her childhood and school days in the village, and assuring her of the best wishes of old friends and new, on the occasion of her marriage.

Miss Walker, although very much touched and surprised by the gift, replied gracefully, thanking her friends for their expression of goodwill which will always be a pleasant reminder of kind friends and a very delightful evening.

Following the presentation, Mrs. McMillen sang sweetly, "All I want is a cottage, some roses and you," Mrs. H. E. Moore playing the accompaniment.

Misses Helen Porter and Etta Garbutt contributed brilliant piano solos to the program. Dainty refreshments were served, and after a social hour the ladies dispersed after renewed expressions of goodwill to the bride-elect and thanks to Mrs. Garbutt for a delightful social event.

Miss Adeline Downer, R.N., of Pittsfield, Mass., is visiting her sister Mrs. G. T. Dickson, Ranney street.

After many weeks of confusion, the last of the paving operations was completed yesterday afternoon. Already much of the material of the Standard Paving Company has been removed from town. Work of filling in the space between the curb and sidewalk is still in progress. Next Thursday is the monster celebration in honor of the official opening of these streets.

BUSINESS POLICY TALK NO. 2

HAVE CONFIDENCE IN YOUR PRINTER

He Is Your Business Doctor — He Seeks Your Confidence.

HOW do you choose your doctor or lawyer? Some friend usually recommends one or both on account of the "confidence" one has. You have the "confidence" and then expect definite action and results. Do you barter over price? No, you put that consideration last. Why not place the same amount of confidence in your printer?

Your dealings with your printer are greater in proportion than with any other professional man. You expect to get direct and indirect results from every piece of printing turned out. You expect the printer to place his equipment at your disposal and "rush" your job through, and yet many purchasers of printing do not place the necessary amount of confidence in the printer to enable him to do justice to either his client or himself.

The average printer is largely to blame for this situation on account of his lack of business methods and his anxiety to get the job at any price to keep it away from another printer.

Choose your printer with discrimination, as you would your lawyer or doctor, and "stick to him." He will take just as much interest in your business as he does in his own, and both will benefit.

Be sure that your printer is one that "gives the same treatment to one and all."

THE FESTIVAL OF CHRISTMAS

BY VERY REV. C. J. VAUGHAN, D.D., DEAN OF LLANDOFF.

St. Luke II.15.—"Let us now go even unto Beth'ehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us."

THIS was the resolution of the shepherds on the original Christmas Day; may it be our own! "Come and see" is written upon the gospel; there is no secrecy and no concealment in it. It challenges inquiry; it invites search; it opens itself to handling. "That which we have looked upon," it says, "and our hands have handled, of the Word of life." Others may be timid for the gospel—the gospel is not timid for itself. "I spake openly to the world; . . . in secret have I said nothing:" it was the Saviour's own saying, it is the saying for ever of His gospel. Let us apply it to our great subject.

We have a fact before us: "Unto you is born a Saviour." It is a summary of Revelation.

It presupposes a ruin. They that are whole need not a physician, and they that are safe need not a preserver. It assumes that salvation must come from without. "Man cannot deliver his brother, nor make agreement with God for him, for it cost more to redeem their souls" (more than man can offer), "so that he must let that alone for ever." It declares, further, that the Deliverer, though He comes from without the creature, must enter into it by incorporation. There must be a birth to bring in the Saviour into the Cosmos which, as the work of His own hands, is external to Him. "Unto you is born a Saviour"—Incarnation makes Him such.

These are the three elements of the text and of the doctrine. It would be almost an impertinence to argue them. Who amongst us seriously doubts the first of them? What man of common intelligence can question his own sinfulness? He has had experience of it. He has done, many times—he has left undone, many times—not according to his own judgment of the thing that was right. He has resolved, many times, and it has come to nothing—he has condemned himself, many times, too late, and in vain for that which he wonders that he ever could have consented to. We may account differently for this state of things, but we cannot gainsay it.

Then, is all this misdoing and leaving undone to be treated as a mere misfortune—to be passed by, and passed over as leaving no permanent consequence, in the form of direct punishment, or in the form of incapacity for eventual happiness? If this seems to the man himself impossible; if his own conscience writes bitter things against him by reason of his own doing and leaving undone; can he make amends for it? Can he repair the past by effort or penance? Can he give himself back the lost time, or the lost opportunity, or the lost virtue, and stand before God in judgment as a self-saved man? If not this, must he not feel that, in all literalness of simplicity, God alone can save him, and that God alone can prescribe and reveal the way? Can he be sure that something may not need to be done in the way of reconciling mercy and justice—something in the nature of vicarious suffering—a bearing, in order to take away, the sins of the world? Can he say that there may be no necessity for a personal intervention of God Himself to atone before He can indwell? If there is to be anything of the nature of sacrifice on the part of God Himself—nay, if there is to be any contact whatever, even in the form of sympathy between God and the creature—if there is to be any communication and communion, so much as of speech or of feeling, between the human and the Divine, there must be (we almost dare to say it) Incarnation; there must be that of which the Epistle to the Hebrews says, "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, He also Himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage." He must be born—such is the argument—on purpose that He might die. "Unto you is born a Saviour."

So simple, yet so profound, is the mystery of Christmas. It is this threefold cord, of sin, of helplessness, and of Divine intervention which has given the festival its wonderful hold upon the heart and soul of mankind. It is not the saturnalia of the heathen midwinter; it is the reasonable and spiritual festival of a humanity which knows itself, and to which God has spoken. If there were not a vast multitude of true Christians, able to interpret God to man, and man to himself—able to say with a full heart, "We know that the Son of God is come;" "that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us"—there would be a vast difference in the whole tone and feeling of the celebration, even for those who do not enter into its highest and deepest significance. The Church keeps her Christmas as the birthday of her Lord; and the world, catching the reflection of her joy, bears the testimony of a common humanity to its beauty and its glory: may it be but true! The joy of Christmas commends itself, even to the world, as that which would be life to it, might they but believe. "Let us now go and view this thing which is come to pass," Christians say to-day one to another; and they would call their friends and their neighbours together—as they would on the discovery of a lost treasure—to rejoice with them, saying, in the yearning of a Christian love and a Christian philanthropy, even to them that are farthest off as yet from knowing, "Come and see!"

When we try to obey the summons, the first thing which we notice is, that Christmas day is the festival of redemption as a whole.

It presents to us, not so much one part or one element of the gospel, but rather the intervention of God in Christ to save sinners as a single and complete act, containing in itself all that was necessary to give it validity and to give it efficacy. St. Paul, in the last of his Epistles (the second to Timothy), so speaks of it. He speaks of the eternal purpose of God in Christ for the salvation of man as "made manifest," once for all, "by the appearing (Epiphany) of our Saviour Jesus Christ." That "appearing," that manifestation on the stage of time, had in it the whole train of action and suffering by which Christ wrought out our redemption; and that "appearing," that Advent, is the subject of our commemoration.

We might, indeed, say that each one of the great acts of the Redemption, rightly understood, has in it the virtue of the whole work. The Crucifixion, the Resurrection, the Ascension, each one looked back or looked forward to all the rest. Christ died as He that should rise, and rose as He that had died. But in an especial sense is this true of the Incarnation. Believe that, and all else is intelligible; we may almost say, all else is natural. "The mystery of godliness"—to use the word "mystery" for a moment in its popular rather than in its strictly Scriptural sense—"the mystery of godliness is, God was manifested in the flesh." This is what St. John makes the test of truth and error. "Every spirit which confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God; and every spirit which confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God; hereby know we the spirit of truth and the spirit of error." St. John, taught of God, foresaw that the real battle would always rage around the Christmas revelation: it is the key of the position as between faith and infidelity. Accept that, and all follows. Deny, or dilute, or explain away that, and neither atonement, nor intercession, nor judgment can retain one particle of virtue.

Let us not speak harshly or impatiently of those (and they are many) who find the real mystery of Christmas difficult or repellent to them, for indeed it passes understanding, and transcends (though it contradicts not) reason. Yet to excuse a man this faith, is to leave him still in darkness. Nay, it is to leave a hopeless discord and quarrel between two vast portions of revelation itself. Scripture is full of the humanity of Jesus. His hunger and thirst, His eating and drinking, His weariness and resting, His sighs and tears, His friendships and affections are written on every page of the Gospels—written in perfect simplicity in manifold variety: who runs may read them. The reality of His human nature is assumed throughout the record. That He was a man in flesh is true, if there be one particle of truth in Scripture. On the other hand, we find in the same record of Him, not only exercises of supernatural power, which might possibly be like in kind to those of other commissioned and empowered men; and not only words of superhuman wisdom, differing only perhaps in degree from those which holy men of God, moved by the Holy Ghost, have been enabled to utter before Him; but, which is far more remarkable, as being absolutely peculiar to Him—express claims of dignity and majesty, nay, even of unity with God Himself, such as would be presumptuous and blasphemous if they were not true, and which stand in striking and marvellous combination with the quiet and level humanity which is equally His characteristic. If we would do any justice to both these classes of statement, we must feel that, at one point out of sight, quite beyond the reach of our discovery, or of our definition, there was a junction in Him of the Divine and the Human, such as that which we faintly typify by the word Incarnation, such as that of which we commemorate the realization in our festival of the Holy Nativity.

We are not asked to understand this; and yet I say that, even as an inference, even as a hypothesis, even as a conjecture, it would be a relief from the utter confusion and chaos of the two classes of Scripture statement to which I have adverted. Without Incarnation, we must cut out either the one half, or else the other half, of our Gospels; or else we must retain the whole with that sort of puzzled look and paralyzed hold upon it which we must suspect to be the condition of thousands and tens of thousands even among our worshippers.

It would be a happy day for many if they might be brought, by God's blessing, to a decision upon this question of questions. If, in a case where it would be stupidity to doubt either the honesty or the information of the writers, a thoughtful man, struck by the contrariety, on which we have dwelt, of the Divine and the human in our Lord Jesus Christ, would try the doctrine of Christmas Day as to its satisfactoriness of reconciliation, and, while acknowledging the fact to be high above him, would yet receive it into his soul, for use, as one of God's mysteries, explaining everything but itself—explaining the Atonement, explaining the Resurrection, explaining the Ascension, explaining Pentecost, and the Advent, and the great Judgment—it is astonishing what light would spring up in that man upon all the concerns of his spiritual being; he would enter into the saying, as never before, that Christmas sets before us the work of God in Christ as a whole, and that to-day, in a more especial and comprehensive sense, we, His unworthy servants, are giving Him most humble and hearty thanks for the redemption of the world by our Lord Jesus Christ, for the means of grace, and for the hope of glory.

II. But the festival of Christmas, though its foundation lies so deep, has a thought for all natures. It is, in an especial sense, the festival of the brighter side of Christianity.

It is quite possible so to look upon this earth as to discover nothing but gloom. God knows, better than we know, how deplorable is the havoc made by sin in the homes and lives and hearts of us men. We might easily draw such inferences from the spectacle daily before us as would paralyze effort and preclude cheerfulness. And it is quite possible so to represent religion as to make it a depressed and downcast thing, fit only for sick-rooms and death-beds; a perpetual Jonah-like proclamation, "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown."

But neither the one nor the other of these views takes in the whole landscape. There is a brighter side of human life, and God does not intend it to be scouted. Wonderful as it is to utter and to reflect upon, God Himself has made joy one element of our nature, has kept it so notwithstanding the entrance of sin and death, and has made cheerfulness (even amidst all the distressing facts and experiences of our being) an absolute condition of any vigorous or successful working. It is not intended that we should dwell in the dust and ashes even of a too true contemplation. God alone can see all things, and live. Except in so far as we can be useful, we had better turn our eyes away from ghastly and sickening spectacles. Except in so far as we require it for chastening and for sobering, we had better turn our backs resolutely even upon our own irreparable past, and fasten all our thoughts upon an available future. Certain it is that an admixture of joy is indispensable to all healthy and wholesome living; that it is not true that even a fallen world is all misery; that it is not true (else there would be an end at once to the development of all the stronger and hardier faculties) that it is wrong to use thankfully all that comes in our way of being and of making happy, were it only as a religious exercise of praise and thanksgiving.

Thus it is that the observance of Christmas as a season of joy and gladness is so right in itself and so honourable to the gospel. Although it is a commemoration which has in it all commemorations, some of them full of thoughts of sadness and suffering—full of recollections of sin, and its terrible offspring of fear and woe—yet, in itself, it has all the tenderness, all the hopefulness, with which men who have a heart in them contemplate infancy and childhood, the innocency of a new-born babe, and the endless capabilities of blessing which imagination foreshadows in the swaddling clothes and the cradle. God would have it so that a birth should be a hope rather than a fear; and even He who knows the ambiguity of all human concerns, shall yet prognosticate good, and not evil, for the race which has yet to be run.

That which is true to human nature in reference to every birth and every beginning, has, of course, a tenfold appropriateness to the cradle of the Saviour. It would be a false, and certainly unscriptural, obtrusion of the thought that for many Christ (we fear) will have come in vain, to make this a reason for weeping over the sight which God has revealed to us in Bethlehem. Never let us so dishonour Christ as to doubt whether, on the whole, it has been good for humanity that He has been born. However difficult it may be for us to reconcile, or even to balance, the opposite results of His Epiphany upon those who believe and those who reject Him, of this we are certain, that His advent was proclaimed by Him who knew all, as "good tidings of great joy to all people," and that to represent it otherwise would be to charge God Himself foolishly, as well as to take out of the gospel all that has made it the power of God for salvation, and Jesus Christ, Himself the one Magnet of humanity, forming a new fellowship in the earth and (as it is written) "gathering together at last all things in Himself."

Christmas is the festival of the bright side of the gospel—let us rejoice and be glad in it!

III. The last word is like this, for it describes Christmas as by common consent the festival of the family and of home.

It is in this light that Christendom views it; and anything which tends to strengthen that tie, the strongest and tenderest of all which connects humanity, must be for good, and must be of God.

It is a mistake to suppose that this use of Christmas depends upon the providential circumstances of the home; depends, for example, upon possibilities of meeting, or depends upon the continued life of its members. It is the spiritual gathering together which is the Christmas reality. They whose sons or whose brothers are serving their country or exercising an honest calling by land or sea, in India or Australia, are reminded of the indestructible union over which the bodily severance has no power. They whose parents, or else whose children, are already in the invisible country, can still keep the feast with them, if not exactly in joy and gladness, yet in the strong and solid confidence of a safety far beyond any that an earthly home can offer, and a unity, not of earth but of heaven, to be realized, a little while hence, with those who are not lost but gone before. Christmas is the family festival still though its tone must of necessity be affected by the circumstances, joyous or sorrowful, of its annual return.

"Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass." The thing spoken of is the birth of the Saviour, Christ the Lord; the "sign" of it is "a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger," "because there is no room for Him in the inn." The commonness, the humility, the littleness is the sign—the thing signified is that which has changed the life of man, and opened the world beyond death to all who have faith to enter it. Thus it is always. God is seen, not in the great things of earth, not in the noble, not in the mighty. He is seen in the unconscious sleep of the helpless babe in the outdoor cradle. Thus He taught us how, coming to save, He made Himself one with the sin-ruined in their ruin; incorporated Himself not with the privileged few, but with the common many, that none might be able to say, "He overlooked me," that none might be able to say, "Thus far He descended, but not into the depths of humanity, not into the lower and lowest parts of the earth." "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, how, though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor;" yes, "He humbled Himself and became obedient," first to the likeness of men, then to the cottage home and the manger cradle, then, at last, "to death, even the death of the cross."

Think of these things: Mary's anointing; Peter's denial; Judas' betrayal. Which are you doing?

"The Lord hath need." This should be enough. He can have the colt and the cash, the home, heart and all. Let Christ ride triumphantly, O my soul!

Man could not judge Christ and make Him guilty, but God could judge Christ and make man guiltless.

Those who reject the "Stone" will get the "rocks."—Rev. 6:16-17.

It is well known that the recovery of the backslider is one of the hardest problems in spiritual work. To reinvigorate an old organ seems more difficult and hopeless than to develop a new one; and the backslider's terrible lot is to have to retrace with enfeebled feet each step of the way along which he strayed; to make up, inch by inch, the leeway he has lost, carrying with him a dead-weight of acquired reluctance, and scarce knowing whether to be stimulated or discouraged by the oppressive memory of the previous fall.

A PRAYER

PRAYER No. 4.

O Blessed Jesus, Who didst suffer for our sakes the darkness of the cross, crying with a loud voice to the Eternal Father; Be with us, we beseech Thee, in all our spiritual depression, and when we feel not for a time the comfort of the Divine presence, teach us to cry with a loud voice to Him Who will hear us in that we fear, and so give us patience to watch till the day break and the shadows flee away, ever looking for the brightness of Thine appearing, Who livest with the Father and the Holy Ghost, God for ever and ever. Amen.

He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him. Jno. iii. 36.

For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die. But God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Much more then, being now justified by his blood we shall be saved from wrath through him. For if, when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life. And not only so, but we also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement. Rom. v. 6-11.

A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments and do them. Ezek. xxxvi. 26, 27.

And he saith unto them, ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts: for that which is highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God. Lk. xvi. 15.

Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. Is. lv. 7.

He feedeth on ashes: a deceived heart hath turned him aside, that he cannot deliver his soul, nor say, Is there not a lie in my right hand? Remember these, O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant: I have formed thee; thou art my servant: O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. I have blotted out as a thick cloud, thy transgressions, and, as a cloud, thy sins return unto me; for I have redeemed thee. Isa. xliv. 20-22.

But Thomas, one of the twelve called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord. But he said unto them, Except I shall see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side, I will not believe. And after eight days again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them: then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you. Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side: and be not faithless but believing. And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God. Jesus saith unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou has believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed.. Jno. xx., 24-29.

STORIES FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

DAVID, or THE HARP
1 Sam. xvi, 14 to end.
"(By M. B.)"

Did Saul know who was to be king instead of him? No; Samuel did not tell Saul what he had done. Saul would have been very angry if he had known that David had been anointed; but he did not know it.

Yet Saul was very unhappy. God had let a wicked spirit come into him. Saul felt frightened and uneasy, so that he could not rest. He lived in a fine house, called a palace, but this did not make him happy; he had many servants to wait upon him, but they could do him no good.

You see, my dear children, what a sad thing it is to offend God. God can make people happy, and he can make them unhappy.

What should Saul have done, now he was so unhappy? He should have prayed to God to forgive him. But he did not love praying to God.

Saul's servants saw that he had a wicked spirit in him, and they said to him, 'Shall we look for a man who can play very sweetly on the harp? Perhaps, if you were to listen to very sweet music, you might get well.'

Then Saul answered his servants, 'Look for such a man, and bring him to me.'

Whom could the servants send for? One of the servants had heard of David, and he said to Saul, 'I have seen one of the sons of Jesse, who lives at Bethlehem, and he can play beautifully on the harp: and besides this he is a very brave young man, who can fight well; and he can speak very wisely, and he is very handsome; and God loves him: shall I send for him?'

Saul said that he would have this young man sent for. Some of Saul's servants went to Jesse, and said, 'King Saul wishes to see your son David who takes care of the sheep.'

Jesse said that David might go; and he desired David to take a present to King Saul. What was the present? Some bread, a kid (which is a young goat), and a bottle of wine. David put these things upon an ass, and brought them to Saul. When Saul saw David, he loved him very much. Perhaps Saul loved him because he had a sweet look, and could play well on the harp; but God loved him because he wished to please him.

Saul liked David so much that he wished David to stay with him a long while, and to be always near him. So Saul sent a message to Jesse to say that he wished to keep him.

David very often played to Saul upon the harp, and when David played Saul grew better, and at last grew quite well.

At last David went away from Saul, and fed his father's sheep as he used to do.

I think David liked taking care of the sheep better than living with Saul: for Saul was wicked, and many of his servants were wicked.

David was very happy when he was alone, thinking about God. Did you ever hear any of David's psalms? In one of these psalms he calls God his shepherd. David took great care of his sheep, and led them to places where green fresh grass grew, and to smooth and clear water; and he made them lie down on the softest grass, in cool places by the river's side. While David was taking so much care of his sheep, he thought that God took still more care of him; and he said, 'The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures, and beside the still water.'

Have you a shepherd my dear children? I hope that the Lord is your Shepherd, too, and that you are His dear little lambs. Jesus is the Good Shepherd, who died to save you. He loves you very much, and wishes to make you happy. Do you wish to be his little lambs? Jesus will be so kind to you. He will keep you quite safe, and he will put his Spirit in you, and he will comfort you when you are unhappy, and at last he will take you to heaven.

Sin doth naturally draw judgement to it as the loadstone doth iron.

Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand; by which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain. For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures. 1 Cor. xv., 1-4.

Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved and thy house. Acts xvi., 31.

They profess that they know God; but in works they deny Him, being abominable and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate. Titus i., 16.

For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world; and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. 1 John v., 4.

Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. Gal. vi., 7, 8.

But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all. Is. liii., 5, 6.

Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I will strengthen; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee. Is. xli., 10, 13.

Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. 1 Pet. i., 5.

Psalm CXLV. 10.—"All Thy works praise Thee O Lord."

HARK to the voice of the waters, sounding God's ceaseless praise!
Thundering surges rejoicing in strength on the stormy days.
List to the musical babble of the brook as it laughs along
Over its shining pebbles the ferns and grasses among.
The breeze is moving the tree-tops, and the leaves their whispering add
To the hymn the birds are singing from hearts so brave and glad.
Up in the Northern spaces where the wild goose builds her nest,
The seas are full of God's creatures voicing their psalm of rest.
The wilderness glows with blossom spread out before the Lord,
The gardens and standing cornfields chant their music in sweet accord.
And we, to whom God hath given this earth so wondrous fair,
Shall raise our thankful voices their anthem of praise to share.

RECORD EXHIBITS

The manner in which entries are pouring in for Peterborough Exhibition indicates that in point of exhibits all previous records are to be left in the rear.

In view of the fact that the Minister of Agriculture is to visit the Exhibition this year this wonderful showing is of great importance.

Mr. Martin believes in fall fairs and feels that they have a splendid effect in promoting agricultural development but he is very anxious to see that they do not become lop-sized from paying too much attention to the amusement side at the expense of the agricultural departments.

He is not likely to find this the case in regard to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition which has steadfastly adhered to the policy that while there must be plenty of entertainment for Exhibition visitors the interests of agriculture should always be protected.

The result is that while the Exhibition is spending thousands of dollars on attractions where it once spent hundreds it is also providing a prize list proportionately larger than that of yesterday.

Mr. Martin will not be disappointed in the Peterborough Industrial; in fact the number and quality of the exhibits will probably be a surprise to him.

CAN'T THIS BE STOPPED?

Just when Canadian listeners-in were looking forward to good radio reception and anticiating the fall programs comes the announcement from Washington that Mr. Hoover's campaign managers have decided to spend $135,000 in broadcasting Republican propaganda.

Every night for 45 nights some Republican speaker is to occupy a half hour's time on one of the two national networks.

Mr. Hoover may be all his friends say he is and the Republican cause entirely worthy of public support but in the interest of radio enthusiasts we must voice a protest against any such orgy of political spouting over the radio.

45 nights of it; isn't this thing being overdone?

A little political stuff over the air could be digested but nightly speeches for six weeks is too much of a good thing and if Mr. Hoover isn't careful a lot of votes that are his now may be talked away before this long torture of nightly speeches is at an end.

The average radio listener is likely to feel that the worst jazz orchestra on the air is better than a nightly diet of political hokum.

RESTOCKING THE LAKES.

While the number of bass fingerlings to be placed in the lakes in this district in the near future is not large it amounts to 500 each for Pigeon, Stoney, Balsam and Sturgeon Lakes—the action of the Ontario Department in making some attempt to restock the waters of this part of Ontario will be appreciated.

It is hoped, of course, that the present distribution is the forerunner of restocking on a much larger basis in the near future.

There is cause for satisfaction in the announcement that the Department has had a successful season in the artificial propagation of bass for distribution and while 20,000 good-sized fingerlings have been raised already as against 5,000 altogether last year, the total by the end of the year is expected to reach 70,000.

Members of the Legislature from this part of Ontaro, as well as fish and game associations, municipal councils and other bodies should see to it that the restocking of the district waters is not confined to what is to be done on this occasion.

The lakes of the Peterbodough district, long an attraction for tourists, need much more than 500 young bass each to maintain fishing at a standard that will continue to draw visitors here.

AN ABSURD DECISION.

Public opinion seems to be very strongly opposed to the action of the Acquatic Committee of the Canadian National Exhibition in deciding to divide the $35,000 prize money equally among the fourteen swimmers considered as having given the most meritorious performance in the unfinished marathon.

It is recognized of course that the committee is not obligated to pay any money inasmuch as no contestant completed the distance.

The prizes awarded are merely gratuities.

But it must not be forgotten that the swim was promoted for two reasons, to advertise a chewing gum and to attract people to he Exhibition.

Both these objects were attained in spite of the fact that the race was unfinished.

The chewing gum company secured its advertising and over 200,000 people attended the Exhibition.

That being the case the committee is giving nothing away in paying the prize money.

The unfortunate part of it is the distribution decided upon which appeal to the majority of people as absurdly unfair.

Georges Michel, the chief hero of the contest whose game fight in the darkness of Wednesday night, against the icy cold that had hours since driven everybody else out of the water stirred the people of half a continent receives the same reward as other swimmers whose experiences were far less harrowing than his.

Imagine after that grim battle he is given exactly the same money as Norman Ross, the Chicago speeder, who pulled himself out of the race before noon.

The decision is grotesquely unfair to the stout French baker, and to Ernst Vierkoetter whose speed and endurance in the face of such conditions were extraordinary.

The Examiner believes that it is voicing the general opinion in protesting against the award that has been made and in pleading for justice to men who showed themselves worthy of better treatment.

REVOLUTION IN GRAIN HARVESTING.

The increased use, throughout the Canadian West of the agricultural implement which is known as the Combine, has been the subject of considerable comment in the Canadian press this year and sales of the machine throughout the Prairie Provinces have been large. By its use the work of cutting and threshing the grain is done in the one operation, and there is no labor or time consumed in the former matter of stooking. In addition to these advantages it should also be of great benefit in the speed with which the threshed grain can be deposited in the granary or under other cover where it is not likely to be damaged by wet weather. In recent years much wheat which was originally high grade has been rendered tough or of a quality considerably lower than it was originally by standing in the fields during unfavorable weather conditions which prevented its being threshed.

By the combine the grain after threshing is disposed of in different ways according to the preference and the facilities of the farmers in different districts. It can be deposited in wagons ready to haul to the granary or the elevator, or in large grain tanks, or again it can be gathered in bags, as those interested may feel is most desirable.

While much work has been put on the idea involved in the machine since the close of the last century, it is the last ten years that greatest progress has been made, and the problems have now been solved by the engineers of the big implement houses on the continent. This year despatches from the West, as well as the statements of officials of implement companies indicate that its use is becoming fairly general on the Canadian prairies.

In effect it is a virtual revolution in wheat harvesting. While making for greater economy and efficiency, at the same time it means that the old-time threshing gang will soon become a thing of the past. Three men can now do the work which formerly required fifteen or sixteen and labor and time are saved. Undoubtedly a gain in efficiency, like other labor-saving devices, it means the disappearance of some of the picturesque features of harvest time in the great grain-producing areas.—Monetary Times.

CHEMISTRY IN INDUSTRY.

Sixteen years ago the Society of Chemical Industry last met in America. Those who recall that meeting remember the spirited controversy between Sir William Perkin and Duisberg over synthetic rubber. No one then dreamed what was impending and what enormous demands the nations would soon make upon applied chemistry. As President Francis H. Carr said in the annual address yesterday, the great advance which has occurred is due in part to the fact that whole nations have made united effort to achieve a commonly accepted purpose. This is a beneficent by-product of the war.

Of this general result, English experience furnishes specific illustration. From the time when the Prince Consort, in the middle of the last century, imported a German chemist to the Royal College of Chemistry in London (one of whose pupils was this same William H. Perkin who discovered the first synthetic dye and who, as Sir William Perkin, confronted Professor Duisberg with the evidence of an earlier synthetic process for making rubber), the English Government gradually increased its efforts in behalf of science. But it was not until after the war had begun, in 1915, that it made direct financial provision for researches "undertaken with definite utilitarian objects." Out of this came the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, which maintains a number of stations of its own, but which functions chiefly through associations. In them different firms unite to maintain additional stations, the Government making grants in aid.

This procedure has tended to help companies that could not support independent laboratories and has had the wholesome effect of diminishing trade secrecy through the exchange of experience. Chemical "invention" is so different from mechanical invention that it is difficult to give sufficient encouragement through patents without preventing to some extent the general co-operation which these associations seek. Many chemical patents and this is true not alone in England hold the key to subsequent discoveries and may be of little value unless those discoveries are made. They tend thus to block the way to other workers. To maintain such a balance as will encourage research effort and yet not discourage further and intensive effort will require serious international consideration and co-operation, and this society should be most helpful in establishing that delicate balance.

It is stated that chemists have added twenty billion dollars to the world's wealth. This is probably not an exaggeration if credit for this vast increase is shared with the industries that have translated to human uses the chemist's formulae. The race would face to-morrow with considerable anxiety if the chemist had come not "to replace Nature's syntheses," but to supplement them. His mind is, after all, the most potent catalyst.—New York Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it 45,000 next week.

The division of the Toronto swim prize money will not help to popularize swimming marathons as a sport.

Go early and go often to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. There will be more to see and you'll need more time in which to see it.

The swim committee in distributing the prize money must have forgotten that fellow who quit in the first ten yards.

Don't forget the flags next week. Let our visitors know the whole community is behind the Exhibition.

A little more publicity about the British harvesters who are satisfied with conditions in Canada might be of some assistance.

At least credit should be given Premier Rhodes of Nova Scotia for making it a short campaign. The vote is to be taken on October 1st.

HOSPITAL TAXATION

Editor of The Examiner:

Now that we are in the throes of another year's heavy taxes, even heavier than other years, and having listened to the Hospital Board people saying we will have to face a $300,000 or $350,000 assessment for an addition to the Nicholls Hospital, it occurs to me why do men not try to economise when they are put in trust to manage public business? More than that I don't think anyone can blame me if I say we certainly have been groaning under a load of extravagant management for some years past. So with our taxes in full swing and all the expences we are under I have been doing some thinking and also have heard the voice of some others as well. Now I must try to put some of my musing on paper which is this:

I have been told the Barnardo Home property has been offered for sale at $20,000 which lies very convenient to the hospital, and containing six acres of ground adorned with beautiful trees. I have not seen it for some years but used to be there often when it was in use and the building was beautiful then. Now, why not buy it and put 30 or 35 thousand dollars improvements on it which would be a small thing compared to $350,000 and I feel sure the surroundings would be much more beautiful and roomy than the ground is where hosital stands.

Yours, A Tax Payer.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary?—Isa. 40:28.

Our Heavenly Father, with reverence and humility we would now at the Throne of Grace to obtain mercy and find grace for our daily needs. Conscious in some measure of our weakness and sinfulness, we earnestly seek Thy forgiving mercy, rejoicing to know that "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." We thank Thee for our home, and for the love that sweetens and beautifies home life. To each member of our family circle grant such blessings as are specially needed. Enlarge and deepen our sympathies. Preserve us from selfishness. Help us to learn patience and self-control. Keep us from hasty, thoughtless and unkind words, and from misunderstanding and misjudging others, and deliver us from anxiety and complaining. Fill Thy Church with missionary zeal and with the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. Strengthen the weak, comfort the sorrowing, restore the wandering. Remember with special mercy the homeless, the widow and the fatherless and all who are lonely and friendless. Help men everywhere to have the spirit of true brotherhood and grant the speedy triumph throughout the whole world of the principles of the Gospel of Peace. All of which we ask in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 8 (Canadian Press). — Some business was done in barley for export on the Montreal cash grain market yesterday. There was also some demand for car lots of Manitoba No. 5 feed for local account. Business on the whole was quiet.

There were no developments in the egg market. The undertone remained firm owing to the continued small offerings from country shippers. Receipts were 750 cases.

Butter trade was reported fair, there being a steady demand from both local and outside interests for supplies and the market was moderately active with a firm undertone. It was reported some further business was done in New Zealand creamery butter for October, November and December shipment at 37¼c per pound, c.i.f. Halifax. Receipts were 1,755 packages.

There was somewhat of a lull in the demand from English importers for cheese yesterday, and the market on the whole was inactive. No price changes of imporance took place.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sepember 8 (Canadian Press). — Grains settled down yesterday on a little firmer foundation to await the word of the Government crop forecasts. Trading was inactive, but beneath the surface was a more confident sentiment and the principal grains all closed at net advances for the day.

Wheat owed its relative strength largely to unpropitious weather indication north-west and the reticence of north-west sellers. Hedging sales went almost unnoticed on the Chicago market. Canada's largest crop continued marketward in heavy quantities, but Winnipeg felt the cool weather approaching would hamper the crop movement.

Country marketings in Canada yesterday were 3,376,000 bushels. Cash sales here were 10,000 bushels, and 62 cars were inspected. Trade in the pit was rather apathetic, with an inclination to hold off until publication of the United States and Canadian crop estimates on Monday and Tuesday. Wheat closed firm, ¼ cent to ¾ cent higher, September 110¼, December 115⅝, March 119¾ to 120, and May 122⅝.

Shorts in corn appeared to be impressed with the steady demand for high-priced cash corn and took cover heavily in September yesterday. Again there was a dearth of country offerings. There were 105,000 bushels sold for cash with the basis unchanged to one cent higher. September at one point reached 97, up 2⅜ cents from the low opening, but receded at the last. Deferred deliveries were up fractionally with September. Weather conditions were favorable on the whole. September closed 1½ to 1¾ cents higher, at 95½ to ⅝, other months ending unchanged to ½ cent up, December 75⅝ to ⅞, March 77½ and May 79⅞.

Buying of oats was stronger than of late, and shorts covered on the way up. All months scored independent gains, finishing ⅜ to 1¼ cent higher, September 40¼ and December 41¾.

Buying by commission houses pushed lard up strongly to 7 to 15 cents above Thursday's close, September finishing at 12.80. Ribs unchanged and bellies up 15 to 17 cents.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 8 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Demand—$4.84¼ to $4.84⅝.
Cables—$4.84⅝ to $4.84⅝.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Sept. 8. — Steadiness continues to be the feature of the Toronto wholesale produce market and this applies especially to the egg and butter quotations. The price tendency on eggs is still upwards. There were some quotations by wholesalers in selling to retailers yesterday of fresh firsts at 42c to 43c, or a price advance of one cent per dozen.

A Thought

GIVE HIM A CHANCE.

When a man, not a criminal at heart, has completed a prison sentence imposed upon him by society and walks forth from the prison with what little money the state allows him, bearing the marks of his confinement, he is entitled to pay to society:

"I've paid. Now see to it that I am not constantly reminded of the fact that I committed a crime. Be as game as I have been, and give me a chance."

He is entitled to say that, and perhaps he does say it. Whereupon society proceeds to let the plea in one ear and out the other. The commonest thing is to make the man's record a perpetual handicap against his attaining any degree of success outside the prison walls.

However, we are making some headway in the matter of our attitude toward the man with a prison mark against him. We no longer subject him to the tortures that were common a few generations ago. We make sure that he is given light in prison, something to occupy his mind and hands, exercise, sanitary living conditions, and we allow him at least a few of the common pleasures of existence. We give him tastes of freedoom outside the walls occasionally. We have grown broader, kinder and more tolerant toward the prisoner while he is a prisoner. The time is here when we should be kind to him after he is released.—Exchange.

"If I were buying again tomorrow I'd buy another WHIPPET" said an Owner

Such is the story we hear every day. Unsolicited but appreciated owner-testimonials are being sent to us continually—and, in the main, they are all the same.

Owner-satisfaction—always aimed at but not always achieved by motor car manufacturers—is the outstanding theme of every letter.

Each testimonial speaks in glowing terms of the Whippet's economy, its speed, its acceleration, its safety, its comfort, its stamina. But, most pleasing to us, is the phrase that appears most often, that denotes true owner-satisfaction—

—"and if I were buying again tomorrow, I'd buy another Whippet."

THE ADVENTURES OF SECKATARY HAWKINS AND HIS CLUB

A Case of Chinese Magic

We boys found out that the river that goes under the tunnel in the side of the cliff where the willows hang into the water is just a branch of the big river. The Pelham boys from across the river claim they own it because they saw it first. But our captain said we had as much right to it as t[hey] had because our canoes which had been stolen by that Chinaman [is] back in that tunnel river. [The] fellows came over to see us about it this morning. After we had fussed about it for a long time we thought we had better make a bargain with the Pelhams so we wouldn't get into any more fights with them. So Jerry Moore says:

"We will toss up a nickel, and if it comes down heads, the Pelhams get the cave river, and if it's tails, we get it."

The Pelhams said, "All right," but nobody had a nickel to toss up. I had a couple of pennies, so we used one of them. Jerry Moore tossed it up. Heads it came. So the Pelhams marched away happy and very proud to be owners of the cave river. After they were gone, our captain got sore at Jerry. He says: "Why didn't you toss up that penny so tails would turn up?" But Jerry just grinned.

"What's the difference?" he says. "We can get the cave river away from those Pelhams if we want it."

"Yes, by fighting," I said, "and we aren't going to fight those Pelhams any more."

"Well, let's wait and see," said Jerry.

And just then who should come along in a canoe but the old Skinny Guy, Link Lambert. All the boys like him, and they all ran down to the shore to meet him. He hopped out of his canoe and yelled: "Hello, fellows. I just thought I'd stop a while."

He had a big catch of the finest fish I ever saw, lying in his canoe.

"Where'd you get 'em, Link?" I asked.

"Oh," he says, "Pop and I been fishin' down on the island, and we caught many Pop said for me to take these up to Watertown and sell 'em."

He stayed a while with us, and we told him how we had found Cave River and how the Pelhams had got it by giving up a penny with us. Skinny laughed about that. "May be you will be glad you lost it," he said. But he wanted us to show it to him and we took him down and pointed out the hole where the tunnel river entered the hole in the cliff, under the willows. "Isn't that a fine place for a fellow to have some fun?" asked Jerry Moore.

But Skinny Guy shook his head. "Keep away from that old place," he said, "and don't ever go in swimming around that old cave river."

We asked him why, but he wouldn't say any more. He got into his canoe and shoved on up the river. We boys put up and got our fishing poles—we just had to get some fine fish now that we had seen the fine ones Skinny Link had in his canoe. And we had pretty good luck, too.

Later. There is a carnival up at Watertown this week, and we boys had made up to go and stay in that town with Jerry Moore's uncle, since school takes up next Monday, and this is the last week of our vacation. But when we were all ready to go, Bill Darby stood back.

"Aren't you going, Bill?" I asked. He shook his head and shoved his hands down in his pockets and smiled.

"No," he says, "I can't go—haven't got any money—Pop wouldn't give me any." All the boys were sorry and offered to chip in enough so Bill could go, but he shook his head and wouldn't have it.

"Nope!" he says, "I don't want charity, fellows, you all just go on and have a good time—you won't miss me much, I guess."

The boys all got into their canoes. I watched them start out, but I stood back on the river bank with Bill. The boys all called me, but I shook my head.

"Aren't you going, Hawkins?" asked Bill.

"No," I said, turning around and taking Bill's hand, "if you've got to stay, I'm goin' to stay with you, Bill. It's not just right, somehow, for one fellow to stay behind—anyway, Bill, you and I can have a great time by ourselves, while the others are away for a few days."

"You're a brick, Hawkins," says Bill, squeezing my hand. "You always do think of your pals—".

"Hush up, Bill," I said. I didn't want to go, anyhow. We'd have to stay at Jerry's uncle's house—and I don't like that old uncle anyway, because he gave me a slap alongside my ear once for chasing a pig around the stable, and I haven't forgot how it hurt. Now you and I can take a hike somewhere, Bill. Where would you like to go?"

"Well," says Bill, "I got a notion I'd like to see that cave river again—I'd like to see how far it runs and what's in it."

"By Jinks, Bill!" I said, "you've got more sense than I have. Sure, we'll go into cave river—I want to see how big it is myself."

We started for our canoe, and we saw a Pelham boat just landing at our little wharf. Booby Warren was the only one in it.

"Hello, Hawkins," he says, "I just come from the Pelham fellows to see you. They want to sell Cave River back to you fellows."

"Why!" I exclaimed. "Are they tired of it already?"

"No," says Booby, "but it isn't safe in that cave river—that Chinaman who lived in there must have been a magic fellow—there's funny sounds in that place that no Pelham fellow can [stand]."

Darby was listening to Booby's talk with big eyes, and I saw at once he was scared.

"Booby," I said, "we are goin' to take a look at Cave River, and if we like it, maybe our club will buy it back from the Pelhams. Tell 'em that, will you?"

* * *

With that, then, Booby went his way, and Bill and I started down the river in our canoe. I saw a kingfisher sitting on a log, and wanted to stop long enough to see it dive, but Bill was in a hurry to get to Cave River, so we pushed on until we came in sight of the willows that hang over the entrance to the tunnel river. And about that time Bill and I began to feel funny. We weren't afraid or anything like that, but what Booby had said had made us feel queer.

"Shucks! Hawkins," says Bill, "we know there isn't a ghost in Cave River, don't we?"

"Yeah," I said; "there's no such thing as spooks, Bill."

Just then we heard a swish in the water, and we neary jumped out of our canoe. We stopped in front of the willows, and neither of us said a word. We just sat there for a while, thinking. Then Bill said: "I've been thinking, Hawkins."

"About what?"

"Maybe there's some dangerous snakes in that Cave River, or an alligator or something."

I laughed at him. "You won't find any alligators in this part of the country," I told him.

All of a sudden we saw the willows parted, and a face peeped out. It was Briggen, the leader of the Pelhams. "Hey, Hawkins!" he said, in a low voice; "come here." We paddled under the willows. There was a Pelham flatboat, and in it with Briggen were Ham Gardner and Dave Burns.

"Were you fellows in Cave River?" I asked.

Briggen shook his head. "Not today," he whispered; "we're just waiting."

"Waiting for what?"

"For whatever might come out."

Then he brought his flatboat close to our canoe and leaned over and said: "Hawkins, you know that Chinese fellow that the Sheriff took out of this Cave River—the one who stole all your canoes and broke in Judge Granbery's house? Well, he knew how to do Chinese magic."

"What are you talking about?" I asked.

"Well," says Briggen, "we went in, and saw what we saw, and it was enough! The first thing we knew we heard some soft crying, and then somebody called my name—yes sir, Hawkins—called mine and Ham's and Dave's, too—it's magic, when a fellow can tell your name without knowing you."

"Go ahead," I said, as he paused; "what happened then?"

"Then," says Briggen, "we looked where the sound of the voice was coming from, and there was a face face shining like it had a light all around it, up high near the roof of the cave. We weren't afraid of that—it looked like somebody was playing a joke on us, so we got out and climbed up on the place where we had seen that lighted face, but there wasn't anything up there."

"Well," I said, "I think Bill and I will go in and take a look for ourselves."

"All right," said Briggen, "if you don't believe me—I've done my best to warn you—"

And just then we heard a sound come out of the cave—like a person crying and moaning, and the echo made it sound awful, and the next second the Pelham flatboat shot under the willows and out into the big river. Bill looked at me, and I said quickly: "Come on, lend a hand, let's get out of here!" And we paddled away as fast as we could. When we came out from under the willows we saw the Pelham flatboat far upstream already. When we landed at our little wharf, Bill jumped out and didn't even say goodbye—he was in a hurry to get home. I had to laugh at him, but when I happened to think again of that awful sound in Cave River, I began to feel queer myself, and I beat it for home and stayed there.

Now comes Friday. Bill and I made up our minds we wouldn't get cold feet this time when we went into Cave River. Yet, when I asked him if he wanted to go, and he said he did, it seemed to me he wasn't nearly so anxious about it. But I said: "Bill, that Cave River is a swell place to have some fun, and we've got a chance to own it, now, since the Pelhams don't want it any more."

"What good is it, if we are afraid to go in it?" asked Bill.

"Well," I said, "I've just got to find out what kind of magic is going on in that cave."

So we got out our canoe again, and were just slipping it into the water when we heard somebody calling us, and there was the Skinny Guy, standing up by our clubhouse. I yelled: "Come on, Link, let's go down to Cave River."

"Not me!" yelled Link. And he turned and ran up the river path. Bill looked as though he wanted to run with Link, but he didn't like to let me think he was afraid, I guess. So we paddled our canoe down the river, and this time we didn't stop outside the willows, we just went right in. It was damp in that tunnel, and we couldn't hear a sound. Oh, boy, that silence was awful. Bill turned his flashlight up against the sides of the tunnel, and I kept paddling on. Seemed like we had gone a half-mile in that tunnel when we came to a bend, and then the tunnel began to widen out into a kind of a room—and it sure was a pretty place. Bill's light flashed upon the long, shiny things that hung from the roof like icicles, and the dark river ran along a narrow path while the shore looked like a big flat table-top. We pulled the canoe upon the flat, and began to look around. It seemed to me I heard some footsteps, but I wasn't sure. We looked around, turning our flashlights up and down, but we didn't see anything strange. But all of a sudden we heard it—the same crying and moaning sound! Bill grabbed my arm and let his flashlight go out. We stood there in the dark, holding on to each other. The crying sound kept up and seemed to grow louder, and then a squeaky voice came high above that sound:

"Is that you, Seckatary Hawkins, and have you got Bill Darby with you?"

Bill and I stood there like we had been scared stiff—except that my knees began to shake. We couldn't figure it out—that strange voice that could see in the dark, and know our names! We waited to hear it again, but no more sound came to our ears. Even the crying and moaning had stopped now. Bill pinched my arm and I looked up—I saw a light up high near the roof—it moved—and it was like a face with a glow around it moving swiftly through the dark space. And then suddenly it seemed to melt into the darkness and was gone.

"Get the canoe!" I whispered to Bill. And we hopped in and got out of Cave River as quickly as we could. Once in the bright daylight on the open river and I wasn't afraid any more—but I was puzzled. I wondered who it was in Cave River playing those magic tricks, and how he knew our names when he couldn't possibly have seen our faces in the dark. I began to figure out that it was somebody we both knew, too. But Bill was scared, and I saw he believed it was magic, so we paddled on up home.

"Whatever it is, Bill," I said, "the next time I go up there I'll find out."

And then today was Saturday, and our boys came back home from Watertown. We held a meeting early and Bill and I told them all about the magic in Cave River. They all wanted to go down and see for themselves. Briggen and the Pelham fellows came over about ten o'clock and wanted to sell us Cave River, but our captain said we wouldn't buy it, but we would go down and see what kind of magic was going on in the water tunnel. But Bill Darby said he wouldn't go in that place again for a hundred dollars. I said I'd stay with Bill. The reason was because I would rather go later by myself. So all the other boys went. Bill and I had just begun to talk about the squeaky voice that had called out our names, when the Skinny Guy came in. He asked where the other boys were, and I told him they all had gone to Cave River to see the Chinese magic.

"Is that so!" exclaimed Link. "Well, you fellows come along with me, and we will have plenty of fun while they are gone."

We went along with him, all right. He led us around to the back of the cliffs, and we climbed the rocks for a long way until we came to a break, where there was a big, dark hole in the cliffside. "Jump down after me," says Skinny Link, and he went in and disappeared. It looked kind o'steep to me, but I jumped and Bill came after me. We were in a dark, cold hole. Skinny held my hand and I held on to Bill's, and we walked along in the dark. Soon the Skinny Guy stopped and said: "Look down." We looked, but it was too dark, we couldn't see a thing, but we could hear water running below. "It's Cave River," says Skinny, with a little laugh. Then he led us farther on, and down some rocky steps. Once more he told us to look down, and not to make any noise. And when we looked, by Jinks! if there below us wasn't the same cave room we had been in yesterday, Bill and I. The reason we could see it was because our boys and the Pelhams were down there in Cave River and they had torches and flashlights, and we could hear them talking. All of a sudden Skinny began making a funny crying sound, and then I knew who had been making this Chinese magic! It sounded awful, in that darkness, and we saw the Pelhams below turn their boats around and hurry out of Cave River. Our boys weren't scared so easily. They all looked up, to see where the crying sound came from, and Bill and I turned to watch Skinny Link—he was lighting a candle in a queer lantern—it was a glass lantern with an ugly face on the front, and he held it up and ran swiftly around the ledge of rock, and then ran back again and blew the candle out. Then he called in a squeaky voice:

"Is that you, Jerry Moore? What you so 'fraid about, Roy Dobel? If you're not afraid of magic, Johnny McLaren, come up and try to find me."

That was too much for our fellows, even. They really thought it was spooks. They made a wild scramble for their canoes, but I yelled out to them: "It's all right, boys—it's only the Skinny Guy!"

They all stopped in their tracks, and turning round they played their flashlight up toward us. The Skinny Guy took my hand and led me downward, and I pulled Bill along. The way led down to where the boys waited, on the flat shore of the dark river. The last step was pretty high, and we jumped and landed right in front of the boys. They turned their lights in our faces. Jerry Moore's light showed the Skinny Guy's grinning face. "By golly!" he said, savagely, "I just thought it was you, you skinny funny-face, I got a good notion to bust your nose—"

"Shut up, Jerry!" I told him. "Can't you see the Skinny Guy was doin' us a favor?"

"What! Doin' us a favor by scarin' us into fits?"

"By scaring the Pelhams away from here, you dummy!"

Jerry started to grin, then, as he began to see the trick. "By golly!" he said, "I just thought that was what you were doin'—"

Our captain stepped up and shook Link's hand. "You will have to excuse Jerry," he says, "because he was so scared he didn't know what he was sayin' at first—"

"Oh, that's all right!" says Skinny Link, with a laugh. "Just had to get this Cave River away from those Pelhams for you fellows—they have no right to claim anything on our side of the river anyway. So I just made them think there was Chinese magic in here."

"You sure know your stuff, kid!" says Jerry Moore. "Those Pelhams will keep out of here for a while now."

"We can keep 'em out all the time," says Skinny Link; "that Chinese man who lived in here left a lot of lanterns and funny whistles up there on the ledge near the roof, and we can always scare the Pelhams with 'em. But one thing you fellows better do—those Pelhams are waiting outside, and you'd better all rush out of here as fast as you can go, to make them believe you are afraid of the spooks in here."

And the boys all made a sudden scramble to do as Skinny had said. But Skinny took hold of Bill and me and said:

"It wouldn't do to let them see us three fellows come out the front way; we will have to go back the way we came."

Which we did.

Our Weekly Meeting

Our regular weekly meeting will now come to order. Just imagine yourself, now, sitting in one great assembly hall whose roof is the sky, and whose rows of chairs are the provinces of Canada, States in the Union, and every foreign country. Our Club is known all over the world, and you boys and girls in Peterborough, belonging to The Examiner's branch, are associated with thousands of others.

We will open the meeting, as usual, by announcing last week's prize winner in the "Fish Story" contest. Do you know, I think I should have named it "A Story About Fishing," or something like that. Some of the stories I received are real "FISH" stories, and I would just like to remind you girls and boys about the Club motto, "Fair and Square."

The prize this week goes to Richard Carveth, R.R. 2, Indian River, for his story about all the fish he caught on one hook. You will find the best of the fish stories and letters on this page. Look them over, and then decide that you will enter this week's contest in an effort to win a prize. I give a splendid book every week. You can write a poem, story, or letter, or make a drawing, but whatever you do must be about Autumn.

You will notice that we have some new members this week, but there are lots of boys and girls who do not yet know how much fun there is in the Seckatary Hawkins Club. Every member gets a membership pin to wear, and a membership card, and on his birthday he will receive a birthday card from me. Every member who sends in the name of a new member is given a picture of the Seckatary. Isn't that worth while? Send in your name now—and then get a new member. This should be a good time, with school just opening.

Some boys and girls are sending in their own membership applications on the special form. I hope they understand that the picture is just sent to members who get NEW members.

Now, here are some letters from Examiner members:

I never, never, heard or read a fish story as good as this one of Richard Carveth's. I don't think it can be beaten; do you?

There's no argument about his getting the prize—he will make a short story writer some day. I do hope it's all true, Richard.

Dear Seck:
Here is my fish story:
One day I went fishing in an old white punt which was very leaky. I then started fishing with worms but having no luck I soon stopped and was wiggling my pole in the water. I soon caught a little minnow, but left him on the hook, then I caught a small bass but I left him on the hook. Then comes along a big bass and grabs the little one and while I was playing with the bass a large lunge grabbed the bass, so I had them all together.
Yours, fair and square,
RICHARD CARVETH,
Indian River, Ont.

This is a clever little verse by Harry Riel, with pictures and everything.

Dear Seck:
When a man does wish to angle,
A hook like this he loves to dangle.
His line and hook both good and strong
He catches a fish about this long.
Before he gets home, the fish does grow,
He tells his friends it measures so

But his friends who have a fishing been,
Know the man has lied like sin.
They simply sit and smile and grin,
Oho! Oho! Oho!
Yours, fair and square,
HARRY K. RIEL.

R.R. No. 4, Lakefield, Ont.
Dear Seck:
One fine morning when the mist had risen, twelve men set forth to catch fish in a trawler. When they were about 20 miles at sea they felt terrific pulls at the lines. After a while the fish shows its head. Then the men saw at a glance a big salmon! Then after hours of struggle they pulled him out. This happened off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.
Yours, fair and square,
HAROLD VINCENT ELCOMBE.

Too bad that big whopper of a fish got away from your friends, Ross. But maybe it's just as well, because a fish that size might be dangerous.

93 Hunter street west.
Dear Seck:
This is my second story to your page, here it is.
One day as Joe Toney and his brother Harold were out fishing in their boat, Joe caught a very large fish but just as he was land it, the pole broke, and it got away. He said the fish was as large as himself.
Yours, fair and square,
ROSS McCONNELL.

Your letter is very interesting, Doris Ferguson, and I am glad to have you as a member of the club. Write again soon.

R.R. No. 1, Omemee, Ont.
Dear Seck:
I am very anxious to belong to your club as you see. I have a small fish story to tell you.
A little girl did quite a lot of fishing one summer. She caught some sunfish, perch, and small bass. She was very much frightened one day when an eel came into the boat because she had never seen one before.
I have been told that women who live by fishing on the salt sea shore have beautiful hair. It is thought it is from the salt in the water.
I do not want to take up too much room so I will close.
Yours, fair and square,
DORIS FERGUSON.

Here's a letter and verse from our little poet member at Omemee, Lowery McQuade. I'm glad Lowery liked the book and I'm sure he will try to win each of the other five I have.

126 Lansdowne street.
Dear Seck:
I have your book all read. I think it is just wonderful.

"A Fish Story"

One day I went a fishing
And I caught a great big bass,
And when I got it on the line
It jumped right on the grass.

Then I caught a big one,
It was a six-foot lunge,
And when I got it in the boat,
Into the water it did plunge.
I will close now.
Yours, fair and square,
LOWERY McQUADE.

I'm very glad you like the book, Ada. Isn't it good, though? There are 310 pages of exciting story. Now try to win another—there are five more different books.

Box 53, Omemee, Ont.
Dear Seck:
I am writing to thank you for the wonderful prize I received. I have read a great many books, yet this is the most interesting one I have read in a long while.
My brother and I have both sent in a fish story on this week's contest.
My brother belong to another club and he said he likes your pin the better. He was glad to get his certificate and put it in his room where he can see it whenever he wants to. I have not much time to spend writing. I am so anxious to see what happens next in the adventure of your club.
Yours, fair and square,
ADA M. RIEL.

I do hope you manage to get time to write to me occasionally, Dorothy, but I know Entrance Class must be a busy place and studies come first. Thanks for the new member—I'm sure Audrey Sanderson will enjoy being in the club.

R.R. No. 4, Lakefield.
Dear Seck:
Here is a new member for you. I didn't get any story in for this Saturday and to-day I tried to draw a picture but I'm a failure at that.
School will soon be starting and then there won't be so much time for me to write letters for in the Entrance Class there's plenty of work to do.
Well I can't take up all the space so, 'Bye till next week.'
Yours, fair and square,
DOROTHY E. DISNEY.

I'll be looking for those names of new members, Walter. Next week I'll tell you about a new prize that I'm going to give for getting ten members. Now go ahead and get them!

228 Rubidge street,
Peterborough, Ontario.
Dear Seck:
I am very pleased with my club pin and certificate. There are other boys around here who I think would like to join so I will send in tehir names next week. Will you please tell me whether you are a man or boy. I will try next week for one of your prizes.
Yours fair and square,
WALTER WARD.

Here is an interesting fish story from Sherry Bond. Surely it must be about that big Algoma "whale" we've been reading about!

236 McDonnel street,
Peterborough.
Dear Seck:
I was out fishing at Paudash Lake, and I heard from a man in a cottage next to us that he was fishing one morning for bass. All of a sudden he got a very hard strike. It was a big fish, so big that it started pulling the man, boat and anchor. It started to go faster and faster and faster, so fast that the man thought he was in an airplane. The fish took the man round and round the lake. At last the man jumped on the fish's back. That made the fish go all the faster. Finally the fish struck for an island that was rocky. The fish struck the rocks and "snap" went the fishing rod and the fish got away. At last some people came and got him. The man's name was Mr. Brown, I forgot to tell you.
Well Mr. Brown told the man about his story. They wouldn't believe it; they thought it was just a fish-story. The tale spread all over Paudash Lake as a fish-story of Mr. Brown's.
Your,s fair and square,
SHERRY BOND.

This is a nice story about fishing by Olive Condon. I'm sure we all wish we had been on that trip.

590 Weller street,
Dear Seck:
This is my first letter to your club. I am a girl twelve years old and I am in the fourth book at school. I received my pin, also my picture and they were very nice. I have sent in my brother's name as a member. Well this is all I have to say in this letter.
Here is my Fish Story.
One day some of my friends and I decided we would go fishing. We were going back to Clear Lake.
We got our fishing line and hooks ready. We took our lunch with us. There were five of us going and we went in a car.
When we got up there we got our canoe, and went out fishing. At first we weren't getting many fish but later on we got a great many fish and they were very large. We fished for quite a while, then we got our fish in the car and went home. We got home near seven o'clock. I enjoyed the day's fishing very much.
Yours, fair and square,
OLIVE CONDON.

Robert Spence writes a very nice true story about fishing. His letter did not arrive until Tuesday, when the competition had closed. I hope Robert tries again, as he said he would.

R.R. No. 4, Lakefield.
Dear Seck:
I have not had much time to write a letter to you for this week's competition, because I have just returned from Toronto Exhibition. I hope this letter gets to you before midnight tonight.
This is a true fish story. One morning about five o'clock we set out in my father's canoe. My father was paddling and a friend of his and myself were fishing. Just about five minutes after we left the wharf I thought my line had caught on a sunken log but very quickly I found it was a fish that I had caught. After a short time we had him in the boat. The fish was a maskinonge and it weighed about six pounds. After the excitement of that was over we started paddling again and fished for about two hours more but did not get another bite. We came home about seven o'clock so my father could go to work. At noon we had the fish fried for our dinner and I thought I never tasted a fish that was so good, but I guess the reason for that was I caught it myself.
That ends my story. I hope it is good enough for a prize, but if I do not get one now, I will try again.
Yours, fair and square,
ROBERT SPENCE.
Lakefield, Ont.

AU REVOIR!

The meeting will be adjourned till next week, when we will meet again on this page. Don't fail to enter the "Autumn" contest—better sit right down now and put on your thinking cap and write us about it. Make up a story, if you wish, or an essay or verses, or even write your thoughts in the form of a letter—but DO something. I'll be watching the mailman every day now, for your contribution. Let's go!

Bye, till next week.
Yours fair and Square,
Seckatary Hawkins

A Letter From The 'Seckatary'

Dear Club Members:

Here's a contest this week that every boy and girl should like, and find very easy to write about—"AUTUMN." One of the most beautiful seasons of the four—but then, are they not all beautiful? Yes. But when time comes for a change, it seems that Autumn is the one that paints a beauty equalled only by that of its fairer sister, Spring. It is hard to say which one is the most beautiful, but as a rule the one we are about to experience always seems to be the favored one. Here comes Autumn, now on the threshold, ready with her magic touch to gild the landscape and to shower gold upon the beauty of the Summer. And with her comes happy anticipations of Hallowe'en, when the frost is on the pumpkin, Thanksgiving, and a lot of other happiness to take the place of lost summer joys. Who can't write something about Autumn? I won't write much more about it, because I want each of you to do your own thinking and write your own thoughts.

The rules of this contest are printed in another part of this page. Don't forget to have your contribution in on time. And those who are reading this for the first time may fill out the coupon and send it in and become a full-fledged member of our club. A club button and a certificate of membership will be mailed upon receipt of the coupon properly filled out with name, address and age—and don't forget to write plainly.

Our last contest was a very great success; and though there may be some who are not so keen about going to school, most of our members showed that they really appreciate their schools and are wise enough to grasp the opportunity to learn just as much as they can, so that they may enjoy life more fully when they grow up.

LOOK FOR THIS PASSWORD IN YOUR GEOGRAPHY

Last week's password was "Arithmetic." It was easy for you because the word comes to you so often in school. Now we have another that should be easy if you know your geography. Here it is:

"TAME DEER RAN IN."

There we have four words, "Tame deer ran in." Now take all of the letters in these four words and mix them up to make one big word of it, and you'll have the password. It only takes a pencil and paper, plus a little effort, and you'll know you have the right word when it spells the name of a large body of water.

This Year-Make your own Mustard Pickles

MORE and more every year women of discrimination are making their own mustard pickles. They find that only in this way can they obtain the particular combination of vegetables they desire — assure maximum flavour and purity — practice true economy.

To have your own mustard pickles on your table is a mark of distinction. It labels you as a woman of efficiency, good taste and high standards.

Decide now that you will this year make mustard pickles in your own clean kitchen. Thus you will please your family and win the admiration of every guest who sits down at your table.

A Good Crock Pickle

1 gal. white wine vinegar, 9 level cups brown sugar, 1 level cup Keen's Mustard; 1 cup salt, 1 tablespoon turmeric powder, 1 tablespoon curry powder, 1 oz. ground mixed allspice, small piece of alum.

Heat enough vinegar to dissolve sugar, then put ingredients in a covered crock, stir well and continue to stir each morning for two weeks. Add cucumbers, onions, small carrots, beans or any vegetable desired at any time. This will keep well all winter.

Send for FREE BOOK

We have prepared a fascinating new booklet which contains, in addition to other valuable recipes, full instructions as to how to make all sorts of mustard pickles. We will gladly send this book to you FREE upon request.

BABY GORILLAS FIND FRIEND

Did you ever see a baby gorilla weep copiously? Well, they look pretty sad, as you can see for yourself in this picture. For these are the two "babies" who caused such a fuss at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, because their own special keepers were stopped by immigration officials on their way from the dark wilds of Africa. But by this time they are again happy, for they have found a new friend, Jimmie McPhail, just out from Glasgow, Scotland. He is going to look after them. One of them is named Bimbo. Bimbo is dark and he is pretty fat and is rather naturally melancholy. Georgie is a barefaced chap with his hair brushed back and he has a long upper lip, the kind the cartoonists give the comedy Irishmen. Despite his seriousness there's a bit of deviltry in him. In case you can't spot him, he is sucking a finger.

LYRICS OF LIFE

FOR THE REST

If I can cheer my own sad heart,
And make my own lips smile,
If I can bravely play my part
For just a little while,
Whatever longings in my breast
Can try content to be,
That will be something for the rest,
The rest as well as me.

For cheer or sadness, smile or sigh,
One cannot wear alone.
The faces of the passersby
Are faces they have known.
I'll hide my sadness, if I can,
My sorrow, if I may,
And throw no shadow on the man
Or maid who comes my way.

Although I find a sad old earth,
I shall not call it so,
But give the world a look of mirth
So men will never know.
If life is but an empty shelf
I'll make it look its best.
That will be something for myself,
And something for the rest.

There ARE bargains in Cost per mile

YOU often hear of people getting bargains, but none ever seem to come your way. You wonder why. Sometimes you are tempted to believe that bargains don't exist . . there must be a catch . . somewhere!

Yet there is one thing that really is a BARGAIN . . and that is, a good used car, properly represented and fairly priced.

The Used Cars we offer are bargains in cost-per-mile of easy transportation. The actual first cost of these cars is extraordinarily low. But they give you more than dollar for dollar value—a tremendous saving in cost per mile that constitutes the bargain.

We represent a car of world-fame—the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet. We have a large stock of Good Used Cars that are quite definitely BARGAINS.

Come round and see them. Then you will know that they offer more miles of dependable, comfortable transportation for every dollar you spend.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Sunday, September 9, 1928.

Although the dominating aspect today is benefic, according to astrology, there are certain adverse planetary influences.

The sway should be fortunate for the clergy and for all leaders who may be able to overcome hostile sentiment while this planetary government continues.

There is a sign making for faith in sophistries and false prophecies of many sorts, for the public mind is likely to be very much confused under this direction of the stars.

Churches of every sort are subject to a rule of the planets making for an access of interest. Again the seers foretell the organization of many reform movements.

This should be an auspicious day for making plans for the future and for surveying past achievements. It is a time to measure progress or failure.

There is a forbidding aspect for those who would travel by water for in certain places early autumn storms will be exceedingly severe.

Food will be much discussed at this time, it is indicated, and novel theories will be presented regarding diet.

There is a sign of promise for all who would visit friends or acquaintances for the purpose of asking favors or for paving the way toward future benefits.

By this sign it should be lucky to visit aged relatives who may bestow substantial legacies as well as tiresome advice.

Again heat waves far out of season are forecast for this country and Europe.

The next few months will be distinguished by many surprising and unexpected events, it is prophesied.

October is to open with news of foreign warfare, it is predicted, and there may be frightful railway and airplane accidents.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a prosperous and happy year. There should be an effort to put spiritual aspirations before material ambitions.

Children born on this day may exhibit traits and talents quite different from those supposed to be inherited. Both boys and girls may love the sea and become great travelers. These subjects of Virgo are usually fond of order and are good in making successful plans.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1928.

As the day advances, planetary influences become better and better, according to astrology which finds benefic aspects strong in the afternoon.

The rule is fortunate to the transaction of small affairs. It is a time to catch up with the trivial matters long neglected.

The morning may present insignificant details that seem to thwart effort and for this reason should be employed for routine matters.

Although a new working week begins, this day is not promising for those who seek employment. Delay in effort may be luckier than quests under adverse stars.

There is a sign of great promise for brainworkers while this configuration prevails. Writers and speakers should benefit.

Aviation is subject to a rule of the stars which promises a more general use of airplanes as the autumn advances.

The mind is likely to be alert and active under this sway which is likely to be helpful to all who seek to convince by means of arguments.

The seers prophesy that the aspects promise increase of prejudice and much bitter controversy as the autumn advances.

Many aspects appear to indicate that logic will be cast aside for emotional decisions. This is unfavorable for domestic harmony as well as for political serenity.

The evening is ominous for orators and for actors as well as all who would appeal to hearts and brains.

War and invasions are forecast for remote sections of Europe. Turkey, also, may be sorely beset by enemies.

Many manufacturing interests should benefit from the planetary government during the coming months.

Persons whose birthdate it is may bring insignificant changes and new interests. New friends are promised. The subjects of this sign usually know how to keep secrets. They will be helpful in political campaigns.

Children born on this day are likely to be magnetic and popular. They are usually methodical and faithful to all their obligations. Many successful writers and musicians are born under Virgo.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

1-day Bedtime Story

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TOMATO

Uncle Wiggily hopped into the kitchen of the hollow stump bungalow where Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy was just putting a teacup into the dishpan of water.

"Oh, don't do that!" cried the rabbit gentleman.

"Don't do what?" asked Nurse Jane in surprise.

"Put that poor cup in the water," went on the bunny uncle. "What has the cup ever done to you that you should wish to drown it? Here, I'll save you, poor thing!" and before the muskrat lady housekeeper could stop him, Uncle Wiggily plunged his paw into the water, and pulled out the cup by its handle, all dripping wet.

He hopped back to his bungalow.

"There you are! I'm a cup saver!" exclaimed Mr. Longears, proud like.

"You're silly! That's what I call you!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "Don't you know the cups and all the dishes have to be put in water to be washed clean?"

"Oh, then you were only giving the cup its bath!" said the rabbit. "I thought you were trying to drown it!"

"Silly!" squeaked Nurse Jane again. "You had better get out of my kitchen if you are going to do tricks like that."

"Oh, I was only teasing you!" chuckled the rabbit uncle. "I came here, Nurse Jane, to see if you had begun to make any ketchup?"

"Ketchup!" exclaimed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Dear me! I had almost forgotten. It is about time to begin putting up my spices. But I need tomatoes to make ketchup."

"Then I shall have the pleasure of getting some tomatoes for you, Nurse Jane," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "I'll go tomato hopping!" he gaily cried and away he skipped up and down hill.

Uncle Wiggily was out tomato adventuring that day and it did not take him long to reach a farm kept by a kind, fat old pig gentleman.

"Have you any tomatoes?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I have only one large tomato left," grunted the pig. "It is very ripe, in fact it is very soft, so I will let you have it cheap. It will not keep long. It is so ripe that it must be used at once."

"That will suit me," chuckled Mr. Longears. "Nurse Jane is going to make ketchup as soon as I get home with the tomato, so I'll take it with me and thank you for letting me have it cheap."

Borrowing a basket from the pig farmer, Uncle Wiggily put in it the large tomato which was so ripe it was almost bursting. And then, as he hopped back to his bungalow, thinking how good Nurse Jane's spice ketchup would taste, all of a sudden, out from behind a rock jumped the Fuzzy Fox.

"I'm tired of waiting for Goofies and Eagles and the Wolf to catch you!" snarled the Fox. "I'm going to catch you myself, Mr. Longears!"

"Dear me! You are catching cold. I fear!" said the rabbit, as he set down the basket holding the big, soft tomato.

"No nonsense!" snarled the Fox. "Why do you think I am catching cold?"

"Because you said ketchoo so often!" chuckled the rabbit, laughing because the Bad Chap had said he was going to "catch you," meaning the rabbit.

"I don't like jokes!" barked the Fox. "I am going to catch you——"

"There you go again!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

"You mean here I come!" snapped the Fox and he rushed at the rabbit. But just then the same Grasshopper that had tickled the head of the Bald Eagle came zooming along and chirped:

"Hit the Fox with your big, red tomato!"

"But Nurse Jane wants it for ketchup!" objected the rabbit.

"That tomato is too ripe for ketchup!" buzzed the Grasshopper. "It is only good to throw at a Fox. Go on—throw it!"

So Uncle Wiggily threw the large, red over-ripe juicy tomato at the Fox. It hit him on the nose, burst and the red juice splattered all over.

"Oh! I must be in great danger, there is so much red!" howled the Fox and, tucking his dusting brush of a tail between his legs, away he ran and still he hadn't caught Uncle Wiggily.

"Well, I am saved, thanks to you, Grasshopper," said the rabbit. "But what about tomatoes for ketchup?"

"I'll show you where there is a fine field of some that are just right," was the answer. And he did, so everything was fine and dandy.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HATE DONTS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

We all hate dont's. None of us like to be told that we must not do this or that. Every such command is a challenge to our personality. We rebel. The natural reaction to every don't is to do the very thing we are commanded not to do.

Every don't arouses a counter suggestion. The force of an idea is such that once the idea takes possession it has a way of working itself out in action. Whenever the don't is repeated either by ourselves or by others, it serves to keep the idea at the focus of consciousness.

We cannot live on dont's. Body and mind we are made for action. Dont's do not provide opportunity for doing and since we must do something, we end by doing the very thing that is prohibited. The laws of association and suggestion turn the trick.

The most important reason why we hate dont's is that the thing prohibited is usually something we have done before or are likely to do. This means that it is something we like to do. We therefore resent being told not to do it.

A don't implies an act that is already begun or is strongly contemplated. In either case the muscles as well as the inner mental attitude are all set for it. Once an act has begun to function, any interruption is looked upon as an impertinence. The whole mechanism is thrown out of gear. Consequently the resources of the man are called into play in behalf of the act in question. So that what was originally a mild reaction becomes a storm center with the whole man mobilized in its favor.

Why do you do what you do? Write Dr. Thomson, care of this paper, and send stamped envelope for reply.

XXI—THE WRONG WORD

When at last the sunshine faded, and Philip carried Sally back into the house, he told himself savagely:

"Now I shall hear it! Now it will come!" And he set his teeth.

But Sally said nothing; she only gave a little, contented sigh as he laid her gently down on her bed, and murmured drowsily:

"Hasn't it been a happy day?"

"Has it, Sally?"

He hung over her like a timid giant, his big hands clenched, not daring to hope, not daring to believe that she meant what she said.

"Don't you think so, too?" she asked. She put out her hand and just touched his. "Philip, I think the vicar was right—what he said about Heaven."

"What did he say, Sally?"

"He said his idea of Heaven was a garden, and sunshine and flowers, and perhaps an apple-tree in blossom, and birds singing."

"But that's not your idea, is it, Sally?"

Sally hesitated, her eyes full of growing wonderment.

"It never used to be," she admitted at last slowly. "But just lately, Philip—" She turned her head on the pillow, the better able to look up at him. "Philip, do you think I'm any nicer than I used to be?"

"Yes." He supposed immediately he had spoken that he ought to have made some graceful speech about such a thing being impossible; but Sanderson was not given to graceful speeches; he thought Sally was really nicer, and therefore he said so.

She smiled, well content.

"I'm glad you said that. You know, Philip, you're a very honest person."

"I try to be honest, at any rate with you."

Her blue eyes misted over as she looked up at him.

"And I've been such a pig to you."

"No more than I deserved."

Mrs. Kiff appeared in the doorway; Mrs. Kiff could generally be relied upon to appear when she was least required.

"Now, then, sir, if you please!"

Philip scowled at her over his shoulder. But he was the happiest of men as he went out into the little garden and lit his pipe. It was an old pipe, a foul old pipe, with a much-gnawed stem, and what Mrs. Kiff inelegantly described as a "stink," but Philip loved it; but then, to-day he loved everything. He only wished, as he walked slowly up and down the tiny pathway that seemed so much too narrow and confined to contain his happiness, that he could put back the hands of the clock and live it all over again. He comforted himself with the thought that there was still to-morrow, and all the to-morrows, and then he wondered how soon he would dare to approach the subject to Sally of further surgical advice, and even while his tender heart shrank from the contemplation of fresh pain for her it leapt at the thought that perhaps some day she might be able to walk again.

What happiness it would be! What real joy for them both. And then came the reaction. Perhaps if she grew well again he would lose her; perhaps it was only in her weakness and helplessness that she turned to him. He felt torn between his desire to keep her to himself, and his longing to give her back the thing he had taken from her.

Sometimes whined wearily from his cushions in the little porch, and Sanderson went hastily to him.

"What's up, old boy? Pain worse?" ButSometimes had only wanted a little attention from his adored master; Sometimes was just a little bit jealous of Sally, and of his master's happy abstraction.

Sanderson sat down on the little doorstep, his long legs curled up inelegantly beneath him, and one thin hand absently stroking the dog's head. Such a happy day! That was his only thought as he sat looking out in the gathering darkness, and puffing clouds of smoke from his "stinker," as Mrs. Kiff called it.

Sanderson's gratitude was out of all proportion because he had known so little happiness. There was not one day in the forty years of his life that he ever wished to have over again. All his eggs were in one basket; this little basket-like cottage contained all his world—Sally, and Sometimes, and a garden.

"Philip!" It was Sally's voice calling to him now, and he scrambled up, and with a little word of apology to Sometimes went back into the cottage.

Mrs. Kiff met him in the narrow passage.

"Just to say good-night to her, and no more now, sir," she said emphatically. "She's been that well to-day that if we're not careful we'll have her extra bad to-morrow to make up, and then we shall all know what's what!"

Sanderson went into Sally's room and knelt down beside the bed. Sally's hair was freshly brushed and spread out over the white pillows, and there was a faint scent of lavender in the cool room—oddly enough, Sally's favorite perfume.

Even in her days at the Faun Cafe, with its heat and unnatural lighting and popping of champagne corks, she had never used any perfume but lavender. In Sanderson's heart it had added to her childishness and sweetness, and had helped to keep her fresh and untouched in his thoughts, even when she had been most worldly and harsh towards him.

"Tired?" he asked gently.

"Tired? Oh, no!" Sally laughed a little. "Philip, do you know what I was thinking when you came in?"

His heart gave a little twinge. Here it was—the explanation of all her sweetness to him; involuntarily he drew back a little.

"No; what were you thinking?"

"I was thinking," Sally said dreamily, "how lovely it would be to sleep out in those woods one night." She hesitated, as if afraid he would laugh at her. "Of course, I know I can't, but—well, wouldn't it be wonderful."

"You can if you want to. I'll rig up some sort of a tent—" His voice was broken by his eagerness, thankful for yet another respite from the thing he had dreaded all day.

Sally pretended to shiver.

"But I should be frightened," she protested.

Sanderson laughed.

"What, with me there? I'd sleep close by, like the giant in the fairy-story, guarding the little princess."

Sally groped for his hand and held it.

"Dear giant!" she said softly.

For a moment he could not find his voice, then he said hoarsely:

"Sally, you've been so sweet to me to-day. Is it just—nonsense—or is it going to last? I'm grateful for what I've had—you know I'm grateful, but if it could last, by any absurd stretch of anyone's imagination—" He broke off, choking.

"I'll try to make it last," Sally said in a soft little voice.

Mrs. Kiff in the passage again:

"It's past nine. Time you was asleep, Miss Sally."

Sander on scrambled guiltily to his feet.

"Mrs. Kiff's right. I'm a selfish brute, keeping you talking." He bent down and kissed her hair, and then her forehead, and last of all her lips.

"Sally—may I ask you just one thing?"

"Yes."

"Would you—couldn't you—some day soon, let me bring another doctor to see you? I want to do everything in my power for you——"

"No, no!" She struck his hand away from her, and cowered down in the bed as if he had hurt her physically. "I don't want any more doctors. They'll only hurt me. Oh, you might let me alone—just when I was so happy, too! Why can't you let me alone?" She was sobbing from sheer nervousness and the memory of all she had suffered before.

Sanderson was terribly distressed.

"Forget it, Sally. I was a fool to speak of it. I never will again. It was only for your sake——"

"I thought perhaps it was for yours," she broke in, with a return of her old sullenness. "I thought perhaps you were tired of seeing me living here, and of having to wait on me."

"Sally I swear before God that such a thought has never once crossed my mind."

Her sobs lessened a little, till at last she lay still once more.

"I'm tired; go away," she whispered.

Sanderson stood in the dimly-lit room, his hands clenched, his face white. What a fool he had been—what a fool! Perhaps those few tactless words had undone all the happiness of the day, and set him back miles on the road up which he had struggled unavailingly for so long.

He found his voice hoarsely:

"You're not angry with me, Sally?"

"No."

"And we're—just as good friends?"

"Yes."

But her lips were unresponsive when he kissed them again, and he felt the tears wet on her cheeks. And he could make no further amends. It was not possible to him to take her into his arms and say tender, passionate things that might have healed the tiny breach between them; the more eloquent was the voice of his heart, the more silent his lips became.

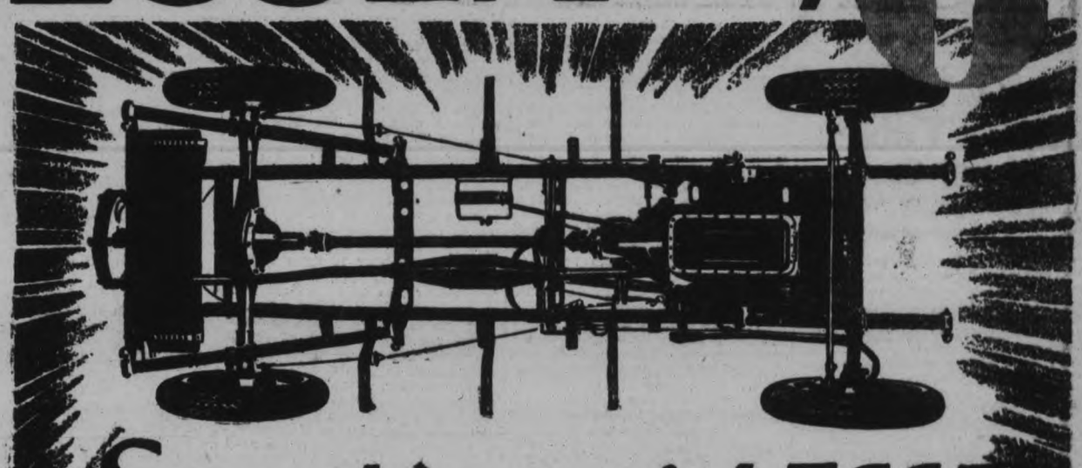
ESSEX Super



See this special ESSEX chassis display

and the costly car way it is built

The most important part of your car — is the part you never see! But now we are especially displaying an Essex chassis to show the costly, fine-quality way it is built.

If you could place it—first, beside a $3,500 make of chassis—and then beside a chassis in the Essex price range—you would have dramatic, visual proof of the fine-car Essex construction, as distinguished from the practice of cars in its price field.

You would find the same steering wheel of hard rubber and steel core in Essex and the $3,500 car. You would find the same Timken tapered wheel bearings, the same roller tappet bearings, the same use of five cross members in the rigid frame. Cars of Essex price class usually economize with mushroom tappet bearings, ordinary roller bearings in the wheels, and three cross members in the frame.

Compare the costly car type of enclosed, protected four-wheel brakes used on Essex. They are not a mere "selling point." They assure maximum safety, and the softness of control that costly cars give. Examine the exclusive Essex method of spring suspension, note the quiet front timing chain, and the balancing of all running parts for smooth operation.

Aside from such self-evident superiorities as its brilliant performance, beauty and quality that you can see and feel in the very upholstery, the wheel you handle and the hardware you touch—please compare with any car—the advantages we have itemized here because they speak for the complete quality way in which the new Essex Super-Six is built — things seen or unseen.

THREE KILLED BY CHEMICALS IN TAR WORKS

One Man Succumbs and Companions Die Attempting Rescue.

IN TORONTO FACTORY.

Explosion Was First Blamed For Spread of Fumes in Plant.

TORONTO, Sept. 8— (Canadian Press.)—Three men killed and eight injured was the toll taken by fumes from chemicals used in making tar paper at the Dominion Tar and Chemical Works at the foot of Morse street here to-day. The dead are William McIntyre, Charles Neville and George Kosrick, all of Toronto.

According to first reports one of the men was overcome by the fumes and died shortly afterwards. The others died while attempting to rescue their fellow workers.

It was said at first that an explosion had occurred about ten o'clock and an alarm was immediately turned into the fire department. Police, medical assistance, nurses and ambulances were rushed to the scene and the injured were taken to St. Michael's Hospital.

Occupants of nearby building said they had heard no explosion.

Later it was found that there had been no explosion. How the fumes penetrated into the still in which the men were working has not yet been determined.

NEW PASTOR IS INDUCTED

induction service assisted by members of the Presbytery. This is a ritual consitsing of questions being asked the minister and congregation.

Ministry a Privilege.

The Rev Mr. Wren of Trinity Church then addressed the minister and in the course of his address told how he felt as if he was an assistant pastor to St. Andrews as he has worked so long in co-operation with the people and ministry. He claimed that the minister did not need any address but wished that he was addressing the congregation. Then he said that no greater honor can befall any man than to hear the call of God and to receive a call from a congregation. The minister, he continued was coming to his task in one of the most critical years. Then Rev. Wren described many of the people they had to deal with, the cynic, critic, etc.

"Criticism," he said, "is good for one. If a minister appreciates his task and you get acquainted with him you come into contact with one of the finest instruments that God has. You are entering the church in a time of change and it is a great thing to be a minister to-day and to realize that you are the medium of God helping our young people who leave school for college and try to strive for something great."

He then welcomed Mr. McLean to the church and the Presbytery and expressed a desire to co-operate with him.

Congregations Must Help.

The Rev. T. M. Wesley of Lakefield, addressed the congregation and said he had known Mr. McLean in his college days. "In a congregation like yours that has its history you would treat your minister properly but you should be on a higher plane, move into partnership and help bear the load. It is a heart-breaking thing for one to carry the load all alone. A partnership has been established to-night. Do not let there be only one willing partner.

"The Christian minister does his work best in a friendly atmosphere, so help him. The minister has the right to expect the following things. First but least is financial support that is adequate. Then be loyal and thirdly, fill your church as the church attendance throughout the country is falling off. Listen to your minister. 'He that hath ears let him hear.' Finally let his congregation pray for him. I am afraid some of our prayers are like the old blunderbuss style of shooting, a hit or miss fashion. Let us concentrate.

"We hope to see great things in Saint Andrew's and remember that the responsibility of failure does not lie only on the one you call, but also on yourselves."

The new pastor, Rev C. V. McLean, pronounced the benediction and was escorted down the aisle to the door, where he met and shook hands with each one of the congregation present.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

CHILDS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Robert Childs of Woodstock, Ont., has been committed for trial at the September assizes. Magistrate Paterson's decision followed the preliminary hearing of the circumstances surrounding the death from chloroform of Gertrude Yelland, accused's former fiancee. Childs survived the alleged suicide pact on August 20.

Increased Sales and Profits for William Paterson

A very successful six months in their business and confectionery business is reported by the directors of William Paterson Limited, Brantford. The more active half of the year is still before them. Sales for the first six months of 1928 shows a substantial increase over the same period last year, and after making provision for the bond interest, profits exceeded four times the amount for the same period of 1927. The firm is now earning sufficient to pay its bond interest more than seven times over.

President John S. Dowling of Brantford states that the management centrating its efforts to take care of the heavy business already booked for the balance of the year.

Noranda Shaft to be of Five Compartments

Rouyn.—The new shaft which will be sunk at Noranda will be of five compartment size and capable of dealing with 2,000 tons per day, it is learned. Although the site has not yet been decided upon it is now fairly definite that it will be some little distance north of the present shaft. An area has been set as ideal for examination and the shaft will not be spotted until exhaustive diamond drilling has been carried out. Unless something entirely unforeseen should occur there is less likelihood of the shaft running into ore on the north side of the bodies than on the south since the general rake of the bodies so far found is to the south.

Larger Mill For Abana

Montreal.—From sources close to the Abana management comes the information that the company is at the present time considering an offer from a New York group to finance the enlargement of the present mill under construction to one of 1500 to 2000 tons daily capacity, and also a smelter of a 100 ton capacity. The offer is to be contingent to the possibility of the same group securing 1,000,000 shares of Abana stock from the open market. The financing of the mill will be through a bond issue. The same New York interests are having an independent engineer examine holdings of the Abbey mines, which is immediately next to the Abana to the north, where recent diamond drilling and a new discovery has revealed good geology. It is stated that an official statement in connection with this will be issued in a few days.

Washington.—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending September 5 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board today as $4,289,209,000, representing an increase of $54,061,000 as compared with the preceding week.

Higher Gross for Associated Gas

An increase of $3,892,493 in gross earnings and other income is shown in the report of the Associated Gas and Electric System for the year ended June 30. Balance available for dividends and surplus is $1,-189,994 higher than for the previous twelve months.

It is reported that McLeod No. 4 has struck a tremendous flow of gas in limestone. The flow is said to be 34,000,000 cubic feet, which is far greater than Royalite No. 4.

Estimates Large Tonnage of High Grade Ore Already Blocked out By Drills at Sherritt-Gordon.

According to a rough estimate made by a staff representative of the Wall Street Journal who visited the Sherritt-Gordon Mines, there is blocked out on that property by diamond drilling some 9,000,000 tons of ore that at current metal prices will run approximately $16.00 to the ton. This would indicate physical assets defined to date at about $150,-000,000.

After passing the opinion that the market had discounted the future to some extent, the representative says:

Ore is higher in grade, coarser grained and therefore more easily milled than the Flin Flon, but the tonnage indicated is not nearly so great, at least as yet, although not improbably the mine ultimately, judging from the strength and length of the ore shoots, will pay as much profit as the Flin Flon which in last analysis is a low-grade, tonnage proposition, requiring rather fine grinding to separate the sulphides.

Property is developing tonnage rapidly, and grade of ore is increasing as the drill holes are put down at the west end of the property where the orebody is more regular both in grade and size, permitting drill-hole results to be projected into tonnage figures fairly safely.

At the east end of the property, where the longest shoot of ore is indicated, the grade while apparently higher in general average than on the west end of the ore zone, is so erratic and the orebody varies in width so abrutly that tonnage estimate can not be made. Consequently appraisal of this end of the mine must await underground development.

The ore zone at Sherritt-Gordon has been developed for a distance of over 12,000 feet from extreme eastern showing, and there is every indication that the ore will be traced further west as well as east. Sherritt-Gordon Mines Co. now owns more than five miles along the strike of this zone.

The eastern oreshoot is quite irregular as to size as well as grade but it is 6,400 feet long, with barren patches in it. The western oreshoot, while it probably will not wield ultimately as much profit as the wider and apparently richer as well as longer oresheet at the east end of the property, is the more remarkable of the two because of its evenness of grade and fairly regular width.

This western ore shoot is continuous for more than 4,400 feet, counting in as ore 625 feet of low grade occurring at about the middle of its length that may or may not be minable according to whether the orebody itself, as opened up underground is higher or lower in grade than the drill-holes. These show the ore to be just about on the border line of pay rock.

Since February, 1927, the surface plant, the camp, two shafts, one 325 feet deep, the other 280 feet, have been sunk, some lateral work driven from both of them and about 18000 feet of diamond drilling done in addition to that in the fall of 1927.

The property is being developed energetically. Already about 3,-000,000 tons of ore have been blocked out by diamond drilling down to a depth of 500 feet in the western ore shoot. This is in addition to 1,250,000 tons of low-grade ore in the centre that is not considered ore at present.

As yet 500 feet is the limit in depth of the systematic drilling of the property, but it is intended to begin the drilling of the western end of the property to a depth of 1,000 feet just as soon as the ore has been traced further to the west and it has been decided whether or not to sink a third shaft to develop the far-western end of the ore zone. This diamond drilling was at first on sections 500 feet apart across the vein but later the intermediate holes were drilled so that in most instances the drill-hole sections are now 250 feet apart.

SWISS MOVE MAY AFFECT U. S. ADHESION

Delegate Asks World Court To Decide Whether Unanimity Is Needed.

IN ASKING OPINION.

U. S. Wants Rule That Her Consent Must Be Secured on Questions Concerning Her.

GENEVA, September 8 (Canadian Press). — On the forenoon of the day when, it was expected, Charles Evan Hughes would be elected Judge of the Court of International Justice at the Hague, Switzerland made a move in the Assembly of the League of Nations which may affect the eventual adhesion of the United States Government to the the Court.

Giusseppe Motta, chief of the Swiss delegation, introduced a resolution that the Council of the League should ask the Court itself to decide whether advisory opinions may be requested by a simple majority of the Council or whether unanimity would be required.

The United States had made her joining the Court conditional upon the adoption of a rule that without American consent no advisory opinions could be given on questions in which the United States possesses or claims interest. Requests for such opinions by a simple majority of the League Council would, in principle, render the American veto inoperative.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 8. Canadian Press. — Bound for a share in the fifteen thousand dollar pot of gold at the end of the flight across the continent, twenty airplane pilots in Class B of the cross country air derby took off to-day for Los Angeles. A dangerous fog was indicated over Mckesport, Penn., the first stop. The journey takes five days.

MANY MOTHERS RECOMMEND THEM

Baby's Own Tablets Are Fine For Nervous, Sleepless Children.

From Canada the fame of Baby's Own Tablets is spreading over the world. Mothers recommend them to other mothers and wherever they are tried nothing but words of praise are heard for these pleasant tasting little tablets that promptly relieve the minor ailments of young children.

"Baby's Own Tablets are one of the best remedies for children's ailments I have ever used," says Mrs. Arthur T. Allen, of Auburn, Me. "My little girl was nervous and could not sleep. I tried the Tablets and she was relieved at once. She was also troubled with constipation and nothing seemed to help her. I had used the Tablets but a short time before her bowels were regular. All mothers should keep Baby's Own Tablets in the house, for they are a valuable remedy."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

New Fabrics for Autumn

We invite your inspection of a delightful and varied assortment for the coming season, on Monday, September 10th.

Velveteens with an almost magic sheen—Woollens soft as a kitten's ear—Silks and Satins joyful to touch—all headlights in the new Autumn materials.

Come and See

Enjoy the beauty of these new delightful fabrics—their individuality, the more "feminine" note in their soft weaves and colorings. An unusually interesting variety!

The New Woollens
—A Guide to Fall Chic

This season one must unlearn any preconceived ideas formed about Woollens! Sheer to the point of transparency—warm, yet loosely woven—closely woven, yet feather-weight—and all are endowed with charm without end!

You must see our Autumn collection to know how stunning the new colors are! Subtle combinations—very deep reds, greens, delicate blues. A Fashion story in every one.

FOURTEEN QUESTIONS.

marked that the cheesemakers needed the co-operation of producers. He would like to see the producers have a similar organization to that of the cheesemakers which would look after the neglectful ones of their number. The chairman then announced a meeting which is to be held in Sidney town hall on September 20th to be addressed by Dr. Ruddick, chief dairy commissioner. Instructor Bailey concluded a very apt speech by drawing attention to the last meeting which was arranged to be held in the Victoria factory near Tweed on October 3rd.

Keep Standard Up

Ben Miller, speaking as a patron of Springhill factory, mentioned that they had all received some valuable information through the meeting and that in that particular district they were trying to keep the standard of milk up. Mr. T. McCaffrey of Madoc expressed pleasure at the formation of the association an increase in the value of cheese, he reminded those present, meant increased value of the herd, and that increased value of the farm and further thereby, increased national wealth. There was no limit to the good a Cheesemaker's Association might do. Farm inspection as brought up in an earlier discussion, he felt should be welcomed by all farmers.

James Cook of Belleville, well known buyer, in a speech mixed with humor, expanded the thought that he was with the cheesemakers every minute to help them. A motion was then passed, changing date of next meeting from Oct. 3rd to Oct. 10th. Mr. G. Spencer in a neat speech extended his welcome and announced a lunch which proved liberal and dainty with which a most successful meeting in every way was brought to a close.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The other day I chanced in a shoe shop where only shoes of the most expensive sort are sold. A removal sale was in progress since the shop was to move further along to keep pace with the shifting fashionable shopping center. And there on a table were arranged rows and rows of high shoes made of the finest leathers and before them the astounding announcement that their price was just twenty-five cents a pair.

And the still more astounding fact was that no one was buying any of them. It did seem a wonderful bargain—and yet what in the world would anyone do with a pair of shoes like that—rather pointed toes with lacings well above the ankles? Yet in their day they had been the choice of women of fashion and were, I suppose, considered infinitely more sensible for street wear in cool weather than any sort of oxford or pump.

Then, going on, I came upon a shop that caters to the well-dressed younger women who take their shoes seriously enough to pay a smart price for them. And there I saw displayed on top of a show case a pair of shoes made of soft but rather heavy light tan leather. And they were high!

But it was the new highness, and nothing could be more different than these new golf shoes and the old type of high street shoes—and still be shoes. These shoes were—as we would once have thought—of a very ugly height, and yet in the cycle of fashion all things become smart, even shoes that look like a baseball player's.

These shoes are shown to you in the sketch—without the short socks that are usually worn with this new type of shoe.

Here are the new sports shoes—made of soft tan leather.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

WHY do men like to eat uptown, instead of going home to where they would get better food, cooked appetizingly, and served in a more congenial atmosphere? Doesn't it stand to sense that a wife can suit her husband's taste better than can a chef who is turning out a hundred varied dishes by the truckload?

• • • • • •

There is nothing particularly alluring about the long rows of tables one sees in certain George street restaurants, standing like shrouded sepulchers in winding sheets of more or less unsanitary tablecloths.

• • • • • •

What is behind man's devotion to Kiwanis luncheons and Rotary luncheons, and any other excuses he can get to eat away from home?

• • • • • •

I wish I could tell you.

• • • • • •

It is all very pathetic. The ungratefulness of men for the trouble women take to make them comfortable and serve them nice meals almost makes one believe the statement I heard a girl make to her chum in the show the other night: "Men are not worth crying about."

• • • • • •

Have you ever tried eating day after day in the same restaurant, with the same brown spots on the tablecloth, the same old line-up of dishes on the menu, the same flavor to every dish?

• • • • • •

If you haven't, you are spared the ignominy of knowing just how little your husband appreciates your cooking!

• • • • • •

Whether he orders a pork tenderion with mushrooms at eighty-five cents or a ham sandwich at fifteen cents, there must be something to attract him to the restaurant, something that your good home cooking and pleasant service cannot supply.

• • • • • •

I don't know what it is, but the effort to find out I'm explaining a prize to the woman who will give the best explanation. Whether you live in the country or in the city you can express an opinion, and the best letter received by September 15 will win either a box of stationery or a box of correspondence cards of the finest grade.

• • • • • •

Because of the delicacy of the subject, names will not be published. Please select your pen name, and add your own name and address for purpose of forwarding the prize, if you win it.

• • • • • •

I was on a most terrifying party recently, which brought out a pet theory of mine to perfection. My theory is that it should not be necessary to talk all the time in order to enjoy one's self.

• • • • • •

Most women have the idea that social success depends largely on their ability to keep up a continuous flow of talk. The result is awful. How often would we give almost any price to be allowed to be silent.

• • • • • •

When one is travelling through delightful scenery, or in the darkness returning from a thought-provoking meeting, how delightful it would be to re'ax in silent enjoyment. But when one realizes that one's companions are struggling to keep up a conversation and bitterly feeling that it is not fair to leave them to do all the work!

• • • • • •

Now we know why "dumb" is a synonym for "stupid!"

• • • • • •

It's not right. I don't think there is any better evidence of real friendship than the ability to sit or walk or ride with a companion for a period in utter silence. On the contrary, there can be no true enjoyment when one feels one is forced to make conversation.

• • • • • •

Philosophers and poets recognized the beauty of silence. Witness Mrs. Hale, "The temple of our purest thoughts is—silence!" And Emerson, "Let us be silent, that we may hear the whispers of the gods." And Carlyle, "Under all speech that is good for anything there lies silence that is better. Silence is deep as Eternity; speech is shallow as Time." And Disraeli, "There are some silent people who are more interesting than the best talkers."

• • • • • •

Wouldn't it be fine if we had here in Peterborough an organization for the propagation of silence! If our women would recognize that it is NOT uecessary to talk incessantly!

• • • • • •

Not only would we enjoy ourselves more, but we would deprive superior man of one of his standing jokes at our expense. And that would be a triumph worth while.

• • • • • •

Which reminds me of a late-returning hubby who, when asked by his wife, "Where have you been so late?" replied, "Stop me if you have heard this one."

• • • • • •

Some of the slang one hears expresses a lot, if one understands what the slangy individual is getting at. For a few weeks I've been "making notes", and here and now I'm going to spill the information for the benefit of others like myself, not dumb or ancient, but behind the times.

• • • • • •

I confess I didn't get all of these expressions in Peterborough, but most of them were picked up on George street. "I'm so bored I could burp!" I heard a young say, but while I waited around hopefully for the story's sake I didn't hear her burp—or see her burp—whichever it should be.

• • • • • •

"I was so tired I could have rolled over and buttered myself," was another fair damsel's way of expressing disapproval of a certain concert. "I'm all of a-dither" is a way of expressing another sensation, and "amorous pipsqueak" doubtless describes one who would yesteryear have been called a "sheik.."

• • • • • •

I confess ignorance of the deep meaning behind "Wouldn't it lay you an egg?" but calling a person "Poison ivy" is clearly descriptive. Two girls arguing about some difference over the opening of school provided me with, "The foulest thing in the world."

• • • • • •

There should be a class in the evening school this winter to help us keep up with the modern trend of language, don't you think?

• • • • • •

Would you like a pattern for the new one-piece undergarment known as the camiknicker? The diagram pattern, with full instructions for making the garment is ready, and if you would like your copy I will send it on receipt of the coupon.

• • • • • •

Color is distinctly "in", not only for clothing, but for home decoration. The housefurnishings shown in Peterborough stores for the fall season indicate that homes are to be a lot brighter this winter. It is a cheery trend.

• • • • • •

Even bathrooms are getting away from the all-white tradition, and towels are bright with cross-stitched flower baskets; rugs come in patterns to match the towels; even the curtains have a rakish air.

ANSWERS TO SOS

PICKLES.

Mrs. J. H., Indian River, requested some recipes for making pickles, and the response to my SOS has been splendid. Two or three recipes have already been printed; here are several more that others besides Mrs. J. H. may wish to try.

• • •

CHOW CHOW

(Recipe by Mrs. McD.)

2 qts. cucumbers (cut fine), 2 qts. onions, 1 large cauliflower, 3 green and red peppers. Put in a dish and cover with 3 handfulls of salt, then cover with boiling water. Let stand over night. In morning, drain well and add 8 cups sugar, ½ gal. vinegar, ½ lb. white mustard seed, 1 oz. celery seed. Let it come to a boil. Make a paste of two-thirds cup flour, ½ cup mustard, ½ oz. tumeric. Boil and bottle.

• • •

PICKLED PEACHES

(Contributed by Mrs. J. M. B.)

½ peck peaches, 2 lbs. brown sugar, 2 cups vinegar, 1 oz. stick cinnamon, cloves.

Boil sugar, vinegar and cinnamon for 20 minutes. Dip peaches quickly in hot water and peal—stick four whole cloves in each peach. Put into sirup and cook till soft. Cook only half the peaches at a time. Put peaches into jars, cover with hot sirup, and seal.

Pears may be pickled, using this same recipe, and are very delicious.

CORN RELISH.

(Contributed by Mrs. W. H.)

2 doz. corn, ½ doz. large cucumbers, 1 doz. large onions, 3 pints vinegar, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 2 tablespoons mustard seed, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ cup salt, 1 lb. brown sugar, red peppers, if desired. Boil 20 minutes and bottle.

• • •

TOMATO CHOW.

(Contributed by Mrs. J. H.)

1 peck green tomatoes, 6 large onions. Slice tomatoes and onions, and strew over top a teacup of salt. Let stand over night and drain off in morning. Add 2 quarts water and 1 quart vinegar, boil 15 or 20 minutes and put in collander to drain. Add 4 quarts vinegar, 2 lbs. brown sugar, 2 tablespoons mustard, 2 tablespoons allspice, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 2 tablespoons cloves, 2 tablespoons ginger, 1 teaspoon cayenne. Boil 15 minutes slowly.

If desired sweeter, less vinegar and more sugar, up to 4 lbs., may be used.

Higher waistlines were recognized, drapery was accented and sports ensembles were generally sponsored in the first week of Paris openings.

THE SATURDAY MARKET BASKET

The market is crowded now with good things to eat. The fruit and vegetable crops have been fairly good and therefore the prices in many cases are below the average.

Apples, peaches and plums are here in great numbers. Duchess apples range in price from 25 to 35 cents a peck and 6 quart baskets of Bradshaw plums are selling for 60 cents a basket.

Potatoes sell for 18 and 20 cents a peck, sweet potatoes, 3 pounds for 25 cents.

Cantaloupes, watermelons and melons still continue to ask for attention. Cantaloupes selling for 15 and 20 cents; watermelons $1.25 and honey dew melons at 30 and 35 cents each.

Beets, carrots and cabbages are always present in quantities.

Beets and carrots sell for 5 cents a bunch and cabbage 5 cents a head. Parsley may be had at 2 bunches for 5 cents. Large white heads of cauliflower are 15 and 20 cents a head. Yellow bantam corn is sold at 25 cents for one dozen cobs.

Tomatoes now very plentiful, have been selling at a $1.00 a bushel.

Peaches range in price according to their variety. Eating pears are 6 for 25 cents and plums, blue and greengages are sold at 2 and 3 quart for 25 cents. California grapes are 25 cents a pound and Green Malaga grapes are 15 cents a pound. Bananas are 25 and 30 cents a dozen and lemons 35 and 40 cents a dozen.

Celery sells at 20 and 25 cents a bunch, head lettuce at 10 and 15 cents a head. Cucumbers sell at 50 cents a basket and small white onions for pickling are 20 cents a pound. Peppers, too, are plentiful, selling at 5 cents each or three for ten cents.

Corn Omelette

Take four eggs, separate and beat yolks until thick. Add four tablespoons milk, one-half cup drained stewed corn, one-half cup bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon salt. Add one-half teaspoon salt to egg whites and beat until stiff and fold into first mixture. Heat frying pan, grease well and cook slowly over low flame until set. When mixture is sufficiently set, place omelet in oven for a few minutes to brown. Fold left side over right and turn out on hot platter; garnish with parsley.

FAVORITE RECIPE.

Raw Cucumber Pickles.
(Contributed by Mrs. James Paul, Cavan.)

Put a gallon of vinegar in a crock.
Add 6 cups sugar.
1 cup mustard.
1 cup salt.
4 tablespoons curry powder.
4 teaspoons tumeric powder.
1 oz. mixed ground pickling spice.

Wash and dry the cucumbers as you get them, drop in small ones whole, and cut the larger ones in pieces. Put a plate on to hold down in the vinegar.

When the crock is full cover with a good lid.

Onions and cauliflowers may be added if desired.

WOMEN'S PAGE

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light,
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Too much cannot be said of the value of the Women's Institute to each individual member, most of them experienced home makers, and many with college education. It is this general reciprocity o knowledge in the Institute which has raised the educational status, not only of the individual, but of the community.

Perhaps the one who receives the greatest benefit is the busy mother. Each month she has the pleasurable anticipation of the Women's Institute meeting something to break the monotony of routine work to lift her out of the rut of domestic work and worry, and raise her to a higher plane, where she sees her vocation is not only to "make a living," but to "live a life."

In the social half-hour over the tea cups she incidentally gives or receives many valuable lessons in courtesy, etiquette and daintiness of serving, and above all, she makes friends. She returns to her home rested and refreshed and eager to put in practice at least some of the many things she has heard and seen, thus improving the home. As the community is just a collection of these improved homes, it is safe to say that our rural communities would not be so intelligent, efficient and enterprising, were it not for the Women's Institute.

That the Women's Institutes have been a success in other countries which have followed Ontario's example is convincingly shown. The Women's Institute movement is of very great proportions in the world today. In Ontario we are perhaps accustomed to think of it as something of our very own, and it is quite true, and not so very long ago, that we had a corner in Women's Institutes. But that is no longer the case.

Now, wherever the English language is the national tongue, and in many foreign countries, the Women's Institute is well known and well regarded.

A brief survey of the status of the work among rural women in the world may be of interest. There are in the different provinces of Canada, and all following the example of Ontario, about 2,200 Women's Institutes. Belgium coming how from Onta io, has over 700; Eng'and gets hers by way of British Columbia, just on 4000; Scotland starting directly from Eng and, but always keeping in touch with Ontario, has 500. The oldest organization in Europe is probably that of Germany. According to the latest report, the first Country Woman's Association was formed on the 1st of February, 1898. It is called the Landwirtschaftlichen, Hausfrauen-Vereine, and has 1 313 local associations. Ireland has 21 district organizations of the United Irish women, started from Ontario's example. France has a few Women's Institutes started from Belgium but the centre for rural women is the women's section of the Society of Agriculture, which also runs the successful Rural Weeks, rather like the American Institutes for Farm Women. In Poland, there are now some 900 Circles of United Country Women. The Martha Societies of Finland, very like Women's Institutes, now number 599. In Czecho-Slovakia, there is a widespread movement among rura women.

In all the Dominions, there are now unions of rural women. South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Natal, each have a few Women's Institutes. New Zealand took its initiative from England, and has now 12 Institutes. Australia Country Women's Associations exist in several states, and for the most part have followed the Ontario model. Queensland has 40 branches, New South Wales 50, Victoria's Women's Institutes are formed by the Victoria League. India has 150 Mahila Samitis, inspired by the example of England. It is difficult to estimate the number of American Societies. The country-wide organization of Home Bureaus reaches literally millions of women and is a purely rural movement. Other organizations such as the House Wives' Associations in Sweden and Holland, for both town and country women are in somewhat a different class. Congresses have been held of these societies existing in northern European countries such as the one at Oslo, two years ago. The figures for 1925 showed that Sweden had 78 locals.

All Ontario members must feel a thrill at belonging to so great a sisterhood and one which the Ontario Women's Institutes pioneers had so large a part in making.

Besides our numerical strength, we have won the approbation of the different countries in which we operate. Each Provincial Government of Canada has generously supported with educational and departmental facilities and with money the Women's Institutes within its border. In the United States immense sums of money, running into millions of dollars, have been spent by Federal and state government and universities on the Home Bureau work. Their public men and women, and educationists and agriculturists all united to praise the work of organized rura women. When every other department of the government in Belgium after the War had its appropriation cut down, that for the Cercles de Fermieres was doubled. In all the European countries mentioned their unions of rural women have government approval and support. England voted ten thousand pounds a year for Women's Institute work and this was the first time an English Government had undertaken the responsibility of a women's organization.

But outside of state approval there is much more. In England, the heads of all the churches have spoken warmly of the work. All sections of the community, great nobles, humble peasants, the Queen and the maid, the learned and the unlearned, speak with affection of the Women's Institute. Perhaps the humblest of English country women, the wife of the agricultural laborer, who has to bring up her family and keep a home together on less than ten dollars a week, gets the most out of her Institute. It is her recreation, her education and all the glimpse she gets of the difference between living and existing.

We may ask ourselves, Why this great development? What makes for our success? Many reasons might be given. The Women's Institutes fill a need. The time was ripe. The Institutes are economically profitable for any country, and other reasons equally true. But no matter how needed or opportune, there is one other great and abiding reason. The Institute has succeeded because it was organized on sound lines and founded on fine principles and because it put an ideal in our daily lives.

We are indeed fortunate. We do not need to remodel our organization. We have only to look back to the beginning. It is all there—all our needs, all our hopes, all our strength. It is amazing to find, as one does sometimes in this newer Institute country of England, such a close adherence to the aims of the Women's Institute. At a group meeting of Women's Institutes in Warwickshire lately, an Institute report (Barston W.I.) was read. Their lines of activity exactly corresponded to our varied interests. They were having a Bulb Competition (Agriculture), an open Folk Dancing Exhibition (Recreation), Dress-making classes—(Home), had undertaken the visiting and care of the local hospital (Community) were raising funds for the new Shakespeare Memorial Theatre near by (National), were having Study Circles on the Historic Abbeys of England (Education), were embroidering part of a co-operative Bedspread (Co-operation and Handicrafts).

It is quite usual to find such a well-balanced programme. Instances like this can be multiplied ad infinitum. Indeed, personal experiences extending over a long period of years lead me to believe that every W.I. which is successful in filling a useful place in the National life, occupies that proud position because it is adhering strictly to the aims and objects as laid down in the beginning.

Our aims are educational, economical, recreational and spiritual in character and these most of us find eminently satisfying. We educate ourselves to be better homemakers and citizens. Through our Institutes we get educational opportunities and so qualify ourselves to give the highest type of service to our homes and our communities, and our country.

This is the next essential to success, namely that we realize and take advantage of the great opportunities the Women's Institute offers in education and service.

The next is to remember the wide, democratic comprehensive nature of our organization and to have the membership on this basis. An organization confined to one class or one clique is doomed to failure. It may be a slow death, but it is bound to come.

The next is, keeping the main spring of enthusiasm in good working order. It takes more than a sense of duty to keep an Institute lively. We must stimulate pride in our own development and see that this pride is fed by achievement and vision.

MADOC

Madoc Women's Institute was organized in February, 1910, and the first president was Mrs. E. M. Tumelty, who is president for this year, and has been president for three different terms, the first time for two years, then for several years during the time of the Great War and now since May, 1924.

The membership now numbers about 80, but has been as high as 124, beginning with twelve or fourteen members.

The meetings are held on the last Friday of each month, mostly at the homes of members and the social half hour following each meeting is always most interesting, four members serving in their turn to assist the hostess of the month.

Printed programs are used and are followed closely, and a Music Committee is very active in providing for piano solos, duets, vocal numbers and community singing.

Madoc Women's Institute have placed canvassers at work and are now assured of success in this line. They have this week placed their order for the Soldiers' Memorial previously chosen by the Committee and hope to have it erected and unveiled some time during the fall.

MILLBROOK

Institute activities in Millbrook and surrounding district appear to have been carried on successfully, and to have interested practically all the women of the community, during the years that immediately followed organization.

Evidently meetings were largely attended, and departmental delegates were present at least twice each year, giving practical demonstrations and talks.

The minutes of the July meeting, 1903, two years after organization, recall the names of workers several of which will be familiar to older residents of the district, a number of whom have since moved to other parts of the Dominion to make their homes, and some of whom have passed on, in response to the 'Higher Call,' as the years have gone by.

"On July 14, 1903, the Millbrook and Cavan Branches held two meetings in the Town Hall, with sixty present at the afternoon session, and twenty-five at night.

Mrs. Colin Campbell, Goderich, gave addresses on "Canning and Preserving of Fruit;" and "Women's Institutes and How to Make Their Meetings Interesting." Miss Morgan, Toronto demonstrated "How to Cook Duchess Soup, Orange Delight, Water Ice, and Welsh Rarebit," and gave about twelve recipes with directions, for the members to try out at home.

As the directors had failed to appoint a president after the annual meeting on June 5, the chair was vacant. It was moved and seconded that Mrs. Campbell be asked to take the chair at this meeting, until a President was appointed. Carried.

MARION'S MAIL

DEAR Marion,

Our family is planning a reunion to be held soon, but as most of the members of the family are 60 years old or more it is difficult to think of suitable entertainment. Can you offer any suggestions?

We will ask each one to bring some certain thing for the dinner. Can you offer suggestions for a menu and table decorations?

MRS. H. R."

It might be interesting for each member of the family to come wearing an old-fashioned costume or part of a costume, such as a hat. Each should be prepared to tell some humorous anecdote about his own childhood or that of one of the relatives. Anyone who can play any musical instrument should contribute to the program. They might not want to dance the old-fashioned dance nor play childish games, but they would enjoy the old dance music. They could visit, and reminisce and perhaps play cards or other table games.

For older persons you need to plan different food than for younger ones. They should have minced chicken, lamb or beef in some form, bacon and soft-cooked eggs, zwieback with butter, stewed fruit, custard, gelatin or a frozen dessert, tea, coffee or milk.

Flowers in pretty, low, flat bowls are always attractive for the table. Or pots of ferns might be used, or ferns themselves laid upon the table cloth.

"Dear Marion:

Please tell me if Maredia linen is still being used for luncheon sets, or is it passe? I cut out and save all your Whatnot and Mail columns, which have helped me a great deal.

I have just started housekeeping in my new home, and I find I am terribly ignorant about entertaining. I mean about what to serve at luncheons, or after bridge, and how to serve, that is, liners, dishes, etc. Won't you help me, please?

Yours sincerely,

MRS. W. K."

Maderia linen is still used for luncheons, although Italian cut work, filet and other patterns in lace are perhaps a little more popular just now.

I have written personally, telling you a little about luncheons and serving, but suggest that you ask at the library for a book or two on etiquette, from which you will get very full instructions.

It is a pleasure to hear from you and to know that you find the Women's Page so useful. Please write again any time.

"Dear Marion:

I seem to be always getting into difficulties, and I've never found anyone to pull me out of them like you. I took your good advice about getting baby to sleep in daytime, and I've had no trouble since. And the Boston Brown bread recipe you rushed to me on my SOS was wonderful.

Now, I want to ask about chocolate pie. I can't find a recipe anywhere. Can you help out?

Yours gratefully,

JEAN."

I'm glad to know that I've been able to help, Jean. Here's a recipe for chocolate pie I came across the other day. It SOUNDS as if it should TASTE good!

Melt one and one-half or two squares of unsweetened chocolate in a double boiler. Mix three tablespoons of cornstarch with one-half cup of cold milk and stir until smooth. Stir this slowly into one and one-half cups of scalded milk. Add one cup of sugar and one-eighth teaspoon of salt and pour the mixture slowly over two slightly beaten egg yolks. Cook for 15 minutes in a double boiler, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add one teaspoon of vanilla and cool.

Turn the filling into a lower crust, make a meringue of the egg whites and put the pie back in a very slow oven until the meringue puffs up and becomess lightly browned. In an oven of the right temperature—325 degrees F.—this will make about 18 minutes for a meringue one-half inch thick; a little longer for one which is thicker. This low temperature will not hurt the pie but will give the meringue a chance to rise and cook the egg white sufficiently so that it will hold its shape.

I judge that it is just the filling you want the recipe for—not the crust.

"Dear Marion:

I have gone with a young man three years, off and on. I love him and he says he loves me, but we can't get along. He believes everyone else and doesn't believe me. We have quarreled and are now mad. What must I do?

ZOE."

The trouble with quarreling is that it begins as a fine art and deteriorates into a nasty, grubby, ugly and dangerous practice which leaves everybody the worse. Nothing commonizes us so quickly as wrangling. Nothing takes more out of us. It only takes, and gives nothing.

Sometimes true lovers' spats are mere impatiences—surface ripples which hide clear, clean depths of character beneath. But usually they spring from inherent differences in the quarrelers which can never be altered. Like pain, they are danger signals. They point the fact that somthing is wrong.

Seek the cause of your quarrels. If they are mere expressions of annoyance, they can be cured if the patient is willing to bottle up a little of his temper (or temperament). But if you indulge your selfishness and relieve your feelings by a good fight whenever you feel like it, the habit will soon become fixed.

If quarrels are the result of different viewpoints and tastes which won't change, then pick up your traps and beat it—far, far from each other's madding ways. For you'll never get on together.

Brown Eyed Susan: At sixteen, you should do as your mother wishes, even when she says you mustn't go out with boys. It seems to me from what you write that probably your mother knows you better than you know yourself! She thinks corresponding with boys is safe for you. It is not right for you to meet a boy in the park, or elsewhere, if your mother says you must not. Sixteen, you know, is very young!

Little Songs Love

PERSONAL.

I never ran around and drank
A lot of beer,
I never robbed a baby's bank,
So it seems queer
That I should be destined to live
My life alone;
When some nice girl could surely give Me moral tone.

I wish I knew some girl on whom
I could depend,
One who knew how to use a broom
And who could mend
My shirts and socks and underwear
When they are torn;
It's really more than I can bear,
I'm so forlorn.

There must be some girl on this earth
To heed my plea,
Some one to bring a little mirth
And joy to me;
Give me a blonde or you can make
It a brunette,
I'm not particular, I'll take
What I can get.

—Van.

When other mammas fondly smile
And idle hours with tales beguile
Of progeny divine
I sit discreetly saying naught
Thinking the while they simply ought
To see mine.

M. Fair and Mrs. McCamus: That Mrs. G. S. Thorne be asked to be president of the Women's Institute of East Durham. Carried.

Mrs. Thorne consented to preside at this meeting only, and at the after tea session the matter was again taken up. Mrs. (Dr.) Hassard moved, seconded by Miss A. Vance: That Mrs. (Dr.) McKinnon be asked to act as president of the W.I.E.D. for the Institute year. Carried.

It was moved by Miss Fair, seconded by Mrs. Charles Argue: That a vote of thanks be tendered the Cavan council for its donation of $5.00. Carried.

Moved by Mrs. Mulligan, seconded by Miss Ainley: That a hearty vote of thanks be given Mrs. Campbell and Miss Morgan for the instructive lessons this Branch has received. Carried.

The meeting adjourned."

In October of the same year, when the plants were received, the secretary notes: "Nice plants received for distribution. The members are asked to express their opinion on: "Is the Women's Institute any benefit in our centre?"

The president, and others, emphatically declared that they had learned a good deal about cooking, and horticulture, since the Institute was formed here.

Some members received cyclamen; others carnations; and bulbs were also given. Mrs. McKinnon gave a paper on "Bulb Culture;" Mrs. Walter Gillott one on "The Cultivation of Carnations;" and Mrs. Hassard spoke on "The Cultivation of the Cyclamen."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE AT THE C.N.E. ON TUESDAY

The Women's Institute had its corners at Canada's great exposition. One of the entrances to the Women's Building is flanked on the left by a booth, showing the work from Quebec, and attended by members from Quebec. At the right Ontario is represented. Two members from Ontario are in attendance, to distribute literature, and answer questions. The same two did not remain there. Among those noticed there, was Miss Powell of Oshawa, well-known to many Examiner readers.

Institute members of twenty years standing were expected to meet in the Institute tent, just inside the Dufferin street entrance. A good many did, registered and received a pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam were present. There was a good deal of chat, and much of it bore on Institute work. Some very strongly disapproved of Institutes backing beauty and popularity contests, as it is derogatory to the best interests of the country. Assisting the Tobery Mory Hospital, Red Cross Outpost Hospitals and keeping emergency supplies on hand were also among subjects informally discussed by groups. A good many of the twenty-year members, Mr. Putnam, and a few of the staff had lunch together.

Mr. Putnam made use of his car. At one time he had two small women in the front seat and four large ones in the rear. In the tent were posters representing Institute work, especially those bearing on health. There were exhibits of handiwork, and of heirlooms in possession of members.

In the afternoon Miss Alexander gave a little talk explanatory of her exhibit, a hospital bed, with Gatz frame, mattress, rubber sheet, sheets, pitchers, large and small bowls, cans, dressings, which she advised every Institute to keep on hand in case of emergency. If the Institute has no place to keep them (she mentioned later) the doctor would be glad to have them on hand. She particularly—in private, mentioned one doctor whom she knows. The whole outfit for any emergency can be purchased by Institutes for eighty dollars.

Also she had first-aid kits, costing from four to sixteen dollars. The larger ones had everything necessary for first-aid, the smaller ones had a dozen boxes each containing a dozen taped dressings of various sizes. Also there was an emergency mothers' outfit and a layette, all of which she advised being kept on hand. In the Women's Building, Georgetown Institute had an exhibit a full supply of everything for the bed, the mother and the child, and when it is given, either whole or in part, it is replaced by the Institute. The quilt exhibited was a patchwork one. There were also demonstrations of clouded dying and various kinds of rug making by the junior girls.

Mrs. McGregor of Alberta gave a short talk on her visit to England and Scotland. She spoke of the immense amount of work being done by the women, they do so much of the actual making of furniture, cloth and other articles used in their homes.

In England, more than in Scotland she noticed notices placed by Institutes, asking people to please be kind and help save the trees and wild flowers, and so ensure the beauty of the country.

Mrs. McGregor also told about the contest gotten up by the C.P.R. for girls' Institutes. The team which did the best to advertise Alberta won a trip to the C.N.E. The winning team pushed Alberta's dairy products, even to churning and making butter. The girls are having the time of their lives.

It would be well if more members took an especial interest in the Women's Institute's work, and exhibits on the grounds.

Lakefield

During the past two weeks a good many of the members of the local branch of the Woman's Institute attended the C.N.E. and visited the Woman's Institute department situated in the Woman's Building and also in a tent near the Dufferin St. entrance. There, officers and members of the Federated Board were to be found, and suggestions for program planning were freely given on request, or suggestions for community work, which can well come into the sphere of the Women's Institute.

Before the next regular meeting of the Woman's Institute in Lakefield on Wednesday next the executive will meet and draw up a program to present to the meeting for adoption which will include the regular meetings for the next twelve months and will form a definite basis for work. During the past year several excellent papers were given on seasonable subjects but this year it is felt by most of the members that the advice of Mrs. Yates given at the June meeting to have a printed program for the year is an advantage.

The September meeting is especially important as it marks the beginning of the autumn season with its multiplicity of interests for the homemaker.

LEAFS BACK TO THIRD PLACE IN RACE

LEAFS BEATEN BY ROCHESTER

Visitors Hit Well With Men On Sacks To Win Out 7-3.

PITCHER YANKED.

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—There were a number of reasons why the Leafs didn't win yesterday. One was that the wrong pitcher was started; another was that Doyle did not relieve Billings soon enough, and still another was that the visitors came through with a hit, and the Leafs didn't, when the sacks were loaded, two out and three and two on the batter. The score was 7 to 3 for Rochester, thus giving them the odd game in the series with two more to be heard from today.

Haskell Billings started for the Leafs and it is easy to see why he has not been successful in the majors. He has a splendid curve and plenty of speed, but no change of pace, and his fast one yesterday was so much apple pie for the Rochester sluggers. And when they hit, they hit. There was no doubt about them meeting the ball unless you happened to be hard of hearing. At that the big break in the game came in the fourth inning with the score standing 3 to 2 in favor of the enemy, two of their baserunners on the sacks and as many out. Billings got the count to 3 and 2 on Brown and then appeared to have struck him out on the next ball. In fact the local pitcher started to walk to the bench, but the umpire called it a ball, sending Brown to first to choke all the sacks. Torporcer, the next man up, cracked the first ball to right for a single, scoring two, and Brown also came in when Rabbitt's throw got by Hungling. That hit meant exit for Billings, which was not entirely unexpected, for he had been combed for eight hits, including two doubles and a triple in less than four innings.

Win 6-2 Decision

READING Pa., Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Slicker Parks pitched and batted Reading to a 6 to 2 decision over Jersey City in the first of the series here yesterday. Parks held the Pests to nine scattered hits. He wallowed two hits which drove in three runs, sufficient to beat the Skeeters. Reading bunched four hits, two bases on balls and a sacrifice in the fourth inning for four runs to take the lead after Selkirk had hit a home run in the second with none on base. After the fourth the Keys never were headed. Jackson was hit hard in spots.

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Newark won its fifth consecutive victory yesterday by defeating Baltimore in the opening game of the series, 4 to 3. The game developed into a pitcher's duel beteen Pruitt and Coambe, both southpaws. The former was in rare form and outside of the second round when nicked for three hits pitched great ball.

Twice the Bears came from behind to win. In the sixth with one on, Lutzke hit a homer to give the Bears the lead. Then in the eighth the Birds tied it up, but the Bruins came back and won. With Jacobson on base, Malone singled to right, which Clark allowed to get away from him and Jacobson raced home with the winning marker. Maisel was the hitting star, gathering three of his team's six hits.

MARMORA WINS FROM DELORO

W. J. Cottrell's XI defeated By 4-2 Score On Home Field.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MARMORA, Sept. 8.—Playing with three reserves, Deloro association football team triumphed at the expense of W. J. Cottrell's XI. at Deloro on Thursday evening by the score of 4-2. Though made up in the main of veteran players, Deloro's opposition for the first half put up a fair battle and the half-time score read but 3-2 in Deloro's favor. In the second moiety lack of condition and practice commenced to tell and half a dozen goals were added without the irregulars being able to get at all close to Deloro's goal. The Cottrell eleven had a novel goalkeeper in Balog, who would persist in falling on the ball and holding on despite all else until opposing players retreated a step to enable him the opportunity of punting. The goals registered by Deloro were Cousins 4, Hipson 4 and W. Brown 1. Quinn scored both for the other team. The game was played to give the regular team a practice before meeting Peterborough C.G.E. in the Gordon Cup round to-day.

The teams were:

Deloro—Goal, U. Jack; backs, W. Savage and J. Kelly; halves, W. Simmons, J. Hart and P. Melville; forwards, G. Brooks, R. Hipson, T. Cousins, E. Brown and W. Brown.

W. J. Cottrell's XI.—Goal, L. Balog; backs, K. Brown and T. Jones; halves, W. Burridge, F. Shell and H. McGarvey; forwards, L. Muzilla, L. Rundle, J. Reardon, A. Berry and A. Quinn.

W. Brown, Sr., gave satisfaction to both teams as referee.

The linesmen were A. Hart and E. Shannon.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Three Peterborough teams are playing in O.B.A.A. play-offs today, Bantams in final.

The possibilities for a City Rugby League were well talked over at a meeting of the Peterborogh Rugby Club, held last night at the Y.M.C.A. when about fifteen fellows, most of them players, turned out. While nothing of an executive nature was done, due to the small number, much good may come of the little gathering of which Jack Deannard was chairman.

• • • • • • •

Since there was no official representation at the meeting, it could not be safely determined but it was felt that a city league could and should be formed giving competition to teams from the C.G.E., DeLaval, Collegiate Old Boys and possibly a fourth outfit though certainly three strong teams will make a better league than four weak ones. It was almost certain that the above three clubs would be in the swim. A fourth will be welcomed.

• • • • • • •

In order that the enthusiasm may be kept up and something done right away, it was decided to hold a meeting at 7:15 on Monday night to which all interested are invited. Charles Westbrook has been suggested for the presidency and at the meeting, the election of officers will take place. Everybody out!

• • • • • • •

Softball fans who have been following with interest the several city league games played at Confederation Square will welcome the opportunity of seeing the group playoff games of the C.G.E. Softball League which will be played at the same park on Monday and Tuesday next week. The several teams in the factory this year were divided into two groups and the standing now finds two teams tied for first place in each group. The Office team, champions of 1927 and the Test Department are runners-up in group one with one loss each, while the Meter Department and Punch Press teams share the honors in group two having but one loss all season.

• • • • • • •

Enthusiastic followers of softball can rest assured that the brand of ball that will be handed out by the four teams especially the Office nine who it is generally conceded has the cleverest gang of snappy fielders and timely hitters in the league will compare favourably if not eclipse the efforts of the City League Artists. The winners of each group will clash in a three game series for the championship, as soon as arrangements can be made.

All games start at 5:30 o'clock.

JACK CAMERON WINS LAURELS

Amateur Captures Crown For First Time In History of Association.

LEADS ALL PROS.

MONTREAL, ue., September 8. — Canadian Press. — For the first time in the history of the province of Quebec Golf Association, the crown is held by an amateur. In the tournament yesterday Jack Cameron of Rivermead. Ottawa captured the laurels with a 36 hole total of 148. Cameron had but an average 77 in the morning and as a result was practically neglected by the gallery in the afternoon. In the afternoon round he turned in a sterling 71 for a lead which withstood the assaults of all finishers. The title thus remains in Ottawa for the second straight year, having been captured last summer by Karle Keffer, the professional of Royal Ottawa Club, who was a contender yesterday but weakened in the final round.

Yesterday was the second time this year the professional golfers of the province have been forced to follow in the wake of an amateur star. In the spring tourney at Marlborough, C. C. Fraser, an amateur, headed the pros.

While the honors went to Jack Cameron his other prizes were few. The newly-crowned champion could not take the $100 first prize but could have accepted its equivalent. Cameron waived his rights to the first prize equivalent, as did "Bill" McLuckie, who was well up in the prize list.

As a result of the graceful action of the two leading amateurs, Redvers Mackenzie, pro at Marlborough, Montreal, and A. F. McPherson, Islesmore, Montreal, pro., played off for second place in the field, and first place prize money. They finished in second place behind Cameron with 150's, McPherson just managing to tie Mackenzie's score on the 36th with a fairly long putt in which the ball hung practically at the lip and then toppled into the cup.

TWO REGULARS ON AMERICANS

New York Hockey Club Will Have Entirely New Line-up.

UNDER TOMMY GORMAN.

NEW YORK, September 8. Canadian Press. — Lionel Conacher and Billy Burch are the only players of note from last season's team who will perform in the colors of the New York American Hockey Club during the coming season, it was announced yesterday following a meeting of the newly re-organized American Hockey Club.

Wilfred "Shorty" Green, one time stellar forward, who managed the Americans last year will be succeeded by Tommy Gorman, well known Ottawa hockey genius.

New Haven has been chosen as the new training camp of the Americans, where the club will operate a franchise in the Canadian-American Hockey league.

William V. Dwyer, the original promoter and organizer of professional hockey in New York, has taken over complete control of the club and will be its representative on the board of governors of the National Hockey League.

The opening of the professional hockey season in New York is scheduled for November 18, when the Americans and Rangers meet in an intra-city match.

Percy Williams Given Big Ovation On His Arrival At Winnipeg City

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 8.—(Canadian Press).—A cheering crowd of Winnipeg citizens greeted Percy Williams, Canada's Olympic running star, when he arrived here yesterday. Williams was engulfed in a sea of outstretched hands as hundreds of people struggled for a chance to congratulate him.

A hearty welcome was also extended to Winnipeg's Olympic stars, Brant Little and Jimmy Ball who arrived here in company with Stan Glover, Saskatoon's Athlete.

"This is worse than running" exclaimed Williams, breathlessly, as he struggled through the welcoming throngs.

Williams and the other Olympic team members were welcomed by Mayor McLean and representatives of nearly every sporting organization in the city.

At a luncheon in their honor, given by the city, a bronze statue showing a runner at the mark was presented to Williams.

Jimmy Ball received a gold watch and the others were given signet rings.

Ball displayed a bronze statue which he received for his showing in the Tailteann games in Ireland.

LOSE DOUBLE TO SENATORS

Philadelphia Takes Two Games From Red Sox To Go Into Tie.

WON 87, LOST 47.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—The Yankees dropped into a tie with the Athletics for first place in the American League by losing both ends of a double-header to Washington yesterday, 11 to 0 and 6 to 1. Marberry gave the Yankees nine hits in the second game. While the Yankees were losing the Athletics took two games from the Red Sox to go into a tie for first. Each team now has won 87 games and lost 47.

A single by Reeves and a triple by Crosin gave the Senators their eleventh run in the ninth. The Yankees made a valiant attempt in their half of the ninth, getting two men on base, but failed to score.

With Crosin still on a batting spree in the second game, Marberry had little trouble swamping the lethargic Yankees. His mates played the steadiest, snappiest kind of ball and belted Waite Hoyt around mercilessly. The Yankees scored their sole run of the day on two passes and two singles in the first inning.

The Athletics took both ends of a double-header from the Red Sox yesterday by scores of 1 to 0 and 7 to 3. After Grove had bested Charley Ruffing in a pitchers' duel in the opener, giving only four hits, both teams went on a batting spree in the second game, Boston getting nine hits off three Philadelphia pitchers and the Athletics getting eight off MacFayden and Griffin.

Only one game behind the Yankees as a result of their 1 to 0 victory in the first game while New York was losing to Washington, the Athletics sent George Earnshaw against the Red Sox in the second half of the double bill in an attempt to take the second. Danny MacFayden assumed the pitching burden for Boston.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—Almost on the eve of one of baseball's genuinely crucial series, the Athletics of Connie Mack caught up with the Yankees yesterday. It's been a stern chase and a long one since that day in July when the Yankees boasted a 13½ game lead over the field.

It took the ringing bats of the Washington Senators, and not the Athletics however, to rout the Yankees in two games yesterday, and end a stampede that has been on, but with slowly diminishing force, since last April. While Philadelphia trimmed the Boston Red Sox twice, the Senators whipped the Yankees 11 to 0 and 6 to 1, and shoved Connie's crew into an absolute tie for first place. Both the Yanks and the Athletics have won 87 victories against 47 defeats.

After two games to-day with Boston, Philadelphia moves into the Yankee stadium for the death grapple that may decide the American League pennant winner for 1928. The Yankees meet Washington again today before building their barricades for defence of home and firesides.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By a Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, as Mister George Young said to Herr Ernst Vierkoetter on the starting float of the Toronto swim Wed., "Here we are again." Back to the grind and let me tell the customers I ain't a bit up-stage because I come home with a new fishing record. You know me, Mac, nothing like busting my mark for the past 2 summers ain't going to make no difference between me and my friends.

The big talk this week, Mister Sporting Editor, is the game of freeze-out what was played off the C.N.E. grounds. It looks to me, Mac, as if the Ex. moguls better stage the next contest in a cold storage plant. That'd be a whole lot easier and safer to handle and it wouldn't require no boats or other overhead. Simply stick the boys in there and take 'em out as they holler for help, and the last bird to come out would get the gravy. I offer the tip outa the goodness of my heart, and if the cold storage idea takes hold I don't expect even a letter of thanks.

So far as I can gather that wasn't no swim; it was murder. A lotta folks what would go to bed for 3 days if they got their feet wet in a summer shower has been calling Mister Geo. Young the "faint-heart of the swim" because he didn't go the distance. Well, mebbe Mister Young ain't the most courageous bird in the world, but you can't prove that by what happened Wed. When Mister Bill Erickson, the Human Cork, as I call him, had to come out because he couldn't float no longer, it ain't no wonder nobody else finished. I woulda bet that you could drop Mister Erickson outa of a plane in mid-ocean and he'd starve to death before he'd sink, but Old Man Cold Water got a easy decision over him. So what chance had Mister Young or nobody else? A polar bear mighta gone the distance Wed., but bear skins and bare skins is 2 different things, and even greased B.V.D.'s didn't make up the percentage.

Anyway the swim brought a lotta extra folks out to see the Ex. and caused a lotta other people to eat cold lunches, if any, seeing the better halves spent mosta the day listening-in.

Locally, Mac, we been more than holding our own. We still got 3 ball teams in the running in the Ont. seriouses, which, you gotta admit, is stepping along nicely. The Royals made Labor Day a total loss for a lotta of young Toronto Jewish fellows what has been trying to get along. They come down Mon. sorta feeling that they hadn't to do nothing but go through the motions to cop off a win, but when the returns was all in we had 8 and they had nothing, which was exactly what the Toronto fans what come down paid in at the gate.

Well, Mac, we'll see you at the Exhibition next week, old timer. She's going to be a wow from all I hear.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

TROTTIER MAY GO WITH LEAFS

Connie Smythe Says Toronto Amateur Star May Turn Pro.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—Connie Smythe, manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, here on a visit, claims that Dave Trottier, Toronto amateur star, will be with the Leafs if he turns professional. It has been reported here that the Montreal Maroons and Trottier virtually under contract. Smythe says, however, that Trottier promised that he would play for the Leafs if he ever turned professional.

ROCKDALE

(Examiner Correspondence.

ROCKDALE, Sept. 8. — Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Steenburgh and family, of Oakmont, Pa., have returned after spending the past two months at "Cedar Point" cottage at Crowe River.

Rockdale Public school is undergoing repairs, the outside being painted, a new fence placed in front of the school and the playground levelled.

Mr. Joseph Crossland, of McKeesport, Pa., has returned home after spending two weeks at Crowe River and Belmont Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crossland and children, Fred, Roger and Dorothy, have returned to McKeesport, Pa., after spending two weeks at Crow River.

BRAVES SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

Lose First Game to Phillies 4-0 But Win Night Cap 4-3.

CARDS WIN 5-3.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—The Phillies divided a double header with the Boston Braves here yesterday, winning the first game 4-0, but losing the night-cap 4-3 in eleven innings.

Milligan, pitching for the Phillies, didn't allow a hit until two were down in the seventh inning of the second game. With two out and Boston one run ahead in the ninth, Cy Williams hit the ball over the fence for a home run.

Benge pitched splendidly in the opening game after filling the bases and no one out in the first inning.

Again outhit, the St. Louis Cardinals bunched their efforts for a 6 to 3 victory here yesterday, winning the second game of the series from the Pittsburgh Pirates. As in Thursday's battle, the Pirates held the edge in pounding out safeties by a 7 to 6 margin.

It was fitting that Chick Hafey lend his efforts to cutting away the two-run lead of the opposition with his twenty-fourth homer of the season with no one on base after pounding out his twenty-third four-base hit on Thursday. But the task of putting the Cardinals in the lead was left to Ernie Orsatti, who doubled in the seventh, scoring Haines and Douthit.

Earl Adams of the Pirates muffed his first try in 236 chances in the eighth to allow the Cardinals their sixth run after Bottomley had scored the fifth on Maranville's sacrifice. Brickell's homer with no one on in the ninth failed to molest the Cardinal lead.

The Cubs pounded Lucas and Luque for 19 hits and routed the Reds 11 to 1 in the opening game of their series yesterday. Root pitched perfect ball for the Cubs and was never in any trouble, allowing only four hits. The Reds got their lone run in the fifth off a single, a walk and an infield out.

The fifth inning was the Cubs big inning, when they pounded out eight hits for five runs, one of them a homer by Hartnett with a man on base.

FOUR MUSICIANS WIN AT TORONTO

Three Local Singers and Violinist Get Medals at C.N.E.

It should be a matter of deep interest and gratification to the citizens of Peterborough that the city has won the distinction of having four of its musicians bring home medals won in the competitions now being held in connection with the Exhibition in Toronto.

Mrs. Fred de Furlong Free, of Campbellford was successful in winning the gold medal in the contralto class in which there were twenty four competitors.

Miss Geraldine Collins of Peterborough winning the gold medal in the mezzo-soprano class, in which there were nineteen competitors.

Miss Margaret Dickson of Peterborough won the silver medal in the lyric soprano class, in which there were twenty-one competitors.

These three vocalists are all well-known to Peterborough audiences and are all pupils of Dorothy Allan Park, singing teacher on the staff of the Peterborough Conservatory of music.

Singers from Toronto and all over Canada were competing in these competitions, and the singing was of a very high order, making the local victories all the more praiseworthy.

Not only are the winners themselves worthy of hearty congratulations, but also their teacher, Mrs. Park. It is the first time Mrs. Park ever entered a pupil in the C.N.E. competitions, so it must be most gratifying to her that every entrant justified her belief in their ability.

The adjudicators were, Miss Nina Gale, Dr. Healey Willams, Messrs. David Dick Slater, Campion Smith, W. H. Hewlitt and Jordan, Richard Tattersall and Francis Coombs.

The fourth medal was won by Stanley Northrop who was successful in winning the gold medal in the violin class open to competitors outside Toronto. Mr. Northrop is a pupil of that talented teacher, Miss Edwina Palmer, and his progress is being watched with the greatest interest by all who have listened to his fine playing.

GORDON McLEOD, English Star, comes to the Grand Thursday, September 20th.

Give Festive Look To City Next Week

Hundreds of visitors will be in Peterborough next week for the Exhibition. What better way of welcoming them to Peterborough can be adopted than the flying of flags in front of business places and residences. If the city has a gala appearance the visitors will know that business men and citizens generally are behind the efforts of the fair board to make this years' exhibition the best ever and keep it at its high place as the best exhibition between Toronto and Ottawa. Put your flags out early on Monday, and keep them flying all week.

MAN'S CONQUEST OF NATURE

Some 30,000 years ago the human race first began to experiment with the art of agriculture, and some 20,000 years ago the men and women of nomadic tribes first began the domestication of animals. With these accomplishments at his disposal, man began to assume a new place in nature. He was no longer buffeted about by its whims, but actually became in some degree its master.

We can trace all of the wonderful complexities of our modern civilization to the simple tiller of the soil and the wandering herder of cattle. Before the development of agriculture, it is apparent that our ancestors lived very much as the apes do to-day, subsisting mainly on foods of a vegetable nature, such as fruits, nuts, herbs, vegetables and roots. Man was not naturally equipped as a hunting animal, and the animal foods which he obtained must have been in the form of birds' and reptiles' eggs, shellfish, snakes, snails, grubs, worms, insects and caterpillars. Occasionally he may have been able to capture birds, fish, and some of the larger animals.

The fruits and vegetables of these early times had not yet reached their present stage of lusciousness. They are woefully lacking in nutritive qualities. The North American Indians, at the time of the discovery of the new world, ate many edible wild roots, such as some plants of the lily family, wild parsnips, grass roots, clover, water plants, cannas, bulbs of various sorts, and eel grass. Before the discovery of fire these had to be eaten raw, although they may have been prepared in various ways by pounding and drying. Although many edible roots, such as the turnip, Jerusalem artichoke and field potato were used, there is no evidence that the Indians practised the cultivation of these.

The pictures that the poets have painted of the golden age in the past, flowing with milk and honey, and grape juice, requiring little or no effort to gather, has been drawn from their imagination because it is likely that the food of primitive man would be considered scarcely worth gathering, since the roots were tough and most of the fruit acrid and tasteless.

Man fortunately belongs to the type of animal known as the omnivorous which enables him to eat and digest a very large variety of foods. This fact has enabled him to survive through many adverse circumstances where animals that could subsist on only one class of food would have starved.

We hear much of man's "natural" diet, but this term is wrong, since the digestive organs may become adapted to new foods during the course of generations and, after this change, the new food would become the most suitable. Races have developed this tendency, and the Scotchman, who swears by his oatmeal, might have difficulty in substituting the oil and blubber of the Eskimo; or the Japanese, who subsist largely on rice, might have difficulty in handling the large amount of beef and mutton that the Australian uses. Dietetic changes must usually be made slowly except when they are prepared for by some type of fasting.

In spite of the fact that these races may have become accustomed to their lopsided diet, they would undoubtedly improve in health if they would substitute well balanced menus, not swinging too quickly from one extreme to the other.

Questions and Answers.

Question—Mrs. K. asks: "Are there any oils or liniments that will penetrate an unbroken skin? If so, will you please name one or two? I have a friend who claims there is an oil that will cure a growth in the neck."

Answer: Oil and liquids will penetrate the skin to some extent, as tests have shown that certain medicines rubbed on the skin can be afterwards found in the urine. I do not know of any oil which will have any effect on curing a growth in the neck.

Question—Eddy J. writes: "I wish to participate in a coming athletic exhibition, and I wish you would inform me of a suitable diet on which to train."

Answer: The weekly menus which I prescribe in this column would constitute a good training diet. On the day of your contest stop all regular meals and use only orange or grape juice. If your stomach is rested in this way you will have more energy for your muscles to use in your athletic endeavors.

Question—Interested asks: "Will you please tell me what 'acataphasia means?"

Answer: The disorder you ask about is caused by an injury to the central nervous system, and part of the brain is affected by either disease or the breaking of a blood vessel. Loss of speech results for varying lengths of time, depending upon the seriousness of the injury to the brain membranes.

GORDON McLEOD

Gordon McLeod, the young English leading man who so ably carried on Sir John Martin-Harvey's role in "Scaramouche" last season when the veteran actor was taken suddenly ill, is now a full-fledged star in his own right.

He will tour Canada this fall at the head of his own English company, presenting for the first time here, Lewis Waller's great romantic drama, "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner."

The play has been staged under the direction of Mr. A. E. Anson, who will come to Canada with the Gordon McLeod Company and remain here a few weeks before going to New York, where he has been engaged to stage some English plays for David Belasco.

Gordon McLeod will be supported by that charming London favorite, Miss Lilian Christine. The cast of "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner" also includes Miss Olive Walters, Miss Heather McIntyre, Miss Paula Sabina, Mr. Kynaston Reeves, Mr. Aubrey Mallatlen, T. W. Dunscombe, Mr. Stanley Browne and Mr. W. H. Hartwell.

Miss Shelagh Kirby of Winnipeg will join the company at Montreal as understudy

The Canadian premiere of "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner" will take place at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, on Monday, September 10th. After a week in Montreal the company will visit Toronto, Winnipeg and the West.

Mr. McLeod will open the local season at the Grand Opera House, Thursday, September 20th.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Victor McLaglen Reaches New Peaks In His Great Acting in "Hangman's House," the Feature Attraction at the Capitol, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy Will Also Be Seen in "Should Married Men Go Home."

Victor McLaglen, rated as the greatest character portrayer before the camera, since his performances in the leading roles of "What Price Glory," "A Girl in Every Port," "Carmen" and "Mother Machree," is said to reach new heights of histrionic achievement in "Hangman's House," which opens at the Capitol on Monday.

In the cast with McLaglen are Hobart Bosworth, June Collyer, Earle Foxe, Larry Kent and other film artists of undisputed rank.

McLaglen plays the part of Citizen Hogan in this dramatic story and is said to be ideal for the part. He starts as a member of the Foreign legion and ends as an avenger in Ireland. Mystery surrounds his mission and tragedy hovers over him as he follows his foe through the bogs and peet-lands of Erin.

Miss Collyer, playing her fourth consecutive lead for Fox, is seen as Connaught O'Brien. She made screen history by her excellent characterization in "Four Sons," but Ford is authority for the statement that she gives a finer performance in "Hangman's House."

Larry Kent, one of the most successful among the younger screen players, is said to give a splendid account of himself as Dermott McDermott. He is the romantic lead and he has much vital action with Earle Foxe, the menace, and with Hobart Bosworth, cast as "Jimmy the Hangman."

Earle Foxe carries the burden of evil as he did in "Four Sons," and proves that Fox executives were sound in their conviction that they had in their comedy department one of the best and most convincing "heavies" in Films.

An entertainment of outstanding merit is promised local audiences with the showing of "Hangman's House."

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, that great team of funmakers, will also be seen in one of their latest, "Should Married Men Go Home?"

AT THE REGENT.

"HAM AND EGGS AT THE FRONT."

"Ham and Eggs at the Front," one of Warner Bros.' feature pictures, proves three things when it comes to the Regent Theatre on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The first of these was that it was the greatest novelty on the screen at the present time, the second, that in those clever vaudevillians, Tom Wilson and Heinie Conklin, together with the exotic Myrna Loy, it has one of the cleverest trios ever seen on the screen, and in the third, that it is one of the most hilarious and mirth provoking pictures that has ever threatened to remove the buttons from a movie fan's vest.

"Ham and Eggs at the Front" is a novelty inasmuch as its characters are all of burnt cork hue. The only white spot in it is on a dog, and it is not much of a white spot at that. The whole story is centred in the "cullud" troops that answered Uncle Sam's call during the great war. When first seen these children of Ham are in France in all their innocence and child like blandness. There is a Sengalese maiden, played by Miss Loy, who clutters up the feverish emotions of the doughboys, and there is a poker game, played in an old barn while the men are awaiting the call to the front, that is a series of screams.

Of the three stars, Wilson, Conklin and Miss Loy, it may be said that they were never seen to better advantage. The entire cast is fine, and the productio non the whole one to be commended.

As an extra added attraction the only official pictures of the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship bout will be shown Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the conclusion of the regular program.

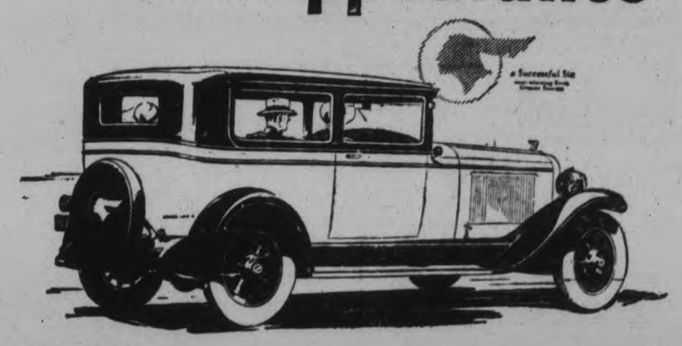
IMPROVED in Performance and Appearance



OUTSHINING even its famous predecessors in smooth, effortless performance . . more smartly styled than ever before—

—today's Pontiac Six is the most impressive example of value-giving in the whole history of the low-priced six!

Substantial gains in motoring pleasure and economy result from important mechanical advancements, such as a new Marvel carburetor, new manifolding, etc. More intriguing beauty and the much desired air of rugged compactness have been achieved by the use of smaller, smarter wheels and larger tires.

And, beneath all its brilliance of beauty and performance, Pontiac Six is a supremely dependable car . . a car that sails through a wearing, tearing, day-long drive and finishes with the same spirited freshness with which it started the trip.

Every day people are coming in to drive this greatest of all Pontiacs—to express admiration for its new and alluring beauty—to marvel at its increased ability and acceleration. And when you come in you, too, will instantly realize that General Motors has again produced a finer automobile—has established a still higher standard of what you have a right to expect in a six so low in price. Hiram Walker Holds Interest

TORONTO, Aug. 8. — (Canadian Press.)— With the bulk of interest concentrated on Hiram Walkers, trading on a few issues was quite active, although prices failed to establish any definite trend. Walkers after opening at 63½ jumped to a new high of 65, but sagged slightly and at the close it registered 63, unchanged from yesterday's prices. International Nickel failed to retain its rise of yesterday and with very light turnover declined 1½ points to 123. Canada Dredge common was up one point to 52 while preferred stock was up two at 155. Steel of Canada continued on its sharp rise registering an increase of three points at 196. Brazilian Traction with firm trading lost one at 57 and Massey Harris lost ¾ at 43½.

Wheat Eases Down On Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Sept. 8. — (Canadian Press.)— Wheat eased down at the opening of the Chicago market today, reacting ⅛ to ¾ from the close follow the trend at Chicago and under of Friday. Liverpool had failed to der influence of Argentine offerings trading at Liverpool was dull to-day. There were showers in Canada, but they were scattered and their effect was not expected to be lasting. Corn was unchanged to 1c. higher at the start but weakened in early trading and sold below the previous close. Oats and Provisions were steady.

Opening price: Wheat, Sept. 109 5-8, Dec. 115. Corn, Sept. 96 3-8, Dec. 75 5-8. Oats, Sept. 40, Dec. 41 3-8.

Trading Is Sluggish Standard Exchange

TORONTO, Sept. 8. — Canadian Press. — Although trading was rather sluggish at the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, a few substantial rises accompanied by several losses were registered during the session. Dome Mines, with a moderate turn-over, climbed to 10.05 with a net gain of 55, Malartic after opening one point above yesterday's close, took a sudden rise to 1.80, with increase of 16. Noranda was up 65, closing at 53.50. Sudbury basin 10 at 6.85; Area two at 34 and Bidgood 3¾ at 71. Hollinger Consolidated was weak opening at 8.75. It sagged to 8.60 with loss of 15. Pend Oreille, with very light trading dropped from 13.80 to 13.50. Hudson Bay was down 10 at 18.90; Big Missouri steadied at yesterday's high price but was one point lower at close to-day at 50.

News From the Mines

Through
Selloway, Mills & Company

Graham Bousquet

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Persistent strength 1 nthis issue during the last couple of days may be attributed to reports coming from Amos that a very rich strike has been made at this property. Details of the find have not been announced. However, Mr. Graham, the President, and Mr. Thomas H. Rea, of Toronto, a director, fell into the property yesterday and some official word is expected to-day or to-morrow.

Siscoe

Further advices from Amos are to the effect that a very important find has been made on the 500 foot level of this company's property in Dubuisson township. As a result of these reports, consulting engineer John Forbes intended leaving for the property last night with a party of directors to make an examination.

Coast Copper

Vancouver advices yesterday stated that three miles of underground development at this prooperty, controlled by Consolidated Mining and Smelting, had exposed three very important orebodies, which had to some extent been prospected by diamond drilling. The Provincial Engineer of the district in a late report stated that the property was about ready for a large concentrating plant and railroad to sidewater. Coast Copper ore is a complex one, carrying gold, silver and copper, and is said to average from 2 to 6 per cent. copper, with occasional values as high as 16 per cent., while gold values run from $1.25 to $40 to the ton, and silver from 60 cents to $4.80 to the ton.

Sylvanite.

Preliminary estimates show that the Sylvanite mill treated something over 45,000 tons of ore during the eight months ended August 31st. This was maintaining very closely the designed capacity of two hundred tons per day. Ore has continued to average around $11 and recovery has been close to $10.50. The total yield during the eight months was around $475,000, which would indicate an output for the full year of something around $700,000. The operators of Sylvanite are keeping production as even as possible, with the thought in mind that by thus keeping on a modestly profitable basis there may come a time when a series of favorable lower level developments may bring greater tonnage into sight, and thereby warrant the addition of a further mill unit.

Arno

Consulting engineer Charles Spearman has just returned from Arno's Coxheath property in Nova Scotia, and announced yesterday that the company was preparing at once to spend $100,000 on new equipment and further development on a large scale. With two drills on the property it is stated that important favorable developments have been obtained and forty men are now at work opening up surface showings and the various deposits. The Arno directors are planning developments on a big scale and immediately Engineer Spearman has completed his report to the directors, an official statement of the results to date will be issued.

Noranda

According to well informed advices the third diamond drill hole on Norandas drilled from the 975 foot level adjacent to the second hole at an angle of 60 degrees to the west, cut 235 feet of massive ore in the "H" orebody with average values said to be around $60. Drilling to date shows the "H" ore body pitching to the west instead of the east as previously expected.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Sept. 8.—Word of diamond drilling results at Noranda was contained in a wire from the north this morning which stated that: "Noranda third diamond drill hole from the 975-foot level, adjacent to second hole and at an angle of 50 degrees to the west, intersected 235 feet of massive ore in the "H" ore body with values running $60. Drilling to date has shown "H" ore body pitching to the west instead of east as previously expected."

A report from Boston Creek states that Barry Hollinger are now in 72 feet on the 1,250-foot level. The vein is said to practically fill the drift and that values average around $12 per ton.

The No. 1 mineralized ore zone on the Iron Horse group of the Manitoba Flin Flon Mines Syndicate is officially stated to be showing up well under development. It is now traced for a length of 665 feet and is shown to be 40 feet wide. Work on the erection of camp buildings was commenced this week.

Further advices from Amos are to the effect that a very important find has been made on the 500-foot level of the Siscoe Gold Mines property in Dubuisson township, Quebec. As a result of these reports, consulting engineer John Forbes is reported to have left the city for the camp last night. He was said to be accompanied by a party of directors.

Our Montreal office wires that Granada Rouyn shares have been under steady accumulation by insiders for some weeks past and much higher prices for the stock are predicted on the street at Montreal. The stock appeared at 24 this morning. Recent diamond drilling at this property intersected the No. 8 vein at about 750 feet and the core showed eight feet of vein matter and heavy sulphides. This hole was the fourth of a series being drilled from the 125-foot level. The shaft is proceeding to 1,000 feet and when last heard of was well past the 800 foot mark. It is possible that lateral work will be done at around 700 feet before the shaft is completed to its objective.

Operations in the winze from the 375-foot level, more than 600 feet down on the vein, at Central Manitoba are said to have uncovered a good shoot of ore in the new workings, running about $20 per ton over a width of 18 feet. Diamond drilling had previously penetrated his orebody through six feet of ore of $20 grade. At that time the width had not been disclosed but sideslashing now has determined, a width of 18 feet.

Word has been received from Sudbury that permission has been granted the Clericy Consolidated Mines to proceed with development on its Frechette township property. The discovery on these claims was made about three months ago by W. W. Davis and H. O. Rutledge, engineers of the company, but owing to the fact that Frechette township property. The discovery on these claims was made about three months ago by W. W. Davis and H. O. Rutledge, engineers of the company, but owing to the fact that Frechette township is located in the forest reserve area, the work of opening up the discovery was delayed. Notice from th Ontario Government granting permission to carry on work on the claims was received this week.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO.

His Honor the Local Judge
In Chambers.
Tuesday, the 21st Day of August, A.D., 1928.

BETWEEN—
MARGARET A. ALLAN, wrongly described in a certain Mortgage from William Bisbikos to her as Elizabeth Allen, PLAINTIFF.
and
WILLIAM BISBIKOS, DEFENDANT.

Upon the application of the plaintiff upon hearing the solicitor for the applicant, and upon reading the affidavits of EARL LEONARD MARTIN and ADRIAN ILDERIM REVELLE filed herein.

1. It is ordered that service upon the Defendant William Bisbikos of the writ of summons in this action by publishing this order, together with the notice thereon indorsed once a week for three weeks preceding the 19th day of September, 1928, in "The Evening Examiner" newspaper, published at Peterborough, be deemed good and sufficient service of said writ.

2. And it is further ordered that the said defendant William Bisbikos do enter an appearance to the said writ of Summons and file his Affidavit of Merits in the Local Registrar's Office at the Court House in the City of Kingston, on or before the first day of October, A. D., 1928.

"H. A. LAVELL,"
J.

NOTICE.

The Plaintiff's claim is on a mortgage dated the 29th day of September, 1922, made between WILLIAM BISBIKOS as Mortgagor, and the Plaintiff, wrongly described as ELIZABETH ALLEN as Mortgagee, and that the Mortgage may be enforced by foreclosure.

And to recover from you the Defendant, payment of the amount due under a covenant by you in that behalf contained in said Mortgage.

And take notice that the Plaintiff claims to be entitled to recover immediate possession of the mortgaged premises.

And take notice that the Plaintiff claims that there is now due by you for principal money the sum of $1854.05, and for interest the sum of $628.25.

"H. A. LAVELL."

Wedding Bells

ARTHUR—BLODGETT.

At Roseneath United Church parsonage, on Wednesday, August 29th, at 9.30, a quiet wedding was conducted by the Rev. R. M. Brown, when Grace Gertrude, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Blodgett, and Frederick Bruce, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Arthur, were united in marriage.

The bride was becomingly dressed in pencil blue georgette crepe, with hat to match, and bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair fern.

After the ceremony and a pleasant send off at Roseneath, the happy couple left by motor for Toronto, Niagara and other points west.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silverware.

GUNDY—PRYCE.

Quietness and simplicity characterized the wedding of Miss Edith Wynne Pryce, daughter of the late David Pryce and Mrs. John Huxley, of Peterborough, to Joseph Verity Gundy, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gundy of Dougall avenue, which took place at three o'clock Saturday afternoon at All Saints' 'church, Windsor. The officiating clergyman was the rector of the church, Rev. P. N. Harding.

The bride who was given in marriage by Mr. C. A. Schell, was attractively gowned in a Lelong model of transparent velvet in Renee blue. The bodice was fashioned with a V-shaped yoke of Alencon lace, and the skirt which was formed of three-wave flounces, hung longer at the back. With this she wore a platinum fox fur, blue satin pumps to match her frock, and a hat of Renee blue brimmed in a lighter shade. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and Kordes roses.

During the signing of the register the organist played very softly "At Dawning."

Immediately following the ceremony at the church Mr. and Mrs. Gundy departed by motor on their wedding trip through Eastern Ontario.

In three weeks time they will take up thei rresidence in Montreal.

Mrs. John Huxley, mother of the bride, came in from Peterborough for the wedding and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gundy.

OBITUARY

FRANK ARCHIBALD DRYLAND

The death took place last night at the isolation hospital of Frank Archibald Dryland. The funeral was held this morning at 11 o'clock privately from the home of his grandfather, Mr. Dryland, 121 Romaine street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN D. O'LEARY.

There died on September 7th, very suddenly, a life-long resident of Indian River, of Otonabee. Mrs. Bridget O'Leary, at the age of eighty years, the widow of the late John D. O'Leary.

There are left to mourn her loss, four children: Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, 178 Douro Street; Mrs. Dennis Menogue, on the homestead, Mrs. Edward Riopell in Montana, and their son, Daniel, at home.

The funeral will take place on Saturday, September 8th, from her late home, Lot 30, Concession 4, Otonabee, to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery, Douro.

ALEXANDER FITZGERALD.

The death took place this morning at his late residence, Hunter Street East, of one of Ashburnham's oldest residents, in the person of Alexander Fitzgerald, after an illness of more than a year's time.

The deceased was born in the Township of Smith, and passed his 83rd birthday on the 27th of August last.

He was a veteran of '66, of which now there are surviving only four in the city. He has been a member of St. Luke's Anglican Church. Of a most kindly disposition, he was well liked by all those with whom he came in contact.

His wife predeceased him some years ago, and his sisters-in-law, Miss C. Graham and Miss E. Graham have been resident with him.

Left to mourn his death is his son Harry G. Fitzgerald, of Lakefield, and one daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) J. H. Edmison, of Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Monday. Service at the house, Hunter Street East, will be at two o'clock. Funeral at 2.30.

BIRTH.

YELLAND—To Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yelland, 576 Bethune street, at Nicholls Hospital, Wednesday, Sept. 5th, a daughter.

GRIFFIN.—At St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday, Sept. 8th, to Mr. and Mrs. A. Griffin, 194 Rubidge street, a son.

MARRIED.

COLLARD—HILLMAN. — At Lakefield, on Saturday, September 1st, 1928, Allan B. Collard, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Collard, of Stouffville, to Margaret, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hillman, Lakefield. Rev. S. A. Kemp, of Regent street United Church, officiated.

A WORD FOR THE EXAMINER.

To my few words give good heed—
People, Classified Ads., do read.
My Xmas one, brought me dollars, two hundred,
When I told folks, they thought I had blundered.
My next, a dollar one, I thought rather plenty,
But it brought me in more than twenty—
I have one in now, worded best I could—
I expect results will pan out just as good.

REDS ACTIVE AMONG MEN

was opposed to the proposed Empire wireless cable merger. "We think it deplorable that one of the most essential Imperial services should pass into the hands of any private concern," he said. Future existence of Imperial unity demanded most perfect systems of communication. "You might as well let out the Army and Navy to private contractors," the Labor leader said.

He found Canada in a very prosperous condition, Mr. Macdonald said.

300 Go Home.

QUEBEC, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—Three hundred British miners who came to Canada as harvesters and who did not find work to suit them, have been embarked on vessels here for their homeland during the past twenty-four hours.

Many of the men while here loudly complained about their treatment in the West, but others were philosophic about it. Some thought they were being deported as Communists and protested vehemently they were nothing of the sort.

They were permitted to roam around the large shed at Louise Basin, a number of policemen being on hand, but the men were tractable enough, their main concern being food and plenty of it.

Charges Exaggerated.

LONDON, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press Cable).—Reuter's learns that there is little disposition in authoritative circles to regard with undue seriousness charges of alleged ill-treatment of British harvesters made in Winnipeg by Thomas Johnson, Scottish Labor M.P. No official reports so far have been received here, beyond an official statement of the Canadian Government denying the charges, but the charges are considered here to be somewhat exaggerated.

It is pointed out that from 1925 onward about 12,000 harvest workers have gone annually from Britain to Canada and there have been no grounds for complaint regarding their treatment in the Dominion. It is felt that a small proportion of so large a body must necessarily be wholly unsuitable for the work required and undoubtedly in many cases men go out with the intention of stirring up trouble and making difficulties.

CONSTIPATION

A lack of tone or flabbiness of the muscular walls of the intestines is responsible for many cases of constipation. The intestinal wastes are not expelled regularly and re-absorption of poisons takes place. The sufferer becomes mentally and physically sluggish and the body gradually becomes so laden with poisons that it readily becomes succeptible to almost any disease.

CHIROPRACTIC

has aided in the correction of many cases of constipation, because it restores normal nerve force to the intestinal walls, toning up their muscles and giving them the energy necessary for normal activity.

Labor Congress Expels Communist

Majority In Favor Large

Delegates Approve Recommendation That John MacDonald Be Asked To Resign.

ASSISTED RIVAL.

MacDonald Declares That He Is Proud of Fact That He Is Communist.

(Special to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, September 10. — By an overwhelming majority delegates to the 44th annual convenion of the Trades and Labor Congress, at the Prince George Hotel, approved recommendation by the Executive Council calling for the resignation of John Macdonald from his appointment as delegate to the convention..

The Executive committee protested against his seating on the grounds that he had assisted in the organization of a rival institution, the Communist party. The Credential committee moved that the credentials of Macdonald be not accepted.

This was greeted by a cry of shame from the back of the hall, but vigorous clapping drowned this.

The chairman, Tom Moore, agreed to give John Macdonald an opportunity to state his own case.

He said: "The council knows where I stand and it has the power to deal with me, but it has accepted me for several years. I am not endeavoring to take back anything I have said. I am secretary of the Communist party. I am proud of the fact. The council knows this.

"I believe that the Canadian trade union should be autonomous. I am out to build up the trade union movement. My appeal, however, is on a constitutional basis. How can a delegate be unseated by the convention, when the Trades and Labor council has accepted me? If this convention unseats me, then it will do one of the most damaging things possible to the trade union movement. We have the right of a minority of free speech."

$500 DAMAGE DONE TO ROOF

Spark Flying From Chimney Ignites House at 175 Park Street.

FURNITURE SAVED.

Damage estimated at $500.00 was done to the roof of a residence at 175 Lock Street about 1.15 on Sunday afternoon when fire caused by a spark from the chimney destroyed practically the entire roof.

That there was no injury to the contents of the house was due in no small part to the thoughtfulness of the firemen who, in addition to fighting the fire, spread tarpaulins over the interior so that chemicals and water used had little, if any, effect save on the blaze itself.

$7,000 DEPOSITED BY LOCAL SCHOLARS

King George School Pupils Have Best Record in Penny Bank.

The Penny Bank in the schools of Canada has proved a valuable teacher of the value of thrift, for when an individual learns the habit of saving while in his school years, that habit is liable to grow with him. An indication of the increasing interest in the Penny Bank is the statement issued for the month of May and June, 1928, which gives the percentage of pupils depositing, according to the schools which they attend.

Peterborough schools are well to the fore in this regard, the total amount on deposit at the end of June, locally, being $7,467.81. Sixty-four per cent. of the King George pupils have taken advantage of the Penny Bank opportunites while next in line is Central, with a percentage of 46. The others are listed as follows: King Edward 43 per cent.; Queen Mary 41; Queen Alexandra 39; Prince of Wales 30.

The total amount deposited by the end of June was $1,050,551.14, no less than three hundred and fifty-two schools contributing as compared with 303 schools a year ago with a total deposit of $877,968.51.

Six Killed In Level Crossing Crash

Trades and Labor Congress Of Canada Begins Session At Toronto To-Day

TORONTO, Ont., September 10.—(Canadian Press).—Canada's annual labor parliament, the Trades and Labor Conress of Canada, assembled today for its forty-fourth meeting. Delegates have been arriving steadily over the week-end, and approximately four hundred were seated when the convention was called to order by W. Varley of Toronto, chairman of the convention committee, at ten o'clock this morning.

The discussions of delegates assembled in groups in the lobby of the convention hotel indicate that immigration and its co-related subject, unemployment insurance, is virtually certain to occupy a prominent place in the business of the convention, and it is understood that several resolutions dealing with this subject have been framed for consideration of the delegates.

The question of the five-day week of 40 hours and old age pensions are other matters which have been informally discussed in the preconvention parleys, and which also are expected to be aired on the convention floor. With the exception of Alberta, the Federal-Provincial Old Age Pension Act has become operative in Western Canada, and it is expected that the necessity of similar legislative enactments in the eastern provinces to provide a measure of protection to the aged needy workers in their declining years will be urged by the delegats.

EPIDEMIC OF PARALYSIS NOT EXPECTED IN ONTARIO

Health Officials See No Cause For Alarm in Single Case.

ALWAYS PREVALENT.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 10 (Special to The Examiner).—Citizens of Toronto and of Ontario should not be unduly perturbed over one case of infantile paralysis reported from Port Stanley, following an epidemic of the disease in Winnipeg, according to Dr. C. J. O. Hastings, M.O.H.

"There have always been sporadic cases occurring almost every month in some centre of Ontario. It is only when an epidemic occurs that these cases are noticed."

In Dr. Hastings' opinion, there could be no connection between the Winnipeg epidemic and the Port Stanley case, where Kathleen Bolt, a 14-year-old St. Thomas girl, contracted the disease in her leg.

"I would strongly advise against parents taking their children to Winnipeg until the epidemic ceases as a precautionary measure only," said the Medical Officer of Health.

Considered Contagious.

"It is possible that the disease is not communicable by contact although opinion differs on this point.

"In the epidemic of the disease in Winnipeg after the war no single case could be traced to contact with any other case. However, this disease

Hides From Police In Sheriff's Office

CHICAGO, Sept. 10. —(Canadian Press.)—When police picked up Ben Barrett, whom they had sought for a year on a murder charge, they expressed curiosity as to where he had been during the past twelve months. "I'v been a deptuy sheriff down in El Paso, Texas," Ben told them.

MANY DRIVERS LACK PERMITS

Traffic Officer Stops 250 Cars at Bewdley On Sunday.

CHECKING BRAKES.

The Provincial Highway authorities have received definite orders to be most strict in carrying out the Highway Traffic Laws, in regards to permits, brakes and glaring headlights. Yesterday Traffic Officer Hugh Wilson stopped 250 drivers at Bewdley, and this morning he estimated that over 20 per cent. had no permits with them. Last night he checked up on headlights, and found numerous drivers operating their cars with only one light, and many cars failed to have regulation lens. As yet he has not stopped drivers to test the brakes, but commencing today, he stated that he will stop motorists to see if their brakes were in proper condition.

The traffic on the Provincial Highway yesterday was the heaviest of the season, according to many who travelled that road. One man in travelling to Springville met 104 cars in seven minutes.

THREE CRASHES OVER WEEK END

Little Damage Done When Cars Collide On City Streets.

NO PERSON HURT.

Three small motor accidents took place in the city over the wees-end. In each one, the car was only slightly damaged and none of the occupants were hurt.

Bruce Patten, while driving west on Smith Street yesterday afternoon, collided with the rear of a car driven by S. J. Murphy at the stop sign on George Street.

Otto Laderach, on his motor cycle and the car of Fred Haggin were in a collision at the corner of Bethune and Charlotte Streets; and Judge Huycke's car was in a collision with a Toronto car in East City on Saturday night.

SEVENTH VICTIM IS NEAR DEATH FROM INJURIES

Family Were Going On Picnic To Algoma Hills.

AT BLIND RIVER.

Car Dragged 500 Feet Before Engine Brought To Stop.

BLIND RIVER, Ont., September 10 (Canadian Press). — Their lunch baskets packed for a Sunday afternoon outing, five people in a car were killed instantly, death claimed another a few minutes afterwards, and the seventh member of the party suffered injuries which may prove fatal, in a crash at the C.P.R. level crossing here yesterday afternoon.

The six dead are:

Mr. W. McCain, aged 55, millwright, carpenter, Hixon, Blind River, driver of the car.

Miss Margaret McCain, aged 19, Ottawa.

Miss Marie McCain, aged 13, Blind River.

Mrs. Frank McCain, aged 60, Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss Beulah Hennun, aged 27, Ottawa.

Mrs. A. Bell, aged 50, Blind River.

The sole survivor of the crash is Miss Bernice McCain, aged 17. Both the young girl's arms were broken, and she sustained severe internal injuries. Doctors said there is only a chance for her recovery.

The accident occurred at 2.16 p.m. as C.P.R. passenger train No. 18, east-bound from Sault Ste. Marie, was proceeding to Blind River.

Car Dragged 500 feet.

The car was going north over the crossing at a fast clip, eye-witnesses say, and the engine caught the motor vehicle abreast, dragging it and its occupants for a distance of 500 feet to the station platform. Five of the passengers were killed outright, and Miss Margaret McCain, nurse-in-training at the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, died on the station platform few minutes after her limp body was removed from the wreckage of the car.

Apparently the driver was entirely unaware of the approach of the train. Seventy-five feet from the crossing, it is said, there is a clear view of the tracks for 1,800 feet. Engineer B. Allan, of Sault Ste. Marie, said that the engine was right on top of the auto when he saw it first, and there was no chance of avoiding the crash. The train had whistled for the crossing and the bell was ringing.

New German Liners Have Pear-Shaped Bows To Increase Speed And Reduce Pitching

BERLIN, September 10.—German ship-building yards are employing two new features on several vessels now being built, which promises to increase the speed of the ship, to lessen pitching in heavy seas, and also to save considerable weight in the hull, thus increasing the carrying capacity. The increased speed concerns the design of the bow as used for the two liners, Bremen and Europa, recently launched by the North German Lloyd Company. These liners are the longest in the world.

At the base of the bow these ships bulge out laterally and have a snub-nose appearance from the front. The pear-shaped surface reaches to the waterline and is widest near the keel. constructors have hitherto refused to disclose the reason for this peculiarity which is a radical departure from the usual knife-edge bows.

But it is now learned on reliable authority that the designers have proved by tank tests that the new design causes less resistance than the sharp form, also the blunt face with the extension increasing beneath the waterline will prevent the ship from pitching, the designers claim, as the weight of water on this bulge is is sufficient to steady the entire craft. Apart from the added comfort to passengers, which the smooth running will give, the propellors will be kept under water during heavy seas and will not churn in the air as do those of other vessels. Thus additional speed and economy are gained.

DESIRABLE SETTLERS GET LOANS TO HELP PAY OCEAN PASSAGE

Statement About Financial Requirement Being Bar Are Denied.

SHARE NOT REDUCED.

(Special to The Examiner)

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 10. — The Canadian doctors in England who say many more British would immigrate if were not necessary to have five pounds to qualify for assisted passage, are in error inso far as the qualification is concerned. While an immigrant coming out under an assisted passage is usually called upon to pay £3 as his share of his fare to Montreal (£3.10.00 Toronto) the department has authority and does advance even this sum to highly desirable settlers.

The general principale has been adopted that the man who cannot raise the cost of his own passage to Canada is not likely to make a very good settler. Rt. Hon. L. S. Amery tried to get assisted passages made available for every Britisher, reducing his quota to £2 but Canada was not inclined to let down the bars to every body who could raise $10 or at least was not inclined to pay half the balance of the £18 fare. Lord Lovat also proposed this extension of the assisted passage scheme a man and and his wife need only have £3.10.00 each to

GETS BIG BASS AT CLEAR LAKE

Tom Curvin Catches Six Pound Fish Above Young's Point.

FISHING GOOD.

Tom Curvin, who has been reading the Wise Cracker in Saturday's edition of The Examiner, came into the office this morning to disprove some of the statements of Wise Cracker that there were no fish in Stoney Lake.

He brought with him the finest specimen of small mouth black bass we have ever seen. It was 21¼ inches long, 6½ inches across, not counting the spread of fins, and weighed six full pounds.

It was caught in the raceway at Young's Point, within ten feet of the dam.

Mr. Curvin is exceedingly proud of his catch, which is the largest bass he ever hooked in his long fishing career. It is the first fish that has ever bent his steel rod, which required him bending it over his knee to get back to shape.

He states that this bass in its class is equal in size to a 20-lb. lunge. He further states that bass fishing has been excellent in Clear Lake and in the river below the dam, and that to anyone who is a fisherman there is all the fish to be caught that they can legitimately use.

Refused Bribe Payable In Cash Swimmer States

Refused To Accept Money To Throw Saturday's Race —Admits That Loss To Young Places Him in a Peculiar Position.

TEDDY OKE THINKS STORY ABSURD; WILL BACK YOUNG IN NEW RACE

Not Enough Bet To Warrant Such An Offer, Declares Young's Backer—Ross Refuses To Amplify Statement at Present.

TORONTO, September 10 (Special to The Examiner). — How he had been offered $10,000 to throw the race with George Young on Saturday at the Exhibition was told to The Examiner by Norman Ross, champion swimmer of the United States, before he left for his home in Chicago.

"The offer was made in Toronto in my hotel," he said. "My wife is my witness." Mrs. Ross nodded her assent.

"It was to be in good bills, absolutely guaranteed, no marked ones," he went on.

Naturally, the offer was turned down.

"You shouldn't mention it," he suggeated, "or it will be printed that perhaps I did throw down the race after all. That would be flattering, eh?"

Ross said that he and his wife had come to the conclusion next time such an offer was made to take the money and win the race. "I think it would be ethical and teach such people a lesson. There is no doubt that this is what happened in a certain famous prize fight."

Mr. Ross would give no hint from what source the offer came. He absolutely refused to name anybody, but left the inference that it came through a large gambling ring.

"There was no doubt about the offer," he declared. "It would have been paid if I said the word."

Coming over in the launch from the finishing float to the dressing tent, Ross made a significant remark, half regretfully that it should be the case:

"There'll be a lot of money lost on this race to-day."

Oke Indignant.

"You can wire right back to Norman Ross in Chicago that we'll race him for $10,000," declared F. G. "Teddy" Oke, backer of George Young, when questioned regarding Ross' allegation. "I can't believe a word of it," Mr. Oke continued. "This is the first I ever heard of such a thing."

Mr. Oke was asked as to whether or not the betting on the race was sufficiently heavy to warrant attempts at such a bribe being made.

"It certainly was not," Mr. Oke declared. "I never heard of anyone who had any money on the race at all. I know I had no bets on the race."

"I have no idea of anyone who would make such an offer. I think George Young can beat Norman Ross any time, and I am willing to back Young against him."

Sporting men point out that any betting there was on the race was very petty and largely consisted of small side wagers.

REPEATS CHARGES.

CHICAGO, September 10 (Special to The Examiner). — On his arrival here from Toronto, Norman Ross reiterated the statement that he had been offered $10,000 to throw Saturday's race. "I will have to have some time to think this over and to figure out just in what form any such statement should be made," he said when pressed for details. "I realize how important the event was to Toronto, and any statement that has not a good deal of thought behind it is likely to be misinterpreted."

The suggestion was made to him on Friday night by a group of several men. Sensing that it was in the nature of a feeler and wishing to find out more of the details, Ross said to them: "If you have got $10,000 in cold cash in your pocket right now, why, hand it over, and then we can talk this matter over thoroughly."

The men had no such sum of money with them, and consequently the interview came to an end.

"It is out of the question for me to attempt to identify these men," continued Ross. "I would not do that. I think the best way for this matter to be handled is for nothing more to be said about it. In view of the fact that I was actually beaten by Young in Saturday's race I am placed in rather a peculiar position, and any statement I make at this time is likely to make people get the wrong impression."

EIGHT PERMITS ISSUED IN WEEK

Peterborough Canoe Company Vill Build Warehouse To Cost $6,000.

TWO DWELLINGS.

Building permits issued at the City Engineer's office during the past week brought the year's total up by a goodly figure as well as providing for several valauble building projects in the city.

Chief among the eight permits issued was that granted the Peterborough Canoe Company providing for the erection of a $6,000 storehouse. It will be quite large, the foundation being of concrete, six feet high, with dimensions of 120 feet in length and 80 feet wide. Lumber and galvanized iron will be used in the walls of the three-storey structure, while tar and gravel will be the materials used as roofing.

Thomas Ephgrave holds the contract for this work and according to the permit, November 1 will witness the completion of it.

Two Dwellings.

Two houses having a total value of approximately $9,700.00 are also to be erected according to other permits issued. The Toronto Savings and Loan Company received permission to erect a dwelling on Weller street, the estimated cost of which will be $7,500, while George Sloan, contractor, applied for, and was granted the privilege of erecting a $2 200 dwelling at 590 Wolfe street for Sydney Spooner.

The first of the two mentioned will be 41 feet in length and 27 feet in width, with a concrete foundation 8 feet high and 1 foot thick. The exterior of the walls will be brick veneered while lathe and plaster will be used for the interior. The structur will be two stories in height, comprising seven rooms with interior finish of gumwood and pine. One fireplace and a hot water heating system will be installed together with two baths, a shower, a number of basins, etc. The roof will be of wood shingles and asbestos paper, while the chimneys will be brick, with flue linings.

The job will be completed about Janaury 1, 1929.

Mr. Spooner's house on Wolfe Street will be a single story structure, 30 feet long and 24 feet in width, with a concrete foundation six feet high. The walls will be frame, with interior finish of pine and basswood, there will be six rooms heated by stove, while chimneys will be of brick, flue lined. The roof will be of composition shingles. November 15 has been set as the date of completion.

Extensions to Garage.

The estimated cost of extensions to a garage at 107 Park Street has been set at $1,000.00, according to the permit issued to H. H. May, foreman of the Maintenance Department of the C.G.E., for which the building is intended. The structure will be of considerable size, the dimensions being 42 feet 6 inches in length and 10 feet in width, with concrete foundation, stucco finish on the walls and felt shingles as the roofing material.

Repairing of a cornice at 281-285 George Street will necessitate the expenditure of approximately $300, according to the permit granted Geo Sloan, contractor, for Chesler and Zacks, while the shingling of a house at 222 Carlisle Avenue with cedar

JUDGING CONTESTS TO BE HELD FOR FIFTH SUCCESSIVE YEAR

Young Farm Men and Women To Compete For Good Prizes.

ON WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The Peterborough fifth annual judging competitions in Livestock and Domestic Science are to be held at the Exhibition Grounds in connection with the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on Wednesday, September 12, 1928, commencing at 8.45 a.m. These are open to all young people under 26 years of age and are conducted under the joint auspices of The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition and the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

As in former years there is a splendid list of cash prizes amounting to one hundred and seventy-five dollars. This list is supplemented by a number of very valuable special prizes. In all over four hundred dollars worth of prizes will be given.

It will be noticed that several new features are introduced in the competitions this year. Both the Livestock and Domestic Science branches are divided into Senior and Junior competitions, which arrangement will give a better opportunity to the younger boys and girls. Members of former county teams, who previously were debarred may enter in the Senior class.

The idea of the judging competitions is to make the junior institute work more interesting and to liven up the organization to some extent. For the boys their chief line is livestock and they are taught the correct principles of breeding, feeding and management of these animals, but the fundamental idea of livestock rests with the idea of being able to select good quality cattle and from this reason arose the competition idea. On the judging the boys are placed according to their selection of the animal and then are given two minutes to give their reason for the selection on which they are also marked. The total of the two giving the final standing of the contestant.

The girls' work has more to do with the domestic side of life and their work in judging is along the lines of school lunches, kitchen plans, correct wardrobe for the country girl and the correct dress of the country girl for going to church. The same method of judging is applied here as with the boys.

These county competitions are really a start to bigger competitions and mostly novices compete. The ten highest boys between the ages of 17 and 23 in the fall competitions are to be given a free trip to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. There are over sixty entries for the judging and have been coming in very satisfactorily.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR TO MOSCOW SINCE 1922 SUCCUMBS SUDDENLY.

BERLIN, Sept. 10. Canadian Press. — Count Brockdorff-Rantzau, German ambassador to Moscow, since 1922, died here on Sunday of apoplexy, while on a holiday visit. He was 59 years old.

The ambassador's untimely death suggests serious embarrassment to Germany's relation with Soviet Russia, as it comes at a time when the former cordial relations of both countries has cooled off considerably owing to differences over the Russian-German trade agreements, and the Moscow government's arbitrary procedure in connection with recent arrests and prosecution of several engineers and other nationals.

Count Brockdorff-Rantzau was the guiding influence in shaping Germany's foreign policy toward her eastern neighbor and was known to have enjoyed Moscow's confidence to an unusual degree.

BIG CELEBRATION BEING ARRANGED

Campbellford Will Celebrate Completion of Paving Work.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 10. — Pulses ran high in Campbellford fifty two years ago when the little clearing in the hardwood wilderness was incorporated as a village. Then the settlement consisted of a few hundred souls of the pioneer stock which has been one of the principal factors in bringing the town to its present status. Then there were few industries here and these were in their infancy. This state of affairs gradually progressed till in the year 1906 the requirements for incorporation as a town had been reached.

July first, 1906 saw this step completed and prosperity was the keynote and corner stone of the entire monster celebration staged in honour of the event. Fire works, horse races and everything else were on the program for that day.

In the years between there have been many high lights in the community life and affairs that have caused a flare of pride in the hearts of its citizens. The Gatherin' O' The Clans was one of the functions which seems to have gone by the board and which was one of the great events in its day. The circus which used to locate on the commons where the Public Library and Salvation Army now stand and the entire block bounded by Bridge, Rear, Market and Ranney streets, now has to pitch the Big Top almost a mile from this spot. The fair has grown from a one horse show located in a couple of vacant lots where the busiest part of the Front street business section is now located, to a large size exhibition where exhibitors find it to their advantage to come for many miles to show their wares. High priced automobiles are now parked in front of the hotels where once ox carts toiled slowly up the muddy street.

But all these events will pass into oblivion when compared with the monster celebration which is planned and arranged for Friday of this week. This event marks the passing forever of the muddy streets in the town of Campbellford. Three miles and a half of pavement have been laid in the town this summer and there is every reason to believe that there will be more put down as each season passes. People who opposed the scheme are now strongly in favour of the plan and have expressed the opinion that is is the best thing that the town ever did.

Friday night beginning at seven o'clock there will be one of the greatest celebrations that this town has ever seen and whatever the experience of the men at the head of affairs can conceive will be the order of the night.

Successor Named To Prince Indivice

ROME, September. 10. Canadian Press. — Prince Indivice Potensinni yesterday resigned as governor of Rome, and Prince Picubino was named as his successor.

Prince Potenzianni was appointed royal governor of Rome in April, 1926.

His resignation was in accord with the recently established Fascist custom of holding the office for short terms. Mussolini, in accepting the resignation, thanked the Prince for the development of the city which he had effected.

The new governor, Don Francesco Buncampagni, prince of Picubini, comes of a stock which has given five cardinals and two Popes to the Roman Catholic Church. The first Pope of the family was Ugo Bencompagni, who as Gregory III. gave the world the Gregorian calendar now in use. The second was Gregory IV—Alexandre Ludovici—a contemporary of James I of England.

Wedding Bells

SMITH—WALKER.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, September 10. — The marriage took place quietly in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, at ten o'clock on Saturday morning, of Miss Mabel Margaret Walker, to Dr. James Cameron Smith, of Lakefield, the bride was attired in a becoming rose beige lace gown over georgette of the same shade, with close fitting hat to match. Her gloves, shoes and hose were of matching shade. Her coat was of sand cloth, with suggestion of brown and with paquette fur collar and cuffs.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. Fraser Smith, father of the groom, assisted by Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Church. The wedding music was played by M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., organist of the church.

Following the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Smith left for Toronto, where they will take the steamer for the Saguenay trip. On their return they will reside on Queen Street, Lakefield.

Pre-nuptial events included the presentation of a handsome table to the bride at a large gathering of neighbors and friends, representative of the village, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garbutt.

BUSINESS POLICY TALK
No. 3—By H. E.M.

FAIR DEALING IN ALL BUSINESS

What the Cost System Means to the Customer.

THE foremost recognized cost system in the printing and publishing business to-day is known as the Standard Cost System, sponsored and supervised by the United Typothetae of America.

This cost system tells the complete story and gives the full history of each job as it traverses through the various departments of the establishment.

It tells the individual unit cost of each operation in each department, and assures the customer that he is only paying for the actual time in minute units spent on his particular piece of work, which carries its individual number from the time it is entered until completed and charged out.

There always remains in our possession a complete record of each individual job, together with a sample copy. This is valuable in repeat orders and protects both customer and ourselves in any emergency.

When the customer receives the invoice and feels that the price is too low or too high there is always the cost sheet to refer to, and enlighten both parties concerned as to the legitimacy of the invoice charge.

The best and most reliable printing and publishing houses in Canada and the United States use this cost system. It was adopted by The Examiner two years ago, and is daily proving itself to be indispensable to all parties concerned.

We will gladly explain this system to our customers at any time and in greater detail.

Always remember, "We give the same treatment to one and all."

MANY ENJOY BAND CONCERT

Cervonne's Musicians Play Pleasing Program in Victoria Park.

VARYING NUMBERS.

Lieut. Cervonne and his Pittsburg band who incidentally are all members of the 176th United States Artillery, captured Peterborough last night when the Pittsburg unit, which is to be a feature at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this week, played a delightful concert in Victoria Park to the enjoyment at the biggest crowd ever assembled there.

The Cervonne organization which won all hearts at last year's Exhibition is a better band than it was twelve months ago. Every member is an artist and Lieut Cervonne gets wonderful results from every number played, whether it be a standard selection, a musical comedy excerpt or one of the popular songs of the moment. The conductor has a keen sense of what his audience wants and gives it to them generously and the result is a performance that is uniformly pleasing and enjoyable.

Their program last night was delightful in its variety. It ranged all the way from an Offenbach overture to that insipid but alas popular number, "Ramona" and each offering was a gem in its own way. The Offenbach selection, the overture "Orpheus" was an ambitious number to be tackled by a small band, but Cervonne and his musicians easily triumphed and the overture was an outstanding feature. Another smash was Lieut. Cervonne's own arrangement at the hits of the musical comedy success "My Maryland" in which the drums, trumpets and trombones were moved up to the front a la Sousa for a dynamic finale in the rendition of "My land and your land," one of the best numbers of the score. Elgar's great march "Pomp and Circumstance," a captivating Oriental number. "A Persian Rug" and a Cervonne arrangement of English Irish and Scottish airs called "Albion" were other ensemble offerings by the band that were enthusiastically applauded.

The solo numbers were equally successful. Lieut. Cervonne's beautifully toned trumpet solos were a feature, while bandsman Frank Dursi scored in his rendition of "Beloved" and "Ramona." Miss Edna Joyce, soprano soloist who was with the band last year won fresh laurels in her two numbers, "Auf Weidersehu" and "Was It a Dream?" and encores were demanded.

Altogether Cervonne and his artists contributed an evening of thorough enjoyment and their programs throughout the week are being eagerly awaited.

THE MARKETS

The exceptionally large turnover of these shares on the Vancouver Exchange yesterday is in itself significant.

Pioneer Gold Mines.

The new mill at Pioneer Gold Mines, which is located in the Bridge River section of British Columbia, is reported to be running at its full capacity of 125 tons a day, and satisfactory results are being obtained. At the adjoining Lorne Mine a crew of 75 men is engaged. A long crosscut tunnel between 3000 and 4000 feet long is being aggressively pushed, and will open the Pioneer Lorne vein system at a depth of some 1000 feet on its dip. This mine appears to have a very bright future and recently a $30,000 gold brick was shipped to Vancouver.

Barry Hollinger.

An unconfirmed report from Boston Creek yesterday stated that this company are now in 72 feet on the 1250 level. The vein is said to practically fill the drift with values averaging around $12 a ton.

Sherritt Gordon.

Commening on an article carried by the Wall Street Journal in their Thursday evening edition, the Mail and Empire has the following to say:

"Probably the best indication of the importance of mining in Canada is increasing amount of space being devoted to the industry by papers in the United States which a year ago consistently refused articles dealing with the subject. Earlier in the week the Wall street Journal carried two stories on Noranda, and yesterday had the first of a series on Sherritt-Gordon. The property is being developed energetically it says. Already about 3,000,000 tons of ore have been blocked out by diamond drilling to a depth of 500 feet in the western ore shoot. This is in addition to 1,250,000 tons of low grade, the centre of which is not considered ore at present. The 3,000,000 tons of ore in the western body average better than 3 per cent. copper, 4½ to 5 per cent. zinc, and $1 gold and silver a ton. It is expected to have sufficient drilling done by the end of December so that between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 tons of this ore will be indicated in the western ore body by January 1, 1929. Although both grade and width vary erratically at the east end of the property, general average of the samples at that end is somewhat higher than those in the west. In the eastern section an estimate of ore reserves must await underground development. However, already there is indicated on that end of the porperty down to 500 feet at least 2,000,000 tons of ore that will average fully as high in grade as that on the west end.

Central Manitoba.

Income from the Central Manitoba mine for the month of July is understood to have been $40,000 with a net operating profit of approximately one half of that amount, which will be used in further opening up the property. Operations in the winze from the 375 foot level more than 600 feet down on the vein, are said to have uncovered a good shoot of ore in the new workings running approximately $20 a ton over a width of 18 feet. Diamond drilling is said to have previously penetrated this ore body and showed a 6-foot width of $20 grade. However side slashing the walls of the drift has now determined a width of 18 feet.

Mine Trading Easier With Trend Downward

TORONTO, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—Trading eased off considerably during the morning at the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange this morning and prices had a downward tendency. Malartic, in active trading, failed to retain its gain of Saturday and slackened two points to 1.78.

Dome Mines was firm during the session but weakened at noon, dropping to 9.50 with a loss of 55. Hollinger Consolidated was weak and lost 20 at 8.55, Amulet five at 3.50, Barry Hollinger three at 55, Bidgood two at 69, Laval Quebec one at 20, Sherritt Gordon seven at 7.00, and Sudbury Basin ten at 6.75. Wright Hargreaves, with a small transaction, was down five at 3.38. Issues registering light gains were Ajax Oil, two at 54, Howey Gold three at 110, McDougall two at 42, Teck Hughes two at 950, and Tough Oakes two at 38½. Noranda was higher, selling at 54.50 for a gain of 1.00, and Pend Oreille at 14.50, advanced 20 points.

Wheat Prices Drop On Favorable Estimates

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.— (Canadian Press.)—Predictions that the United States' government crop report tomorrow will confirm recent unofficial estimates did much to ease down wheat and corn values early to-day. The December delivery of wheat touched the lowest price yet this season. Opening at 5-8c. decline to 7-8c. advance, wheat later showed setbacks all around. Corn started 3-8c. off to 1-8c. up, and subsequently underwent a general drop. Oats held about steady. Provisions tended to sag.

EPIDEMIC OF PARALYSIS

is generally regarded as contagious."

Asked if the disease had ever been traced to the water or milk supply, Dr. Hastings stated that there need be no fear on this score in Toronto, although in some instances in the United States the milk supply was held to be the cause.

"Our milk supply in Toronto is so highly pasteurized as to make it impossible for the milk to be a carrier of the germ," he stated.

Dr. Hastings pointed out that during the current year only three cases of infantile paralysis had occurred in Toronto, one in January, one in March and one in August of this year, as compared to eleven in 1927 and thirty-seven in 1926. The only outbreak of the disease approaching an epidemic occurred in 1926, when twenty-seven cases were reported during the two months of September and October.

Single cases reported are usually recorded within three months of each other, the period being followed by six months often when not a single case is reported.

There is no likelihood of an outbreak of infantile paralysis in Ontario according to present indications, it was stated by an official of the Ontario Department of Health.

No Epidemic Here.

Individual cases from the various points of the province have been reported each month during the year, but the number does not exceed the usual number of cases occurring yearly in the province. In August seven cases were reported, in July only one. Some of the cases reported in August possibly occurred in July.

Treatment for the disease and research is being carried on at the Hospital for Sick Children.

The most effective treatment has been found to be the injection into the spinal cord and also into the blood supply of a convalescent serum which is obtained from former patients six months after complete recovery from the disease.

As far as is known, the disease is communicated through germs lodged in the throat and nose. These germs, it is believed, may be carried by persons who themselves are not affected. To bring about a complete cure, the serum must be injected in the early stages of the disease, it was stated.

DESIRABLE SETTLERS

come to Ontario, the governments paying the balance of their fare. In addition the fare is paid for every child under 16 in the family.

"There is even provision which is often exercised that where the family is a desirable type and is going on the land the government will loan the £7 necessary for the fare of the parents. It is accepted that a man with a large family might very well be unable to save money in England, seven $35 to pay for his wife and himself. At different times immigrants not only had to pay their fare in full themselves but had to have a certain sum of money in their possession when entering Canada. This money qualification varied from $25 to $250 at present however there is no qualification. Any Britisher can come who is of good character and in good health. The Parliamentary committee however endorsed the Minister's stand that the assisted passage scheme should not be overdone. If a man has not gumption enough to save $17.50 for his fare ($22 to Western Canada) he is not likely to make a very good citizen in Canada.

MUSIC AT THE "EX"

For Children's Day, Tuesday, the Salvation Army Juvenile Band will play, commencing at 1.30, on the bandstand at the George street entrance. They will give a varied program of appropriate marches and novelty selections. Bandmaster Robinson will lead.

In the evening, commencing at 7, the Senior band of the Salvation Army, will play at the same place, under direction of Bandmaster Frank W. Robinson. Their program will be as follows:

Concert march: "Glory to the Combat."
Selection: "Warrior's Reward."
Instrumental quartette: "Russian Memories."
Air Varie: "While the Days are Going by."
Selection: "Banner of Liberty."
Cornet solo: "The Song that Reached My Heart."
Selection: "American Melodies No. 2."
Selection: "Angelus."
March: "Carry on."
God Save the King.

Mrs. Martin, Mr. Beamer, vs. Mrs. E. H. Wood, C. Webber.
Mrs. Carmichael, J. W. McDermid, vs. Miss Davidson, B. D. Hall.

This round must be played before September 17. The losers in the preliminary round will then play the losers of the above draw. Stymies must be played. Teams are not eliminated until they have sustained two defeats.

CATTLE ARRIVE FROM TORONTO

Boyd Herefords and Milligan Guernseys Already On Grounds.

RACE HORSES HERE.

Boyd's fine herd of Hereford cattle arrived here on Saturday from the Toronto exhibition and were taken immediately to the cattle barns at Exhibition park. This herd of 17 cattle made a most remarkable showing at the Toronto fair where they won the grand championship for the best male and also for the best female.

J. Milligan and Sons also arrived on Saturday with a fine herd of Guernsey cattle. These cattle were shown at the Toronto Ex., where they won many prizes. The herd numbers 19 and are an addition to the cattle classes shown at the local exhibition.

Six ponies from the Davidson stables in Unionville are occupying stalls in the new horse barn. Already 17 race horses have made their appearance for the various races during the week and from all appearances the races will be the best ever on the fastest clay track in the province.

TOURNEY BEGINS THURSDAY NIGHT

Horseshoe Tossers Will Go Into Action at Exhibtion Grounds.

Entries will be received up to one o'clock Wednesday afternoon for the horse shoe tourney at the Exhibition grounds. Entries are limited to sixty teams, so those who think they can hurl a wicked shoe had better get theirs in early. There will be no singles competition in this tournament, the number of courts available providing room for doubles only. The entry fee for each team of two is $1.00 and entries may be left with Charlie Saunders at the Hall store, with W. H. Kidd of the Gallagher Remedies, Chris. Graham at the Empress and W. S. Merrill.

Play will commence at 6:30 Thursday evening, according to a draw to be announced in Wednesday's Examiner, and the finals will be played on Saturday afternoon. Valuable prizes are offered, with a silver cup emblematic of the championship, to be held by the winning team.

FIRE EQUIPMENT AT FAIR GROUNDS

Pumper and Chemicals Ready For Emergency—Men Always Handy.

Realizing that a fire at the grounds during Exhibition week might prove a serious menace to life as well as property, Fire Chief Gimblett, in cooperating with the Exhibition Board, has arranged many precautionary measures including among which will be the placing of fire fighting equipment on the grounds for the entire week.

A motor combination pumper will be stationed there, and with it, 1,600 feet of 2½ inch water hose and a 35 gallon chemical tank equipped with three hundred feet of hose. In addition, numerous chemical tanks will be placed in strategic positions throughout the buildings.

Two men will be stationed with the main equipment during the day and evening, while at night one man will keep vigil. With whole-hearted cooperation and thoughtfulness on the part of exhibitors and the public in general, the fire menace will be reduced to a minimum.

MAY PARK IN PARK.

Cars May Be Left in King Edward Park By Those Attending Fair.

be parked either in the grounds or in King Edward park, The Examiner was to-day informed by Inspector James F. Reid, who is in charge of the traffic arrangements in connection with the fair.

LAUDER HAS CHILL.

Famous Comedian Forced To Cancel Engagements For For Coming Week.

DUNOON, Scotland, September 10 (Canadian Press). — Sir Harry Lauder, Scottish singer, was confined to his bed at his nome here to-day with a chill. His voice was affected, and he has cancelled his engagements for the coming week.

9th Anniversary Sale

Where Quality and Personal Service are assured

CANADA'S LARGEST DOMINION STORES RETAIL GROCERS

"Where Quality Counts"

AN INVITATION is given this week to the public to share in the 9th Anniversary celebrations of the incorporation of Dominion Stores Limited. In nine short years we have grown to be the largest chain of Canadian Grocers in the Dominion (of Canada), operating 550 stores throughout the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

This enormous growth has been made by the consistent support of hundreds of thousands of housewives who have proved that "Where Quality Counts" and "Personal Service" are the two necessary attributes to "Real Value."

We invite you to share in our Anniversary Sale this week. Here are some SALE figures. Do you know we sell yearly OVER 17,500,000 Loaves of "Tasty" Bread made at our three bakeries. 1,500,000 lbs. of Tea each year.

7,500,000 lbs. of Butter each year. 2,900,000 lbs. Mayfield Bacon and 30,000,000 Eggs.

We employ 550 Managers and 1,400 Clerks to give our customers PERSONAL SERVICE, and their efforts are supervised by Superintendents who are constantly looking after our customers' interests, seeing that goods are turned over rapidly in the stores, ensuring our customers getting goods in perfect condition, imparting the knowledge that they have gained by experience to the managers and clerks, so that they can improve their service to the public.

These Superintendents do not come into direct contact with our customers, but they form a vital part of our organization, and in their honor we will stage a Superintendents' Week of Sales, in conjunction with our 9th Anniversary, the object of which is for each group of Managers to try to put their Superintendent at the top of the list as far as sales are concerned, and to the Superintendents whose managers are successful in putting this sale over for them, we are donating valuable prizes.

The success of our managers depends on the response obtained from our customers. We are therefore offering SPECIAL PRICES FOR THIS SALE, so participate in the savings by placing your grocery order at the nearest Dominion Store; your regular patronage, if we do not already enjoy it, will surely follow.

RUSHING OUR VISITORS.

The value, from a viewpoint of bringing about a closer understanding between the people of the Old Country and Canadians of the visit to Canada of fifty English boys and girls, has been stressed in these columns.

Unfortunately, these young ambassadors of Empire may not be able to stand up under the strenuous program it has been considered necessary to arrange for them.

It is announced that in four weeks they have fulfilled 72 public engagements, been present at 26 official luncheons, visited 25 cities in nine Provinces, and been received by the Governor-General and six Lieutenant-Governors.

The speeches they have had to listen to, the roast chicken they have had to eat, the round of sight-seeing that has been thrust upon them would have sent the average adult to the hospital, but youth saved the British party.

Their experience, however, brings this whole question of the treatment of distinguished visitors to the fore.

Would it not be possible when eminent personages desire to see something of this country to give them an opportunity of doing so without making them centre figures in a never-ending program of receptions and formal dinners?

It would be worth while trying the experiment some time.

THE EXHIBITION GETS UNDER WAY.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition opens what is confidently expected to be the banner week in its history to-night when the public is invited to visit Exhibition Park and enjoy the fun of the midway and the excellence of the program in front of the grandstand.

On this one occasion during the week there will be no admission charge to the grounds, although there will be to the grandstand.

To-morrow is Children's Day when a small army of youngsters is expected to swarm over the grounds; Wednesday is especially dedicated to the farmers; Thursday when Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, will be here, is Manufacturers' Day; Friday is called Community Day, and Saturday, the final day of the Exhibition, is Citizens' Day.

The program will, of course, vary from day to day, and each day will have its special features, but there will be plenty to see and hear on any occasion you visit Exhibition Park, and in every respect Peterborough's 1928 Exhibition sets a new standard.

Everything is ready; the directors have done their part, the culmination of months of planning and work is at hand, and for the rest of the week the final success is in the hands of the people of Peterborough City and district.

Give the best fair in local history a flying start by a real attendance to-night.

A SPLENDID SHOWING.

The success of Peterborough artists in the musical competitions at the Canadian National Exhibition should be a matter of gratification to the community generally as a proof that local facilities for musical education compare favorably with those offered anywhere.

Altogether pupils of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music captured in competition against entries from many centres a scholarship, three gold medals and a silver medal.

Miss Geraldine Collins was a double winner, being awarded the gold medal in the mezzo section, and also the Canadian National Exhibition scholarship of $75 for the best among women voices.

Mrs. Fred. Free, contralto, was a gold medal winner, as was Stanley Northrop in the violin competition, while Miss Margaret Dickson received the silver medal in the lyric soprano contest.

Had these artists succeeded in swimming a few hours in the marathon race they would have been welcomed home with band and fireworks.

Their victories, coming along other lines, unfortunately miss the popular acclaim, but The Examiner in congratulating them warmly upon their splendid showing against keen competition assures them that they have not only won honors for themselves and the institution where they received their training, but have done something to reveal Peterborough to the outside world as a city of opportunities, musical as well as otherwise.

KEEP IT A DIVERSION.

One of the many activities carried on by the Kiwanis Club in promoting the welfare and happiness of the community has been to encourage and interest in the ancient and honorable game of pitching horseshoes, or "barnyard golf," if you prefer the modern name.

Tossing horseshoes is a pastime that has much to commend it, so long as it is kept as a sociable recreation without too much red tape about it.

And in this connection a note of warning sounded by the Ottawa Journal in protesting against the formation of a regular league among the barnyard golfers may not be without its significance for local enthusiasts.

"We are not convinced this is the best course, or that the game—'barnyard golf'—should be put on a basis of organized efficiency," says the Journal. "Observation seems to show that horseshoe throwing thrives best in a vacant lot on the sunny side of the fire hall, players and spectators standing about in shirt sleeves. 'Tis a fine, leisurely game with not too much demand on mental or physical energy, and a relief from the strenuous sports which involve a six-mile walk before dinner or prodigious marine enterprises for cash and glory, but we fear for the future if it becomes popular and be-leagued. Somebody would write a book of rules about it, somebody else would want to give radio talks or write a column for the newspapers with complete scores, and we should have just another game in the place of a neighborhood diversion."

The Journal's point seems to be well taken, and we reprint the warning in the hope that it may serve to keep the Peterborough promoters of pitching horseshoes from a similar pitfall.

A RULER OF THE WEST.

It is well that, from time to time, attention should be called to the fact that the history of Canada is being written in a form perhaps even more impressive than the printed page. From one end of the Dominion to the other, memorials of the past, varying in design, yet uniformly striking, are being erected to mark scenes and events of historic interest and importance, to restore and preserve the significance of places prominently identified with the earlier development of our national life, and to perpetuate the names of men whose achievements are worthy of remembrance.

Every year adds a new chapter to the historical record that is being spread across Canada under the direction of the Department of the Interior, working through the National Parks branch, and in co-operation with the Historic Sites and Monuments Board. Here a tablet reminds us of a battle fought ages ago, and now almost forgotten. There a cairn marks the site of an old fort important in its day, but long since obliterated. Somewhere else, attention is directed, by some other form of memorial, to an exploit notable in Canadian history. And so, throughout the country, is being forged and linked up a chain of visible token of a picturesque and romantic past, of interest to tourists, and a source of inspiration to ourselves.

Of special interest among the sites selected this year for commemoration is one which marks a spot associated with the memorable journey of a great traveller, and recalls the services of an able administrator in the days when the territory west of the Great Lakes had scarcely emerged from the primitive conditions of wilderness life. A great deal has been written about the early explorers and fur traders who, with infinite courage and determination, penetrated into the unknown lands that stretched from the Arctic to the western ocean. But not so much is known of the men who, in a very real sense, were the rulers of western Canada during what might be termed the transition period, between the close of the fur trade wars and the opening up of the prairies for settlement.

During that period, none played a more prominent part in the administration of the vast territory that is now divided into four rich and prosperous self-governing Provinces than Sir James Simpson. The union, in 1821, of the great fur companies which, operating from their respective headquarters at York Factory and Fort William, had for many years made of the northwest country a battleground of rival interests, had ushered in a new order of things. Commercial peace had solved many of the old problems, only to introduce others no less important.

Consolidation of the fur interests meant much more than a monopoly of trade. It involved the control of a territory extending over half a continent, with all the responsibilities attending commercial development, the maintenance of law and order, and the establishment of a form of government suited to conditions that were, to say the least, unusual. The old trade rivalries had left a feeling of bitterness difficult to eradicate. The Indian problem had assumed new phases. There was need for organization and direction along lines hitherto unattempted. And the exercise of an authority essentially arbitrary, if not autocratic, had to be tempered to tendencies foreshadowing the approach of colonization and democratic government.

It was at this critical juncture in the history of western Canada that Sir James Simpson, then a young officer of the Hudson's Bay Company, entered upon the duties of Governor of the vast territory embraced in the revised charter of that great corporation. For 40 years he was the dominant figure in the West, ruling the country with all the pomp of a potentate who loved display, and yet with a tact and efficiency that certainly commended themselves to those whose interests he served.

The biographer of the "Emperor of the Plains," as Simpson was sometimes styled, might find it difficult to make of him an heroic figure. He lacked the vision of a Mackenzie or a Selkirk, who clearly foresaw the destiny of the West, and his conception of Canada as a field for colonization was curiously limited. But his services assuredly entitle him to the memorial set up in the Kootenay National Park to remind those who pass that way that under his guidance, "the Arctic coast of Canada was explored; peace with the natives maintained, trade developed and British rule strengthened."—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

In Chicago a murder a day seems to keep the hangman away.

Up to the time of going to press there has been no protest from Peterborough's school children in regard to having to take a holiday to-morrow afternoon.

Peterborough's bantam ball club seems to have got mixed up with a cricket game in Toronto on Saturday.

Get the Exhibition away at top speed. The Examiner hopes to be able to report by the end of the week a new attendance record.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir—In 1923 the Gardner Seed Company, Rochester, donated to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition for competition a shield valued at twenty five dollars to be won three times before it became the property of the winner, also cash prizes for the best stook of 48 stalks of corn and 4 sheaves of oats, the corn to be grown from their seed. This competition has been carried on for five years and has been discontinued without first consulting the donator's representative and no knowledge of its discontinuance was given to W. H. Merrill till the prospective competitors began to make enquiries about it. I wish to make known to the public through your columns that the donators of this shield are only too pleased to continue this competition. This competition promised this year to be outstanding, here were possibly 25 exhibitors preparing for the competition reaching many miles west as well as east.

The decorated sheaf was also discontinued without consulting or advisiting the donator. Upon the advise of the Rev. Dugeon I am making this statement so that the people will know that the donators were not the ones that discontinued these prizes. In the meantime the Gardner Trophy will become the property of Gordon Mann, Smith township, who won it twice. Hoping that you allow space in your valuable paper for this communication that thanking you, I remain yours,

W. H. MERRILL,
Representing Gardner Seed Co., and also donater of the decorated prizes.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN BRITAIN

Editor of The Examiner:

The accurate comment which Mr. McMahon says is called for by David Kirkwood's diagnosis of the unemployment situation in Britain is not forthcoming in his letter, for he falls into the error of exaggeration in his statement that there are many young men in British cities who have never worked and never will work while they get the unemployment insurance. It is quite true that there are young men who have grown up into manhood without opportunity of employment, but the insurance is not for these. A man, to qualify for the benefit of the act must not only have been gainfully employed, but he must have been in what is called an "insured trade." That is to say there are still some occupations, the workers in which get no allowance from the unemployment fund on losing their jobs.

While Mr. Kirkwood is somewhat extreme in some of his statements, it is a misnomer to call him either communist or anarchist. The Labor party in the Old Land has its adventurers and its men on the make just like every other party (Canadian Liberal and Conservative for example) but in the main it is composed of men who are earnestly seeking a way out of the difficulties besetting British industry. The Mond and trade union conferences are sufficient proof of that. The depression on Clydeside may be attributed not to Socialist propaganda but to the clauses in the reparation agreement which took over German ships replacing British vessels sunk by the enemy during the war. The result was that the German worker was kept busy in the making of a new German mercantile fleet, while the British worker was discharged. This gave German shipbuilding a much needed filip and British industry has not yet recovered from the set-back. There is enough misrepresentation of old country workers here without misleading comments from themselves. Witness the publicity given to the incredibly few failures among the ten thousand successes in the western grainfields.

PROGRESSIVE.

A Thought

A SUMMONS

So live that, when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan that moves
To that mysterious realm where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not like the quarry-slave at night.
Scourged to his dungeon; but, sustain'd and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave.
Like one that wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 10 (Canadian Press). — There was no improvement in the foreign demand for grain the Montreal market yesterday and exporters generally reported business slow. In sympathy with the weakness in grain in other centres spot cash prices for car lots were generally reduced 1 cent per bushel.

The export trade in spring wheat flour with the United Kingdom showed no improvement during the past week. There was a moderate demand for supplies from local dealers.

The millfeed trade experienced a steadily increasing demand for supplies.

There was no further change in jobbing prices for eggs during the past week. Supplies showed an increase due to the usual increase in the fall production throughout Ontario and further importations from the United States. Receipts were 4,741 cases.

The demand for butter continued good, and considerable business was done. Stocks were reported as much smaller than a year ago. According to dealers, indications were that the prices would reach a higher level in the future. Saturday's receipts were 4,846 packages.

The cheese market during the week was more active. A marked improvement in the demand from English importers tended to create a stronger feeling in the market. Saturday's receipts were 10,464 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 10 (Canadian Press). — All grains slid downhill in a general selling movement on the Chicago Board of Trade on Saturday. A break in cotton on a bearish Government forecast, increasing Canadian wheat receipts and anticipation of a bearish grain crop report from Washington to-day were contributing elements in the uneasy situation.

Liquidation set in the outset at the wheat pit, some of it credited to bidding for north-western houses. There was some doubt in the minds of the traders that unsettled weather in Canada and local frosts would seriously affect the wheat harvest, now nearly completed and the movement to market continued to pile up grain in Winnipeg. Arrivals there were 654 cars, nearly five times the receipts a week ago, and Minneapolis and Duluth arrivals were also larger.

Deliveries of Canadian interior points next week are expected to run over 5,000,000 bushels a day. Pressure from Argentine wheat sellers weakened prices at Liverpool, and this, too, was a disturbing factor here. The light export demand was confined to Manitobas, and India was reported a buyer of six cargoes of new Australian wheat. Only 8,000 bushels of wheat were sold here for shipment.

In connection with the generally good European crop outlook some attention was turned on Saturday to advices that small countries who have been customers of Russia will have to look elsewhere for their wheat this year. Mediterranean and Oriental purchasers were said to be inquiring outside of Russia since collections in that country are reported slow.

Wheat closed weak to 2⅞c lower, September 1.08¼, December 1.12¾ to ⅞, March 1.17⅛ to ½, and May 1.20¼ to ¾.

Buying of September corn by eastern interests and local purchases of December started the corn market upstream, but the current drifted rapidly down again when the trading slackened.

Pressure was applied at the last, some of it probably influenced by expectation of bearish crop figures in Monday's Government survey. Cash demand remained good. Corn closed 1 to 1⅜c to 1¼c down, September 94⅛, December 74¼ to ¼, March 76¼ to ¼, and May 78⅝.

Oats were steady at the start, but eased with other grains and closed ⅛c to ⅜c lower, September 39¾ to ½, and December 40¾.

Provisions were fairly steady, with commission house buying of lard which closed unchanged for September and 7c down for December. Ribs ruled unchanged and bellies 5 cents unchanged.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Pray, lest ye enter into temptation.—Mark 14:38.

O God, our Father and our Mother! We thank Thee that like as a father pitieth his children, so dost Thou pity us, and like as a mother comforteth her children, so Thou wilt comfort us.

We thank Thee for our home, and for the home that it suggests to us, where we hope to be forever with Thee, and with each other. For all the good things that come to us, we praise Thee, and we beseech Thee that we may never forget to be grateful to Thee.

Our eyes are closed, for we would shut everything out, we bow before Thee, for we are dependent upon Thee, we have nothing in our clasped hands, nothing with which to buy blessings, and no weapon. O God, wilt Thou keep us from doing anything to grieve Thee, and make us all the day eager to serve Thee in serving others. Help us, that we shall bring gladness into human lives, and never sorrow or pain. We pray for the whole world in its great need of Thee. God keep us, and all whom we love.

Hear us, in Jesus' name. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

MANY CAUSES OF CONSTIPATION

Constipation, perhaps the most usual ailment of the human family, undoubtedly leads to a serious self-poisoning from the toxins of putrefying, uneliminated waste products. The toxins of this disorder have been blamed by physicians for starting a large variety of disorders, from alopecia (loss of hair), to tarsalgia (neuralgia of the foot).

People having one movement per day do not usually consider themselves constipated, and yet they may be seriously affected by intestinal poisoning because this movement may be one, two or more days late, or it may be only partially complete. It is possible for a portion of the bowel contents to be retained in a pouch-like spot, and allow the newer material to pass by, leaving the older material to putrefy and poison the body.

Constipation is usually a very chronic disorder of years' standing, sometimes present in some degree from birth to death. The causes of constipation are numerous. The diet of our modern civilization is most at fault, since we use too many of the soft, mushy foods that do not provide enough bulky material for the bowels to act upon, and we also use these sloppy foods in such bad combinations and quantities that they readily ferment, producing a gas that balloons the bowels.

These fermenting and decaying foods produce an inflammation of the intestinal lining that seriously interferes with the passage of the food material. The gas pressure and inflammation often lead to some abnormality of the shape or position of the bowel, and weaken the constricture muscles of the intestines so that they have not strength enough to propel the feces forward.

Inflammation of long standing sometimes reduces the lubricating material of the bowels and interferes with the internal sliding process or propulsion. Many people use a diet that is far too dry, and others have a peculiarly thirsty intestine that absorbs too much moisture. In either case, the intestine finds difficulty in pushing forward the waste to be expelled.

Where the small intestine joins onto the large one, there is a valve that is supposed to prevent the backing up of waste matter so that it can only flow forward. This valve sometimes becomes weakened and allows the putrefying contents of the large intestine to back up and return into the small intestine, where the liquid parts are absorbed and lead to a very serious type of auto-intoxication or self-poisoning. Where these conditions exist, health is impossible. Headaches, sleeplessness, inability to concentrate, melancholia, biliousness, and gas are frequent symptoms.

A weakness of the abdominal muscles encourages a sagging of the intestines which frequently causes kinks and adhesions. These may seriously interfere with the passages. A badly prolapsed condition leads to a protruding lower abdomen and possibly rupture.

It is now recognized by all authorities on the subject that laxatives actually weaken the intestines and make constipation worse. They may be permitted occasionally as an emergency expedient, but must not be depended upon for a permanent cure. When a temporary aid is needed to cleanse out the bowels, enemas are the most valuable method at the service of the physician.

Questions and Answers.

Question—R. H. writes: "I have been smoking cigarettes for thirty years. Have tried to stop them but cannot, as I get that feeling in the throat and cannot stop. If there is anything to take, please let me know, as I cannot sleep at night."

Answer: Start in to-day eating only apples whenever you are hungry. Do not take any other food—no soup, milk, crackers, or anything at all except an occasional apple. Keep this up until you have lost all desire for cigarettes. This apple cure usually takes only three or four days. If you attempt to smoke during that time you will find the tobacco will have a disagreeable flavor. You will soon find yourself cured of the craving for tobacco.

Question: Alice V. asks: "Will you please tell me what benefit I will receive from eating a dishful of raw carrots every day?"

Answer: The raw carrot is an excellent salad vegetable containing several of the most important organic salts and vitamins. Due to the organic arsenic, raw carrots make an excellent remedy for improving bad, pimply complexions.

Question: Mrs. A. B. asks: "Will you please state what are the hepatic disorders?"

Answer: Such disorders are derangements of the functions of the gall-bladder or liver, such as gall-stones, gall-bladder inflammation, enlarged liver, cirrhosis, cancer of the liver, etc.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

A GREAT many women in Peterborough take pride in their large well-built and well-kept homes. Although many of these homes look well on the outside, the interior rooms have been more or less spoiled because of the presence of so much furniture in one room.

• • • • • •

To make a room look its best, there are many things which have to be considered. The furniture does not count so much as one might think, but the arrangement of the furniture counts for a great deal.

• • • • • •

Look over your rooms now, and see if you have placed your furniture to show it to the best advantage. A room with the most expensive furniture might look common if it is not well placed, while a room which is modestly furnished may be beautiful if the furnishings are grouped together in the right way and coziness and taste are to be found.

• • • • • •

If at all possible, the furniture should be placed parallel with the walls, not at an angle. Too many pieces of furniture detract from instead of enhancing the beauty of a room. Often in conversations you will hear of some housewife who has so much furniture in one room that when you get in, you have to literally back out.

• • • • • •

The furniture must not be too heavy for the room. There should be variety in size and general make up of the different pieces. They should not be all the same size or the same design.

• • • • • •

Furniture must be placed in a group—one piece in relation to another, and not in a hit and miss sort of fashion. For instance, the reading lamp, the bookcase, and a large comfortable chair might be put in one corner, and the piano and piano lamp in another.

• • • • • •

Balance is a strong point to remember in arranging a room. If a large piece of furniture is on one side, another large piece to correspond should be placed on the other side, in order to balance.

• • • • • •

One color should dominate, and not several colors with no prevalent color to give a harmonious color tone. It is well to have the larger pieces of furniture neutral, with the colors shown in accessories, such as window hangings, lamp shades, vases, etc.

• • • • • •

This season is known as the canning season to many housewive in Peterborough. Many are doing up jelly, but there are always a certain number of failures in this art because they do not know just when the jellying point has been reached, and the jelly is over-cooked or perhaps not cooked enough.

• • • • • •

To determine just when the jellying point has been reached, put a little on a cold saucer and draw a path through it with the point of a spoon; if the path remains and the jelly does not run together, the jellying point has been reached.

• • • • • •

The essential characteristics of the season's millinery styles, now showing in Peterborough's many hat shops, are the high-class fabrics used, and the flattering facial contour in which are seen many new shapes, most of them showing the hair in front and being cut longer at either sides or back.

• • • • • •

As you walk along the street and window shop, you will notice that in many cases, the decoration on fall dresses, both evening and daytime frocks, is applied to the back rather than to the front.

• • • • • •

Before you hold your next card party, look over your card tables and chairs to see that there are no rought places on the legs or a projecting upholstery tack on one of the chairs.

• • • • • •

A very charming hostess of this city failed to notice a rough place on one of her card tables, with the result that one of her guests went home in not too good humor after having spoiled a pair of stockings she had paid three dollars for.

• • • • • •

Of course when women go to these parties, they wear among other things, their best pair of stockings—maybe they have never been worn before—only to have them caught on some unnoticed snag.

• • • • • •

After you have been in such a predicament you will, the very next day, go the rounds of all the chairs and tables to make sure that they have no rough places. Wicker furniture seems to be worse than any other furniture for having snags. These snags may be easily done away with by sand papering them or using a sharp knife.

• • • • • •

If the legs of the tables or chairs are splintered, and cannot be smoothed down, it is much better to wind adhesive tape around them, rather than have them catch your guests' stockings.

This week's help is for making little ribbon flowers for trimming lingerie, etc. You may obtain a copy of this pattern diagram by filling in the coupon found on another page, and enclosing a two-cent stamp. Address it to "Marion," in care of this paper.

MARION'S MAIL.

Dear Marion:

No doubt you will be surprised to hear from one so far away, and again how I come to find out about your column in The Evening Examiner. Well all of my relatives live in Peterborough and my parents use to live there. After the first reading of your column I have wished we had something like it in our Asheville papers, but no, everything is so different here. I have often wished I lived there but it won't be long now before I do for I am coming up for the winter and every one tells me I will be disappointed but I do not think so.

would like very much if I could get the two Household Helps I am sending for and if it is any more than the 8 cents. If you will let me know I will send it at once. There is no use to send any stamps for they would be of no use. I am hoping to receive them soon, that is if you can send them this far.

Yours truly,
L. M. M."
Asheville, N.C., U.S.A.

Indeed no, L.M.M., it is not so great a surprise as you would think to hear from long distances away. The Examiner has many subscribers in districts remote from Peterborough—but it does give one a thrill to learn that the Women's Page is appreciated so far from home. I have sent the helps you requested.

"Dear Marion:

I am a High School girl and I am very proficient in composition. I have a few short stories I have written, and I wonder if you could use them in your column. I have always liked reading, and my teachers tell me that was what aided me in my essays. If you could use these stories please answer me through this column.

I think your column is wonderful. We all run for that page of the paper every night. May I come again?

Yours sincerely,
BROWN EYES."

I shall be very glad to look over your stories, Brown Eyes, and if they are suitable for this page I am sure I can use them on Saturday. The page is pretty crowded during the week, you know. On the other hand, if they do not suit this page, I will ask the editor to consider them for the feature page.

Many thanks for the kind things you say about the column. I shall be delighted to hear from you again.

"Dear Marion:

I think your page is wonderful, and certainly enjoy reading it.

I am fifteen, and I would like to know if you think it proper for a girl of that age to go out with boys.

Sincerely yours,
UNCERTAIN."

What's all the rush about wishing to "go out" with boys? This must make half-a-dozen letters of this kind in a week.

I can only repeat what I have told others in this regard, "Uncertain." It is quite all right for you to have friends among boys, but you re much too young to start "keeping company". You should be doing your homework. Consult your mother on the problem.

Mrs. L. H. asks assistance in freshening up a blue ribbon hat. She says: "Could you kindly tell me what would bring out the color on a good blue ribbon hat? It is not really faded, but just somewhat need freshening up again. It is navy blue."

Will the neighbors rally around and answer these SOS calls, please?

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

This tie scarf used for a head band is fastened at the back with snaps and without a bow.

Apparently the fad for going bare-headed that was so noticeable among school and college girls was in fact a fad, nothing more. And those who predicted that this indeed was the dawning of a new era when hats would no longer be an essential of women's dress have already begun to use their prophetic talents in another direction. Seeing a few girls go bare-legged, I suppose they are prophesying the passing of stockings.

But hats are too attractive, too wearable and this season too comfortable for anyone to wish to wear them only occasionally. And there are all sorts of other headgear to be worn when a real hat seems burdensome. All summer long women have been wearing various sorts of bandeaus and head scarfs for sports and informal resort wear, and there is pretty good reason to feel that some such protection will be generally worn this autumn and winter where a year ago girls went bareheaded.

For country motor wear, too, these bandeaus are extremely comfortable. You may quite easily carry a hat on your longer tours to don for wear when you stop for luncheon or make a stop for the night, with some sort of tie scarf to be worn during long hours between.

I think the most convenient and becoming of all these scarf arrangements are the windsor tie sort—measuring two yards in length and about seven inches across. They are made of rather heavy crepe silk cut on the bias so that they hold closely to the head when tied. They are passed twice around the head and knotted just behind the ear at one side.

These longer, wider ties are, I think, easier to manage than the smaller sort. And if perchance you have blue eyes get one of these scarfs in plain bright, deep blue. Take my word for it that when carefully adjusted round your head it will be marvellously becoming.

Then there are all sorts of little bandeaus that fasten at the back of the head with snappers. These can be more quickly adjusted, but they lack the becoming gypsy aspect produced by that knot behind the ear.

V.—PROTEIN.

Chemically, protein is composed of carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen, and oxygen. Sulphur and phosphorus, also, may be present and some of the metallic elements—iron, copper, etc. Nitrogen, however, is its distinctive element. It is because of the presence of this, that its function in the body and the problem of its digestion are so different from those of fat or carbohydrate.

The chief function of protein is building. Energy may be derived from protein, fat, or carbohydrate, but only protein can replenish the nitrogenous material used up by the general work of the body or supply that needed for the building processes of growth.

The foods which supply our best (Grade A) protein are: milk, eggs, meat, fish, milk products, nuts.

Less complete ones are the proteins of wheat and corn. Incomplete proteins are found in other cereals and legumes; while gelatine is an even more incomplete one—sometimes called merely a "protein-sparer." To be depended on for body building the incomplete proteins should be supplemented with some from the Grade A list.

Protein supplies about the same amount of energy per gram as carbohydrate. In correctly balanced diets from ten to fifteen per cent of our energy is derived from protein, this usually amounts to from sixty to one hundred and twenty grams daily.

In nitrogenous foods the end products of metabolism are acid and the matter of their elimination is more difficult than in other foods. If they are not satisfactorily eliminated, the result may be enlarged joints, rheumatism, and gout. Sedentary workers are more likely to have trouble of this kind than others. To stimulate the kidneys, exercise, plenty of water, and acid fruits are good. It is claimed that rheumatism has been cured by a liberal use of oranges and lemons in the diet; but I'm afraid that could not have been the persevering, hardy perennial type of rheumatism.

Hollandaise Sauce.

3 lbs. butter ¼ t. salt
2 yolks of eggs few grains pepper
1-3 c. boiling water.

1. Cream butter; add beaten egg yolks.
2. Add seasonings and water.
3. Cook over water boiling very gently until thick. Stir constantly.
4. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice.
5. Serve at once with fish steaks, baked fish or cutlets.

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

A Series Giving Hints on Arranging Parties.
By LAURA.

A SEASHORE PARTY.

Any child who is fortunate enough to own a sand pile or whose parents have a summer cottage near the seashore can give an afternoon of fun to his or her little playmates by inviting them to a "seashore party."

Each child upon arriving is given a wee pocketbook containing five flittering five-cent pieces (cardboard disks, the size of a real nickel and covered with silver-foil). They are then told to go to the five-cent store and buy whatever they will need for an afternoon at the seashore, and naturally, being children, they will obey with round eyes of excitement.

The store is the dining-room table, set out enticingly with all sorts of wares, each with a big tag on it reading "5 cents."

There are pails and shovels, colored shells of various kinds, gay balloons, and a bright turkey-red bathing suit for each child. These bathing suits, of course, are merely a sort of overalls to protect their own clothes, and can be run up easily on the sewing-machine.

When the children have spent all their money they put on their bathing suits and are led out to the sand pile. Here they are allowed to remove their shoes and stockings and paddle joyously about in the smooth, warm sand, as if they were actually on the beach. This in itself will create a delightful illusion and assure the party's success.

Once at play in the sand they will amuse themselves without help, but it is always a good plan for the hostess to sit near at hand with a book or some sewing, ready to sooth injured feelings, or settle any small dispute which may arise during the afternoon.

Some may, of course, get tired and a number of interesting games may be started for them to continue. There is always some person who will not agree to share all the toys, but such have to be taught the better way of co-operation during such games.

Instead of going back to the house for refreshments, the latter are brought to the sand pile in real picnic baskets, and are eaten out-of-doors.

If it is only to be a very simple lunch, vanilla ice cream cut in animal shape served with cookies in shell shapes would please the children immensely. The children, of course, take home their purchases when the party is over as souvenirs of a jolly occasion.

THE SWORD OF SALADIN

By H. Irving King.

The great banquet hall of the Baron von Bachterstein was aglow with lights. High on a dais sat the moody baron. He was in rather bad humor this night for he had a part to play which he only undertook at the command of his lady. He had to receive the young knight, Waldemar Fitz Urse, and there had been differences between that young man and the baron. Still the baroness had commanded and the baron had obeyed. Even robber barons of the Rhine, they say, used sometimes to be henpecked.

On the baron's right sat the baroness, a portly dame, clad in cloth of gold and sparkling with jewels. On his left sat his fair daughter, Lucille; and surely a "fairer flower never grew upon ancestral timber." She was dressed in a robe of clinging white stuff with pearls around her neck and woven into the braids of her hair. The baroness beamed with satisfaction, the baron scowled with annoyance and the fair Lucille seemed pensive and thoughtful.

At two lower tables sat knights in armor and out of armor, esquires and retainers of lesser rank, while pretty boy pages stood about or sat on fadstools. In short there was all the gleam and glamor and picturesqueness which pertained of right to the banquet hall of a great baron in the days of the third crusade. Every now and then there came the sound of music from unseen minstrels and two trumpeters stood ready to sound a fanfare when their lord should give the signal.

The young knight, Waldermar Fitz Urse, had gone to the Holy Land upon a quest which had been set him by the baron, which was nothing more nor less than to bring back the sword of Saladin, that great sultan. And now, the period set for the conclusion of the quest being up, the baron held court upon the night appointed when Waldemar was to report, successful or unsuccessful.

"He's a precious long time in making his appearance," said the baron aside to his lady. "I wish he would show up and get this thing over with."

Prompted by the baroness the baron made a little speech welcoming his guests to the castle, and stating the reason why he had ordered the feast.

Scarcely had the baron concluded his little speech of welcome when there came the sound of a trumpet shrilly blown outside, before the castle gates apparently. All recognized it as the bugle call of Waldemar Fitz Urse. Then into the hall strode the young knight. The baron waved his hand and his trumpeters welcomed the arrival of the hero with a tremendous and joyful blast. Up the great hall to the table of the baron strode the knight and, in sooth, he was a goodly youth to look upon, his face lit up with an expression of triumph. In one hand the knight carried a sword of curious Eastern shape and in the other he held a scroll.

As he came up the hall he cast one look upon the baron's daughter—and that look told the story. This landless knight was in love with the daughter of the proud baron! The baron saw the look and his frown grew deeper.

Sir Waldemar strode up to where the baron sat and, pausing before him, bent the knee in salutation.

"Baron of Bacherstein, Swartkeller and Karteuffleberg," said he in a clear and ringing voice as he drew himself erect and stood proudly before the great man, "I have fulfilled the quest upon which you dispatched me. Behold the sword of Saladin." And he threw upon the table before the baron the Oriental sword which he carried. But he threw something more before the baron—he threw the scroll which he had carried in his other hand and the presence of which had excited some curiosity. Sir Waldemar had not been expected to bring back a scroll, only a sword.

The baron looked at the scroll, picked it up and examined it with surprise, hardly glancing at the sword. Then raising his voice he cried out: "Let the minstrels strike up! Let the trumpets sound! The good knight, Waldemar Fitz Urse, has brought home the bacon."

Then came a shout of laughter as from many voices, the lights of the banquet hall faded. There was a sound of music and dancing feet. The tableau vivant, given for the Ladies' Aid Society, was over and the dancing had begun.

"Philetus Capron," cried the baroness as she and her spouse were divesting themselves of their stage costumes, "what do you mean by spoiling the whole thing by your absurd remark about bringing home the bacon? Couldn't you remember your lines?"

"I mean what I said," replied the ex-baron. "Hang the lines. That young fellow, Henry Chapin, has been philandering around after Helen for the past year, as you know. The other day I told him that if he wanted to marry my daughter he must do something to prove that he had some business in him—he never had shown it yet. And what do you think it was that he threw across the table to me along with that bally old sword?"

"I don't know and I don't care," said the ex-baroness sulkily.

"Well, I do," said the ex-baron; "it was a contract for the new bridge in Connecticut—a half million dollar job—which I have been trying to land for six months. And by jingo, Henry landed it for me. Tell him he can marry Helen any time he wants to."

Just a Joke

HIS PLEASURE.

The meek scholarly old gentleman had wandered into a celebrated Regent Street store, to find himself surrounded by a bevy of well-dressed shopwalkers.

"What is your pleasure, sir?" they asked in unison, with beatific smiles.

The old gentleman was rather embarrassed.

"Er—er—well, my pleasure is fishing," replied hesitatingly, "but I—er—rather wanted a new hat."

EATING ALL THE TIME

Yet actually undernourished!

THAT is the condition found among children in thousands upon thousands of homes to-day. And the cause? The fact that too many present-day foods are milled and "refined" to the point where a dangerous percentage of any nourishment they may originally have had, is lost.

At breakfast each morning, or when they come in hungry from school or play, serve your children Grape-Nuts with milk or cream. They'll love its delightful nut-like flavor. And Grape-Nuts was deliberately designed to overcome the deficiencies of modern diet.

Made from whole wheat and malted barley by a special process, Grape-Nuts supplies in easily digested form, dextrins, maltose and other carbohydrates for energy; iron for the blood; phosphorus for teeth and bone; protein for muscle and body-building; and the very important vitamin-B.

Start to-morrow. Your grocer sells Grape-Nuts in wax-wrapped packages. It's ready to eat. And so inexpensive. One serving—four teaspoonfuls is enough—costs less than one cent.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Today: Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PICKLES

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

"There!" exclaimed Nurse Jane as she looked at a row of red bottles and jars on the top shelf of the pantry. "That's done!"

"What is?" asked Uncle Wiggily who was just going to hop out and look for a place where he could buy a ten-cent plate of ice-cream for a nickle.

"The ketchup is done," answered the muskrat lady. "Since you brought me some good tomatoes, after throwing the large one, that was too ripe, at the Fox, I have made you a lot of ketchup for winter."

"That's fine," said Uncle Wiggily, "and I thank you. But what about a few pickles?"

"Oh, do you want pickles, too?" asked Nurse Jane.

Uncle Wiggily sat down to rest on a log.

"Two or three, I'm not so fussy," answered the rabbit. "But I really think we should have some pickles as well as some ketchup for winter."

"Yes, surely," squeaked Nurse Jane. "But to make pickles I need sugar and spice and other things nice."

"And I'll hop and get them in less than a trice, which is very fast indeed!" laughed Mr. Longears.

So he started off to buy the pepper, cloves, mustard, cinnamon, mace, nutmeg and other things that must be put into pickles. And just as Uncle Wiggily was at the door, Baby Bunty, who was getting better of a little illness, called:

"Bring me some tanny, will 'oo, Unkie Wig?"

"Of course I will, my dear!" answered Mr. Longears; and he never even told Bunty to stop her "baby talk," as he might have done.

So Uncle Wiggily first hopped to the grocery, where he bought many hot spices such as red pepper and black, together with cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon and mace.

"Hot stuff, Uncle Wiggily! Hot stuff!" mewed the grocery cat.

"Well, give me some sweet stuff for Baby Bunty," said the rabbit.

So the cat made up another package of candy for the little bunny girl and then, with the two bundles Mr. Longears set out to hop back to his bungalow.

But the day was warm and the way was long, so Uncle Wiggily sat down to rest on a log in the shade. And as he slept along came Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boys.

"There's Uncle Wiggily!" whispered Jackie.

There was a step along the road, and men's voices. Sally turned her head, and Sometimes roused his sore body a little and growled faintly.

"I wonder what he has in those packages?" whined Peetie.

It did not take the doggie boys long, with their sharp noses, to smell that in one package was candy and in the other hot spices.

"Let's change them while Uncle Wiggily is asleep!" chuckled Peetie. "And then Uncle Wiggily will give Nurse Jane the candy to put in the pickles and he'll give Baby Bunty the hot spice instead of candy."

"Oh, what a good joke!" laughed Jackie.

So the change was made and on the outside of the spice package the puppies wrote the word CANDY, while on the candy package they wrote the word SPICES.

After a while Uncle Wiggily awakened and, feeling rested, he startled hopping home. Jackie and Peetie had gone bone hunting and Mr. Longears knew nothing of the trick they had played. He was hopping along when, all of a sudden, out from behind a bush popped the Bob Cat.

"What have you there?" snarled the Bad Chap.

"Candy and spice for pickles," answered the rabbit.

"Give me the candy!" snarled the Bob Cat and Uncle Wiggily handed him the package marked CANDY, but which, really, had in it hot spice.

So hungry for candy was the Bob Cat, that he put the whole package into his mouth at once, most impolitely, and began to chew it. But it wasn't long before the pepper, red and black, began to burn his tongue. So did the mustard, the mace, the nutmeg and cinnamon.

"Oh, what did you give me?" howled the Bob Cat.

"I gave you the candy you asked for," said Mr. Longears.

"No! No! You gave me mustard and pepper!" howled the Bob Cat and away he ran to wash his burning tongue in the lake.

"Ha! Ha! Some one played a trick!" chuckled the rabbit. And when he opened the package marked SPICE and found the candy he knew Jackie and Peetie had done it. So the bunny hopped back, bought more pepper, mustard and other things for pickles and then everything was all right. Bunty laughed as she ate her candy.

XXII—WHO BROUGHT THE RAIN?

Sanderson sat up half the night, smoking his "stinker" and straining his ears for Sally's voice, hoping she was asleep, yet hoping that she might want something and call to him, and at last he dozed off sitting by the dead sitting-room fire, with Sometimes snoring uneasily on his cushions beside him.

But in the morning the sun shone again, and the garden was fresh and love'y, and Sally smiled when Sanderson went to say good morning to her.

"I had such a funny dream," she said as he carried her from her bed to the chair in the garden. "I thought it was about you, but it wasn't."

"What do you mean?"

She laughed a little and nestled her head more comfortably into the curve of his strong arm.

"I dreamt that you were carrying me like you are now—at least, I thought it was you, as nobody else ever does carry me—but it wasn't, after all."

"Who was it, then?"

She shook her head.

"I didn't see his face—he kept it turned away—but I saw the back of his head, and he had reddish sort of hair, with a funny crinkle in it." She laughed. "It was such a real dream, Philip! I believe I should know the back of that head if I ever saw it in real life."

"Nonsense!" Philip laughed, but he was conscious of a throb of jealousy. "I'm quite capable of carrying you myself," he said gruffly. "We don't want any strange young men hanging round here with red, crinkly hair."

"No, we don't," Sally agreed. "And I don't like red hair, anyway. I like hair like yours." And she put up her hand and gently stroked the back of his head. Sanderson turned his face sharply away, ashamed for her to see the sudden emotion which her touch brought into his eyes.

"Grey hair! Grey as an old badger, Sally," he said, with forced lightness.

But Sally answered contentedly:

"Never mind; I like it."

"That being so," Sanderson said mildly, "I shall not use the bottle of black dye which I brought down with me yesterday."

"Philip, you didn't! You're pulling my leg!"

They laughed together like children.

"And where do you go to-day?" Philip inquired presently. "And don't you think we might be rash and get Mrs. Kiff to make us up some sandwiches or something, so we can stay out to lunch?"

Sally's eyes glowed.

"Oh, how lovely! Lunch in the woods!"

Sanderson tucked the rugs carefully round her little body.

"I'll go and beard the lioness in her kitchen," he said.

Sally was left alone. There was a blackbird singing in the apple tree, and the sun was warm upon her face.

Incongruously she thought of the Faun Cafe. It seemed now as if it must have been in another world that she had ever danced there. How hot it had been, and how stifling! How had she ever managed to exist there, or—more strangely still—how had she ever believed her happiness had lain there? She thought of the ugly bed-sitting-room which she had shared with Poppy, and it made her shiver. Its window had looked out over a mews, and they had had to stuff its chimney up with newspaper because of the draught.

Poor Poppy! For the first time Sally thought of her friend with pity, instead of with envy. Poor Poppy! How deadful to have to live in a back bed-sitting-room when the sun was shining as it shone now! Poor Poppy! She would get Philip to bring her down to the cottage again, and they would take her out in the woods and show her the primroses at the gnarled roots of the trees, and the spiky bluebells pushing their way into the world.

There was a step along the road, and men's voices. Sally turned her head, and Sometimes roused his sore body a little and growled faintly.

"I hoped we should find you in," said the cheery voice of Sally's vicar. He opened the little garden gate and came in, followed after a moment by a tall, broad-shouldered young man who looked at Sally with a sort of amused resignation in his eyes.

"I've brought my son to see you," Robert Nairn went on proudly. "He turned up unexpectedly the day before yesterday, and as we had to pass your cottage this morning I thought we'd just drop in and see how you are."

"Thank you. I'm very well," Sally said in her most refined voice. She gave her hand to the vicar, and looked shyly at his son.

A tall young man with a sun-burnt face that made his eyes more vividly blue; a tall young man who, as Sally smiled up at him, raised his rather shabby soft slouch hat and revealed a head of closely-cropped, reddish hair with a funny crinkle in it.

Sally caught her breath and almost cried out. She very nearly said: "Why, you're the man who carried me in my dream! Turn round—please turn round and show me the back of your head!" But for some reason or other she was afraid; for some reason or other her pulses were jerking unevenly, as if someone had just booed out at her from behind a door. And then, as she was hesitating, searching for something ordinary and commonplace to say, Philip Sanderson came out from the cottage, and Robert Nairn introduced himself, and then he introduced his son: "My boy Garry."

Sally looked swiftly at Philip. He was scowling a little, and she remembered that he had said he hated parsons, but he was quite affable and friendly, and he did not seem to notice that Garry Nairn's hair was reddish, with a funny crinkle in it.

"Of course he wouldn't," Sally told herself with a vague sense of relief. "Philip never notices anything!"

* * * * * *

Philip Sanderson's "to-morrow" did not come.

While he was trying to be patient and polite to Robert Nairn and his son in the little garden, the sunshine suddenly clouded over, and heavy raindrops began to fall.

There was a hurried scramble indoors with Sally and the cushions and Sometimes, and soon after the Nairns took their departure.

"Why the devil they couldn't have gone half an hour ago beats me," Sanderson grumbled as he stood at the window of the little sitting-room watching the big drops of rain lashing the window-pane.

"Don't you like them?" Sally asked, "I think they are rather nice."

"Oh, they're all right," Philip admitted grudgingly. He was silent for a moment, then went on in the same growling way: "They've got a saying at sea that it's unlucky to sail with a sky pilot on board. It seems to me it's just as unlucky to be with them on land."

"What do you mean?"

"That the old fool brought the rain with him."

Sally laughed.

"It would have rained anyway, and really we're rather lucky he came, or we might have started off and got wet through." She looked a Philip's uncompromising back with amused eyes.

"After all, we've got to-morrow," she added. "Unless you're tired of the country, and want to go back to Town."

"You know I'm not."

"Well, then, we've got to-morrow," Sally said again comfortably. "And it will very likely clear up this afternoon."

But it did not clear up. The blue April sky drew an unbroken canopy of clouds about its face and the rain fell steadily.

Sally dozed by the fire, with Sometimes curled up beside her, Mrs. Kiff sang from the kitchen in her shrillest treble, "I shall love you the sa-ame for ev-er!" and Sanderson wandered restlessly from the sitting-room to the porch and back again, an unlit cigarette between his lips and bitterness in his heart.

BANFF, LAKE LOUISE AND THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

A region which can offer the finest in natural beauty is the one which makes a direct appeal to the vacationist. If that region has good hotel accommodation and every facility for vacation enjoyment, then greater becomes the appeal.

For the person taking a late August or September vacation no better choice could be made than that of Banff and Lake Louise in the heart of the Canadian Rockies. There one can enjoy the finest of golf, tennis, horseback riding, mountain climbing—and how exhilarating, the warm pools afterward.

Your stay at the world renowned Banff Springs Hotel or Chateau Lake Louise will be a delight long remembered.

Low summer tourist fares in effect until September 30. Full information, rates, etc., from nearest Canadian Pacific Agent. 3d, 30 10 18

THE SUN

The latest word in glass is to be used in the new extension to Nicholls Hospital. Glass that will admit the sun and light in its pure form, allowing the health-giving rays to shine through instead of stopping them as ordinary window glass does, is on order. Many years of scientific investigation have been spent in searching for such a window that will admit the invisible rays of Ultra Violet as well as the visible rays which do not possess as great a healing quality as the ultra violet. B. F. Edginton, an authority from Montreal on Violet Rays tells The Examiner in an interview of the history and the value of this glass and of sunlight.

GOOD ADVICE FROM MOTHER OF SEVEN

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ont.—"I began taking Vegetable Compound for nerves and other troubles and I must say I felt different after the first dose. I have been told this last six months that I look twenty-five, although I am now forty-seven and have had seven children. I have taken the Vegetable Compound regularly for some time and sleep well, rise early and feel young."—MRS. MCKEE, 18 Laurier Ave., Toronto, Ontario.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE GET NERVOUS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

We say that a man is nervous when he cannot control his muscles. He twitches, moves about, and performs a great many unnecessary movements.

The causes for this type of nervous activity are several and varied. It may be due to fatigue, overwork, physical and mental strain, fear, anxiety, sense of guilt, and other causes.

The mental state of anxiety and fear are the causes which reveal the nervousness that is characteristic of a person who has committed some crime or is about to commit one. The mind affects not only the body muscles, but also the glands of internal secretion. In every instance of fear, no matter how induced, the glands stimulate activity. But in the absence of opportunity for physical exertion this vitality expresses itself in random movements that we speak of as nervousness.

Nervousness is nature's method of getting the animal on edge, to prepare him for an emergency, to enliven and quicken him. The squirrel is all aquiver with expectation. Hence it is almost impossible to surprise him.

The random activity of the nervous person is not altogether wasted. He is like the batter at the plate who swings his bat seemingly unnecessarily before the ball is pitched. In reality he is getting set. Without this extra alertness on his part he might not hit at all. The golfer also makes such random movements preparatory to actually striking the ball.

We are nervous usually only when there is occasion for being on our toes mentally and physically, to meet some emergency. The extra energy and useless movements are essential to keeping us on edge and are taken to be the sign of a person about to do something.

Why do you do what you do? Write Dr. Thomson, care of this paper, and send stamped envelope for reply.

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE MAILMAN

The mailman stopped to rest his feet,
After the pavements and the heat.
I said, "It's rather heavy labor,
And yet it's really worth it, neighbor."
"And whole lots more," he said. "The pay
Is poor." I said, "Oh, not that way.
I don't suppose a man would do it
If that was all that there was to it.

"I never see you going by
Or stopping at a house," said I,
But that I think how this must cheer you—
To have so many glad to hear you.
Of all the men who seek our door,
You are the one we hunger for."
"I guess there's something in it, brother,"
He said, "and that helps out the other."

"Yes, you're the one who binds us to
The kin we love, the friends we knew.
You bring the whole world to our doorway,
Whether it's India or Norway.
It surely is a splendid task,
As fine as any man could ask."
"Well, come to think, I do not doubt it,"
He said. "I hadn't thought about it."

RAYS WIN FIRST GAME FROM STOUFFVILLE

BRAKELINERS HOLD VISITORS FOR 5-2 WIN

Local Crew Have No Easy Time in Winning Victory.

HURLERS GOOD.

Rays Score Four Runs in the Fifth Inning To Win Game.

Raybestos bested Stouffville by 5 to 2 in the opening clash of the O.B.A.A. third round, at James Stevenson Park, on Saturday afternoon, but the Brakeliners had to bear down all the way. The visitors proved no idle threat, and will be hard to beat on their own playground next Wednesday afternoon.

Sure enough Manager Mather brought plenty of good hurling in E. Cook, a youthful curver with a nice turn of speed. But the supporting cast was wobbly, terribly so, in the fifth, when the Raybestos helped themselves to four runs. Apart from that frame, safe hits were few and far between.

But while Cook was giving the Rays their hardest battle of the Ontario playdowns, Scotty Maudsley was tough opposition for the invaders. Populated runways meant nothing to the local left-flinger, his work being consistently good all through the contest. And for the most part, his support was of the best, the infielders showing the fans a nice assortment of defensive plays.

The Rays got away to a bad start when H. Nicholls threw high on E. Clendenning's grounder. At that, Barry failed to go up after the ball, the runner going to second base. Bottom struck out and Reesor popped to Maudsley. A Cook singled into right, the ball fooling Corrin by a dead stop in the grass. Clendenning scored on the hit. Meredith singled off the pitcher's glove, the ball deflecting, so that nobody could get it. Hillier threw out M. Clendenning, a nice pick-up and a good throw.

Hillier led off for the Rays by looping the ball over short and it fell safe. Rogers grounded to second, forcing Hillier. Maudsley grounded down first, the first baseman throwing to Meredith, covering the bag, but he dropped the ball. With Moore at bat, Maudsley, away from the bag, drew a throw from Reesor. Rogers scooted for third and when, after taking the catcher's throw, the first baseman threw to third to head off Rogers, the ball went wild, and Rogers counted. Maudsley made third on the play. Moore was passed and he stole. The stage was set for one of Scully's long flies but he fouled to the first baseman. The pitcher threw out H. Nicholls.

Pete Clendenning shot a hit through second, going to second on McFadden's grounder to Barry and taking third on a wild pitch. Maudsley held the runner as he fielded E. Cook's grounder and threw him out. Hillier stopped the run with a nice play on E. Clendenning's drive.

Opening up on the Rays in their half of the second, Cook retired the side in order, Corrin and O. Nicholls were fanned and Barry grounded to first.

In the third, Maudsley fanned Bottom, and passed Reesor. The visiting catcher led off the bag and got the surprise of his life when Maudsley caught him cold. H. Nicholls took A. Cook's foul.

The first baseman's error gave Hiller the bag and he stole. Rogers went after the pitcher's big curve for an easy strike-out, and Maudsley grounded out, Hillier going to third. Moore again walked and went down to second. Scully failed to connect. It was a new brand of pitching for the Rays, and Cook was making use of his hooks.

The fourth brought Stouffville a run when Hillier had a bad session. He allowed Meredith's grounder to go through, but took Scully's throw to force the runner, following Clendenning's grounder. Clendenning was in turn forced by Pete Clendenning by the same pair. Scully dropped a peg to get the runner to second. After a neat fielding play on McFadden's drive, Hillier threw wild to Barry, allowing P. Clendenning to score. Maudsley threw out Cook to end it.

The Rays failed to catch up with the visitors. H. Nicholls popped to the catcher. Corrin struck out. O. Nicholls singled through short for the team's second hit in four innings. He stole second. Barry struck out, swinging.

The fifth saw E. Clendenning foul out to Rogers. Scully threw out Bottom and went up to rob Reesor of a hit. It was a fine play by the second baseman.

The visitors lapsed in the Rays fifth. The first baseman failed to hold a throw from the pitcher and Hillier was safe. Rogers, who appeared to be a second ice cream cone for Cook, fooled the pitcher by slapping his last chance into left, sending Hillier to third. Maudsley popped to the shortstop. But on Moore's grounder, the shortstop fumbled the ball, allowing Hillier to score. Scully, up once again with runners on, responded this time with a long sacrifice fly to right, scoring Rogers. Things were beginning to move. H. Nicholls hopped one at the first baseman and made the bag, while Moore went home. The shortstop dropped a peg from the catcher and Nicholls was safe at second. Corrin singled into right, after which the catcher started a series of wild pegs on which Nicholls went home. O. Nicholls fanned. Four runs, giving the Rays a lead of three.

In the sixth, the visitors went out in order. A. Cook and Meredith fanned, and P. Clendenning grounded out via Scully.

Raybestos also subsided. Barry lined out to first and Hillier and Rogers fanned.

Stouffville broke away in the seventh and gave the home talent some anxious moments. Pete Clendenning got a base when he slammed the ball at Maudsley's shins. McFadden's grounder hopped through Scully and there were two on a nobody out. For the third time, E. Cook grounded to Maudsley, who threw to third and stopped Clendenning. The big first baseman was struck out, but Bottom loaded the bases with a single into short centre. Moore came right in with the ball. All three runners were off as Reesor cracked the ball at Scully. The second baseman fumbled, but got the spalding over to Barry to retire the side.

Moore's contribution in the form of a double, the only extra-base clout of the game, came in the Rays' half of the seventh with one gone. Moore was nabbed going into third after Scully had rolled to the pitcher. H. Nicholls struck out.

The eighth brought nothing to the visitors. A. Cook was thrown out by Hillier, Meredith was stopped on a fast fielding play by H. Nicholls, and Hillier pegged out M. Clendenning. The Rays' infield showed some nice work in this frame.

Corrin's liner brought Clendenning away from the bag and the runner beat him. Corrin stole second. O. Nicholls flew out to left, Barry fanned, and Hillier popped to M. Clendenning.

P. Clendenning struck out as the visitors made their last stand. McFadden singled across second, after which the Rays pulled off a beautiful double play on E. Cook's grounder to Hillier to end the game:

BANTAM CREW LOSE FIRST GAME

Riley and Hickey Lose To St. Francis at Toronto.

Playing their first game of baseball out of town, Riley and Hickey, bantam champions for this city lost the first game of the O.B.A.A. finals to St. Francis of Toronto, at the Queen City, on Saturday by a 30-0 score. This is easily the worst beating ever handed to any Peterborough team of late years, and while much could be said of the youngsters, they were matched up against a superior team.

Gatfield, McCullough and Cadd as battery men for the locals did them selves honor in the boxes but were given poor support in the infield and outfield, many of the players being off their positions most of the time. The Queen City crew were heavy hitters and gained an early lead of eleven runs in the first two innings against which the locals could do nothing. Bush on the mound for St. Francis, pitched a one-hit game, Reynolds saving the day for the Clothiers when he hit to the shortstop, who dropped the ball, allowing the runner to gain first. The opposing moundsman had sixteen strike outs chalked up to his credit, while the local pitching staff made up a total of ten.

Honors were divided about equal in the starring line, R. and H. staging the only double play of the game in the fourth frame, when Rosen singled to shortstop, who drew to second, who relayed the ball on the first. St. Francis clouted the only two homers of the fixture.

Score by innings:

St. Francis	74225055—30
R. and H.	000000000— 0

Line ups:

St. Francis: Tominson 2b; Gallagher rf; Rose cf; Spalla lf; Bush p; Shugar c; Goodall 1b; Forsythe 3b; Murphy ss.

Riley and Hickey: Asquith ss; Cadd c; Levince cf; Reynolds rf; Davern 3b; Kay 1b; Bailey lf; McCullough p; subs: Scollard, Duffus and Jones.

Umpires: Kay at plate, and Donaghue at bases.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Royals were eliminated from the Junior O.B.A.A. race by the Elizabeth's 9-7 victory over them on Saturday

Looked upon as the coming junior champions of Ontario, the Royal's elimination from the O.B.A.A. race proved quite a disappointment to many of the baseball fans here. The athletic club have gone into the play-offs three years in succession and were quite confident of bringing home the bacon this year but a muffed ball with the bases loaded eliminated their chances for the championship.

* * * * * * *

The Raybestos scored four runs in the fifth inning to win their 5-2 victory over Stouffville in what was as hard a fought tussle as had been seen here in many moons. Cook, the youthful twirler for the visitors was a sensation on the mound, but his support was wobbly at times which allowed the winning runs, otherwise hits were few and far between.

* * * * * * *

Scotty Maudsley did good work for the locals and his support of the best. While the local team won the first of the intermediate O.B.A.A third round little can be said about the outcome of the second battle on Wednesday as it is expected that the Stouffville crew will be hard to beat on their own playground next Wednesday.

* * * * * * *

The Bantam team were given an added treat on Saturday in Toronto when they were invited to visit the Canadian National Exhibition as guests of the Riley and Hickey Clothing Store, of Peterboro' sponsors of the team. Much thanks is due to those who had personal charge of the youngsters on their trip to the Queen City and the "Ex."

* * * * * * *

Faced with a hard diamond that they were not used to and with the sun blinding them the players put up a poor exhibition ball but maybe a different story can be told on next Saturday night when they face the same crew on the green sward of the James Stevenson Park. This was the first trip out of town for the youngsters and several of the players appeared very nervous at times, missing many chances that at home here they would have taken up with relish.

RED WINGS LEADING RACE

Defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 5-0 For Half Game Margin.

SKEETERS WIN 7-4.

READING, Pa., Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Jersey City took the final game of the series from Reading yesterday, 7 to 4. Socks Seibold was charged with his sixth defeat of the season against 21 victories when he was blasted off the hill in three innings, allowing eight hits and five runs.

Army Bill Henderson kept nine hits well scattered. Moore featured Reading's attack. He hit his 16th triple of the season in the fifth with one on base and his 17th homer of the year in the seventh with one on.

ROCHESTER DEFEAT LEAFS

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Rochester returned for its last home stand of the International League tussle yesterday and won the first start, 5 to 0, from Toronto. The victory carried the Red Wings to the top of the heap in the pennant chase once more, giving the home nine a half game margin on the Canadian entry.

Laurence (Lefty) Irvin pitched his sixth straight victory since he joined the Rochester club August 21. In his six victories Irvin has defeated the leading clubs of the circuit and today scored his second home shutout to hurl the men of Southworth into first place. The shutout was the more remarkable in that ground rules, giving runners two bases were in use as 13,465 fans paid to see the single game.

Rochester centered its attack in a four run rally in the fourth inning. Fisher then threw widly to second base with a possible double play in sight to fill the sacks. Felix lifted a sacrifice fly to tally Gilbert; Urban advanced the runners, Southworth and Layne to third and second, respectively, on a grounder to Alexander.

Morrow was purposely walked and Irvin sent home runs three and four on a single to left.

Rochester's fifth run came in the seventh on doubles by Brown and Gelbert. Rochester made a double play in each of the first three innings and added a fourth in the seventh to give the finest kind of backing to Irvin.

Campbellford

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 10. — Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Lawrie and family have returned after spending a few days with friends in Toronto.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Free and Elizabeth Free returned yesterday after spending a week at the Exhibition.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Williams are at their home here after spending the last few days at the Exhibition.

Mrs. E. J. Free and Mr. Jack Free have returned from a motor trip to Toronto.

The pulpit of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was occupied at both services yesterday by the Rev. Mr. Sinclair. Mr. George Munroe of Brighton was the organist and Mrs. Frank DeCarrol the soloist.

Montreal Royals Add To Line-Up

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Business Manager Walter Hapgood, of the Montreal Royals, Saturday announced the purchase of Pitcher John Tomorski England League. Tomorski, who is 21 from the Attleboro Club of the New years of age, has won 22 games this season and is the league's leading mound performer. He will report to the Royals for duty next week. The purchase price has not been divulged.

HATTON HITS HOMER.

Kitchen Hurls Well Until Eighth —Royals Get Most Hits.

OSHAWA, Sept. 10 (Special to The Examiner).—The play-off between Peterboro Royals and Toronto Elizabeths for entry into the Junior O.B.A.A. finials was played here Saturday afternoon, the Lizzies winning 9 to 7. Peterboro sent Kitchen back against the Elizabeth team, figuring that he had the Indian sign on them on account of his shut-out in Peterboro. The Lizzies used Livinsky and had the right dope as he was almost invincible. He had one bad inning in the seventh when, with two out he allowed five hits in a row, one of them a home run. Five runs scored, this put the Royals up 7 to 3. In the eighth Kitchen weakened, was taken out after five runs had been scored and Holmes went in cold to finish the game. The game was snappy but the diamond was in poor shape. Hatton was the Royals' best man and for the Lizzies Samuels and Kramer stuck out. The Elizabeth boys will now play off with the western section winners for the Ontario title. Score:

CUBS WIN FROM REDS

Guy Bush Holds Cincinnati To 2-0 For Two Hits.

GIANTS LOSE.

NEW YORK, September 10. — Canadian Press. — Guy Bush hurled a two hit game as the Cubs swept the three game series with Cincinnati 2 to 0 before an overflow crowd of 42,000 spectators yesterday.

A single by Allen with one out in the second and another by Kelly with two goen in the fourth represented the full extent of the Reds' attacks. Bush who is usually wild, only allowed two walks, and not a Red man saw third base.

Kiki Cuyler, whose double won Saturday's 14-inning game, starred with his bat again yesterday. He singled and drove English home with the first Cub run in the first inning, and opened the sixth with a double that lacked a foot of clearing the left field bleachers. Stephenson's single sent him home. Kolp pitched good ball for the Reds, allowing only seven hits, but was relieved by Donohue for a pinch hitter in the 8th inning.

A pebble in the Brooklyn infield caused the downfall of Larry Benton and the Giants here yesterday, and gave the Robins a 3 to 2 decision in the third and deciding game of the series. The break of the game came in the ninth when Babe Herman walked to start the Brooklyn rally. Bissonette was purposely passed after Bressler's sacrifice. Flowers hit a hard grounder straight at Lindstrom but the ball took a bad hop, caromed off Lindstrom's shoulder into left field for a hit as Herman tore around from second with the winning run.

The score was tied in the eighth when Harvey Hendrick, batting for Deberry, hit over the right field wall for a homer with Bancroft on base.

A crowd of 28,000 Brooklyn fans watched the pennant hope sof the New York club fade away to practically nothing.

Would you kindly state through the sporting columns of your paper how a pool on the time of Wednesday's marathon swimming race should be decided. Should the highest number of hours be awarded the pool? Highest guess, 8 hours 32 minutes.—L.W.

While the race was not completed, the most satisfactory way of deciding a pool based on the time of the marathon swim would be to accept the time made by Georges Michel, who was the last man in the water at the time of the race. The Frenchman's time was 11 hours 12 minutes, and the closest guess to that time should win. In your case, 2 hours 32 minutes being the highest guess would take the —pool.—Sporting Editor.

Swimmers Unable To Make Channel

DOVER, England, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press).—The English Channel defied the attempts of two men to swim from England to France over the week-end.

Horace Carey, a bus driver, who started from Dover Saturday morning got within five or six miles of the French coast but the cold water forced him to quit after fourteen and a quarter hour struggle. He was hauled aboard his convoy at 11:25 Saturday night.

Edward Temme, an insurance clerk, entered the water at South Foreland shortly after eight o'clock Saturday night and made such extraordinary progress that he was four miles from the French coast when he was seized with cramps and had to be rescued with cramps and had to rescued from the water at 4.30 Sunday morning.

ROVERS DEFEAT WANDERERS 3-0

Individual Feats Lacking in Saturday's English League Soccer Play.

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 10 (Canadian Press Cable).—While the south of England basked in brilliant sunshine Saturday, and the soccer players had a gruelling time, the north was blanketted by a drizzling rain. The First Division of the English League was particularly barren of individual feats, though Roscamp enabled Blackburn Rovers, the Cup holders, to win easily against Bolton Wanderers by three goals to nil. The most impressive display was that of West Ham United against Aston Villa, the London team winning by four goals to one. Watson and Ruffell scored for the Hammers and Capewell for the Villa before half-time, and Watson and Collins after the interval. Dean, the star forward of Everton, was well marked by the Birmingham forwards and could not get away in the first half, which was scoreless. After the turn round Dunn scored first for Everton, and then Dean registered with a beautiful shot from an acute angle. Critchley got Everton's third marker and Briggs netted for Birmingham. Leeds United were too much for Manchester United, though the match was even enough until well on in the second half. Wainscott and Johnson for Leeds and Spence of Manchester all found the twine in the first half. Keetley equalized but Armand, from a corner, put the Leeds team ahead, where they stayed till the finish. Sheffield United lost to Burnley, despite the return of Gillespie, after suspension for scrapping last season. Burnley went ahead in the first half through Burton's goal and Johnson evened things up soon after the re-start. McCluggage put in the winner for Burnley from a penalty. The Wednesday took an early lead from Sunderland and were two up through Strange's brilliant shot from a penalty twenty-five yards out. Clunas got a point for Sunderland in the last minute. Manchester City and Huddersfield Town played a keen and fast match. Brown scored first for Huddersfield after breaking through. Johnson equalized from a penalty. Johnson scored in the early stages of the second half and then Brown made them all square again. Marshall put in the winner for Manchester seven minutes from the end. Newcastle United fought a gallant battle to win from Bury, the latter team being ahead at half-time through Smith's counter. Gallagher played brilliantly to notch Newcastle's two goals, the second only three minutes from time. Scorers who gave Derby County a victory over Cardiff City were Mee, in the first half, and White house, with a header after the turn round. Liverpool and Leicester City indulged in a scoring bee, with Liverpool, doubling their opponents' count with their six goals through Edmed twice, McDougall and Hodgson twice, and Reid. Baxter, Chandler and Gibson scored for Leicester. Portsmouth got a goal in each half from the Arsenal through Irvine and Smith.

BELLEVILLE WINS SLUGGING MATCH

Defeats Oshawa 11-8 in Final Game For League Title.

(Special to The Examiner.)

OSHAWA, Ont., September 10. — Belleville won the championship of the Central Ontario League here on Saturday, defeating the Motor City team 11 to 8 in the third and deciding game. Oshawa used three hurlers. Matthews started, but was relieved in the fourth by Dainty, who went along nicely until the eighth, when he was knocked out of the box. Gibson pitched consistent ball for the Quintemen.

DELORO OUT GORDON CUP FIVE TO ONE

Visitors' Left Wing Always Prominent — Local Team Had a One Goal Lead at Interval.

MITCHELL HAD FOUR GOALS.

Second Half Lacked Excitement of First Moiety—Deloro Made a Favorable Impression.

Deloro were eliminated from the G. N. Gordon cup on Saturday afternoon by the score of five goals to nothing, before a fair attendance of spectators. They now meet the DeLaval in the final, next Saturday at King Edward Park. The score does not indicate the run of the play because three goals were gifts in the ordinary run of a game. The visitors have a good team and will make the local boys travel in the rest of the trophies that have to be played yet.

The C. G. E. kicked off with only ten men. Some keen play marked the opening but neither goalkeeper was troubled, the best effort coming from W. Brown for Deloro who made progress on the left wing which caused some anxiety to the local defence. Deloro forwards were nippy but finished very poorly when opportunities were handed to them. Although Brooks on the extreme right deceived the opposing backs to finish with a lightning drive at goal that Bolton held nicely. The custodian sent his forwards away to the other end where they kept Kelly busy for a period.

Clark Opened the Scoring

Eventually he had to concede defeat when the C.G.E. bombarded the goal from every angle, until the visitors got into a mixup- in their endeavor to prevent an account, but Clark got his foot near the ball to tap it into the goal. This set-back did not discourage them and time and again made the local boys look like novices in the combination tactics displayed. The visiting front rank would move in a body right into the goal area to miss the mark by inches, while the C. G. E. only got offside decisions handed to them. Murray and Savage never allowed the attacking forwards any latitude inside the goal area and it was the fault of the halves not covering up their positions when an attack was led into their half of the field.

Brooks Smart Goal

Two flag kicks were awarded to the visitors in the next few minutes that kept the ball in the proximity of the local goal. Cousins broke away nicely after a clever mid field attack, to let Brooks gain possession outside shooting distance but he gained his award when he beat Bolton with a low grounder that found the net. Another raid took place with Cousins being upset by Mann to get a foul kick that caused a flurry in the local defence. Nothing resulted from the kick. Westwood relieving in the nick of time.

Kelly Saved Repeatedly

Quick as a flash Mitchell tore away to the other end with the ball at his toe but got the legitimate shoulder when in the act of shooting. On the next visit he repeated the same performance with more success this time and to see his work nullified by the Deloro custodian holding the citadel in a safe condition. Then Burgess travelled along the line at a fast pace to miss the cross bar from the ten yard mark. In the local territory, Cousins outwitted the defence likewise, to finish with a weak effort in front of the uprights.

Left Wing Combination Excellent

During the first half, the brother Browns were conspicuous with their clever display of manouvres while in possession of the sphere, in fact Westwood put in the busiest afternoon he has had since he footed the ball in this city. It was very interesting to witness the tactics of the visitor's left wing.

Petes Gained the Lead

With only five minutes to go of the first moiety, Mitchell accepted a long swinging pass from Blowers. Trapping the ball from mid-air, he beat it for the Deloro goal and steadying himself about 20 yards out from goal, let drive with a rising shot that found the rigging below the bar, giving Kelly no chance to save. Half Time— Canadian General; 2 Deloro 1.

Half Time

On resuming, the local team increased their lead through an error on the part of the goalkeeper, who no doubt lacking experience, did not clear his goal properly when he kicked the ball against the oncoming forward to divert the sphere into the net for the third counter inside a minute. At this point in the match Hart become uneffective in defence and offensive when he transfered his place to the right wing.

Deloro Worked Hard

With a two goal margin against them, the visitors never gave up trying and were unfortunate in their effort to reduce the two goal lead. No matter what the visitors planned it seemed to work contrary to their plan but they gained flag kicks in abundance that produced free kicks for the opposing full backs.

Locals Favoured with the Breaks

An unfortunate play again became Deloro's downfall when a misunderstanding between the custodian and the right full back allowed Mitchell an open goal to place the ball in the net. Both of the Deloro players expected the other to get it but to their surprise the C.G.E. player got there first for the fourth tally. With only seven minutes to go, the local boys increased their total to five in the first round of the G.N. Gordon trophy. Full Time—Canadian General 5, Deloro 1.

Goal Scorers: — Mitchell 4, and Clarke. Deloro—Brooks.

Deloro — Kelly, goal; Murray and Savage, backs; Simmons, Hart and Sanderson, half backs; Brooks, Hipson, Cousins, E. Brown and W. Brown forwards.

Canadian General — Bolton, goal; Westwood and Wade, backs; Houston, Mann and Blowers, half backs; Clark, Mitchell, Laidler and Burgess, forwards.

Referee—Alex McKinley.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

TOM WILSON, HEINIE CONKLIN AND MRNA LOY HEAD ALL-STAR CAST.

Something entirely uulque is claimed to have been brought to the screen in Warner Bros.' production, "Ham and Eggs at the Front," now playing at the Regent Theatre.

Director Roy Del Ruth has assembled a cast of famous black-face artists and with them interpreted the peculiarly humorous angle from which the American negro saw and participated in the World War. Although the picture has its beginning and end in America, the chief locales are the trenches and the rest billets a short way behind them in France.

For the first time the laughable and lovable characteristics of colored folk which have been so thoroughly treated in literature and on the stage are brought to the screen.

The cast of "Ham and Eggs" at the Front" is headed by two comedians of renown in the firm world. They are Tom Wilson and Heinie Conklin who appear for the first time in a make-up of burnt-cork. The role of the dusky mademoiselle is played by Myrna Loy and this is said to be the most remarkable characterization yet given by this actress whose work in recent Warner pictures has attracted unusual notice.

The story of "Ham and Eggs at the Front" was written by Darryl Francis Zanuck and adapted to screen use by Robert Dillon and James Starr.

As an added attraction the management have secured the official pictures of the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship bout, which will be here for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday shown at the conclusion of regular program. On admission charge for entire show.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"HANGMAN'S HOUSE" WHICH OPENS AT THE CAPITOL TODAY A MASTERPIECE OF DIRECTION AND ACTING BY VICTOR McLAGLEN.

"Hangman's House," Fox Films screen version of Donn Byrne's great novel made under the direction of John Ford, has its local premiere at the Capital Theatre today and should score a tremendous hit with patrons and hardened critics of this city and vicinity.

Victor McLaglen repeats his histrionic triumphs of "What Price Glory," "A Girl in Every Port" and "Mother Machree." In fact, he surpasses the roles that made him famous, with his characterization of Citizen Hogan, the avenging soldier of the Foreign Legion, in this gripping romance of Ireland.

But McLaglen is not the only actor in this production. June Collyer, Larry Kent, Earle Foxe, Hobart Bosworth among others of this veritable all star cast give performances that help make this production one of the outstanding screen entertainments of the present season.

Ford has perhaps never reached the heights of direction which he achieves in this production, even though his "Iron Horse," "Three Bad Men," "Four Sons" and "Mother Machree" are remembered. For it was this young genius who directed them all. But in "Hangmans-House" he has a production that in the opinion of many surpasses all his previous efforts. Decidedly a picture no one should miss.

SOCCER NOTES.

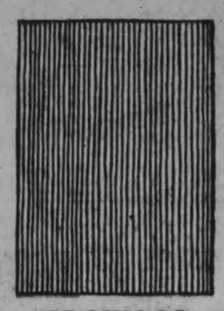
The Difference in Shingles

"The roof and the foundation are the two most important essentials in home construction."

FLAT GRAIN
RED CEDAR SHINGLE



EDGWOOD
RED CEDAR SHINGLE

The ordinary "Clear" or "Star" Red Cedar Shingles are sawn with a large percentage of flat-grain. Consequently, they will warp, cup and curl; loosen the nails; sometimes leak; become unsightly; and require replacement after an average life of ten to fifteen years. They were never intended for use on roofs.

This is your Identification Mark for a Red Cedar Shingle that Will Not Warp

EDGWOOD SHINGLES

EDGWOOD Shingles are sawn edgegrain—and positively will not warp, cup or curl. They lie tight and flat to the sheathing always; preserve their good appearance; delete the fire-hazard; eliminate any possible trouble from leaks; and will NOT require replacement within forty years. They cost less and last longer than any other roofing material, not excepting tile or slate in those sections subject to hail-storms.

INSTRUCTIONS

EDGWOOD Shingles are sawn edgegrain and will not warp, consequently EDGWOOD 18" Shingles should be exposed 5½" to the weather; EDGWOOD 16" Shingles, 5" to the weather; any less exposure merely adds to the cost of your roof and it does not add to the protection or durability.

An Idyll of the Holidays

By F. H. Dobbin.

One of the most wonderful results that have come into our lives follows from the availability of all sorts of transportation. Of these the automobile easily takes first place. Personal, convenient and, outside of repairs and incidental expenses, open to the thousands. Visiting, among the members of a former household, grown up and located at points from the scenes of youthful days, it has grown to be the proper thing, if the time may be taken from the daily grind of work and employment, to pack stuff into the car and go and spend a few days in friendly intercourse.

Of course the responsibility for entertainment falls on those who receive the visitors, and the only way to get even i s to visit in return. July, August and September are the month for such travel. Fifteen years ago there was not nearly so much of it. Cars were sparsely owned, and little understood. The multiplicity of service stations, relieves anxiety with regard to irregular action of the family car. An it is an instance of a sublime confidence that women and children, and others, who say they know that Rupert cannot drive a nail straight, will entrust their lives and safety to men members of the family with a serene readiness. But having acquired a car, of some sort the family must make use of it, in taking what is called a holiday.

Then there is another angle to the matter. Sons and daughters, living, possibly at some distance, send home messages to father and mother to come and stay for a while. And always the urging bestows the advice to "come and get a good rest." Filial affection has ever in mind such situation, the invitation sent in all affection and hopefulness. It is ever a pleasure to have the old folks about for a spell, either together or singly. And to the credit of those who hav gone away from the old home, mother comes first. But for her it is often a two weeks change of work and responsibility. In the years of her wifehood and motherhood she has acquired the habit of being never idle, and at once takes hold to help things along. Fathers, if they have reached mature years, generally have an experience in common, voiced in the comment, "that Dad will do so and so when he comes." So let us relate the holiday experiences of a couple of fathers, after years of service and related by themselves. And we let them tell their own tales.

I was approached, diplomatically, as to the possibility of putting up an additional shelf in the side entry to the house. Such a shelf as would accommodate the Old Dutch Cleanser can, a trifle of Sunlight Soap, the boss's rubbers when out of immediate service, and other fixings. Mention of the above commodities is clearly unpaid advertising, but the city editor will condone the publicity for the sake of accuracy. I found a piece of board of lengthand width, and made an errand down town to see Jack McHardy, of the Bell Telephone Company (another advertisement), who wasn't in his office. Drifted into the nearest hardware store and bought a couple of brackets on which to support the shelf. The last pair in the box, so the clerk tied box and all and bestowed the parcel without extra charge. St. Kitt's merchants are ever courteous and obliging.

St. Catharines possesses a large, attractively laid out and well kept municipal park. The fittings include a fine public hall, open on all sides, and use for gatherings in agreeable weather. A band stand, conveniences, and a beautiful rose garden, the gift of late W. R. Burgoyne, of the St. Catharines Daily Standard. The grounds and walks in apple pie order. I walked through the park and coming to a street along the western boundary made for a convenient bench on which to rest for a few minutes. Sitting about the middle of the bench was an elderly man, without hat or coat, as the day was warm. As I sat down he slid along the bench to the other end and I remarked that there was plenty of room for both.

He appeared to be well on in years, in fact he afterwards said he was about seventy years of age, and looked it. Not venerable, by any means, but just mature. We fell into conversation on things in general, avoiding such topics as the weather and the frequency of motor fatalities. I had laid the box with the brackets, on the seat, where the label on the box told its contents. He enquired if I lived in the city and I [illegible] for a few [illegible] married daughter. "Just s[illegible] marked, and then, "I guess they've set you to work, already, as they always do." I enquired as to how he reached such conclusion and he replied, "you're going to put up a shelf and make use of the brackets," a self-evident proposition. And then continued in a cheerfully communicative strain.

"I live in Toronto and have been here about a week. Busy as usual. I quit active work about nine years ago and have been busier than when I was working. I came over here to get a rest. I've two daughters, married, and living out the East side of Toronto. I go to stay with one or the other, for a spell, after giving the matter some thought. A month ago I met one of the girls coming out of the Eaton store and helped her over to a car with her parcels. She said, 'Dad, come on out any time and stay for a couple of weeks, or longer, and have a real rest.' So I packed some old clothes in a grip, for I expected what to expect, and when I got to the house and walked up to the steps of the verandah, I stubbed my toe on a piece of the concrete walk that stuck up about four inches, under a small tree, side of the walk, and fell sprawling on the steps. It was a forcible welcome. You bet.

"My daughter, (the wife of the son-in-law) welcomed me and expressed concern at my tumble. I said that the slab of the walk should be lifted and levelled or perhaps some child might get a broken knee-cap. 'We know that, Dad, but we've been waiting for you to come and fix it for us.' That was a stony welcome, sure enough.

"I felt a trifle peeved, for I had come along expecting to get a rest and enjoy some valuable leisure, but here was a man's job waiting for me. Next morning I borrowed a wheelbarrow, secured a crowbar, swiped a handsaw and pieces of scantling. I've been a contractor in taking out cellars, so I know what to do, more's the pity. I dug around and lifted the stone, sawed off parts of the root of the tree that caused the mischief, put the block back and levelled it good and ship-shape. Industry is its own reward, I suppose for during the operations my daughter fed me sundry cookies and an occasional glass of ginger ale. These goodies I absorbed."

To ease my wearied feelings I had remarked, when done, that if a proper man had been employed it would have cost the inmates of the house at least ten or twelve dollars. My daughter serenely replied that they knew that, (her and Jim), but as the third instalment on the new car fell due in a couple of weeks they had to save money where they could. So Dad was the saviour. As I have said, I came over here, to another married daughter, to get a complete rest.

He continued to talk, and I listened. Good thing to be a capable listener, even at church, on Sundays. He seemed to have a streak of rather quaint philosophy about him that flavored his comments. "Look at that park, fornest us. It's three times too big. Too much to take care of. I've come out here to sit and ponder during the last five days, and by Heck I've never seen more than three people in this park at one time, except the caretakers, and they don't count. Except on pay day. This place may be of use on public occasions but where's your public, from day to day."

There was a power lawn mower, clipping a three-foot swath over the turf with a man hanging on to it to turn it at the corners. His comment was, "that contraption is all wrong." I asked about the deficiencies. "Well," he went on, "it runs so blamed fast that the man behind can't keep up with it, and that is taking a mean advantage of any municipal employee. Besides, the thing should have a seat, like the old-fashioned Tiger hay rake, so the man could ride and observe at the same time. But people are absolutely heartless. That other fellow pushing the hand mower is working twice as hard." I suggested that perhaps he was getting more pay for his labor, but he expressed no faith in any such discrimination.

Whenever he paused in his remarks and comments I prodded him to start him going again. I remarked that it seemed to be the fate of a'l fathers to take care of children, especially girls, when they were just kids, meet their wishes and wants, and then in after life to do it all over again when they were women, had husbands and children of their own. As a grandfather, for instance, I observed, you would not be content to be a morose, dry old reprobate, taking no interest in the children and your daughter's work and duties.

"Sure thing, not at all," he commented. And then started in a further vein of philosophy, perfectly human and entertaining. "I've two sons, married and living in Hamilton. I go to see them occasionally, but their wives never set me to work. How is that? Perhaps the boys say, just let Dad alone, he's had his day. Now that's kind of considerate, and I appreciate it, but it implies that I am played out, and I couldn't allow anyone to stick such a label on me. Not much. I suppose when I had a wife and three growing daughters at home to boss me I had to pay attention or listen to remonstrances. Anyway I know I did pretty much as they told me to do, and it saved arguments. You can't argue with a woman, at least successfully and little good comes of it. But let me tell you of a sort of adventure I had, in Hamilton. It occurs to me to speak of it.

"It was, perhaps, three or four years ago in the summer, possibly longer. It's the facts that matter, not the exact date. I was stopping with one of the boys and his good wife, in Hamilton, and she said to me one bright morning, 'Dad, suppose you go down to the beach at the bay and go into the amusement park for a spell, this morning. Music going on all the time, merry-go-arounds and all sorts of games. Said the place was called Ocean Blend, no, that's the name of a brand of tea—Ocean Grove, I think it was, but no matter. It will cost twenty-five cents to get in, but you'll enjoy yourself. I fell in with the idea and started to go up to my room to get some money, when she said, never mind, Dad, here's the money for the ticket. I thanked her and set out to walk to the beach.

"When I got there" (and just here he offered his hands for my inspection.) The fingers of both were bent and partially closed with rheumatism, he said, and added that while he could get a noble grip on a crowbar, was liable to drop any small thing out of his hand. "Why at home they will hardly trust me to carry the collection envelope to church for fear I drop it on the side- [illegible] worry to get anything [illegible] me, at least. So [illegible] quarter ready, put it in the palm of my left hand and got one finger on it to hold it tight and marched to the ticket office on the platform at the entrance gate. The young woman handed me a ticket. I turned over my hand, released the finger, dropped the coin on the shelf, and by Jinks it rolled off the shelf dropped on the platform, and slid through a crack in the boards.

"I tell you I felt embarrassed. People standing around the ticket place made jocular remarks that made me hopping mad, but most I regretted my apparent carelessness. I walked over to a bench at one side, made myself as small as possible and sat there in a state of mind. How could I go back to my son's place and admit that I had done myself out of my morning's fun? Any excuse would seem trivial. The thing bothered me more than it should, and I felt pretty mean. Presently my feelings to the occurrence took a different attitude. I began to think, and in a jiffy made up my mind that I'd get that quarter, if resourcefulness and persistence would bring it. I noticed that the platform stood on posts about three feet high. I suppose to accommodate folks coming in cars and spilling out kids and small people. I waited until the coast looked clear, leaned over the picket fence that separated the grounds from the street or road. Took a close survey of the situation and sure enough there would be a space of about two feet under the joists of the platform and the ground. I'd have that coin even if I had to grope for it, and I was sure it was there.

"I borrowed a newspaper from a man who was not reading it and took the paper with me to keep the knees of my trousers clean while I was groping my way beneath the boards, for if I went home with the knees of my trousers soiled I'd have to explain, while if I got the quarter I could say nothing about the experience.

"Under the edge of the platform I pulled off my coat and vest, and laid them on a clean spot, with my hat, and started on my voyage of discovery. By the time I had made three or four gropes I had torn the paper into pieces and so gave that aid to progress up. Anyway, the ground was covered with a clean sand, washed up from the

A Special Service to The Examiner

The Mining Market and the Autumn Movement.

When an upward movement in the Canadian market failed to mature last spring some brokerage interests fixed on September as the expected time when the market would begin to display marked improvement. Last month witnessed a moderate upswing, but the question is whether this was the start of the hoped-for major autumn appreciation has still to be answered.

One thing is certain, the technical position of the market has been substantially improved as a result of the extended period of liquidation that was under way almost since the beginning of the year. It appears to be the concensus of opinion that in many cases the selling movement was overdone. Probably this accounts for the fact that the list is more responsive now to constructive news from the mines than it was during the spring and summer. There is an accumulation of good news that, undoubtedly, will be reflected in the market when other underlying conditions become more favorable.

Stringent money conditions is the main restraining influence in the mining market as also in the general stock market and in bonds. Huge amounts of money are required for seasonal commercial needs, such as movement of the largest crops in Canada's history. Until funds begin to return to loaning institutions, not much can be hoped for by way of credit for stock market operations.

Meanwhile, what buying appears in the market is due largely to cash purchases or well fortified marginal accounts in the better class of stocks. There is enough good news to induce investors to take in mine stocks now and wait for the time when substantial appreciation in prices will come.

J. B. Tyrrell, manager of Kirkland Lake Gold Mines, is reported as saying that the vein had been intercepted Friday by the cross-cut north from the winze at the 2,975-ft. level. As yet not enough work had been done to allow any particulars to be furnished but the appearance of the vein was very good. Drifting will now be commenced and sinking of the winze will be resumed. Conditions at the mine are very satisfactory.

On each level the ore is said to be a little richer than on the level above that the whole operation has grown. No effort has been made to force production for the present. On the 2,850-ft. level between the cross-cut the dike on Teck Hughes side, a mass of very fine ore has been opened up. Next year when a greater depth of 500 or 600 ft. is attained it is the intention to investigate the dyke. The new hoist will be delivered next month and will be installed in the winze. It will have a capacity of sinking to 5,000 ft.

Citizens' Dairy Ltd, Makes Share Offering

An issue of $125,000, 7% cumulative redeemable sinking fund preference shares, par value $100, of Citizens' Dairy Ltd., is being offered by Gray, Bashford Ltd., with common stock, units of one preferred and one common shares at a price of $110 per unit. The company is capitalized at $300,000 preferred authorized of which $125,000 will be outstanding and 10,000 shares of common of no par value, of which 3,900 shares will be outstanding. Directors of the company include H. W. Ackerman president; R. Templeton, vice-president, H. J. Clarke, managing director.

In the prospectus the general manager of the company reports that Citizens' Dairy Ltd. owns and operates a dairy located in Coleman street, Belleville, and has recently acquired dairies located in Brooklin, Havelock and Tweed, which have been engaged in manufacture of butter and distribution of dairy products for the past ten years. The purpose of the present issue is to acquire dairies in the three communities named and provide for expansion. The prospectus says that after depreciation but before Federal income taxes, net earnings of the four organizations for the past year amounted to $13,935, and larger net results are looked for as a result of the merger.

Gold Hill to Begin Lateral Work Immediately

Word has just been received that the Gold Hill shaft has been completed to the 1,000 foot horizon and that a station is now being established. Lateral work is expected to commence immediately at this level.

Summary of the Company's Progress and Monthly Income

The Company is incorporated under the laws of the Province of Ontario. The Directors were elected and the Company commenced operations on March 7th, 1928.

Months Operating	Preferred Shares Issued	Actual Monthly Income Received
March	222,650	$11,661.31
April	258,420	13,099.98
May	315,250	14,069.25
June	413,674	16,712.57
July	468,265	18,002.51
August	532,602	25,248.88

The Company's Income is now 4¾% per month on the outstanding Preferred shares.

After the expenses of Management, Taxes, etc., the Charter provides for the distribution of the Income four ways as follows:—

1. CUMULATIVE 12% REDEEMABLE PREFERRED STOCK
The Preferred Shares are a first lien on all the Assets of the Company with a fixed dividend of 12% per annum payable 1% monthly on the first of each month to shareholders of record on the 25th day of the previous month, and are redeemable at $1.10 a share.

2. SINKING FUND
An amount equal to at least ½ of 1% each month on the outstanding Preferred Stock of the Company must be set aside out of the Income of the Company and deposited with The Imperial Trusts Company of Canada, as Trustee for the Redemption of the Preferred Shares on the 1st April, 1943, at $1.10 per Share.

3. SURPLUS FOR RE-INVESTMENT
Two-thirds of the Surplus Income must be invested in producing Royalties to increase the Assets and Earning Power of the Company and the remaining-one-third is available for Common Stock Dividends.

4. COMMON STOCK DIVIDENDS
One-third of the Company's Surplus Income is set aside for dividends on Common Stock and in view of the large Income. Dividends are assured and the Company will commence paying regular dividends on April 1st, 1929, as originally provided.

Monthly Dividend cheques for the Preferred stock at the rate of 1 per cent. are issued by The Imperial Trusts Company of Canada, and this dividend has been paid regularly since April 1st, 1928.

$38,000.00 has already been invested out of the Surplus Profits in New Producing Oil Royalties for the Company.

No other Royalty Company on the Continent has made greater progress in so short a time as STANDARD ROYALTIES LIMITED, all due to the Company's funds being invested only in Diversified Producing Oil Royalties in Fields of Proven Deep Long-Life Sands which are being operated by the Major Oil Companies.

The shares are sold in Unites of 100—12 per cent. Preferred shares at $1.00 per share and 100 Common shares at 25c per share. The present yield will be substantially increased in the near future out of the Rapidly Increasing Common Stock Dividend Fund, as provided for in the Charter.

A DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULAR, GIVING FULL INFORMATION ON STANDARD ROYALTIES LIMITED, WILL BE FORWARDED ON REQUEST.

When purchasing units please make cheques, Drafts, or Money Orders payable to The Imperial Trusts Company of Canada, and forward same to:—

Mid-Continent Bond Corporation
331 Bay Street, Toronto, Canada

'Phones: Adelaide 9177-8-9-0

Upon receipt of funds the Share Certificates will be issued by The Imperial Trusts Company of Canada, the Official Transfer Agent for Standard Royalties Limited, and forwarded by registered mail to the purchaser.

Rotarians Jack Gillespie and Tom Dutton were appointed to interest Rotarians in the district conference at Erie Pa., and the convention at Rotary International at Dallas, Texas.

The plan of the Toronto Rotary Club to provide with the assistance of other Rotary Clubs a gymnasium for the Boys' Farm at Bowmanville was endorsed by Rotarians Juby, Killaly, Andrews, Brown, Fred Roy and Robert Abbott and on motion of Rotarians Dr. Moir and A. L. Killaly the Peterborough club will make a donation of $625 to the fund, the subscription being spread over five years.

The speaker today was Major Hachborn at the La Salle University who gave a very interesting address with opportunities before the Canadian youth.

Major Hachborn who was introduced by Rotarion R. M. Glover, dealt with the problem of why so many young Canadian drifted across the border to take positions in the United States and declared that one reason for this condition was that young men in the country were being convinced by the speeches of politicians and others who said that Canada was going to the dogs, that there were no opportunities here. The speaker felt that while mature men might take such speeches for what they were worth young Canadians were likely to be impressed.

Major Hachborn in dealing with the La Salle University and its work pointed out how the executives of big industries were encouraging their employees to take correspondence courses. Some firms paying 50 per cent of the cost while others offered $50 a year to every employer who took a course. He pointed out the manner in which the work of the University had grown. Mr. V. J. McEldern proposed the thanks of the Rotary Club to the speaker and his adderss.

beach, so it did not matter. I made slow, but steady progress on my knees and elbows, having rolled the sleeves of my shirt nearly to my shoulders.

"I guessed that it would be probably twenty feet from where I started to where my coin would be found, but I was so confident that I took plenty of time and rested a couple of times. The tramping of feet before the ticket booth guided me in the direction. And anyway the sun shone through the cracks in the floor. When I reached the spot, there was my quarter, lying on the sand, and I tell you I was pleased. Not only that but before I turned to make my way back I found about $1.80 in small coins sprayed about among the sand. So I was about two dollars ahead on the transaction.

"There may have been more there but I did'nt stay to investigate, crawled out and got into my clothes, found my pants unmarked, and went to the ticket office and proudly planked down my quarter and secured a ticket. The young woman recognized me and asked if I had gone home for more money, but when I explained that it was the same coin that had dropped through the crack, she seemed a trifle incredulous. When I told her my experience, she fussed with her hair, as girls will at times, and said you're a clever old duck, after all. Which unsolicited testimonial to my ability I absorbed. Several boys and a few men, standing about heard my explanation, and with one accord started to get under the boards, with what luck I did not stay to hear."

"Did you tell your daughter-in-law about it," I asked. "Not much," he replied, "I've learned to let well enough alone, especially as I felt that telling her was about the same as advising the announcer on the radio, so far as jocular publicity would be concerned. The boys would have guyed me for a spell and had heaps of fun over it. It was fully a year afterwards until I related my experience, and when we all went to the same place to see the show I noticed that all around the platform, from the ground underneath and up was nicely boarded in, following the principle, I suppose, that what we have we'll hold."

Wedding Bells

MacALPINE—McALPINE.

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, Sept. 8th at 3 o'clock at St Andrew's Manse, when Reta A., only daughter of Mr. James and the late Mrs. James McAlpine of Stanwood, became the bride of Mr. Carman J. MacAlpine, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. MacAlpine, Stanwood. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's church.

The bride was charmingly attired in white satin. Her veil of silk net was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She wore white kid shoes with hose to match. Her only ornament was a string of pearls set with diamonds, the gift of the groom. Her bouquet was of Madam Butterfly roses and gypsophila. The bridesmaid ,Miss Mabel Bonar of Blairton, cousin of the bride was attired in rose chiffon taffeta with small felt hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Premier roses and sweet peas. Mr. R. Donald Buchanan, of Havelock, acted as groomsman. The groom's gift to the groomsman was a pair of green gold cuff links, and to the bridesmaid a fancy compact

After the ceremony a very dainty wedding dinner was held at the home of the groom's aunt, this city.

BEATTY—SANDERSON.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at St. Paul's Presbyterian church, when Helen Taylor, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sanderson, of Ida, became the bride of Russell Garnet Beatty, B.S.A., of Hamilton, younger son of Mrs. J. J. Beatty, of Port Hope. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, the bridal party proceeded slowly up the aisle to the altar rail, where the marriage ceremony was conducted by Rev. G. J. Craw, of Victoria Harbor, assisted by Rev. H. B. Kenny, of Consecon, while the organist, Mr. M. B. Chenhall, played softly.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white taffeta in period style. Her veil was prettily arranged in Dutch cap effect, overhung with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Sanderson, who was attired in a dress of Indian pink georgette with gold lace, wore a picture hat of white mohair and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. The flower girls, Pauline Carroll Bennett and Helen Marie Peel, the latter being a niece of the bride, were dressed in green and gold taffeta respectively and carried dainty baskets of sweet peas. They were accompanied by June Brown, wearing blue taffeta, who carried the ring imbedded in a white satin cushion. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Harold J. C. Beatty of Port Hope, and the ushers were Mr. Ira R. Sanderson, brother of the bride, and Mr. Frederick R. McIndoo. During the signing of the register, Miss Daisy Murray rendered a solo in pleasing manner, accompanied by Mr. Chenhall

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, when her mother received in beige georgette and lace with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas, accompanied by the groom's mother, wearing a dress of black silk lace and carrying a bouquet of American Beauty roses Later in the evening the bride donned a beige English tweed suit with smart felt hat and shoes of the same shade. She wore a rose beige fox fur, the gift of the groom and carried a dainty French beaded bag. The bride and groom left on a motor trip to Quebec and other eastern points, and on their return they will reside in Hamilton.

Youth Rescues Girls From Drowning

WILLIAM KNOX IS COMMENDED FOR HIS ACTION

Eleanor Greaves and Marion Flynn Have Narrow Escape.

AT MARMORA

Girls Had Gone Beyond Depth in Pearce Mill Pond.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MARMORA, Sept. 11.—Eleanor Greaves and Marion Flynn, two twelve year old school girls of Marmora village were rescued from drowning in the Pearce Mill pond on Saturday afternoon by William Knox a sixteen year old youth. The girls had, with other girls, gone in the water to bathe when one girl was caught by the current and swept out beyond her depth. Her companion made an effort to save her but was also taken under. Knox, who was standing by, saw their danger and without shedding any of his clothes, except his sweater, he jumped into the water and brought them both to safety.

At the Marmora Public school, where he is a scholar, the lad was highly commended before the whole school on Monday morning for his brave action by G. E. Prentice, the school principal.

CANNERS WORK EXTRA SHIFTS

Tomator Crop of Eastern Ontario, Is Flooding Factories.

CORN COMING ALONG.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 11.—(Canadian Press.—The tomato crop, tremendous in quantity, is now filling the canneries in Eastern Ontario to overflowing. Night shifts are necessary to handle the fruit or vegetable. The quality is fine, the warm days having ripened the crop.

In many fields, the vines have made such growth that there are practically no rows and the pickling has to be done carefully as many of the tomatoes are hidden by the vines.

Along with the tomato season is the corn. A big crop is expetced if the frost holds off. Early varieties have eben badly infested with the corn borers. The factories make provision for this by having women examine each cob and put it through a special process. The wet season has been very beneficial to the corn growth and the ears are of good size.

GOODERHAM MAN SHOOTS HIMSELF

Alfred Dane Commits Suicide Day After Wife's Funeral.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, September 11. — Alfred Dane, who kept a boarding house at Gooderham, about thirty miles north of here, and wel known in Apsley, having resided here for some years, near the Four Corners, before removing to Gooderham about five years ago, shot himself in the head with a revolver at three o'clock on Friday afternoon, dying at ten o'clock in the evening. No reason is assigned for the act except that he was upset over circumstances attending his wife's funeral, which took place the day before in the Roman Catholic cemetery at Clydesdale.

Mr. Dane was a man over 60 years of age and well liked, and the news of his tragic end was a great shock to the community.

MONKEYS SACRIFICE LIVES IN WAR AGAINST PARALYSIS

Are Inoculated With Disease To Provide Serum To Treat Humans.

EXPENSIVE TREATMENT.

Disease Transferred By Carriers, Says Dr. Godfrey—Few Cases in Ontario.

(Special to The Examiner.)

PALO ALTO, Calif, Sept. 11.—Waging a private warfare against one of humanity's deadliest scourges, Stanford University scientists believe that they are at last on the right track in their attempts to find serum which will counteract the devastating infantile paralysis germ.

Dr. Edwin W. Schultz, head of the Stanford Bacteriology Department, and a cohort of fellow investigators, who have been conducting an intensive research during the past six months, believe that victory is in sight of finding the solution to isolate a virus which will free humanity of the infantile paralysis germ, according to definite announcement here Saturday.

"Before we could proceed to discover a serum which would kill the poliomyelitis germ we had to make a thorough study of the disease," the scientist said.

"This was made difficult as the "polio" germ which is the agent of the disease lies below the range of microscopic vision. Although we cannot see this germ through the microscope we can detect its presence by passing it through a mechanical filter and these filtrates in turn will produce the disease upon a living organism. Indian monkeys, said to be the only known animals which will react to the infantile paralysis germ, give their lives for the work. More than sixty of these animals were exposed to the "polio" germ.

It is from a monkey which survives the inoculation that the precious serum is derived, but one monkey can supply only enough serum for one treatment for one human life. Dr. Schultz's problem is now to find some other animal which will react to the paralysis germ and will yield a great enough quantity of serum that will be practical for commercial use.

"Monkeys cost $15 apiece," Dr. Schultz explained, "and this makes the anti-toxin serum too expensive to have great commercial value. We hope to find some animal that is larger and will produce greater amount of serum. We are now experimenting on goats, sheep, rabbits and guinea pigs and hope to find the final answer to our problem before long."

The experiments at Stanford were made possible by contributions from Palo Alto and Bay District people who gave money last spring during the infantile paralysis epidemic.

"Anterior poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis, is easily spread by carriers, in other words, patients who have recovered from infantile paralysis and also from abortive cases which are generally not recognized," Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, stated yesterday. The germ attacks certain sections of the spinal cord and produces, in various parts of the body, paralysis of the muscles supplied from the affected area.

"The attack is sudden in character. In the majority of cases paralysis appears to be the first symptom or sign noted. Treatment unfortunately is not very satisfactory. The Hospital for Sick Children is at present preparing a serum from recovered cases. Blood is taken from the patient one month after recovery. This serum should be administered at once, on first symtoms. Both intraspinal and intra-venal routes are advised. In the Province of Ontario during the past year, with approximately three million population, there were only eight cases of infantile paralysis reported, in other words, seven cases in August, one case in July and none in Setpember.

TRANSFORMER STRUCK.

HALF BILLION BUSHEL CROP

Manitoba Free Press Publishes Estimate of Wheat Yield of West.

SASKATCHEWAN LEADS.

WINNIPEG, September 11. Canadian Press. — A wheat crop of 534,621,412 bushels from 23,096,506 acres, is estimated for this season's yield in the prairie provinces in a report published by the Manitoba Free Press this morning.

The Free Press estimates that Manitoba will have an average yield of 22 bushels an acre, and a total crop of 57,202,750 bushels from 2,600,125 acres. The average yield from Saskatchewan is estimated at 31 bushels an acre, and a total crop of 289,607,934 bushels from 13,790,854 acres is expected; while for Alberta the estimate is 28 bushels to the acre with a total yield of 187,810,728 from 6,606,526 acres.

MISSION CIRCLE MEETS.

George Street Young Ladies Open Season's Meetings.

The first autumn meeting of the Twilight Mission Circle of the George street United Church, was held at seven o'clock on Thursday evening with the president, Miss Helen Burns in the chair. The Scripture was read by Miss Lauretta Sedgwick, and Miss Myrtle Stephens read an interesting story about missionaries.

The meeting took the form of a business one when further arrangements were made for the Produced-in-Canada Fair to be held on Sept. 21st, in the Sunday school auditorium. Splendid reports of donations received were read by those appointed to take charge of the different booths.

Miss A. Bartlett rendered a very pleasing piano solo.

The meeting closed by repeating the "Mizpah Benediction."

Bull Goes On Prod Against Automobile

WABENO, Wis., Sept. 11. — Charles McAllan, a veteran woods man, started here from a lumber camp fifteen miles east in his car with his son. On a narrow road near the camp they met a herd of cattle and slowed down while the cattle scrambled off the highway. A big bull stuck steadfastly in the middle of the road.

McAllan honked. The bull knelt down and executed a menacing flourish of his horns. McAllan began to back away. The bull covered the retreat, pawing up the dust and flourishing his head. McAllan got an ax from the back seat and got off to lure the bull off the road.

The scheme worked. The bull followed him to one side. The boy ran and stepped on the running board on the opposite side and the driver stepped on the gas. The bull, outmanoeuvred, took up the chase, his bumpers lowered for action, but gas won.

Sneak Thief Wrecks Havoc In Cemetery

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 11. — A peculiar kind of thief is at work under cover of darkness at Woodlawn Cemetery here. Unscrupulous persons are stealing the flowers off graves and now someone has taken a fancy to vases, pots and other receptacles containing the flowers.

One citizen on visiting a grave found that vases and pots had been stolen, the flowers having been dumped out and unceremoniously scattered about. Investigating, he found many other graves had been treated in a similar way.

MILE-A-MINUTE GIRL WILL RIDE

"Buster," Hurt On Way From Montreal, Able To Take Place in Act.

KNEE INJURED.

"Buster," the mile-a-minute girl at the autodrome with the Sheesley Shows, will ride to-day. This was the report she gave The Examiner herself. Wearing a narrow strip of sticking plaster over her left temple as a remider of her recent accident near Brockville, she appeared to be in the best of mood and seemed anxious to be on the job. "The show must go on. I am the only girl in the act, and I will ride," she said. Her knee was slightly injured, but it gets better as she keeps moving, and so to-day she will be on the job.

"Buster" suffered a slight accident as she was motoring up from Montreal on Sunday, but she will be on hand for to-day's performance. As one of the riders remarked, "You can'tkill her kind."

Coming out in front of another car to pass it, an automobile struck the car carrying the girl and forced it into the ditch, turning it over and demolishing it, after which it burned. "Buster" was pinned under the car, but was pulled out by those who had escaped. An ambulance call was sent in as they believed her to be more seriously injured than she was. In the hospital she was found to be suffering from a scalp wound, in which stitches were taken and she will be in shape again to perform today. All reports tell that she is anxious to get on the job.

"Buster's" name is Nadine Gavin. Her companion was Robert Johnston, a lion trainer with the shows.

LABOR IN FAVOR OF 40-HOUR WEEK

Trades Congress Votes For Five Day Week in Industry.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.— (Canadian Press.)—The Trades and Labor Congres sof Canada, in convention here to-day, went on record in favor of shortening the hours of labor to 40 hours a week of five working days. The proposal met with unanimous approval and many delegates uregd that the passing of mere "pious resolutions" was not enough. Some were in favor of securing compulsory legislation while others advocated a persistent, energetic campaign among worekrs and employers throughout Canada.

The tremendous increase in the productivity of the individual worker, due to the introducing of advanced types of machinery was the chief reason advanced for the proposal. This development, it was feared, would result in increasing unemployment, were the present working schedule continued.

The Congress, however, will not tolerate any reduction in the standards of living, and it is stipulated that the weekly wage of the shorter schedule must be as high or higher than that paid at present. The demand for shorter hours is thus coupled with a demand for higher wages per hour, in order to equalize the weekly return to the worker.

A proposal for recognition of the all-Canadan Congress of Labor by making overtures of union met with sharp disapproval and was rejected. It was suggested that in the interests of trade union unity negotiations for the amalgamation of the Trades and Labor Congress with the Canadian Congress be opened.

EVERYTHING READY FOR FAIR WHEN FINAL MEETING IS HELD

Best Horse Races Ever Seen Here Promised By Stan Lowe.

ENTRY LISTS LARGE.

More Than Eighty Farm Young People Enter For Judging Competitions.

"Well, Webber, what can we do for you?" asked President Roland Denne, as he opened last night's Exhibition Board meeting in the Main building at the grounds.

"Turn off the water and turn it quickly" was Director Turner's ready reply, prompted, no doubt, by a sudden sweep of wind and rain which swept the building. And that was the one and only reference to the inclement weather conditions which had rendered impractical the staging of the grand stand program — closed the midway shows and rides —and cut down the attendance at opening night of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, 1928 edition, which from the point of entries in every competition and event, and interest already aroused, appears certain to exceed the fondest expectations of a capable directorate of which co-operation is the keynote.

All was optimistic at the final "check-up" J. O. (Ormie) Ball, to whom all pertaining to horses at the "Ex" is of vital importance, declared that all is clear sailing in his department, other directors in charge of various phases of the big fair had similar satisfactory progress to report, some of them calling attention to minor details yet to be attended to "when things get going".

Splendid Races Assured

One of the most enthusiastic persons in attendance at last night's meeting was Alderman Stan Lowe, who, as supervisor of the track programs for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, has been on the jump continually. "You're going to see the best races ever held in Peterborough or I miss my guess," he declared. Director Lowe stated that more than ever before, outside race men have shown an inclination to enter the various classes and as a result, horses will be present from as far west as Goderich, and as far east as Quebec. "There will be local horses out there too, and rather than only one race a day, there will be two complete and separate events in the afternoon of each of the last three days" he concluded.

Director J. B. Nelson, of the Department of Agriculture was another enthusiast. In giving details of the live stock judging and Domestic Science competitions, as arranged by his department in conjunction with the Exhibition, he stated that more than eighty boys and girls from the surrcunding district have sent in their entries—which should be convincing, even to the most confirmed pessimist.

In closing the meeting, President Denne referred to the Exhibition as being farther ahead than ever before at corresponding periods. "The exhibits are better and more numerous—the books are well balanced and everything points to a banner year. Let us have everything going at full speed to-morrow, for it is Children's Day, and therefore an important one," said he.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS.

NUT GROWING IS PROFITABLE

Northern Nut Growers Holding Annual Convention in Toronto.

MANY VARIETIES.

TORONTO, Ont., September 11 (Special to The Examiner). — "Grow nuts for pleasure and profit" is the slogan on display in the convention room of the Northern Nut Growers' Association in the King Edward Hotel.

That nut growing is making rapid progress in Canada is demonstrated by the display of many varieties grown in Ontario and British Columbia.

The Ontario exhibit includes ten distinct varieties: English walnuts, Japanese hart nuts, hickories, filberts, almonds, sweet chestnuts, hybrid chestnuts, butter nuts, black walnuts, and ginkos. The British Columbia exhibit provided by J. A. Gellatly, of Gellatly, B.C., in the Okanagan Valley, includes elever varieties of filberts, thirteen of hart nuts, two varieties of almonds, three varieties of black walnuts, butter nuts, five of English walnuts, Suboldina, Japanese walnuts, chestnuts and ginkos.

"If you grow sweet cherries, you can grow any of the nuts shown here is an explanation of nut growing possibilities.

"One grower in British Columbia received $200 for the crop of nuts on five trees alone last year," Mr. Gellatly said. "Nut cultivation is similar to apple growing in many respects," he stated. "The trees come into bearing a little sooner, and their care is much the same."

Meeting for the first time in Canada, the association opened its nineteenth convention yesterday. Con. Gibbons extended a welcome on behalf of the city. Urged particularly is the use of nut trees for shade and ornamental purposes about homes, parks, and along highways. Dr. J. Russel Smith, of Columbia University, New York City, paid tribute to the work of the late J. F. Jones, who, he said, had done more than anyone else in the deevlopment of nut growing in North America.

In an illustrated address, John W. Hushey, of Downington, Penna., reviewed nut cultivation through the centuries. "Long before man knew anything about meat or eggs he lived on delicious nuts," he said. He quoted the first chapter of Genesis to show that nuts were one of the first foods God gave man.

HELD FOR ARSON.

Toronto Man Arrested Following Fire in Neighbor's Factory.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Following a fire which caused damage to the Memorial Granite Works on Eglinton Avenue here to-day, Richard Vromley was arrested on a charge of arson. James Rathney, owner of the granite works and a neighbor of Vromley, laid the information.

113 RESOLUTIONS BEFORE CONGRESS

Labor Body Has Great Deal of Work Still in Prospect.

TORONTO, September 11. Canadian Press. — The continued consideration of a good number of resolutions presented by local labor organizations occupied the Trades and Labor Congree of Canada, at the opening of the second day of its 44th annual convention to-day. In all there are more than 113 resolutions to be considered and only 14 had been disposed of at the end of yesterday's session.

This afternoon the convention is to hear addresses by fraternal delegates from the American Federation of Labor, British labor organizations, and the women's labor league of the United States.

Every day while she is in London, Princess Arthur of Connaught goes to a hospital, puts on a nurse's uniform, and spends an hour or two doing the ordinary work of a nurse.

NEW SPECIES OF FISH ARE ADDED TO COLLECTION

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Sept. 11. —A recent addition to the new aquarium here is the Schoolmaster fish, which has two rows of sharp canine teeth which snap like those of a dog, giving the fish the popular name of dog-fish.

This savage denizen of the sea has frequently taken off the hand of an unwary fisherman in a single snap. Two other dangerous fish besides the well-known shark ,are the green moray and the spider fish.

Crawling Body.

The wriggling, vindictive green moray, his slimy, carwling body looping endlessly through rocky grottoes, keeps his small head and voracious mouth ever in motion. The spider fish carries a painful sting in each of his multiplicity of feelers Another savage specimen is the scuttle, half devil, half octopus, with a bag-like body, having the strange power of changing color and pattern at will, and this magical transformation goes on continuously with the changing moods of the fish. There is also the curious squid, the originator of the smoke screen who blinds his enemy with a discharge of sepia and escapes in the murky waters

LOG STEALING CASE IN COURT

Dummer Man Charged With Taking Lumber From Stoney Lake.

REMANDED FOR WEEK.

A determined effort is being put forward by Provincial Constable Harry Thompson to put an end to the wholesale stealing of lumber and other drift woods that has been going on in the upper lakes. For some time it has been known that the logs and lumber which have become stranded on the shore after the high water subsides in the spring have been collected by people and either sold or held in their possession.

Kenneth Hull, of the Township of Dummer, who resides on the shores of Stoney Lake, was the first to be arrested by the Provincial Constable on this charge. Hull was arraigned in Police Court this morning on three theft charges. Through his counsel, B. Park, he asked for a remand without election on the major charge, which was for taking timber, saw logs or other kinds of lumber which had been adrift on Stoney Lake and were the property of the Peterborough Lumber Company.

A second charge to which he pleaded not guilty was that of taking a wooden table, cedar wheel, and numerous door hinges to the value of $20, the property of Harvey Windover. The third charge, to which he also entered a plea of not guilty, was that of taking part of a canthook, the property of William Murphy, which was valued at $1.75.

Bail was fixed at $2,000, with two securities of $1,000 each. A remand was granted for one week, but in the meantime Mr. Park will intimate to Crown Attorney Hatton, K.C., how he intends to elect so that the case may be gone on with when called.

The major charge is laid under Section 394 (1) of the Criminal Code which fixes three years' imprisonment for those who are found guilty of fraudulently taking, holding, keeping in their possession, collecting, concealing, receiving, appropriating, purchasing or selling or causing to be sold lumber, logs, or timber which are found adrift on the bank or beach of any river, lake or stream in Canada. The section also includes those who assist in carrying out the above infractions of the law.

LEAGUE COVENANT REVISION REFUSED

GENEVA. Sept. 11.— (Canadian Press.) —A resolution for a revision of the covenant of the League of Nations to bring it into harmony with the Kellogg-Briand pact renouncing war was rejected by the League Assembly to-day, on the grounds that the pact was not yet in force and that the delegations were not empowered to discuss it at present.

Eight Answers For "To Let" Ad.

James Gray, of 688 George street, advertised in The Examiner on Friday that he had a house to rent.

Shortly after six he had eight or nine applicants and had it rented immediately.

These results show two facts that empty houses are scarce in Peterborough and further that The Examiner as a classified advertising medium is very effective.

LANGSER SAYS HE CAN SOLVE SMALL'S CASE

Scientist Asserts Theatrical Magnate Was Murdered in Cold Blood.

CHARGES TO FOLLOW.

Police Agree That Murder Caused Disappearance—Cannot Prove Charge at Present.

(Canadian Press)

CALGARY, Sept. 11.—"Ambrose Small, theatre magnate, of Toronto, was murdered. His disappearance was the result of murder of the most cold-blooded type, and I will have the evidence so conclusive within a month that charges will be laid in the Ontario courts."

This was the announcement made to The Calgary Herald yesterday by Maximilian A. Langsner, internationally known criminologist, of Vienna, who aided Alberta police in a quick solution of the Vernon Booher case early this summer, in which the 20-year-old farmer lad confessed to having killed his mother, two brothers and a hired man.

"I have been working on the Small case for about a month," stated Dr. Langsner, "and I can say positively that I will have the case solved within a month. I have progressed so far that I can say without hesitation that Mr. Small's death was the result of cold-blooded murder by persons now living.

Certain of His Facts

"I have been handicapped to some extent owing to the great amount of money involved in the case, and which provided the motive, but I never make an announcement unless I am sure that I have the facts. When I have completely gathered all the evidence I need, those responsible will never be able to escape," he explained.

Dr. Langsner carried letters of thanks and endorsation from police captains and government officials of a score of countries, as his work has taken him around the world. He was kidnapped for 14 days in China but succeded in rounding up a score of Chinese kidnappers and murderers as a result of his harrowing experiences.

He claims also to have solved the mystery surrounding the death of Lord Carnarvon for the Egyptian government. The criminologist will remain in Calgary for a few days, and has been in the city on several occasions, although he often visits cities without permitting his identity to be known.

Dr. Langsner's work was best displayed before Alberta residents in his quick solution of the Vernon Booher case in July when he found the rifle used in the quadruple shooting and later obtained a confession from the young man.

Theory Widely Held.

TORONTO, September 11. — If there are any charges to be laid in the Ontario courts arising out of the disappearance of Ambrose J. Small from his office in the Grand Opera House, on the night of Dec. 2, Cuddy of the Ontario Provincial Police, knows nothing of them. The Deputy Commissioner, who is a former Toronto detective and inspector, knew Ambrose Small personally and has his own opinions regarding what happened to the theatrical millionaire.

"The theory that Ambrose Small was murdered, is not new," said the Deputy Commissioner last night. "Every police officer closely associated with the case, was of the same opinion. But the failure of the police to prove that the missing man was actually dead was fatal to any charge of murder."

While the courts declared Ambrose Small dead on affidavits and other material submitted by Mrs. Small and others, including police officers on the case, there was no evidence that could have been used in the criminal courts to support a charge of murder, had one been laid.

Little Hope of Solution

Toronto and Ontario police officers have now little hope of ever solving the mystery of the disappearance of Ambrose Small, who vanished on the same day that his safety deposit box vault in the Dominion Bank was robbed of $105,000 in Victory bonds Ever since the night, nine years ago, when Small was last seen in his office the police have entertained hopes that something would turn up that would explain the case which had world-wide interest, but at the present time it is on the records of unsolved mysteries.

Deputy Commissioner Cuddy recalled last night that Dr. Langsner had recently offered his services to the Attorney-General of Ontario and the Chief Constable of Toronto, but had received no encouragement. Mayor McBride, speaking for the Board of Police Commissioners at the time, said Dr. Langsner, if he desired to come to

FOUR DURHAM BOYS WIN HONORS

SECTIONAL RALLY OF W. M. S. AT WOOLER GREAT SUCCESS

Large Number of Ladies Gather at United Church for Meetings.

MUCH BUSINESS

Interesting Reports Given on Different Phases of Missionary Effort.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WOOLER, Sept. 11.—The Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada for the eastern section of Cobourg Presbyterial held its third annual meeting at Wooler on Thursday, September 6. The morning session opened at 9.30 when the devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Harper, of Warkworth. Mrs. George Adams, of Carmen, was the appointed secretary for the day and Mrs. Arkells, of Warkworth, Mrs. Keith Montgomery of Brighton, and Mrs. Lee, of Hilton, formed the Courtesy committee.

Address of Welcome.

The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Clarence McMasters. "A few weeks ago we celebrated the 25th anniversary of Wooler United church and we therefore feel it a privilege to have this third sectional meeting here at this time and the annals of our church will record an event of which the members of our local organization will always feel justly proud. This may be the first time some of us have had an opportunity of meeting, but I am sure we do not look on each other as strangers, as we are all members of one vast organzation having a common interest at heart, each striving to contribute in some small way to the extension of God's kingdom upon earth. In joining an organiaztion each member agrees, tacitly, at least, to assume the responsibilities and obligations imposed and the practice of its moral principles strengthens and adorns the character of the member. Your presence here today is proof of your interest in the work and your desire to co-operate in carrying it on. Meetings of this nature are always an inspiration and create greater enthusiasm and judging from the program before us I am sure at the close of the day we will each say, "It was good for me to be here."

"Our society is judged by the work it does and its success or failure is entirely due to the work of the individual members. Success depends upon effort, honest effort is usually crowned with success. When we think of such men as Father Damien, who gave his life to ameliorate the condition of the unfortunate lepers of the Sandwich Islands and died of the dread disease at last, or of David Livingstone who spent the greater part of his life amid the tropical forests and jungles of Central Africa in an effort to bring the benefits of religion and civilization to the black inhabitants; or that of Dr.

SHOWER HELD AT LAKEFIELD

Miss Viola Roseborough Honored by Friends at Social Evening.

RECEIVES GIFTS

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 11.—A pleasant social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyl of Selwyn on Friday evening, August 31st, when about seventy-five friends and neighbors gathered to present Miss Viola Roseborough with a miscellaneous shower prior to her marriage to Mr. Russel Davis.

Mrs. Albert Hughes officiated at the piano, playing music suitable for such a happy occasion and two young ladies, intimate friends of the bride, carried in a basket filled to overflowing with gifts, each bearing a message of good will. These young ladies were Misses Jean McIlmoyl and Helen McConkey. The accompanying address, read by Miss Cora Tully, expressed in fitting terms the good wishes of the community to the happy couple. Miss Roseborough replied gracefully thanking her friends for their generous gifts and the kindly spirit which prompted the giving.

Refreshments were served and a social hour was spent.

Postponement.

The regular meeting of the Junior Institute has been postponed till Wednesday, September 19th, when the debate arranged at the last meeting will be held.

FACTORIES BUSY IN TRENT TOWN

Weston Shoe Company and Campbellford Cloth Mill Rushed.

PULP MILL WORKING

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 11. — Signs of prosperity not far in the distance are more and more in evidence in Campbellford as each day passes. Heavy trucks no longer ply the streets with their loads of cold sand or hot asphalt. The rumble of these huge, fast moving vehicles is missed by many, but industries of a less noisy or noticeable variety are taking their place.

This month the town was brought to the front by the fact that the Weston Shoe Company installed a machine for the manufacture of fine shoes by a process entirely new to the Canadian trade. An interview with the representative of the manufacturing firm, revealed the fact that others would be installed in the Province and Dominion, but the one in Campbellford is the first to be set up and put in operation in Canada. In another forty-eight hours, the samples produced by this machine, this mechanical cobbler who accomplishes his work without either thread or tacks, will be on the road being displayed to the various shoe firms throughout Canada. In less than a month the factory here will be filling orders for the work of this machine.

Practically every day there appears in the daily paper, and advertisement from the Campbellford Cloth Company for help, both male and female. Asked if considerable work were in sight in the woollen line, an official of the company here expressed the opinion that there would be plenty of work for the winter. He expected the mill would be running pretty well to capacity for several months.

Yesterday the paper mill was shut down temporarily while a general clean-up was in progress. The various rooms and departments were given a thorough cleansing and generally set in order. Repairs are also being made to the roof of the wing which houses the long paper machine.

While the pulp mill is not running to full capacity, it is a hive of industry. Three of the five machines are in operation while in the grinder room there is a steady flow of pulp from the machines. Meanwhile there is a big hole being made in the supply of pulpwood stocked like a miniature mountain range just outside the grinder room door.

MILLBROOK C.G.I.T. GATHER AT PICNIC

Members of Wide Awake Group Enjoy Out-of-Doors Gathering.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 11.—The members of the Wide Awakes group, Canadian Girls in Training, held a pleasant out of doors gathering at the Grove on Thursday, twenty or more being in attendance, and the girls coming immediately after school to the picnic ground.

Three camp fires were soon set going, the items on the supper menu which were to be served hot, bacon, beans, and coffee, sending out an appetizing odor once the process of cooking was well under way.

Games of various kinds filled in the time happily both before and after the tea hour, and as darkness descended the entire group gathered round a blazing fire and sang choruses and C.G.I.T. songs, ending with 'Taps' before departure was made for the several homes.

The regular meeting this week is on Friday evening at the leader's home.

Mr. W. Williamson was a visitor to the Toronto exhibition this week.

THE WEATHER

The thunderstorm which passed over this district yesterday afternoon about five o'clock was unusually heavy. The electrical display was terrifying to those with weak nerves, and the downpour of rain was especially heavy while it lasted. The total was 1 inch and 14-100ths. During the night there was also some heavy rain, 19-100ths falling—making a total of one inch and one-third. Last night was warmer than for some time past, the temperature only going down to 60 degrees.—W.P.

Meteorological Office, Toronto, Sept 10.—Pressure is relatively low over the Upper Lakes and over the South-Western States and high off the Atlantic coast. Local showers and thunderstorms have occurred in Ontario and Quebec, while in the West it is mostly fair and moderately warm. Fairly high temperature has prevailed in South-Western Ontario.

Forecasts.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh north-easterly winds; partly to mostly cloudy and cool; local showers.

Western Provinces—Mostly fair and moderately warm; a few local showers.

WEATHER GOOD FOR LATE WORK

Weed Killing and Second Hay Cutting Proceed Rapidly.

PLOWING DIFFICULT

(Examiner Correspondence).

WARSAW, Sept. 11.—The weather of the last week has been splendid for killing weeds, as well as for those who had to finish their summer harvest, and for those who have second cuts of hay, Hungarian and buckwheat.

Plowing on clay soil is hard, for the heavy rains have packed the clay, and the heat has baked it. However, it is the first time that this season has aided the farmer on the weeds question.

The regular meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute will be held at Mrs. David Miller's home on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 13, at half-past two o'clock. Mrs. Cameron is expected to address the ladies. There is business regarding the School Fair, also regarding the twenty-fifth anniversary to be brought up.

Mr. Rosborough preached in the Baptist Church on Sunday morning and Mr. Eikenaar in the Presbyterian Church in the evening.

There was a baptismal service in the Anglican Church on Sunday morning.

Dummer School Fair will be held in Warsaw on Friday, September 21.

The school teachers in Dummer are: Cottesloe, Miss Grosit; Ninth Line, Miss Rodman; Fourth Line, Miss Calder; Third Line, Miss McIlmoyle; Warsaw, Mr. Gardiner, senior room, Miss Sadie Young, junior room; Garbutt's Union, Miss Madill; Forsythe's Union, Mr. Everett Sloan; South Dummer Union, Miss Cameron; Clarina; Miss Stotchner.

Mr. Sloan lives in Warsaw, and motors to his school daily; Mr. Gardiner motors daily from his home in Peterborough.

On Thursday morning before school John Dewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dewart, dislocated his elbow while playing football. He was taken to Dr. Munro. The dislocation was reduced and the lad taken home. He is doing nicely, but will be out of school for a time.

APSLEY FAIR GREAT SUCCESS

Renewal After 25-Year Lapse Attracts Many Entries.

HUNDREDS ATTEND

APSLEY, Sept. 11. —(Examiner Correspondence). —The president and director of the Apsley Agricultural Society are to be congratulated on the great success of their fall fair which took place on Wednesday and Thursday, the first event of its kind after a lapse of thirty and forty years ago are unanimous in declaring it the most successful of any ever held here and never since Apsley was settled has there been so many people in the place at one time. There must have been at least eight hundred people here on Thursday, $159.50 being taken in gate receipts, with an admission charge of 25 cents and 15c for children. The total number of exhibits were 515, the hall not being nearly large enough to show them to advantage. The ladies' work section produced 254 entries, and there was a very good showing of roots and vegetables, home made baking and flowers. The live stock entries might have been larger, but for a a first affair of its kind in their generation, was quite encouraging to the directors. Mr. Spence, the secretary who had worked hard in the interests of the fair, had to attend the annual meeting of Archdeacons and Rural Deans of the Diocese of Toronto, in Toronto on Thursday and his place on that day was filled by Rev. W. H. Taylor.

The Lakefield Citizens' Band rendered music during the afternoon, making history for Apsley, and proving a big drawing card, this being the first time for a great number of years that a band had been heard here. In the trials of speed (free for all) Jay C. (Vernal Windsor) took first money; Jim Shell (Frank Graham, Coe Hill) second; Ella Todd (Walter Tucker) third. In the Farmer's Green Race Ella Todd was first; Lou Todd second, Stella third. The best lady driver was Miss Agnes Byers of the Red Cross Hospital, and Mrs. Stanley Windsor was second.

The weather for both days was ideal, and no untoward incident marred the success of what is hoped will be Apsley's annual fall fair.

FIRE DAMAGES EMILY HOUSE

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Pogue Return Home to Find House on Fire.

TICK SMOTHERS FLAMES

(Examiner Correspondence).

OMEMEE, Sept. 11.—The Omemee Fire Chief and equipment made a hurried trip to the farm of Vincent Pogue about three miles west of Omemee at midnight on Saturday, where it was feared the residence could not be saved. Mr. and Mrs. Pogue and family had been in Lindsay for the evening, and upon their arrival home, saw a light in one of the bedrooms upstairs. They rushed to the room, but the intense smoke almost overcame them, and kept anyone from entering. A ladder was raised to the window, but the draft fanned the fire which had started under the bed near the wall, and had it not been for the feather tick falling and smothering the flames, the damage would no doubt have been much worse. As it is, a large square was burned in the floor and the furniture destroyed in the room, while large blisters were raised on the door casings and elsewhere in the adjoining rooms. The smoke made its way everywhere and caused destruction to wearing apparel, curtains, etc., there being only one room in the house left unmarred. Much damage was also done by water, which was used before the chemicals arrived.

Practically all the furniture was removed from the house, but was returned later by many willing friends and neighbors who had gathered.

The cause of the fire is entirely unknown, but it must have been smoldering for several hours.

Some insurance is carried.

LAD DROWNED IN FRENCH RIVER

PARRY SOUND, Ont., September 11. — The five-year-old son of Gordon Elder, French River, was drowned on Sunday morning within fifteen feet of the dock at that place. The father and two boys, aged three and five, were starting out for a picnic on a motor boat. Soon after the engine started the boat tipped and began to fill with water. Elder jumped out and attempted to push the boat to shore, but it overturned and he was able to rescue only the younger boy. The body of the lad was recovered in about 20 minutes, but all efforts to revive him were in vain.

BUSINESS POLICY TALK
No. 4—By H. E. M.

THE REAL VALUE OF AN ESTIMATE

It Gives an Approximate Idea of the Total Cost

IN conjunction with the Standard Cost System operated by The Examiner, we have an Estimating Blank which covers completely all the operations necessary in any given job.

We are always glad to give any customer or prospective customer an estimated price on any copy submitted.

This estimate is not given with the idea that it is a competitive price, but as a guide to the customer in making up appropriations.

An estimated price given by The Examiner is always an "outside" price, that is, it is figured to meet every contingency that may arise in the execution of the job. This "outside" price is not an arbitrary figure to the customer, but it is the highest price the customer would be charged for the job under ordinary copy conditions.

There are no "extras" when you get an estimated price from The Examiner. You get what you pay for in dollar for dollar value. We know that this is the only satisfactory basis on which to operate our business for the benefit of our customers and ourselves.

The day of shaving prices in competition is gone in legitimate business. No printer can afford to do it if he intends to stay in business and render service and satisfaction to his customers and make a profit on his investment.

This is our idea of "giving the same treatment to one and all."

INJURED PEACEMAKER GIVEN NO SATISFACTION IN COURT

Brantford, Ont., September 11. — If a man tries to act as peacemaker between two men who are endeavoring to settle a dispute with nature's weapons and gets struck while attempting to separate the combatants he can expect no redress in Police Court,

Such was the decision of Magistrate Jones in the case of Archie Nessessian, who wasc harged with assaulting Gaetano Rossi, proprietor of a shoe shining parlor on Dalhousie Street. Nessessian entered the shop the other night, pulled the hair of one of Rossi's assistants, and in consequence had a plentiful supply of shoe polish smeared over his features and was pushed to the door. Returning at a later hour, the accused man started in to mix things up with one of Rossi's men and the proprietor interceded just in time to connect with one of Nessessian's right swings. The assailant, however, carried the inert Rossi to a drug store next door and saw that his facial injury was properly attended to.

Rossi said Nessessian was intoxicated, while the accused explained he had entered the shop "just in fun at first," but that a dispute had developed.

Magistrate Jones declared that as the blow was not intended for Rossi and he was the unfortunate victim of an accident while attempting to separate two combatants, it did not come under the Criminal Code, and he therefore discharged the accused.

FOUR CARS SKID INTO SAME DITCH

Several Injured in Series of Accidents On Hill Near Bradford.

BRADFORD, Sept. 11.—Eight Toronto motorists and one from Waterdown and four automobiles, all south-bound, came to grief within five minutes of each other within a radius of scarcely 40 feet at McCloud's Hill, one mile north of Bradford, at 5.30 last night.

Following rain, the road was extremely slippery, and when the first car, owned and driven by Robert McNair, 2194 Queen street east, Toronto, skidded into the ditch, the others, applying brakes as they came upon the scene, were also ditched.

The most serious hurts were suffered by Dr. C. J. Wagner, 400 Jarvis street, Toronto, who received shoulder injuries believed to be a fracture. Several ribs were broken as well. He and the other injured were attended to by Dr. Campbell of Bradford, and proceeded to their homes.

The first car, after it had skidded, struck a post and did not leave the road entirely. This, perhaps, was the cause of the other spills; for, to avoid striking McNair's car, Walter Moynihan, 80 Elmer avenue, Toronto, who was following closely, applied the brakes and skidded into the same ditch. Considerable glass in his sedan was broken, but Moynihan escaped without injury.

Following Moynihan's car was a coupe, driven by Miss Lilian Andrews, 373 Parkside Drive, Toronto. Although some yards back of the preceding auto, brakes failed to hold her car, and it plunged into the ditch, throwing both Miss Andrews and her companion, Miss Doris Bews, of Waterdown, out of the car. Beyond serious shock, however, neither was hurt.

Dr. Wagner's car, the fourth vehicle involved, was occupied by himself, his wife, his daughter Jean and Miss Betty Walker, 20 Dundonald street, Toronto. Their car, too, took to the west ditch, where the other three had gone, the only occupant injured being the driver, Dr. Wagner, who was jolted into the steering wheel.

Highway Traffic Officer George Buck, of Bradford, who was soon upon the scene, summoned medical help, rendered first aid and arranged for the transportation of the nine victims, the cars being too seriously damaged to continue without major repairs.

Accident at Barrie.

BARRIE, Sept. 11.—Four Hamilton people, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prack,, address not stated; John Brodie, 1375 Cannon street, and Mrs. Edgar I. Sifton, 33 Markland street, are in Royal Victoria Hospital here suffering from more or less serious injuries as a result of a motor accident at 4.30 yesterday afternoon. All will recover.

Oshawa Man Killed.

OSHAWA, Sept. 11.—Injured in an auto crash Saturday afternoon, Edgar Pratt, 33, of 496 Mary street, this city, died in Oshawa General Hospital late Sunday night. Coroner Dr. D. S. Doig ordered an inquest which was impanelled yesterday afternoon, adjourning until September 17. Wilmot Campbell, this city, in custody on charge of manslaughter as a result of the smash, was yesterday remanded until Sept. 18 without bail. Campbell's car struck a telephone pole which snapped and hit the victim.

Pratt had been employed by General Motors of Canada for 15 years, being foreman of the tool room, and served overseas during the war.

URGES FACTORIES TO LET MEN OFF

Head Of Manufacturers' Association Suggests Thursday As Fair Day.

A most difficult problem in almost every community is solved for Peterborough and district by the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, in uniting the effort and enlisting the co-operation of the city man and the farmer, the manufacturer and the merchant towards building up our Exhibition to its present high standard of excellence.

The manufacturers of Peterborough have contributed, financially and otherwise, towards the gradual but sure improvement of the Exhibition premises, and have in many ways displayed a quiet commendable interest which must have been helpful and encouraging to the Exhibition executive.

To have the whole-hearted co-operation which has built our Exhibition continue in the future, we, as citizens and patrons, must do something annually towards extending the fame of our Exhibition and "boosting" the attendance.

In this connection it is understood that a number of Peterborough manufacturers are planning to close down certain of their Departments during Thursday afternoon of this week, which is Manufacturers' Day. By so doing they will give their employees an opportunity to spend a whole afternoon and evening at the Exhibition, which is little enough time when one considers the great variety of attractions and exhibits, all of them interesting from a community stand-point. The Association recommends that as many employees as possible be permitted to visit the Exhibition during the afternoon and evening of Manufacturers' Day.

Chairman Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Peterborough Branch.

struck sixteen inches of ore in the south drift at the lowest level. Sidney Normar, editor of Canadian Mining World, who has just returned to Toronto after inspecting Slocan Rambler and other western properties, commenting upon the news, says that it is one of the most important events in recent history in the Slocan district. The heding in which the strike was made is 1400 feet vertically from surface, or about 1600 feet on the dip of the vein, and 1,000 feet south of the point where the long crosscut intersects the vein. The ground above is virgin, indicating that an entirely new mine is in the making. By extending the main crosscut, a matter of 200 feet, it is believed that the same shear zone may be intersected, thus opening up 1000 feet on the length of the vein with very little work. The ore yielded by Rambler in the past has been consistently high in silver content—with an average of over 100 ounces for more than $2,000,000 worth shipped. Property is already equipped with 100 ton mill and tramway of 2½ miles. Electric haulage is being provided and will great expedite development.

Evidence that Flour Mills Have Closed More Favourable Year—Outlook For Ansuring Year is Brighter.

Most of Canada's flour mills closed their fiscal years last month. It is expected that when the annual statements appear larger earnings will be shown that the previous year, in the face of somewhat difficult conditions continued to obtain in foreign markets. Production during the period showed a substantial increase. Total production for the crop year 1927-28 amounted to 18,910,000 barrels against 17,838,000 barrels in the previous year, while exports were up from 9,247,000 to 9,865,000 barrels.

The outlook for the opening year is brighter. One favorable factor will be the lower prices for wheat, which will help to sell flour in competitive markets and another is the high grade wheat that is being harvested this season, which will make Canadian flour conspicuous from quality standpoint.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—A despatch from Porcupine states that Coniaurum production for August will run between $45,000 and $50,000. Slightly less than 250 tons are being milled daily, the grade of ore averaging between $6 and $7 per ton. Millheads are expected to improve considerably when timbering of stopes have been completed. There are no immediate plans to raise the tonnage.

The despatch also states that the Goldale shaft has not yet been dewatered and that this 500-foot shaft will eventually be connected with the Coniaurum workings.

Barry-Hollinger is now reported to be in 85 feet of ore at the 1,250-foot level, with neither wall showing and the face of the drift still in ore. When last heard from they were said to be in 72 feet. The ore is of good grade. Barry appears to have wakened from a trance marketwise and is now one of the active issues of the board.

Further reports of the strike at Graham Bosquet came from Amos this morning. This was to the effect that the workings were in 35 feet of ore in a crosscut on the 250-foot level. Nine feet of this ore was said to run $12 with the balance grading approximately $8. It is understood that a new level will be established at 250 feet. The mining plant and machinery is said to be giving good service and the shaft is reported at over 155 feet—on its way to 500 feet.

Diamond drilling at Noranda is said to have cut rich ore in the "B" ore body at 600 feet depth. It is said that three shifts are working daily on the 800-foot level in the hope of cutting an extension of this indicated ore. The opinion in Rouyn seems to be that Noranda have three rich ore bodies partially developed at depth.

Recent strength in Moss Mines shares may be attributed to a report that a new vein has been struck on the 125-foot level of this property. Crosscutting from the old shaft on the company's Huronian property to the new shaft, now being sunk to 400 feet, is said to have encountered a new vein at the 125-foot level. The existence of this was unknown previously and it is reported to carry tellurides and free gold.

March Gold in Deloro township in the Porcupine area, is said to have resumed shaft sinking and deepening of the winze, now at 475 feet, which may be carried to a depth of 1,000 feet. Operating conditions have improved greatly during the summer months with a profit unofficially reported for June and July as compared with an even break during May. The mill is said to be averaging between 140 and 150 tons per day with millheads around $8. Diamond drilling underground is said to have blocked out sufficient ore for one year's milling. The downward extension of the vein was cut at a depth of 550 feet, showing increased mineralization in the first hole.

Word has been received from Will Halloran, superintendent of development of the Arizona Premier property of Old Colony Mines, that the 4,500-foot level has been connected with the Prince George shaft, opening up a productive area that has been under water for fifteen years and exposing what may prove to be a very material ore body. The workings are not yet free of water but preliminary sampling has yielded favorable results.

Offer Made for Vickers Mines Common Not Abana Mines

Alfred Sabred, President of the Abana Mines in denying the report that negotiations had been under way for the purchase of Abana Mines states that following an examination of the Abana Property by engineers of the Consolidated Goldfields of South Africa negotiations to purchase Vickers and thus acquire control of 5,000 shares of Abana took place. An office of Vickers states that he told the Consolidate representatives that the purchase of Vickers would be $3,000,000. Negotiations went no further.

President Savard officially states there is nothing to worry about and that any water could be removed in a few days.

Necessary repairs are being made to the boilers and compressors, with the results that pumping is suspended until air pressure is again available. In addition to this information it is learned that officials of the Canadian National Railways have left for the mine to ascertain the conditions of the property, with a view to building a spur line. It is believed by officials of Abana that such an examination of the mine could not be made if serious flood conditions prevail.

The new 550 h.p. Diesel engine should be in operation within three weeks, Abana officials believe, and at the present rate of progress it is confidently expected that production will be under way by the end of the year.

Regarding the insinuation that the ore reserves estimated $30,000,000 are not accurate and have been only indicated through diamond drilling. President Savard states that this estimate is very conservative. On the 300-foot level before the dyke was crossed, $8,000,000 had been put in sight. After the body had been picked up east of the diabase an ore body just as big and just as rich had been encountered. Drilling to the 600-foot level had proven that the ore was there. The mineralization at Abana was not in lenses but in vertical veins, he said, so that a fairly accurate estimate was possible. At the 600-foot level the gold and silver content of the ore was much higher. The proportion of copper to zinc was about two to one.

The Great Adventure

THIS year, again, five hundred Peterborough youngsters will stride gallantly forth to meet and conquer the threatening ogre of living expenses.

Without experience, with few set preferences in merchandise—and with enthusiasm as their only ally—they will demand from the merchants of Peterborough the inevitable requisites of home-making.

Two hundred and fifty boys will set off for two hundred and fifty jobs with high purpose and renewed determination.

Two hundred and fifty girls, wondering a little, will plan two hundred and fifty homes . . . . and seven hundred and fifty meals a day.

Together, they will excitedly ponder the spending of thousands of dollars.

What kitchen utensils? What furniture? Which curtains? The selection of a rug becomes a problem of infinite dimensions. The buying of a vacuum cleaner is a great adventure! Silverware. Linen. China. Glassware. New food products to meet their divergent tastes . . . . which they stoutly maintain are exactly alike!

Young hopefuls. More alert than any generation the world has ever produced. A generation of readers, trained to recognize advertising as a source of information and a guide to values.

They want two hundred and fifty talking machines . . . . pianos . . . . radios . . . . cars. Some will be able to buy them now. The rest will choose them now.

During this year, the first of wedded life, advertising will give them established preferences in merchandise and in places where they buy it. Familiar store names will spring to their lips . . . . laying the foundation for the buying habits of a lifetime. Next year they will be added to those other thousands who patronize advertising stores as a matter of course.

And The Peterborough Examiner, supreme in its field, is the only medium by which Peterborough merchants can reach these young people just starting The Great Adventure.

LANGSER SAYS

Toronto, must do so at his own expense.

Mrs. Small Silent

Mrs. Ambrose Small last night refused to take any interest in the information contained in the despatch from Calgary. Mrs. Small is still at her Rosedale home which she occupied nine years ago, and has been unceasing in her efforts to second the work of the police in solving the mystery of her husband's disappearance. A good-sized fortune has been spent in search of information which never brought results. Mrs. Small offered large rewards at various times for information. Recently Mrs. Small arranged for the wrecking of the Grand Opera House, from which A. J. Small disappeared. Friends of Mrs. Small say that, while she has hopes of yet getting definite information regarding her husbands absence, she is yearly becoming less confident. Mrs. Small has received thousands of communications regarding the case, many persons offering assistance, but not one letter has proved of any value. Friends of Mrs. Small do not look for any real help from Dr. Langsner.

Inspector Austin Mitchell, who worked on the Ambrose Small case for years, declined last night to make any comment whatever upon the promise of the Austrian criminologist, within one month, to have full details of the 'murder" of Ambrose Small to present to the public.

Assistance Welcome.

TORONTO, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press). Commenting to-day on the announcement made by Dr. Maximillian Langsner, Viennese criminologist, regarding the Ambrose Small case, Inspector of Detectives William Wallace stated that the Toronto Police would welcome any assistance toward a solution of the mystery of the disappearance.

"If he has a solution and tells what he knows about it, we shall be glad to act on whatever he gives us," the inspector said. "In the meantime we have heard nothing from him and can do nothing, but it seems strange that he should make the announcement now that he has solved the mystery and not tell the whole solution," Wallace added.

Mrs. Small refused to discuss Dr. Langsner's announcement.

SUPPORT THE EXHIBITION.

At yesterday's luncheon of the Rotary Club, President W. R. Morris pointed out to the members the desirability of supporting the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition in every way possible.

That is excellent advice, not only for Rotarians, but for citizens generally.

The Exhibition is a community enterprise, bringing together all the varied interests of the city and countryside, and deserves the united support of all citizens, not only because of the education and entertainment it provides, but also because of the splendid advertising it gives this section of the Province.

This year's Exhibition is in every way worthy of patronage and support.

In its wealth of amusement features, its variety of exhibits, its thousand and one attractions, the Peterborough Industrial leaves all previous Exhibitions behind.

All that remains to ensure the greatest success on record is for the people of the city and district to patronize the Exhibition liberally.

Let us see to it that all previous marks are passed before the end of the week.

THE GASOLINE TAX.

The long-expected announcement of the intention of the Ontario Government to increase the gasoline tax from three to five cents a gallon has been made at last, and has been received without much sign of organized protest.

The increase in the levy is to be accompanied by a decrease in the cost of license markers, a sugar coating that will make the pill easier to swallow.

As a matter of fact, it is impossible to attack the gasoline impost successfully and still be logical.

It is based on the simple truth that those who get the most benefit from the roads and inflict the most damage upon them should pay the most, and that is so obviously sound that opposition to the tax has difficulty in getting under way.

The slash in the cost of markers will be appreciated in all quarters, but most among those car-owners who drive but little and those living far from the expensive highways and getting little benefit from the good roads that have cost so much.

It is manifestly a just proposition that the roads should be paid for in proportion to the use made of them, and this condition is attained by a heavier gas tax and a reduction in the license cost.

THE ROSS CHARGE.

Just when it appeared that George Young, the Toronto swimmer, had regained the place in the hearts of his fellow-Canadians that he held when his victory at Catalina was announced, comes the hasty but indefinite story from Norman Ross, of Chicago, that he was offered $10,000 to let Young win the invitation swim on Saturday.

It is to be hoped that the charge made by Ross will be thoroughly ventilated.

The former American champion has said too much or not enough.

The whole future of professional swimming, already menaced by the suffering of the competitors in the third marathon and by the unsatisfactory division of the prize money, is threatened by this allegation.

The charge has not been proven and should be disbelieved until Ross has substantiated his story, if he is able to do so, yet the very fact that it has been made will do much to hurt professional swimming as a sport and to injure the unfortunate Young at the very moment when he appeared to have at last put himself back upon a footing of sound popularity again.

So many disagreeable features have developed in connection with this year's marathon that it would not be surprising to learn that the Canadian National management had decided to eliminate professional swimming from its activities.

UNSEEMLY CONDUCT.

It is with regret that The Examiner feels it necessary to apologize for the conduct of a portion of the huge crowd in attendance at the Sunday evening concert in Victoria Park.

The very fine program given by Lieut. Cervonne and his splendid Pittsburg band was interfered with to a considerable extent by the activities of noisy youngsters, culminating in a mix-up in the immediate vicinity of the bandstand, and, in addition, the enjoyment of many in the audience was lessened because of the incessant noise caused by a constant stream of motor traffic on the streets bounding the park.

These disturbances can to some extent be overlooked, but a more serious offence, as The Examiner sees it, was the spectacle of hundreds of people rushing out of the park while the band was playing "God Save the King."

It was a sorry exhibition, and the impression made upon the American bandsmen, who themselves rose to their feet as they played the National Anthem, must have been decidedly unfavorable.

When a visiting band and that from another country sees such a reaction to the playing of "God Save the King" the opinion formed of the loyalty of its audience is likely to be unflattering to say the least.

Surely it is possible to obtain proper respect for the National Anthem; no one is so pressed for time as to be unable to stand with head uncovered for the moment it takes to pay proper respect to the head of the Empire.

HEED THE RURAL CARRIERS.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Mail Contractors' Association, held in Toronto the other day, brought once more to the attention of the public the unfortunate conditions under which the rural mail contractor carries on his work. Chief among the resolutions passed by the carriers was that requesting the Government to abolish the present contract plan under which mail is delivered in the country, and to bring about the introduction of the salary system on the basis of $70 per mile per year for rural contractors.

The request made by these men is reasonable. What they are asking from the Government is simply a living wage, and to be placed on a similar footing to the postal carriers in the cities of the Dominion. The contract system has outlived its usefulness, and should be discarded without delay. It was given up long ago by the United States Government, and the rural mail men placed on the same basis as other employees of the Postal Department.

The contract system in vogue in Canada has little to commend it except that it is cheap. The man who submits the lowest tender may get the job. Too often it may happen that he will also perform the worst service. The rural mail carriers have protested for long against the present plan, and have petitioned the Government repeatedly to have it changed. Surely the time has come when their plea should be heeded.—The Globe.

CANADA AND THE FREE STATE.

How Canada's Constitution became the inspiration of those who organized the Irish Free State forms an attractive story in the annals of the British Empire. By the formation of the new Irish Constitution, following the truce of 1921, there was ended "one of the great historic feuds of the world, a feud which had a permanent place in world politics," according to Hon. Hugh M. Kennedy, Chief Justice of the Irish Free State, in an address to the Canadian Club yesterday.

The significance of the last reference will be appreciated by those who lived through the later stages of that feud, when the irreconcilable element raised anti-British feeling not only in Ireland, but in many other lands where Irishmen were numerous. The last stages of the feud were particularly bitter, with much loss of life. Suddenly came the truce, and a realization of the possibilities of peaceful co-operation. It was then that the leaders in Ireland turned to Canada, with a history of fifty years of peaceful development as a federation under the British Crown. This Dominion furnished the key of "how the association of Ireland with the community of nations known as the British Empire might best be reconciled with Irish national aspirations."

Canada was preferred to the newer Dominions of Australia and South Africa because in fifty years she had outgrown her colonial status and risen to national stature and national sovereignty. On several points Canada's example was definitely mentioned in the new Irish Constitution, as in the appointment of the Governor-General and his relations to bills on which he would withhold consent, and on the use of the executive authority, while the Free State also forbids acceptance of titles, except with the approval and advice of the Executive Council. On the whole, the practice of the Irish Free State has been to follow the course of Canada in Imperial and external relations, while in domestic matters the paths are rather different.

There is cause for a measure of pride that Canada has contributed something from the book of experience for the guidance of a sister Dominion and that this debt is so freely acknowledged.—The Globe.

BIG BILL IS HOME AGAIN.

"Big Bill" Thompson, the Chicago Mayor who put King George in his place, is back on the job after two months in the woods and lakes of Wisconsin—back at City Hall with a nice, new, innocuous slogan about prosperity.

Things haven't been breaking very well for Bill or his home town during his absence, and Chicago has not figured prominently in the news. New York has had all the subway smashes, Philadelphia is on the front page with a police scandal, but Chicago has failed to produce even a first-class murder. The courts have ruled that Bill himself owes Chicago a great deal of money over some old deals, the British Empire still holds together, the King is in good health and enjoying the shooting. Altogether a bad summer for His Worship. Even in his strictly personal affairs the two months were disappointing. He hoped to remove fifty pounds from the official corporation in the Wisconsin wilds, swimming a half-mile and walking five miles each day, but took off no more than fifteen pounds with all his efforts. If he ever had any intention of entering the Toronto marathon the notion went when the poundage stayed.

Bill is back in Chicago for but a few days. His native heath seems not to interest him so much these days, and he is said to be going this time to New Mexico to remain until the elections are over. One trusts he is not losing his punch and verve under the blows of fortune, because there is still much to be done by such a valiant American patriot. Here's the Prince of Wales setting off on another tour to make new friends for Britain. Here's Mr. Hoover running for President, and one of the whispered arguments against him is that he is so pro-British he once was offered a British title. There are any number of windmills to be slain—and Big Bill the Dauntless goes swimming to reduce his paunch. It's not right.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Make it 45,000. Let's go.

Norman Ross at least chose a good way to get his name on the front page.

The Hamilton Spectator suggests that a good way to save money is to buy the license plates at the bargain figure and then leave the car in the garage.

There's more to see than ever, so you'll need more time at the Peterborough Industrial. Better plan to visit the grounds frequently this week.

Ladies' doubles, Misses M. Nickle and H. Ross for Madoc, against Miss Graham and Miss B. Gordon, was stopped by darkness falling, Madoc players having won 6-2 in first set.

The Question Box

E.E.G.: Q.—1—What is the world's costliest painting and who painted it?

2—What price was recently paid by Sir Joseph Duveen for this painting?

3—Who was its previous owner?

4—What is the Virgin doing in this picture?

5—What inscription in gold letters is on the border of the Madonna's dress?

8—To what school of painting did Raphael belong?

9—What were the chief characteristics of his work?

10—What is the name of the Raphael Madonna in the Royal Gallery at Dresden, which is placed in a separate room, magnificently mounted upon an elevation and enclosed in glass?

A.—1—The painting of the "Madonna and Child," done by Raphael in 1508. It is known as the large Cowper or Niccolini Madonna.

2—The price as declared by him was $875,000.

3—Lady Desborough, who inherited it from her brother, the seventh Earl Cowper. Previous to that it had been purchased out of the Niccolini Palace, Florence, by the third Earl Cowper, then the British Ambassador to the Court of Tuscany, and taken out of Florence in the lining of his carriage.

4—She is looking with maternal tenderness at the infant Christ, who is seated on a cushion on her lap and grasping her bodice with the left hand.

6—"M (D or CCCCC) VIII. R.U. PIN," (i.e., 1508, Raphael of Urbino pinxit.)

7—$800,000, for which Sir Joseph sold Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" to the late Henry E. Huntington, of California, several years ago.

8—The Florentine School, one of the great schools of the renaissance in Italy, whose painters were noted for their great perfection in drawing, composition and expression.

9—His gift for the portrayal of spiritual beauty, perfect composition and harmony of colors.

10—The "Sistine Madonna," which many critics do not hesitate to call the finest picture in the world.

A.—It was held on September 5-7.

GOD'S MINUTE.

I will praise Thy name for Thy loving kindness.—Ps. 138: 2.

O God, our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee this day for our health and strength, for our homes, for our loved ones, for all the blessings and privileges Thou art giving us every day, but more than all these we thank Thee for the gift of Thy dear Son, Jesus Christ. We thank Thee that Thou didst give Him up for thirty-three years, and that He shed His precious blood, and gave His life, a ransom for our sins.

And so, O God, help us to die to self and sin this day. Forgive us for the mistakes of yesterday, and may they be stepping stones to higher and better things today. Breathe into our lives Thy Christlikeness, shine through our eyes, speak with our lips, grip with our hands, throb with our hearts, and may we help bring the world back to Thee.

We would pray Thee for those who are in trouble, for those who are sick, for those who know Thee not. Grant us in our weakness, strength; in our ignorance, knowledge; and in our sickness, Thy healing touch. Bless all the families we represent, and bless our loved ones wherever they are.

We ask these things, with pardon for all our sins, in Christ's name. Amen.

A Thought

THE PILOT KNOWS

Each man is captain of his soul;
And each man his own crew.
But the Pilot knows the unknown seas,
And He will bring us through.

So ho! for the Pilot's orders,
Whatever course He makes;
For He sees beyond the skyline,
And He never makes mistakes.

LINDSAY MAN CHOSEN

BRAMPTON, September 11. — The Brampton Town Council, at a special meeting last night, appointed a town engineer, F. C. McClory, of Lindsay, being chosen from among many applicants, at a salary of $2,100. Mr. McClory, who for two years was Superintendent of Works of Lindsay, is engaged by the Department of Highways on work near Milton. He is a graduate of Queen's University, 1926.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, September 11. — Trade was active and prices buoyant in cattle at the Union Stock Yards yesterday morning. Receipts were 5,391 cattle, 950 calves, 552 hogs, and 2,955 sheep and lambs. Buying in cattle started with the sound of the gong, and by ten o'clock the scales were kept busy. Prices were equal to last week's best. Heavy steers a little rough, sold at $11.50 a cwt., and a load of useful handyweight heifers went at $11.20 a cwt., to a chain store killer. A choice baby beef brought $14.50 a cwt., and bunches of fair quality handyweights brought $10.35 a cwt.

There was a good run of bologna bulls, and the best of these went at $7.00, and the lights at $6.50 a cwt. Butchers cows were quite steady. Good cows were $8.50 to $9.25, and good mediums up to $8.25 a cwt. Canners and cutters were $4.25 to $5.25 a cwt. There were only around ten cars of stockers and feeders for sale, and the former sold at $8.75 and $9.00 a cwt. The active early demand indicated a fair clean-up despite the heavy run of cattle.

The quality of calves was not too good, and any choice vealers were higher at 17 and 17½c a pound. Good calves were wanted up to 16½c, and mediums up to 15c a pound.

Monday's heavy run of lambs made the usual market, and buyers were bidding only 12½c a pound, and no business was done during the morning. Sellers hope to hold the price at 13c a pound.

Packers made the bid on hogs 25c a cwt. lower yesterday at $13.25 a cwt., selects f.o.b., and say they are getting them at that price.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 11. — (Canadian Press). — The trade in cash grain in the local market yesterday was quiet. Prices were steady.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for spring wheat grades and millers generally reduced prices 10 cents per barrel. Winter wheat was unchanged.

The millfeed market was fairly active with no change in prices. The egg market was stronger and jobbing prices advanced one cent per dozen. There was reported a steadily increasing scarcity of fresh stock. Receipts were 939 cases.

While no change occurred in the butter market today the undertone was firm. The volume of business was small with little demand from outside sources. The receipts were 98 packages.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the cheese market and values were marked up ½ to ¾ cents per lb. The volume of business was small with little demand from English importers. The receipts were 5,099 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Record breaking low prices for the present season resulted in the wheat market yesterday from enlarging receipts northwest and from predictions of bearish official reports. The United States government crop report, which came after trading had ended for the day, was construed as bearish relative to wheat but furnished a surprise as being decidedly bullish regarding corn.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled ⅛ to ¾ cent net lower. Corn finished unchanged to ½c off, with oats at ¼c decline to ⅝c advance, and provisions varying from 12c setback to an equal gain.

Throughout the day, wheat values reflected knowledge that the movement of spring wheat to market is becoming of greater volume north as well as south of the Canadian boundary. Winnipeg alone received 1,472 cars of wheat, and meanwhile export demand for wheat from North America yesterday was of impressive volume. Furthermore ficial forecast that the 1928 domestic spring wheat yield would be with a majority of traders here correctly looking for a Washington of- considerably above the figures of a month ago and with the Canadian government crop report to-day expected likewise to indicate heavy yields, the buying side of the market was devoid of encouragement. Under such circumstances, September, December and March deliveries dropped to the lowest level yet this season, but closed at moderate rallies.

Contrary to expectation, the government crop report on corn pointed to a falling-off of about 100,000,000 bushels in the 1928 probable yield of corn as compared with a month ago. The official forecast is thus 141,000,000 bushels under the average of recent private estimates. Unaware of this showing, most corn traders favored the bear side of the market on account of favorable weather and because of wheat weakness. Oats displayed stubborn resistance to selling pressure, being influenced by reports that new oats were not being marketed as fast as had generally been looked for.

Scattered selling kept the provision market easy.

CHICAGO CATTLE

morning service, being the fourth in the series he had been preaching, the increased attendance being evidence of the interest taken in the topics.

Previously considered have been the Worship Prayers, and Songs of the Temple, and next Sunday the theme will be "The Foundations of the Temple", the minister explaining that what apparently should have been taken up first has purposely been left until now.

Preceding the sermon a quartette, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus", was beautifully sung by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Miss May Byam, and Mr. H. McDowell.

The text was chosen from Psalm 48: 12-14: "Walk about Zion, and go round about her; tell the towers thereof. Mark ye well her bulwarks, consider her palaces; that ye may tell it to the generation following. For this God is our God for ever and ever; He will be our guide even until death."

Explaining that towers in the walled cities of old were for purposes of defence, the minister developed in detail a number of essentials vital to the building of the spiritual temple upon earth; Sabbath observances was first named; the Christian home came next; vastness of numbers and a big treasury, with insistence upon an established church and apostolic succession for a valid ministry, were not considered necessary 'towers' in the building, but great intelligence coupled with marked piety, deep spirituality and a broad sociability were stressed. "The Christian democracy is founded upon the conviction that there are extraordinary powers in the ordinary man." A vital creed and high ethical conduct, and a high courage and strong, conquering faith, were listed if Canada and the world are to be won for Christ.

MINERS WANT TO GET HOME

Several Hundred Men Reach Winnipeg Homeless and Tired.

HOURS TOO LONG.

WINNIPEG, September 10 (Canadian Press). — Home sick and dissatisfied with the strenuous life of the Western harvester, several hundred British miner harvesters have returned to Winnipeg over the week-end, and are now being cared for at the local immigration halls, preparatory to their return to Great Britain.

Singing "We want to go home, we are hungry," several score of miners marched into the local railway station on Saturday night. They were met by police officers, who persuaded them to return to the immigration hall.

Investigation into their grievances by John Queen, Labor, M.L.A., disclosed that they were given three good meals a day, but "got hungry between meals." Most of them complained of the long hours they were expected to work. Others were home sick, and when they heard that more than three hundred of their comrades were sent home, decided it was time to return.

WHAT IS YOUR DEFINITION of ECONOMY?

Ideas differ. Few men think alike. We approached three men who own motor cars and asked them if, in their opinion, there was such a thing as economy in motor car lubrication.

The MISER said:

"Economy? Certainly there is such a thing as economy in motor oils. Would I buy CASTROL? I should say not. I can buy oil that costs far less. How is my car running? It isn't running. It's out in the shed. The engine seized up last week. Costs too much to drive a car anyway!!!"

The PROFLICATE said:

"Economy? Where have I heard that word before? Why bother? Motor oil only costs a few cents anyway. I just drive up to any old garage and say 'Fill her up with oil, Jack.' How is the engine running, do you say? Well, I've only had her six months and I'm thinking of trading her in for a new one. She sounds like a cement-mixer."

The THRIFTY MAN said:

"Do I use CASTROL? Most decidedly! Every thinking man does. It costs about 10c a quart more, but I get twice, often three times the mileage. With the money I saved by using CASTROL last year I sent my boy to a summer camp."

PROTEIN COMBINATIONS

Protein is not digested at all in the human mouth any more than with a dog or other carnivorous animal. It It is advisable to masticate meat well because the taste is agreeable and the digestive juices of the stomach are thereby stimulated.

As protein food enters the stomach it begins to mix with the gastric juice, which is especially prepared by nature to take care of this class of food only. Starches cannot be digested in the stomach and if used at the same meal, only interfere with the digestion of the meat, fish, or other protein. The starches, such as beans and bread, will absorb a good deal of the stomach juices, which only render them sour. Often not enough gastric juice is left to properly convert the meat into peptones, which is the only form through which it can be assimilated.

Some foods, such as navy beans, are such bad mixtures of starch and protein in themselves that excess fermentation always sets up in the stomach when they are eaten. Those with strong digestive power will be able to withstand the effects of such mixtures for a number of years, but there is bound to be a reaction in time, with finally serious results.

If the non-starchy vegetables are used with the meat, this does not interfere with its digestion. So a good plan is to use the cooked and raw greens with a meat meal, and to avoid all other foods such as bread, potatoes, rice, macaroni, spaghetti, and all of the starchy foods made from flour products. The harm that often comes from eating meat is caused by indiscriminate combinations with other foods, such as the starches which I have just mentioned.

The average person will do well to use about one quarter of a pound of meat each day, preferably at the noon or evening meal. The combinations used with the meat should be just as simple as possible, consisting principally of such greens as spinach, asparagus, string beans, lettuce, celery, etc., with the possible addition of a small amount of dried sugar fruit.

It is advisable to use only one protein at a meal. For instance, if meat is used, cheese should not be used at the same meal. The following specimen meals will show you what I mean by good protein combinations:

No. 1.—Roast mutton, cooked spinach, raw celery.

No. 2.—Salisbury steak, cooked asparagus, grated raw carrots.

No. 3.—Broiled fish, combination salad of lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers.

No. 4.—Dish of cottage cheese, baked egg plant, cooked parsnips, sliced cucumbers.

All vegetables need a certain amount of starch for their growth, so we are forced to use the starch contained in them or our diet would be very meagre, consisting only of protein foods, such as meat, egg, fish, fowl, etc. Non-starchy vegetables contain only a small amount of protein, but are rich in all of the organic salts and vitamins, which are so necessary to the different cells of the body in all of the tissues, from the muscular to the bony ones.

If a second helping of any food is ever desired, it is a good plan to double up on the greens rather than use an added amount of the heavier foods. Their digestion is really quite simple and does not interfere with any other foods eaten.

Many people eat too many of the heartier foods, and would do well to take for luncheon a meal composed of a combination of these vegetables. There are many ways in which you can use the non-starchy vegetables, but I will give you a "blanket" rule, as follows:

"One or more non-starchy vegetables, either cooked or raw, may be used with either one starch or one protein, or with any one other article of food, such as milk, toast, or fruit."

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. O. B. writes: "Kindly state the cause of redness of the nose on a woman of thirty-five who has never tasted liquors of any kind."

Answer: A red nose comes from some kind of intoxication, and as you say you do not use liquors, the redness of your nose you must come from auto-intoxication or self-poisoning, principally from intestinal toxins.

Question: T. J. D. asks: "Where can I buy brown rice? Also, how much acidolphilus milk should a person take where gastritis is present? Can one take tomatoes?"

Answer: Brown rice can be purchased in any health food store—just ask for the unpolished rice. I usually recommend a sweet milk diet for gastritis, but different kinds of sour milk may sometimes be used with benefit. With either the sweet or sour milk the patient should take about three quarts daily, using a glassful every hour. Tomatoes are a healthful food, but must be used in careful combination with other foods.

Question: R. J. K. asks: "What would you recommend for a person on whom destructive thoughts have gotten such a hold that she broods continually? The family doctor says there is nothing organically wrong, but she is becoming a total wreck physically and mentally."

Answer: She should have a thorough examination made to find out the condition of her alimentary canal. It will no doubt be found that the abdominal organs are prolapsed low in the pelvis. Nothing will produce nervousness in a woman and lead to neurasthenia and insanity as quickly as congestion in the pelvic organs, and prolapsus is one of the commonest causes of such a condition.

TRENT RIVER

Trent River, Sept. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Messrs. Cramer and Raftrey brothers, guests at "Cedar Isle," landed two fine maskinonge on Thursday while trolling up the river, the fish weighing 19 and 17 pounds. The length of the larger one was 46 inches, and the girth 18 inches.

Dr. A. Michell has a fine display of large red dahlias in his garden.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell, and Mr. and Mrs. Caulking, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., are spending a week at "Bon Alexander."

What you get when you buy

Ford Coke

Product of the Ford Motor Company

FORD COKE is practically all heat, and that's what you want in fuel. You pay for weight, but you buy heat. In producing Ford Coke the weight of the soot and smoke that you pay for in coal has been removed, but the heat remains.

The quality of Ford Coke is exceptional and is uniform. Ford Coke is made by the Ford Motor Company in its own coke ovens, from coal mined in its own mines, and is used in the Company's own work. This work requires coke of uniformly high quality. Intricate manufacturing processes cannot tolerate variation in this quality. The coke you buy and the coke the Ford Motor Company uses are the same. Both are Ford Coke.

Right now it is selling at attractive prices. We can supply you with Ford Coke in any quantity and in any size you wish. Get in touch with us and order this most satisfactory of household fuels right now.

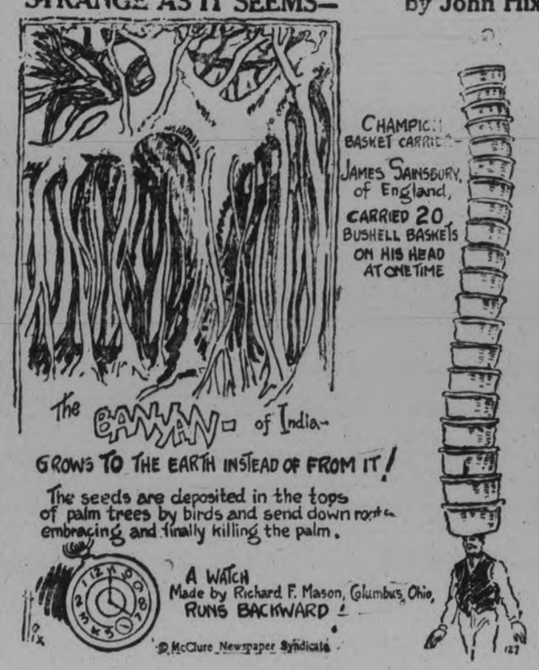
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix



UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

7-day Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CHOW-CHOW

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

"How do you like my pickles?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy as Uncle Wiggily sat at the breakfast table in the hollow stump bungalow one day eating his supper.

"They are very good, but, if you will excuse me saying so, I think they could be a bit hotter," answered the rabbit gentleman.

Now at first you might think it strange for Mr. Longears to be sitting at the breakfast table eating supper, and also to be having pickles with his meals. But let me tell you why.

Uncle Wiggily had eaten his breakfast very early that morning as he wanted to hop away and have adventures, and no sooner had he finished his early meal than he happened to think:

"I may be out very late this evening, waiting for something to happen to me so it can be made into a bedtime story. And if I am too late I'll get no supper. So I had better eat my supper now."

9-10 "That's a fine idea," said Uncle Wiggily.

So, still sitting at the breakfast table, Uncle Wiggily ate his supper and it isn't at all strange to have pickles for supper, is it? No. Well, then everything is all right. But when Nurse Jane heard Uncle Wiggily say the pickles weren't hot enough she was surprised and said in her funny, squeaky voice:

"I had better make you some chow-chow."

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily, speaking as Baby Bunty sometimes talked, "I guess you better had."

"Then you hop to the store and get me sugar and spice and other things nice and I'll make chow-chow," said the muskrat lady housekeeper.

Uncle Wiggily was very willing to do this and soon with his pink, twinkling nose going on before him away he hopped.

Now when Grandfather Goosey Gander who kept the grocery store heard Uncle Wiggily calling for sugar and spice and other things nice he asked the rabbit:

"What's it all for?"

"For chow-chow that Nurse Jane is going to make," answered Mr. Longears.

"Now look here," quacked Grandfather Goosey Gander, "making chow-chow is hard work even for a muskrat lady. Why don't you take her a bottle of chow-chow pickles already made? It will be just as good for you and less work for her."

"That's a fine idea," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll do it. Let me have a bottle of chow-chow pickles."

With the bottle of chopped up chow-chow pickles in his pocket Uncle Wiggily started to hop back to the hollow stump bungalow. But, though he did not know it, there hopped after him the Skillery Scallery Alligator with the double-jointed tail. The 'Gator had seen Uncle Wiggily go in Grandfather Goosey Gander's grocery store and the 'Gator said to himself:

"I guess Uncle Wiggily went in there to get a bottle of maple sirup. Well, I'll wait until he comes out and then I'll hide behind the bushes and I'll pop out at him and take away that bottle of maple sirup and eat it all up! That's what I'll do! I'll eat it all up!"

Why the 'Gator thought Uncle Wiggily had bought sweet maple sirup when, as a matter of fact, the bunny gentleman had bought hot chow-chow pickles, I can't tell you. I guess it's a secret. Anyhow the Bad Chap hid behind the bushes and when Uncle Wiggily came along whistling all of a sudden the 'Gator popped out and yelled:

"Give me that bottle of maple sirup!"

"I have no maple sirup, if you please," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Well, I don't please and I know you have a bottle of maple sirup in your pocket!" bellowed the 'Gator. "Out with it!"

Mr. Longears thought there was no use saying anything more so he took out the bottle of hot chow-chow and in a second the 'Gator had clawed out the cork, put the bottle to his big mouth and tipped it up so what was inside would run down his long throat.

But no sooner had the 'Gator tasted the hot chow-chow which must be eaten only a little at a time, than the Bad Chap yelled:

"Oh, what funny maple sirup! WOW! GUFFY! What strong maple sirup!"

"I told you it wasn't maple sirup, but you wouldn't believe me," said Uncle Wiggily. Then the 'Gator, his throat burning like fire, dropped the bottle of chow-chow and ran to the lake to cool off. Only a little of the hot pickle was taken and Mr. Longears soon hopped home with what remained, so everything was all right. But the 'Gator had his sore throat a long time.

FALL GRAIN GOOD AT KING'S WHARF

Gardens Look Promising and Apples Are Very Plentiful.

King's Wharf, Sept. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—The harvest is finished here and was later than usual owing to the rain. The threshing machine is here and the grain threshed is of poor quality except the fall wheat, which is good.

The gardens here are the best in years, and there is going to be a good supply of potatoes and apples. The trees are loaded so heavy they have to be propped up.

Personals.

Miss Mae Heinan and brother, Thomas, have returned to their home in Jackson, Mich., after a pleasant visit with friends and relatives here.

Miss Lou Sullivan has secured a school at Victoria Road and has left to open her school.

Miss Alma Scully has been engaged as teacher in S.S. No. 6, in place of Miss Ruby Perdue, who was recently married.

Mrs. Joseph Huard and children, of Peterborough, spent Sunday as guests of the former's cousin, Mrs. John O'Neill.

Mr. Connor Farrell and two children, also Miss Gertrude Fitzpatrick, spent the week-end as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Hearn in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gilbert and family, of Toronto, have returned home after spending a few days, the guests of the latter's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guiry.

Mr. Michael Fox and two children spent the holiday the guest of the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neill.

Miss Carmelita O'Neill has gone to Detroit, Mich., to be present at the wedding of Mr. Joseph Lucas and Miss Marie O'Connor.

Mr. Joseph O'Leary was a business visitor to Peterborough, Tuesday.

Miss Helen O'Neill, of Oshawa, spent the holiday, the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Neill.

Dr. Kelly, of Bobcaygeon, made a professional visit here Tuesday.

Mr. John O'Reilly and son, Leo, of Ops, made a business trip through here on Friday.

HOLDUPS TAKE PANTS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.— For several weeks, a group of Chicago bandits had been robbing their victims not only of their valuables but their trousers. Two detectives chasing a "pants" bandit were themselves caught by a squad of policemen. They reached headquarters at the same time as the trouserless victim of the real hold-up men.

LYRICS OF LIFE

RETICENCE

We do not know how deep
The seas we sail,
And souls around us weep
And smile unknown.
We walk like one asleep
Through life's dark vale,
Yes, side by side we keep,
Yet walk alone.

His wife, so fair of face,
Was yet more fair,
And had a soul of grace
He never knew.
She lived a life apart
He did not share,
Yet all the while his heart
Was dreaming, too.

He prayed, loved beauty, yet
He said no word;
He spoke not, when they met,
Of these to her.
Though each the things could hear
The other heard,
They never knew how near
They really were.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE CURIOUS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Curiosity is one of the few instincts. Wherever instincts are discussed and allowed, curiosity is always included. It is on every list.

Curiosity is so fundamental to human beings that it is also listed as an emotion. The same name passes for both. Sometimes the term wonder is used to distinguish the emotion from the instinct, but the term curiosity is used more frequently.

It is no wonder that curiosity plays such an important part in our daily lives. Being one of the original drives to action and also one of the strong emotions we are constantly impelled by this double barrelled incentive to action.

Curiosity is responsible for scientific progress and the advance of knowledge on the one hand and for gossip, noseiness and slander, on the other. Curiosity leads a man to explore, to find out what there is to know. Historically, this served the purpose of securing food and getting away from the enemy. It is one of the most practical of all impulses.

Curiosity also serves to balance off the instinct of flight and the emotion of fear. Fear and flight would make us too timid for our own good. But if curiosity were to have full scope we would soon go too far and meet a tragic end. The two act and react upon each other to keep the individual from being over-curious to the extent of fool-hardiness and from being timid to the extent of cowardliness.

The balancing of curiosity and fear has given rise to the thrilling experience of romance and discovery.

Why do you do what you do? Dr. Thomson will be glad to answer your questions on human behaviour. Address him care of this paper, and enclose an addressed, stamped envelope for reply. (Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

INDIANS MAKE OPTIMISTIC PROPHEC OF FALL DEER HUNTING

Plenty of deer this season! That is the welcome news that comes from the North. Indian guides, who live all year 'round in the deer country, say that there will be big hunting this fall.

Through a science not found in books, these born hunters have made this prediction— and they are seldom wrong.

So start planning your party now. Check up your war gear—wipe the grease off your gun—and keep "The black and tan" running thin.

SPRING WHEAT YIELD IS POOR

Peas and Fall Grain Good at Downeyville This Year.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 11.—The harvest here is all finished and the spring grain is very poor, except peas. Those who got their peas saved, without rain had a good yield and the fall wheat was extra good. The alsike is poor, those who started to thresh it threshed a little, saw it was no good, and quit. A few have burned their alsike. The oat yield is poor and of poor quality but barley is only fair.

Dr. Joseph Carroll, of Columbus, Ohio, spent the holiday with his mother an brother here. He came in a 'plane. He had a little difficulty in finding the place from the air and landed in two places before he saw Downeyville, but when he came near the village the buildings were familiar to him. He arrived Sunday about 3 p.m. He left on Monday morning about 8 and expected to be home in a short time, and he would have no difficulty in landing in Columbus.

Mr. Martin Carroll Sr. had a very valuable horse hurt by a passing automobile early Sunday morning. He put all his working horses in the pasture Saturday night and one broke out and was hit by the car. It was so badly hurt he had to shoot it. It was a valuable horse and is a great loss to Mr. Carroll.

The Forty Hours Devotion was held here in St. Luke's Church the first three days of the week, and was largely attended at all the exercises both morning and evening. There were a large number of visiting clergy from other places present.

A very enjoyable social was held here in the hall Thursday evening under the auspices of the Baseball Club. There was a very large crowd present and the music was supplied by Jakin's Orchestra from Lindsay.

Personals.

Mr. Phil Carroll, of Rochester, N.Y. is spending a few days the guest of his brother, Martin Jr.

Miss Marguerite Hoolihan, of Toronto is spending a few weeks the uest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hoolihan.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Lucas and babe have returned to their home in Detroit, Mich., after spending a few weeks the guests of the former's brother here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Carlow of Douro, spent Sunday the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hoolihan.

Miss Nora Costello has been re-engaged in the High School here and opened her school Tuesday morning.

Miss Mary O'Connell has been engaged in S.S. No. 4 and started on Tuesday morning.

SUMMER HARVEST WORK IS FINISHED

Some Warsaw Farmers Cutting Buckwheat— Church Societies Meet.

Warsaw, Sept. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Summer harvest is all in. A few are cutting their buckwheat. In some cases it is so flat the binder cannot work, and the mower is being used.

About five thousand dollars is being spent on the village streets.

The United Church Ladies' Aid met on Tuesday at E. Hawthorne's cottage on the lake. The ladies gathered about noon, and had dinner in the cottage. About two o'clock they went to the shore and held their regular meeting, with opening exercises, and other features, in the ordinary way. It was decided to ask the board to co-operate with the aid in redecorating the church, also when doing the interior to paint the outside of the window casings, doors and other woodwork. Plans for the fowl supper were postponed for another month.

Missionary to Speak.

The United Church W.M.S. met at Mrs. Thomas Clement's home on Thursday afternoon. As with all other meetings during exhibition time, there was a shortage of attendance.

It had been impossible for Miss Northcott to come, when plans were made. However, she will likely be here during the third week of September. She will not be able to wear her Chinese costumes as expected, but she will illustrate her lecture with some very interesting slides. These changes being necessitated, it was considered wise to hold her meeting in the church, instead of in the hall, as originally planned, with a silver collection at the door. Miss Northcott has been connected with work in three denominations, and it is hoped that many of the community will be present.

Everything is ready for the bale, except to finish the quilt, and if need be another one can be sent.

B. group, led by Miss Clara Payne, has charge of the program. The topic was, "Our Indian Neighbors." To understand the needs of the future, it is necessary to understand the conditions of to-day and the traditions of the past. But little is known of their origin. It is supposed they were of Asiatic origin, a tribe fond of wandering, which finally reached the eastern coast of Asia, and it was a small matter to cross the Behring Strait, and wander over this continent.

Columbus gave them the name of Indians, as he thought he had discovered a water-way to India. Later they were called American Indians. The Indian lived on what nature provided, and used game, berries, trees, fire, but he was careful to use no more than he needed, and to preserve those things he found. There was a profound respect for old age, and also for youth, youth for strength, and old age for counsel. They had some heathen forms of worship, but recognized that over all was the Great Spirit.

The largest mission work is along the Pacific Coast. Men from the trading posts exchanged beads trinkets, firearms, rum, and similar articles for their valuable furs. The Indians were none the better and did not think much of the white man's God. However, other white men did show the red man that the white man's God is good.

In 1874 Miss Baxter established a mission near Prince Albert, Sask., where she remained for thirty-one years. The next mission was established in British Columbia in 1879. The next appeal was from a little outcast who presented herself to a missionary's wife at Port Simpson, saying she had come to stay with her. She could not turn one away. Then others came, and soon the mission house was full.

It was found the only hope was to have a residential school, which would be a home, and the first one was established in 1884 at Round Lake, Qu'appelle Valley.

Now there are several of these homes in the West, most of them with farms in connection, on which all vegetables used are raised, and many sold. Nurses are in most of these schools.

Each of the residential schools was described. Some times the children come from long distances, and it is sure that a very great amount of good is being done. The Woman's Missionary Board is wholly responsible for seven of these schools.

Some hymns were sung, Mrs. Roland Payne gave a piano selection, Miss Eva Moore read "Easy Giving," Miss Clara Payne read "Thanksgiving Ann."

Miss Clara Payne expects to have some Japanese articles to sell for mission money at the next meeting, which will be held at her home.

After the close, sandwiches, ice-cream and cake were served.

Miss Payne started to walk from her home, and Mrs. Watts, a life member, over eighty, was present.

Personals.

Miss Cronk, night supervisor at Belleville General Hospital, and Miss Helen Bowen spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen.

Mr. Pearson, of Walkerton, spent a week with his son, Malvin Pearson, in Warsaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Anderson, Peterborough, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson. They took their daughter, Dorothy, home with them.

Alec Bowen went to Toronto last week, and has obtained a position at a service station, and will not return home.

Some others who went to Toronto during Exhibition weeks are: Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Payne, Miss Della Tucker, Miss Anabel Carlaw, Mr. Digweed, Hilliard Darling, Harry Morgan, Charles Foster, Miss Marion Pogue, and Mrs. W. S. Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. David Drain and little Kenneth left on Friday morning for a motor trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara.

Among those who attended the Apsley fair on Thursday from near Warsaw were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe, Gerald Crowe, Mrs. J. A. Crowe, William Miller, Robert Miller, Miss Miller, Miss Maggie Miller and Lyall, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frankish, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clifford, Mr. and Mrs. John Clifford, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tedford, Mr. John Rose and Alec. Martin McManus. They were delighted with their trip, and with the fair.

"THE SUN"

"An Apologia - - to the Ancients"
1928 B.C. - - 1928 A.D.

"Down through the dark and distant ages—from time immemorial—down to the ancient Phoenicians, the Incas, the Egyptians, the relatively recent Greeks and Romans, even today, man has worshipped the sun," said Mr. Edgington.

"Not only you and I look to the sun. Let us ask the beasts of the field and the birds of the air of their Deity.

"To-day, in our achievement, we just begin to realize what the sun means to us. We now know and greet it as the greatest blessing bestowed upon life by a bounteous Creator,—and an integral part of the Divine Scheme.

"Let us try to imagine the world darkened, derived for even a short time of that great and blessed source of light and of heat—the Sun. You, Mr. Farmer, you, Mr. Citizen, you little rosy-cheeked child, yes and you kind beast and beautiful oriole, consider.

No—imagination might well fail us. We cannot attempt to encompass thought in so vast a cataclysm. No wonder the Moslem prostrates himself at sunset, looking towards the Eternal East, where Allah has promised Mahomet that the faithful shall see the glory of to-morrow's Sun.

"In our pity,—almost contempt for the ancients, the heathen and the sun worshippers of yesterday, let us pause a moment and ask why, in their ignorance, the sun should have played such a great part in their lives, even to being raised to the Deity.

"Let us even ask this question of the beasts of the field, with body torn by barbed wire while it stands with wound exposed to the healing sun, away from its kind. Shall we ask the meadow lark, as he spreads his gorgeous wings, now preening, now motionless to the glorious sunbeam, or shall we consider and wonder why we (those of us whose labors deprive us of the sunshine), rush off to sunnier climes for the brief days of vacation."

Mr. Edgington declared that this was because we all instinctively realize the wealth of health that we derive from those warm and beneficial rays and that it is the health instinct which guides not only the birds and beasts and the flowers, but, even you and I. Wasn't it this instinct which had the ancient Greeks and the Romans to realize the healthful properties of the Sun's rays? They built their "Helioses" and their "Solaria,"—probably unscientifically, but nevertheless, unwittingly creating the first known hospitals.

He said that Aeons before then, man lived in the nude, and history tells of his magnificent health, his wondrous build and his colossal strength. Mankind adopted civilization in slow doses, gradually covering his body, building himself houses, first of leaves, mud and thatch, then of wood and finally of bricks and mortar and glass, gradually denying that mighty body of the beneficial health-giving rays of his ancient god,—the Sun.

Is this not true? Compare even to-day, the country-bred child to the child of the city slums and they do not brook comparison. Recourse must then be taken again and trust put in the Divine Scheme. Civilization's errors are equalized and counterbalanced by its own progress. To-day, we have science to aid in the correction of earlier evils. The sun, emphasized the interviewed one, we must have, even though we are compelled to strip and come out of our houses of bricks and mortar and glass.

However, to strip or remain out of doors in this climate of ours, is out of the question, unless we could magically revert to our prehistoric bodies. Therefore, modern science must devise a means of furnishing us with the vital health rays of the Sun in our homes of brick and mortar and glass.

Consequently science went to work and first analyzed the properties of the Solar rays. They found that the Sun's light is composed of various rays, known as "Infra-red" (or heat rays), "Visible" (or mere light rays), "Ultra Violet" and "Vital" rays. Recognition of the Infra-red rays is easy, since they are those from which heat is obtained.

The Visible or Light rays can also be recognized readily, which show on the Spectrum in exactly the same order as the rainbow (the latter of course, being merely the reflection of the light rays through clouds of moisture). These, practically everybody knows, show in the order of red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and at the outer edge of the rainbow, violet.

In dissecting these rays, science found that there are also "invisible rays,"—rays beyond the violet, and these rays are aptly called "ultra violet."

Years of investigation have followed this finding and experiment followed, which was rewarded by the discovery that it is he ultra violet (invisible) rays of the Sun, which gives the vital health food.

Modern science, together with the medical profession, were then faced with the problem of bringing those vital and healthful rays into the home, the reason being that in our rigorous northern clime it is impossible to enjoy this blessing outdoors, all the year round, and particularly because ordinary window glass does not permit these particular vital rays to pass through. In fact, ordinary window glass stops these rays, transmitting only the "visible" (light) and a small percentage of the "Infra-red" (heat) rays. Through the years science has patiently worked on, until at last rewarded by the discovery of an English scientist, by name of Lamplough, who, a few years ago, invented a window glass which unlike the ordinary glass we know, a tually transmits these health-giving rays, thereby enabling us to remain in the comfort and luxury of our own homes and still enjoy to the fullest extent, that greatest of gifts from our old time god,—the "Sun."

Truly do "the mills of God" grind for science to devise a product, which will transmit the invisible health rays of the sun.

The medical profession explains that it is these rays, in particular, which kill the bacteria in the air, builds up the tissues of the body and stimulates growth by causing the body to absorb more calcium and phosphorous and at the same time protecting the body against colds and the attacks of diseases by furnishing a pigmentation or tan.

Yes, the world has modern science to thank for giving us the means of having "all" of the sun's gifts, even right in our homes.

BETTER SHOWING MADE THIS YEAR

Millbrook C. S. Pupils Gain More Honors in Examinations.

Millbrook, Sept. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—A comparison of the results of the departmental examinations in the Millbrook Continuation School for 1927 and 1928 shows the following:

Number taking first-class honors last year, 2; number this year, 5; number with second-class honors in 1927, 8; in 1928, 13; number having third-class honors in 1927, 11; this year 13; number of pupils with 'credit' standing last year, 41; this year 36.

First-class honors mean 75 per cent or more; second-class honors, 66 to 75 per cent; third-class honors, 57 per cent to 66 per cent; credit, 50 to 57 per cent.

According to the above listing, the 1928 results show a considerable increase over those of 1927 in the number of 'honor' standings, and a corresponding decrease in the mere 'credit' standings obtained by the pupils. There was an increase of ten per cent in the total number who passed.

The first-class honors were won as follows: Dorothy Crossley in two subjects; Elsie Spence, Bertha Lang, and Jack Hutchison in one subject each.

The local Continuation and Public schools reopened for the fall term on Tuesday, September 4, with one new member of the teaching staff in each case. The personnel is: Continuation School, Miss Shirley L. Muir, principal; Mr. H. Jordan, assistant principal; Miss Hamilton, who replaces Miss Beswetherick, resigned.

Public School: Principal, B. B. Dawson; intermediate room, Miss Orchard, who takes the place of H. J. Anderson, resigned; junior room, Miss B. Montgomery. There is an excellent attendance of pupils for the opening week.

Durham Boys Do Well.

The boys from Durham county, who competed in the junior farmers' judging competition at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, have a creditable showing, according to the report issued by R. S. Duncan, who was in charge of this feature of the fair.

There were over three hundred young farmers in the various judging competitions, the dairy class being evidently the most popular, since 87 entrants were listed in this section.

In beef cattle, Archie Matchett, of Cavan, and Lawrence Cryderman, of Bowmanville, each had 169 points to their credit, and are listed in the eighth place among the competitors. In fruit and vegetables, W. H. Swain, of Cavan, is third with 760 points; and in grain and roots, Archie Matchett, of Cavan, is seventh with 576 points; Norman Hogg, of Orono, comes next with 575 points; and Lawrence Cryderman, Bowmanville, follows with 574 points.

There were 62 contestants in the grain and roots competition. The parade of the junior farmers who participated in the judging contests was one of the features of 'Farmer's Day' at the fair. The close scores of the young men gave convincing evidence of the good coaching given beforehand, and the keenness of judgment with which decisions were made.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hatherly spent the holiday week-end in Toronto, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Will Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley motored to Picton for the Labor Day week-end and visited her mother, Mrs. Morden.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. George left on Thursday morning for a visit with friends in Bowmanville, the trip being made by motor.

Messrs. Edgar Fallis and son, Donald, and Wesley Williamson were in Toronto over Labor Day, and attended the Canadian National Exhibition.

Everything possible is being done by the officers and directors of the Agricultural Society to make this year's fall fair an outstanding success; the earlier date, Monday and Tuesday, September 17 and 18, is a decided departure from that of other years, the practice of holding the fair on the first Thursday and Friday in October having prevailed for many seasons. The Ionic Quartette has been secured for the concert in the evening, and a dance in the armouries at 9 p.m. will be another popular feature.

BELMONT COUNCIL

Havelock, Sept. 10.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The regular meeting of the Belmont and Methuen Council was held on Saturday, August 25, with all members present.

On motion by Councillors Sanders and Whitney a number of road grants and accounts were passed and orders drawn on the treasurer for them.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as rather an unimportant day in planetary direction. Under this rule it is well to devote more attention to the world of the mind than to the domain of material things.

This is an unfavorable direction of the stars for dealing with banks or bankers. One's financial status may be peculiarly depressing.

Women will do well to be careful when they go shopping while this configuration prevails, for they may spend more than they can afford.

Under this planetary government there may be much tendency toward libel in the public prints and otherwise. It is well to think twice before speaking.

Much intrigue and deception may be prevalent at this time when Neptune frowns upon the Earth.

Women may be inclined to be temperamental and exacting today, especially in money matters. They should discipline themselves and practice self sacrifice.

All the signs appear to indicate that autumn weddings will be numerous but they may be even less successful than is usual even in this modern social world.

The seers announce that the peak of liberty and license in love-making and marriage has been reached and that after this year there will be greater domestic stability.

After the autumn ingress there may be many signs of warfare in Europe, astrologers foretell. The world will continue to be in a state of fermentation.

Women are to enjoy much pertaining to the finer things of life, if the stars are rightly read. Art and music will flourish.

The stars that encourage all the feminine characteristics will have a strong influence all through the autumn, changing fashions and manners.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have many unusual and strange experiences in the coming year. Secret plans may prove unfortunate. These subjects of Virgo may be too much inclined to indulge in extravagance.

Children born on this day may be dreamers who care little for worldly success. The subjects of this sign probably will be talented and many may have the ouch of genius. They will not brook any sort of interference in their careers.

Young's Point

(Examiner Correspondence)

YOUNG'S POINT, Sept. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. William Bullock attended the Toronto Exhibition for a few days this week.

Mr. John Hill of Deer Bay, was at Arthur Duggans on Thursday.

Mr. Joseph Northey of Mount Julian, was in the village on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Wynn of Flint, Michigan, was a visitor to the village last week. It is forty-one years since Mr. Wynn left Young's Point where he spent his boyhood. He sees many changes.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

SALLY LINGFIELD, dancer at the Faun, a night club.

JOSH AKERS, a waster, with whom Sally is in love.

POPPY, Sally's roommate, another dancer at the Faun.

PHILIP SANDERSON, rich young man of wealth who early one morning, when drunk, runs over Sally, badly injuring her. Sanderson loves Sally.

SOMETIMES, Sanderson's dog.

MRS. KIFF, his landlady.

Josh Akers, hearing of Sally's probably permanent injury, says he is through with her, and Sanderson assumes her care. He gets a cottage in the country for her and Mrs. Kiff. At first Sally hates it, and is heartless to Sanderson—even telling him she is glad when Sometimes is injured by an automobile. But gradually she becomes somewhat reconciled, and even looks more kindly on Sanderson's love for her. The rector, Robert Nairn, brings his young son, GARRY, to see Sally. Sanderson is immediately jealous.

LXXIII—A MESSAGE OF TROUBLE

With tea-time came yet another telegram. The same boy from Ash Hill post office who had so aroused Mrs. Kiff's ire two days previously tumbled off his bicycle at the gate and sauntered up the path through the rain, with a yellow envelope in his hand.

"Name of Lingfield."

Sanderson read the message before he took it in to Sally. She was awake, and had heard the boy at the door.

"Is it for me?" she asked.

"Yes—from someone named Jenks." He read the message aloud: "Poppy very ill. Can you come or send anyone?—Jenks."

"Such a fool message!" Sanderson growled. "Jenks must know you can't go, whoever she is."

"She's the landlady, and she always was a fool," Sally said. Her voice was a little tremulous; she was visualizing Poppy alone and ill in that awful back bed-sitting-room that overlooked a mews and had newspaper stuffed up its chimney to keep out the draught.

"What shall I answer?" Sanderson asked. He saw the trouble d look in Sally's eyes, and his own hardened. "Why the deuce do they want to bother you about it?" he asked irritably.

"I'm the only friend she's got," Sally said. "I'd go to her if I could. I know what she'll be getting from Jenks. People don't want you in rooms when you're ill. Poor old Poppy."

"Well, you can't go to her," Sanderson said.

"I know." Sally's eyes brightened with a sudden thought. "But you can go, Philip!"

"I!" He turned round and stared at her blankly. "Good lord, what next will you suggest?" he demanded.

"I only mean that you could go and see if there is anything you can do for her," Sally explained.

The picture of Poppy in that back bed-sitting-room was growing clearer with every passing moment. Sally remembered how she herself had felt in the hospital with nurses to wait on her, and Philip to call and see her; but Poppy had nobody except dirty Mrs. Jenks to grudgingly climb the dark staircase with over-strong cups of tea, and an unceasing flow of asthmatical grumblings.

Sanderson laughed shortly.

"I seem to be developing into a sort of errand boy," he said. He was feeling sore; sore with the vicar, sore with the rain, and most sore of all with Sally for seeming so eager and ready to get rid of him.

"Oh, well, if you don't want to go," Sally said. She was silent for a moment, then she said plaintively: "Please move Sometimes; he's giving me the cramp."

Philip obeyed without speaking, but his eyes were gloomy as he put the dog carefully down on the rug by the fire, which had been lit as the afternoon had grown chilly.

Sally closed her eyes and waited. She was angry with Sanderson for not immediately falling in with her expressed wish, and yet there was something in her heart that would have liked him to flatly refuse to be ordered about, something that would have been delighted had he said bluntly: "I'm damned if I'll go! I'm staying with you."

When presently he walked out of the room, every nerve in her body seemed at strained attention, following his every movement. She heard him go out of the front door, down the wet path, and round the cottage to the little shed where he kept his car.

Moments passed, then she heard him starting up the engine; heard him call out something to Mrs. Kiff; heard him returning. He wore his big rough overcoat; he carried his hat in his hand.

"Do I take the dog?" he asked bluntly.

Sally's eyes dilated.

"Take Sometimes? Through this rain? Oh, no! I want him."

"Oh! You want him but you can dispense with me—is that it?"

"You're unkind," said Sally.

"No," he answered: "I'm only disappointed."

"Oh, why?"

"Because it's raining, and because that damned vicar cheated us out of the woods."

"Philip, we couldn't have gone. It would have rained anyway."

Sanderson declared obstinately that it would have kept fine if Robert Nairn had not called.

"I hate parsons. I told you. They always bring me bad luck."

"Silly man!"

He stood looking down at her.

"Well—goodbye," he said at last abruptly.

Something in Sally's heart gave her a twinge of pain. Now he was ready and willing to go, she wanted him to stay, but she was afraid to say so.

"Give my love to Poppy," she said flippantly. "And Philip—if she's well enough, she might come down here for a few days—don't you think so?"

His queer face twisted into a wry smile.

"That means turning me out of my room—is that what you want?"

"Mrs. Kiff could make up a bed for you in here—or one for Poppy, if it comes to that."

"Hadn't we better start a hospital, Sally, and have done with it?"

"You're cross with me, Phillip."

"My dear, don't you know that I'm never cross with you?"

"Never?"

Sanderson shook his head.

From the kitchen came the scream of Mrs. Kiff's high notes:

"I shall love you the sa-ame for e-ever! I shall love you the sa-ame for e-ever!"

Sally moved restlessly beneath the steady gaze of Sanderson's somber eyes.

"If only she would sing something different!" she complained.

"I'll bring down some fresh records," Philip promised.

Her face brightened.

"Yes, do; and Philip—you won't stay away long?"

"I'll be back tomorrow."

"And—Philip!"

"Well?"

Her eyes faltered for a moment and her color rose. "Don't go to the club."

"Why not?"

"Because you always drink too much when you go there."

The sudden flashing hope in his eyes was pathetic.

"Does it matter to you if I drink too much?"

She nodded.

"I'd never touch another drop if I really thought it mattered to you, Sally," Sanderson said.

Sally hardly knew if she was glad or sorry when he had gone, but at least Sometimes had no doubts on the subject at all. He tried to drag himself on to his injured legs; he tried hard to drag himself to the door to follow Philip. Sally vainly coaxed him to come back to her, but he refused. He crouched on his stomach, whining pitifully, [illegible] Mrs. Kiff had to come to the [illegible] picked the dog up bodily [illegible] sat down, nursing him in her arms. Sometimes was a big, heavy fellow, but Mrs. Kiff held him as carefully as if he were a sick, hurt child, speaking to him more gently than she had ever spoken to Sally, till at last he dozed off contentedly, his blunt nose resting confidingly on her fat arm.

"It never rains but it pours," she said sententiously when she heard about Poppy. "I shall be the next one to be ill, or else Mr. Sanderson."

"Philip is never ill," Sally said quickly; somehow she disliked hearing illness mentioned in the same breath with Sanderson. In the morning she got a scribbled letter from him. There was no formal beginning to it, and it was written on a half sheet of paper:

"Poppy is really ill. I am sorry to say. It's pneumonia. She hadn't had a doctor, but I sent one in, and a nurse. She seemed pleased to see me, and I told her when she was well enough we'd have her down at the cottage. I'm going to stay till tomorrow, if you don't mind. I will explain why when I see you. Take care of yourself, Sally, because I love you. Be kind to Sometimes, but I know I don't have to ask you that."

Sally read the bit about Poppy to Mrs. Kiff.

"Pneumonia is what she nearly died of once before," she said anxiously.

Mrs. Kiff snorted.

"That comes of not wearing enough clothes," she declared unsympathetically. "All on top and nothing underneath—that's the way with girls like Miss Sladen."

"If you can't afford both, you have to have the one that shows the most," Sally said snappily. She was worried about Poppy; she wished she had not quarrelled with her that time she came to Ash Hill.

She wrote Sanderson a little letter in her unformed hand:

"Dear Phillip (still two l's)—Thank you for your letter, and for being kind to Poppy. Give her my love, and don't let the doctor mess her up. Sometimes is better. He slept on my bed all night, and Mrs. Kiff is just cooking some meat for him. Come back as soon as you can. I love you, too.

"SALLY."

She added the last sentence with a grateful thought of all his kindness. She did love him in the only way she knew how to love.

Stomach Troubles, Headaches and Dizziness

When your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food, lose strength and "pep" get thin and nervous; and feel as tired when you get up as when you went to bed.

This was the condition of Mme. P. Royal, 3170 Letourneux street, Montreal. She says: "I was so nervous that the rustling of a newspaper upset me. My appetite had left me; indigestion was giving me a great deal of trouble; I could not sleep; and steadily lost weight. Tanlac soon had me eating again, corrected my stomach trouble, steadied my nerves, ran my weight up ten pounds, and made me feel just right in every way. Let Tanlac do for you what it did for this sufferer and thousands of others. It is marvelous to see how it corrects the most obstinate digestion troubles—relieves gas, pains in the stomach and bowels—how it restores the appetite, vigor, sound sleep and strong nerves.

Tanlac is made of roots, barks and herbs—Nature's own medicine for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

District Churches

MARMORA CHURCHES.

Marmora, Sept. 11 (Examiner Correspondence)—Anglican services in the Marmora parish were taken on Sunday, September 2, by O. J. Batchelor, lay-reader in the parish of Christ Church, Belleville.

Concluding a highly appreciated two months' ministry at the United Church, while its pastor, the Rev. C. J. Beckley, has been on furlough in England, the Rev. H. E. Eburne delivered a forceful sermon on Sunday evening, September 2, selecting as his text, "Ye are the salt of the earth." Having referred to the practice of Jesus Christ of illustrating sacred things by common things of life and thereby giving a sacredness to the commonplace, the preacher mentioned that everything we touch and handle can be sacramental. Christ's savings on the mount, he said, had been called wrongly "The sermon on the mount." They did not constitute a sermon in the modern sense of the word. They made up an informal talk which Christ gave to a group of His disciples. To such, He said, "Ye are the salt of the earth."

Proceeding, Mr. Eburne said, "This suggests a social application. Salt is used, not by itself, but in contact with something else. The eternal principles of Jesus Christ cannot be lived out in an anchorage or hermitage. They must be lived out in the busy life or else the salt has lost its savor. There is a distinctiveness about salt for it has a distinctive taste. There is a distinctiveness about the disciple of Jesus Christ or he has lost his savor. We should remind ourselves of the danger there is of our losing the distinctive quality of the Christian. Eccentricity is not to be cultivated in our religion but rather attractiveness. The beauty of a quiet spirit is the most savoring thing in human experience. Salt is too a symbol of hospitality. The Christian man and woman stands as a symbol of friendship and protection." Mr. Eburne advised any who might be changing place of residence to link up with the Church and those who would remain to give to newcomers friendship in the name of Christ, pointing them thereby to the Friend of friends. His final reference was to salt being a composition of two poisons, sodium and chlorine. Would they not notice, he asked, how God can take sinful lives when cleansed and make them blessings to others.

Ennismore

Ennismore, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Frank Doran has returned to her home in Detroit after spending a few weeks' holidays with her friends here.

Mr. Stafford Killen has returned to Detroit after spending a week's holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Killen.

Mr. D. J. Pierce, of Toronto, is spending a few days with friends here.

Mr. Michael Crough left recently for his home in Detroit after spending his holidays with friends here.

Miss Veronica Murphy is spending a few days with friends in Douro.

Mr. and Mrs. James Holland and Miss Agnes Murphy were visiting friends in Douro on Sunday.

Messrs. John and David and Miss M. Curtain, of Emily, were visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. James O'Donnell and family were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cavanagh.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Crough, of Detroit, and Miss Norah Killen, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hickson.

Mrs. L. Moloney, of Douro, spent last Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Crough.

The Ennismore annual excursion took place on Tuesday, August 28, by steamer "Stoney Lake," to Juniper Island. The journey going up was very enjoyably spent in dancing. The boat arrived about noon. On the return trip, community singing and dancing were the main events. The music was furnished by Miss Nellie Conway and Jack Flood, violinists, and Mrs. Michael Twomey, Mrs. Dan Crough, and Miss Mary Conway, pianists. Messrs. Hubert Flood and Walter Crowley were in charge of the refreshment booth.

Miss Mary Sullivan, of Downeyville, recently spent a few days with Miss Lillian Hennessey.

Mrs. Thomas Murray, Mrs. Grady, and daughter, Elizabeth, of Peterborough, also grandson, Victor Callaghan, of Windsor, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cavanagh on Wednesday.

The threshing machine is heard again in this vicinity. It brings to mind that the fall is drawing near. The pea crop is not as promising as it looked a few weeks ago, a great quantity being shelled in the turning after the recent rains. A few also are growing in the pods. The straw of the other grain, which hasn't been drawn in, is going to make very poor feed.

Haultain

THE LOVE LETTERS OF HENRY THE EIGHTH.

By Joseph Kaye.

The royal Bluebeard of England, Henry the Eighth, was really a craftsman when it came to writing love letters to his prospective wives and it is an astonishing revelation to read the bundle of letters that are in existence written by Henry to Anne Boleyn. Anne's pitiful plea to the relentless monarch after he tired of her and threw her into prison, and one of the first of Henry's letters is well known but the others have rarely been printed. The following are a paragraph or two from each of this collection:

"I beg also if at any time before this I have in any way offended you, that you would give me the same absolution that you ask, assuring you that henceforward my heart shall be dedicated to you alone. I wish my person was so too. God can do it, if he pleases (referring to his attempts for a divorce from his first wife) to whom I pray every day for that end hoping that at length my prayers will be heard. I wish the time may be short, but I shall think it long till we see one another.

"Written by the hand of that secretary who in heart, body and will is,

"Your loyal and most assured servant, H.R."

". . . No more to you at present, mine own darling, for lack of time, but that I would you were in my arms, for I think it a long time since I kissed you. . . .

"Written after the killing of a hart, after eleven of the clock, minding (intending) with God's grace to kill another, by the hand of which, I trust shall shortly be yours,

"Henry R."

"The cause of this writing at this time, good sweetheart, is only to understand of your good health and prospects; whereof to know I would be as glad as in mine own, praying God that, if it be His pleasure, to send us shortly together, for I promise you I long for it. Howbeit, I trust that it shall not be long; and seeing that my darling is absent, I can do no less than to send her some flesh representing my name (my self) which is hart's (heart's) for Henry. . . .

"No more at this time, mine own darling, but that with a wish that I would we were together an evening."

". . . To cause you oftener to remember me I send you by the bearer of this a buck killed last night by my own hand, hoping that when you eat of it you may think of the hunter. . . ."

". . . There came to me suddenly in the night the most afflicting news. . . . First, to hear of the illness of my mistress whose health I desire as I do my own, so that I would gladly bear half your illness to make you well. . . . I hope soon to see you again, which it will be a greater comfort than all the precious jewels in the world."

"My own sweetheart, this shall be to advertise you of the great elengeness (loneliness) that I find here since your departure last than I was wont to do a whole fortnight. I think your kindness and my fervency of love causeth it, but now that I am coming to you, methinks my pain be half removed; . . . wishing myself, especially of an evening in my sweetheart's arms, whose pretty dukkys I trust shortly to cusse (kiss).

"Written by the hand of him that was, is and shall be yours by his own will, H. R."

SEVERED.

You have risen above me so far
That I'm humble when thinking of you,
For your eminence now is a bar
To a fellowship close that we knew.

Go! Climb to what summits you will!
There is one thing you can't take away.
The memory, haunting me still,
Of a time when you kissed me each day.

But those days are forever gone by,
And I'm left with the sorrow and hurt,
For we'll n'er meet again because I
Am a sidewalk and you are a skirt!

MINE CAVE-IN.

By Martha Williams.

"Do you feel in your bones that it's going to rain?"

Anne asked dispassionately.

"Why ask me that?" from young Bernard in surprise.

"Oh! Because I've noticed colts and calves and chickens and pigs act up as you've been doing this last hour whenever there's a storm coming," Anne flung back.

"But—what have I done?" Bernard demanded aggrievedly

Anne began to check off, her finger waving up and down: "Let me see. First, you teased Fluff into scratching—not you righteously, but me, the innocent bystander, upset the inkstand upon my brand-new table cover—and said bad words—many bad words, simply because the curate came to call—"

Bernard snatched Anne upright by the shoulders, looked deep into the dancing eyes and hissed: "You had better stop. I tell you I won't have—this! I can stand a rival—provided only he's a man. But not something made of putty and peppermint candy with a sauce of psalm-singing."

"What's this? What's all this? Practice for grand opera?" Major Barnes, Anne's uncle, called from the door

A long keen blast of a stentorian whistle made him start and turn pale, as it was instantly repeated, thus signaling deadly danger at the mine he had left in full swing half an hour before.

Anne understood—so did Bernard. Then over the 'phone came a call: "Cave-in at Number 7 drift—men behind it—don't know yet how many."

But by the time the Major reached the pit-mouth a check-up had told the tale. Nine good fellows, stout and hearty, family men most of them, were behind the deadly barrier. It could be dug and blasted through, but not in time to save them—the fall had broken connections of the air fan that rendered the workings in that gallery safe.

Anne was white and stony with anguish—all these mine folk were close to her heart. It was through them the curate had won his place in her regard—he was so naively of them, heart and soul, entered into their joys, their sorrows, hopes, aspirations and bewilderments. To some among them he was a fool for his pains; to others a playmate; to still others, a harmless Merry Andrew, but to the most part a comrade, heaven-sent, to show them the better ways rather than tell of them.

Him, too, the whistle had called imperatively—but he had been hindered, apparently—the major was almost through his relief-ordering before he appeared on the scene.

"What is needed worst?" he asked.

"Air—which means life."

Curate Lee dropped his eyes, meditatively for a moment, then darted away without a further word. A few cursed his cowardice—more wondered at his flight.

Bernard whispered to Anne: "All yellow, you see." But she did not hear him, apparently—she gave him no answer. She was thinking—hard. Curate Lee knew the outer face of the workings as did no one else. He loved outdoors with a passion—and the coal country was a magic land to his lowland soul. He had spent all his scant leisure ranging it—what might he not have found? She asked herself the question over and over as she went among the women crouching here.

It was left to Bernard to supply fans, ice water, milk and fruit. He had forgotten himself and his enmities, letting his fine realities come to the surface.

There was a constant roar of arrivals—trains, motors, apparatus from the nearest collieries, all manned with the pick of their professions and every man eager only to succor the doomed prisoners.

Blasting would make an end of the barrier—yet might bring down so much a greater fall as to crush all within range. If a crawlway could be cleared at the top of the massed earth and rock air could be sent in through a hose—maybe even food and water—then rescue would be certain if laggard.

So they set about making it—these men of might and muscle. By late afternoon they had got in ten feet—and there were above a hundred to pass. Moreover, the roof was none too solid—shoring it meant still slower progress. The major, watching with straining eyes the snail-like progress, prayed silently—he was past speech. And suddenly there smote upon his ears a wild hubbub of yells, of cheers—the maddest ever heard. He turned to face Bernard, who leaped from the descending cage crying: "Major, major! Come up. They're all safe—all out—every man. They—everybody—wants to see you."

"Why—it was nothing—less than nothing, indeed," Curate Lee explained, somewhat haltingly and reddening at what everybody was saying. "You see I had a notion the cave in North Hollow ran almost to the mine—I had meant a long time to find out—so it came to me—this was a good time for it."

But he was dripping from a plunge in a subterranean pool, his clothes in rags, his hands bleeding from clinging to jagged rocks.

Also, the men who had followed him the perilous way to safety had much to say.

Hearing it Bernard said dejectedly to Anne: "Of course it is all up with me now." To which she retorted: "Goosey, you're ridiculous. You need a caretaker. Sandy Lee does not—and never, never will—besides, he has a girl back home."

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

I HAD THE GREAT PRIVILEGE the other day of talking with a distinguished milliner from one of the larger cities in United States, just concluding a holiday at Kawartha, and to-day I intend passing on a little of what I learned.

• • • • • •

What with the fall opening in Peterborough this week, and the special fashion number of The Examiner coming to-morrow, it seems an appropriate time to take note of one of the season's most important items—the hat. This is a season of hats that are kind to those of us whose faces are not our fortunes, and even more flattering to the fortunate few with beauty.

• • • • • •

The jargon of millinery wholesalers is quite amusing, I find. And, I might add, nearly as confusing as a sports writer's description of a baseball game is to a woman. It is possible, for instance, for a hat to be a "flop" and at the same time be a success. Is not this a paradox?

• • • • • •

I always thought that "encrustations" were something like barnacles on a ship, and not desirable. My milliner, however, makes a specialty of these, so, of course, they must be correct. Then again, a hat, we supposed, was distinctly a headpiece; but I am told that it has a "body." And there is something very amusing about calling a hat "the elephant ear model" and expecting people to take it seriously.

• • • • • •

But after all this jargon must be all right, because the brethren of the hat-making profession understand one another, and so long as we get the headgear that suits us we needn't worry.

• • • • • •

There is something intriguing about hearing a milliner tell his art. Just what sixth sense is it that the designer possesses that makes it possible for her to put a bit of felt on one's head, take three little tufts abaft the port eye, four little folds at the nape of the neck, cut a piece out of the brim and turn it back with a pin—and turn you out in a very smart hat?

• • • • • •

Considering that we each must be in style and yet each have her hat distinctive and different, is not this, the milliner's artistry, the more amazing? But it is exactly what is done, and the millinery notes for fall in berets, cloches and turbans cannot but strike responsive chords in every woman's appreciative mind.

• • • • • •

The turban, which made its debut this summer in tricot, will be one of the most definite fall trends, my milliner friend told me last week. Women have learned, she said, how becoming the close, swathed folds may be, and this type of hat is eminently suited to the tailored coat dresses and daytime clothes shown for autumn.

• • • • • •

The poke shape is really an adaptation of the 1830 mode. The shape is widened at the sides and brought far down on the back of the neck. Though a most recent characteristic, the poke is likely to be popular because it is almost universally becoming. It should be worn far back on the head, exposing the brow, I am told.

• • • • • •

The delicious femininity of the autumn mode proves definitely that women have at last departed from the swagger and severity of past seasons, and are glorying in accentuating soft glances, subtle coquetry, and all kinds of feminine wiles.

• • • • • •

Just before I leave this subject of hats, let me tell you about the elephant-ear motif in the skull-cap. It is merely the familiar helmet and skull-cap in a new and more becoming guise. I am told that the drooping and flaring silhouette was exploited this past summer in several models from Reboux; now other milliners are taking it up and making much of this charming fashion.

• • • • • •

Out of tiny bits of ribbon you may make charming posies to use as ornaments for your dainty pieces of lingerie. All you need is a little patience and directions for making them—and if you have the first qualification, then I will be very glad to supply the latter. Just send me the coupon which you will find on this page, and I will send you at once instructions for making these little flowers, with a sketch to show how they are to be worn.

• • • • • •

In some of the schools this fall teachers will give their pupils instruction in correct posture—how to walk up stairs with the body erect, how to lean forward from the hips when sitting, and how to divide bundles of books and parcels between the arms instead of carrying them all under one arm, thus making the body lop-sided. I think it is a splendid idea, don't you? And one that might be put into effect in the home.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall

Pull-on gloves of beige suede kid are worn with the beige and brown afternoon ensemble indicated above, while button gloves of natural-toned chamois are worn with the less formal costume suggested below.

Some women will continue to go gloveless and some women will still be content to carry them—but fashion has distinctly expressed herself in favor of wearing them. A large number of women of fashion prefer for all occasions the least conspicuous of gloves—possibly admiring, but not being induced to wear any of the fancy cuffed gloves which the shops are showing. For wear with tailored or sports clothes they choose the one button glove of doeskin, chamois, or kid in light tones of tan, brown or possibly black—for black gloves are becoming smart as an accessory for gray ensembles. For wear with frocks with closely clinging sleeves they choose the pull-on glove of pliant kid or doeskin allowing the wrist portion to wrinkle slightly as it conforms to the curve of the wrist.

Colored gloves—that is gloves departing from the conventional gray, beige, cream white, black, tan, etc.—are seldom received with any sort of interest by the best-dressed women. So that high-priced green or red or bright blue gloves when they are brought forward as a new fad frequently end by being sold for less than a song on a stock-clearing bargain table. But the new blue gloves are not in this class. In fact, the new blue gloves are quite dark and usually dull in tone and are chosen by many of the best-dressed women at present to wear with dark blue ensembles. They are no more "flashy" or extreme than dark blue shoes which have been accepted as above criticism.

A fashion revival which, if it becomes widespread, is bound to cause some anxiety among women who must needs be well-dressed on a circumscribed dress allowance, is the fashion for long gloves with sleeveless evening gowns. The fashion went out during war times, simply, I suppose, because women couldn't afford them. And after the war women continued to go gloveless with evening dress because they found it comfortable and convenient. But now in every formal evening gathering of very well-dressed women you are pretty sure to count at least two or three pairs of long white gloves—some of them of shoulder length.

MARION'S MAIL.

"Dear Marion:

I have read several of your letters in The Examiner, and notice that you seem to know and answer all questions asked satisfactorily. Could you tell me whether Cyril Thomson, junior artist fo the Toronto Star Weekly, is any relation to Marjorie Thomson, also an artist from Toronto, or not?

Thank you,

SCOTTY."

I don't know the answers to all questions, "Scotty", but I am not afraid to try to get the answers to almost any. In this case I took the very simple method of writing to the young man concerned, and I received his courteous reply yesterday. "As far as I know," he says, "I am in no way related to the Miss Marjory Thomson you mention." It may interest you, 'Scotty", to know that Mr. Thomson is sixteen years of age, the son of Lt.-Col. E. L. Thomson, D.S.O., of the Imperial Army. He attended school at Ghent, Belgium, until six years ago.

You know, "Scotty," most things in this world are best accomplished by direct methods, and in this business of conducting a newspaper there is very little, if any, "hocus-pocus". That's why the answers to questions like yours are nearly always accurate—a lot nearer right than they would be if I looked in a crystal or read the answer in the stars!

"Dear Marion:

I wonder if any of your readers have what I call the emergency drawer? I have one, and I find it so handy that I thought I would pass on the information through your splendid page.

I fill the drawer with articles that we need frequently. Mine contains paper sacks saved from time to time after emptying; a ball of wrapping twine, also saved and made into a little ball; little rubber bands; a box of tacks and a small tack hammer; a pair of scissors; a small screw driver; pencils; a flash light; corks; measuring tape; safety pins, etc. things one needs in a hurry or has difficulty in finding.

I hope that this will be of service to some of your readers.

Yours sincerely,

MRS. E. S."

Thank you, Mrs. E. S., for your valuable hint. I am sure that it will be appreciated by all our readers—and it is so nice to have people rally around in this neighborly way to pass on suggestions that may help. Write again soon.

J. B. C.: I have answered your letter privately, as the subject is not suitable for publication.

"If only I could speak plainly to my women customers"

Says the head saleslady in a smart shop

Embarrassing to tell them—but they should know about this new process of neutralizing odor in sanitary pads. It means greater mental comfort than ever before.

WHEN shopping, in business, socially—wherever women meet the world—there is an important question of personal hygiene that can mar their happiness. They do offend others at times. And this new treatment which deodorizes every Kotex pad positively prevents such offense.

The dreadful self-consciousness that prevents carefree assumption of daily tasks; the mental discomfort is ended! Kotex scientists have discovered and patented a safe way to banish all odor.

Conspicuous bulkiness gone, too

That other fear—the feeling of being conspicuous—is now eliminated. Corners of the Kotex pad are scientifically rounded and tapered so as to leave no evidence of sanitary protection when worn.

Yet every advantage remains

When you need greater or less protection, you can so easily add or remove layers of filler. It is, as always, absorbent to an amazing degree. The fact that you can so easily dispose of it makes a great difference to women. And a new treatment renders it softer, fluffier, than you thought possible.

Won't you try the Improved Kotex—buy a box this very day. It is 60c for a box of twelve, at any drug, dry goods or departmental store.

Deodorizes . . . and 4 other important features:

1—Softer gauze ends chafing; pliable filler absorbs as no other substance can;
2—Corners are rounded and tapered; no evidence of sanitary protection under any gown;
3—Deodorizes—safely, thoroughly, by a new and exclusive patented process;
4—Adjust it to your needs; filler may be made thinner, thicker, narrower as required;
and
5—It is easily disposed of; no unpleasant laundry.

Especially of "Mr. Dike" Convict Number 777.

EVERY one except the Warden himself felt that the conditions under which he was rearing his family were hurtful. Even the Warden's wife, although she agreed in the main with his theories, felt herself overcome with qualms of panic at the thought that after all, her children were literally being reared in the shadow of the prison.

The Warden's house stood within the grounds, although it had a separate entrance that faced the street. The courtyard where the prisoners took their airing and recreation was plainly within the view of the back windows, and of course, day by day, there passed through the home of the Warden, trusties, that is men and women who were employed in various capacities about the prison while serving their terms.

A "trusty" named Sue (Number 611), a "lifer", was cook for the Warden's family. A "trusty" called Dan (Number 0132), who was serving twenty years for embezzlement, escorted the Warden's children to public school every morning and called for them at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The life of the prison, the environment, the atmosphere were as natural to the Warden's children as any other aspect of daily life. Theirs not to reason why.

The grim, gray walls, the cross-barred windows, even the silhouette of the death-house, were a part of the world into which they had been born, and they took it for granted. The Warden himself was not squeamish about this affiliation of his children with the more trusted of the prisoners. Of course there were certain sections of the prison given over to men and women of avowed vicious instincts that were kept from even the knowledge of the youngsters.

On those grim occasions, all too frequent so far as the Warden was concerned, when the iron chair in the death-house was to send its voltage through a human body, the Warden tried but did not always succeed in keeping this kind of harrowing knowledge from his children.

But in the main, he succeeded. His family grew up pretty much as any normal, healthy little community.

THERE was, however, a boy named Chester in the Warden's brood of five, the eldest, who early began to exhibit signs of sensitiveness toward his environment. He was in fact, a source of worry to the Warden's wife. Instead of playing his after-school hours away with his brothers and sisters and school comrades, Chester began to develop a habit of seeking out the companionship of those "trusties" who were permitted to leave the prison walls. He liked to sit over his after-school bread and jam and talk with Sue in the kitchen or follow Dan about at his chores of hauling wood or cabinet-making.

There was a grave, hollow-eyed man for reason, perhaps, of the dignity of his bearing, commonly known as "Mr. Dike" (Number 777), who was sometimes sent about the town with messages or parcels, while serving a forty-year sentence for forgery, which practically amounted to a life term. Chester was particularly fond of accompanying this rather stern, serious-minded man on his trips around town. The fires of his chastisement burned in "Mr. Dike's" eyes. It was as if they had left him charred and whitened and cleansed.

He was gentle and wise with Chester and once, overhearing a talk between these two, the Warden decided that here was a rare companionship for his boy that did not often fall to the lot of a youngster.

When Chester was thirteen, he wrote an essay on "Mr. Dike." It was a childish effort, but only a noble subject could have inspired it.

There were certain days in the prison and even in the little home situated on the edge of it, when a cloud hung over those gray walls, seeming to make them even grayer.

Those were the days when an execution was to take place in the death-house. Try as she would to keep the grim atmosphere from invading the precincts of her little household, the wife of the Warden was never able to accomplish keeping her children in ignorance of what was about to take place.

THEY knew and hung about her skirts in a frightened little brood. On these occasions, too, the Warden himself moved about like a man in a troubled dream. Usually, the event itself took place in the small, morbid hours of the night when the children were asleep. But it bothered the Warden's wife because invariably, it seemed to her as she sat watchfully beside the bedsides of her children, that Chester became feverish and talkative in his slumber. Which was true, because from his early youth, there percolated to this boy, through the granite walls, a sense of the wrongness of certain penal methods in the society of which he was a part.

He hated the shaved heads of the men. The thick shoes and stockings of the women. The institutional smells of the hallways that led to his father's office. Once he had slipped through a door into the cell-corridors. The faces of some of the men whom he had seen for years at recreation in the courtyards peering at him through the stripes of the iron doors that led to the cells were burned into his memory and heart. In one of those cells a woman was crying. It was not a natural sound of crying which he knew, but a hopeless sort of wail which had also gone deeply and unforgettably into his consciousness.

It pained and even horrified him to see his father move so casually through these scenes. And then on the days when the sentence of the death-house brooded over the prison, it seemed to this boy that the very pedestrians who passed the house outside the prison-walls; his teachers at school; his companions at play; his own brothers and sisters, and even his parents, were part of some hideous social scheme that made things like this possible.

The world was a world of killers. Presently, a man would be led to the death-chair, and because those pedestrians and those teachers and those playmates willed it so, he would be killed. Even his father, whom he loved, belonged more closely to the conspiracy than the pedestrians and yet, how often he had heard the Warden say that he preferred to hold his job and fight capital punishment from that vantage, rather than to give it up to a more indifferent point of view.

IN a way, Chester knew that was right and yet there were times when his own father became rather terrible to him. His own father, who set the date and the day and the hour for the death of another human being.

And then there came a time when the Warden and his wife, with their carefully-hoarded savings for just this occasion, were prepared to send their boy away to college, and in result, the first serious rift in the placid affairs of that household occurred. Chester did not want to go to college. He did not want to leave the environment of "Mr. Dike" and Sue and one or two of the "trusties" who were his daily companions.

A world that was removed from those gray walls was unthinkable to him. His friends resided here. It was then the wife of the Warden berated her husband. For years she had remonstrated against these companionships, which had been tolerated between her children and the inmates of the prison and now the results of that condition were beginning to manifest themselves. Chester preferred the company of jailbirds.

At first, the Warden was appalled and terror-stricken. Here was this son of his, as fine, as upstanding a fellow as a father had ever been proud of, abiding stubbornly and tenaciously by his refusal to leave home. Had the companionship of a man like Dike been vicious? Had a kind, intelligent woman like Sue exerted an evil influence? Even the Warden's wife herself, when he talked this situation over with her, was forced to admit that the contacts with these chastened and chastised people could only have been for the better.

Then the Warden began to see things differently. He began to see in this boy of his, fertile soil for the sowing of seeds of discontent with certain aspects of the social system. He began to see the makings of a fine rebel in Chester. He began to realize that right here, within these grim, gray walls, was the ideal university for training a young mind toward a wider humanitarianism; a finer understanding of human psychology; a keener wisdom concerning the treatment of human frailties.

CHESTER'S was the kind of mind to saturate with the crude, unpsychological wrongness of many aspects of the penal system.

The Warden felt a sudden gratefulness that it was within his power to turn his offspring loose within this sociological university, where he might study those human beings that fall into the category known as "criminals".

Chester is thirty-three now. He is a State Senator. He is already a powerful and eloquent and highly promising opponent of prison-abuses as they exist today in the greatest country in the world

YOUNG AND VIERKOETTER TO SWIM NEXT

PERMISSION IS GRANTED FOR THE GERMAN CHAMPION TO RACE TORONTO SWIMMER

Match Will Be Held on Sept. 22 If Water is Favorable.

OVER 58 DEGREES

George Young Will Race Ross Also at Later Date.

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—Two match swims, with George Young racing against Ernst Vierkoetter in one and against Norman Ross in the other are likely to be held in the near future.

The first one will be staged on Saturday, September 22, with Young and Vierkoetter as the contestants.

Permission for the Young-Vierkoetter swim was granted yesterday by the Ontario Athletic Commission on application of Playfair Brown and F. G. "Teddy" Oke.

The swim will be run within the breakwater and will be from 7 to 10 miles. It has not been decided as yet exactly what the distance will be, but the approximate figure was arrived at inasmuch as Young was taken out of the water at the 7-mile mark and Vierkoetter at 10 miles.

One condition only for the swim is exacted That is that the water must not be under 58 degrees, a condition which will apply to all future swims. If the water approximates this temperature it is expected that the course will be seven miles only. Incidentally, the water was 58 degrees on Saturday.

Mr. Playfair Brown is confident that Vierkoetter will retain his high prestige inasmuch as his arm is now greatly improved. It is expected that the purse will exceed that of the Exhibition swim and side-bets ranging from $5,000 to $25,000 have already been offered.

With the sanction of the Ontario Athletic Commission, the application will be submitted to the board of control to-day.

Inasmuch as such an event would necessitate blocking Fleet street, Mr. Brown said he was making application to the department of highways immediately. "Mr. Oke is just as keen as I am for the swim," he stated, "and is eager for a chance to show what Young can do against Vierkoetter because of recent criticism."

"No" said the mayor, "there is such a thing as killing a good thing. I would not be in favor of having it here. They are trying to make money out of this."

Ross Willing, Too.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Norman Ross yesterday expressed himself as much interested in the offer of "Teddy" Oke to put up $10,000 for a special race between Ross and George Young to settle the question of their supremacy.

"Given sufficient time to rest I can beat Young over any distance from a mile to ten miles," Ross said. "When I swam against him Saturday I had already gone through a fatiguing race on Wednesday, and when a swimmer gets to be 32 years old he has to have a little rest between races to give his best. Young is only 19, and he can stand up better under such conditions. I started out all right on Saturday, but when I had gone about half way I felt like I had climbed about fifteen flight of stairs, and I knew I was beaten.

"I am willing to swim Young again at any time that I am in shape," Ross declared, "and I would perfer to beat him before a Toronto audience. If this reported offer of Oke's is in the nature of a ten thousand dollar prize for a match swim against Young I am ready to take him or any time.

"I presume, however, that it is a side bet that Mr. Oke proposes to put up. In that case, while I am equally sure of being able to beat Young the raising of the $10,000 at my end would make the staging of the race a difficult proposition."

ROYALS WIN FROM LEAFS

Lightning and Rain Cut Game Short—Rochester Loses to Buffalo.

NEWARK WINS.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 11.—The Royals, battling with the same fury that swept them to three out of four victories against the Bisons at Buffalo returned home yesterday afternoon and subdued the pennant - aspiring Maple Leafs by 8-6. It was a ding-dong battle that caused two of the best pitchers of each team to take an early shower. The Royals had come from behind twice to head off the Leafs, before darkness finally put an end to the titanic struggle.

A shower that fell while the second inning was in progress held up the game for over forty minutes and although the fixture was played in fast time upon resumption of hostilities, it was no longer twilight when the teams went into the eighth inning. It was dark, almost pitch dark and fork lightning was cutting the sky in the east when Umpire Gaston finally called it a day. Whether it was the lightning or the prospect of rain that decided Gaston is not known, but he gave the Leafs every break in prolonging the game until the eighth. With the pennant chase as hot as it is and every defeat a dear one, Gaston was wise to let the teams battle to the end.

The defeat toppled Toronto from second place and Buffalo, who defeated Rochester in the latter's park, moved up to a tie for first place with the Red Wings. Rochester and Buffalo are tied in games won and lost but the Wings are first by one point in the percentages. The Leafs are one-half game behind the leaders.

BISONS BEAT LEADERS.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 11. — The Rochester lead was cut to one percentage point in the International League pennant chase here yesterday when Buffalo pounded out 13 hits to garner eight runs and a decision over the Red Wings, 8-3. Warren Ogden hung up his tenth straight victory, and his second in the last eight days over Rochester.

PROFESSOR SHERIDAN WINS.

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 11.—A home-run drive into the right-field bleachers by Jack Bentley in the second inning gave the Newark Bears a 1-to-0 victory over Reading in the opening game of the series here yesterday.

The contest, which was played in 89 minutes, developed into a pitchers' duel between Fred Sheridan and Jack Welch, with the former having a shade the better of it. They both allowed five hits. It was the farewell game for Sheridan, as he leaves today to resume his duties as a professor of mathematics at a college in Birmingham, Ala.

Newark yesterday released Infielder Joe Brennan.

VIEWS ON SPORT

How about more entries for the horseshoe pitching competition to be held latter part of this week?

Stouffville and Raybestos clash to-morrow afternoon in the second game of the third Intermediate O.B.A.A. round at the former's home field. Masterson will probably be the pitching choice for the locals, and he will have a tough contest on his hands, as the opposing team can play good ball.

* * * *

Riley & Hickey bantam crew are slated for a practice every night this week at James Stevenson Park in order to be in shape for their return game with the St. Francis team of Toronto here on Saturday. The local crew are every day as good as their opponents, but owing to nervousness on the part of the players did not play their usual style of ball in the Queen City.

George Voigt and Jimmy Johnston were tied yesterday for the lead at the end of the first eighteen holes of the 36-hole qualifying test for the American national amateur golf championship. Both these players each sprang sensations by scoring 71, one under par for this rugged course and a record for its lengthened championship distance.

New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics clash again today in a resumption of their ultra-crucial series after their breathing spell yesterday. Grove will go against the Yanks to-day and Barnshaw will take up the burden to-morrow, while Hoyt and Henry Johnson will do the honors for the New Yorkers. Although about 30,000 reserved seats and boxes are already sold for to-day's game, it is not believed possible that the gigantic Yankee Stadium will be filled to capacity for the battle.

Playfair Brown and Teddy Oke, Toronto sports promoter, and Young's backer, were given permission by the Ontario Athletic Commission to hold two match swims at Toronto, with George Young against Ernest Vierkoetter in one race and Young and Norman Ross in the second. The first will be held on September 22, providing the water is favorable—that is, at the lowest, 58 degrees of temperature. It has not been decided how long the races will be, but they will be between seven and ten miles. The course will be laid inside the breakwater.

GIANTS WIN DOUBLE BILL

New Yorkers Make Good Start in Series With Braves.

PHILLIES DIVIDE

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(Canadian Press).—The New York Giants staged an auspicious opening of their series of four double headers with the Boston Braves at Boston by taking both of yesterday's games 4 to 1 and 11 to 0. The two victories gave them partial revenge for the three straight victories the Bostonians registered last month at the Polo Grounds.

The Giants bunched their hits off Bob Smith in the first game to get their winning runs.

In the second the Giants pounded impartially the offerings of Delaney, Edwards, Clarkson and Bogg, amassing a total of 16 hits for 22 bases. Andy Reese hit a home run off Edwards in the sixth with a man on base, accounting for two of the four runs batted in.

The lowly Phillies and the not-much higher Brooklyn Robins divided a double header at Philadelphia, the home team taking the first game 11 to 6 and the Robins winning the second 7 to 2.

The tail-enders slammed three Brooklyn hurlers for a total of 13 hits in the opener while Sweetland and McGraw kept the Robins' 12 scattered enough to give them only six runs. Charley Klein, Philly centerfielder, got a home run and three singles in four times at bat in the first game.

In the second game, Watson Clark held the Phils in check in all but two innings. Jimmy Ring started for Philadelphia but lasted only seven innings. The Robins got all their runs and 13 of their hits off him. Miller pitched the last two frames.

SEYMOUR FAIR TO BE BETTER

Directors' Efforts in Improving Exhibition Bearing Fruit.

BIGGER MIDWAY.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, September 11.—Rainy weather was the cause of the small attendance at the meeting of the fair directors in the council chambers last night, but the wet weather did not dampen the enthusiasm of the officers who were present. In less than three weeks the anual exhibition will be a thing of the past for another twelve months, and every effort is being expended in order that this fair may eclipse the one of lats year, just as last year's event outshone all others held under the auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society. Bigger and better than ever before is the motto of the directors and their efforts seem to be meeting with success.

Horse racing, the major attraction of the majority of fair goers, will be made more than ever attractive this year. There will be three classes and the purse for each will be well worth winning. Free feed for the race horses while on the grounds and stable accommodation for a certain number, will be provided.

The midway will be bigger than on former occasions and has already gained for itself an enviable reputation throughout the province. The prize list will be longer and more varied and the prizes will it is expected be keenly contested. Already farmers and breeders of pet stock, and producers of rare plants and herbs are beginning to cull their stock for the exhibition.

An added attraction this year will be the old time fiddlers' contest. This is something that has not been on the list of events for more years than most of the citizens can remember and it is expected to be a big attraction.

CHICAGO SOX DEFEAT TIGERS

Veteran Urban Faber Pitches Windy City Club to 6-4 Victory.

BROWNS WIN 5-3

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(Canadian Press).—Pounding Sam Gibson out of the box in the sixth inning when they scored five runs, the Chicago White Sox took the first contest of a two-game series from the Tigers at Detroit yesterday, 6 to 4. The veteran Urban Faber worked for the Red Sox and pitched clever ball, only one earned run being made off him. Harry Heilmann drove a homer over the left field wall in the eighth for the Tigers last run.

Although they were charged with three errors the St. Louis Browns gave Blaeholder sterling support in the pinches at Cleveland and won the opener of the two game series with Cleveland 5 to 3. In the total of safe hits the Tribe had a slight advantage but a number of St. Louis' safeties went for extra bases that meant extra runs.

The 1928 home season of the Washington Senators ended with a 5 to 2 defeat by the Boston Red Sox and gave the Boston club a count of 13 victories for the 22 games between the teams.

A three-run rally in the ninth inning gave the Red Sox their win. Borris, who had relieved Ruffing in the pitcher's box, hit a triple scoring two of his teammates and later crossed the plate when Rothrock banged out a single.

Washington was held by the two Boston hurlers to five hits.

SOME GRAIN STILL IN FIELDS

Yield Varies Greatly in Millbrook District—Rain Delays Work.

THRESHERS BUSY.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 11.—Threshing operations are still incomplete in this section, there being some farms on which fields of grain are yet to be drawn in, the wet weather, heavy dew each morning, and lack of barn space being various hindrances; though the fine days last week saw great progress made.

Some farmers finished both harvesting more than a week ago, those owning threshing outfits being fortunate in that no delay was necessary in proceeding with the work.

The yield reported so far is, generally speaking, below that of last year, the wet weather being responsible for sprouting in a considerable quantity of grain that had been cut and was in the stooks, but not dry enough to draw in. Peas, too, were quite a loss as they shelled out, and in some cases were not worth drawing in—though some farmers have stated that they were fortunate enough to have both peas and alsike all drawn in with no loss from the frequent showers in what should have been the busiest time of the harvest season.

On one farm west of the village there was a yield of three hundred bushels of barley and buckwheat mixed from 7 acres of land. Forty acres of oats yielded 35 bushels to the acre. Ten acres of fall wheat averaged 18 bushels to the acre. Twelve acres of spring wheat averaged 20 bushels. These figures are not all from the one farm but practically round the same locality. Peas, in some cases, yielded 25 bushels to the acre, higher than that on some farms, and down to fifteen bushels from other fields.

SECTIONAL RALLY OF W.M.S.

Grenfell in his lonely mission in Labrador, daily encountering the dangers of fog and storm, or rock and icebergs, to carry his medical skill to the sick; or our own missionaries, who leave friends and the comforts of home, without thought of reward or honor, making these sacrifices form a sense of duty, seeing only in the more unfortunate a fellowman who needs a friend, we realize the meaning of true service, and our zeal for the missionary cause must be enhanced."

"Our duty is not done when we have given of our store, even when done with princely liberality. There are other duties.

My Duty.

Men have duties and if I would be a man
Then I must bow to duty and do the best I can
In every way and every day till I grow big enough
To realize the best of men are diamonds in the rough
Time has a way of teaching men
Its truths before he dies
He profits most who serves the best
My duty; there it lies.

Reply by Mrs. D. R. Clare, of Norham was given in a few chosen words of expression of gratitude to the Wooler Auxiliary. Address on Circle and C.G.I.T. work by Miss Nellie Martin, Deaconess of Picton, who very ably gave a synopsis of the importance of girl's work and the duty of the Auxiliary in encouraging and supporting this work not to forget the younger organizations are a part of the Auxiliary in which it is especially connected, in the same church. Departmental secretary's conference was held in three groups including the entire delegation. Miss Chace, of Toronto, was in charge of the Christian Stewardship group; Mrs. Rev. Street of Stockdale, was in charge of the Mission Bands and Baby Bands; Mrs. Rev. Neal was leader of the Mission Circle and C.G.I.T. group.

After fifteen minutes of discussion, Mrs. Neal presented the report of the conference as a whole. From eleven thirty to noon Mrs. Roberts of Grafton and Mrs. Newman, of Castleton, conducted the quiet half hour.

More than ninety delegates were invited down stairs to the dining hall where the tables looked very pretty with cut flowers and tasty with the luncheon.

Afternoon Session

The devotional of the afternoon session was conducted by Mrs. Rev. Lee, of Hilton and Mrs. Rev. Street of Stockdale. Following this, was the roll call of sixteen Auxiliaries and nenety members were present there, the Circles, Bands and Baby Bands from the section as far north as Campbellford, as far south as Brighton, west as Castleton and East as far as Wooler. Mrs. Rose Maitland of Brighton, treasurer of the Presbyterial gave some very interesting facts on sending in money and reports and to make sure they balance. Mrs. Fred Snelgrove, Brighton, supply secretary, advised the proper method in sending bales to her to eliminate expense. Mrs. Ezra Mabee, Smithfield, gave an excellent talk on literature, how to use it and where to obtain it and urged the reading of the Missionary Monthly.

Mrs. Rev. Glover, of Smithfield delighted the audience with a solo, "Nearer My God to Thee." Miss Chace, of Toronto, gave an address on her work in Western Canada, which was most helpful. There is a wonderful opening for missionary workers among the strangers within our gates. Every nationality is settling in Western Canada. Mrs. J. W. Roberts, of Grafton, brought greetings from our Presbyterial. Mrs. Hammond of Campbellford, brought a message from Miss Clarke who, through illness will not sail before December for her Missionary field of labor.

The report of the Committee was given, thanking Mrs. S. L. Terrill and her helpers for the wonderful reception, well arranged program and the pleasant day they had enjoyed spiritually and socially. Mrs. Terrill being the president of this section responded in a few chosen words. The meeting adjourned with prayer by Mrs. Neal, to meet next year at Warkworth.

CAMPBELLFORD DEFEATS TWEED

Wins Tummon Cup By 6-1 Victory in Final Series of Matches.

SINGLES CUPS WON.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 11.—The local tennis club tournament team went to Belleville on Saturday to meet the Tweed team in the final fixture of the Tummon League series. The events were after the order of the Central Ontario Lawn Tennis Association rules and were played on the courts of the Belleville Country Club. Of the seven events, Campbellford gained the upper hand in six. By this victory the club will retain the Tummon Cup for the third consecutive year. This is the first year that the cup has been presented to the winners of the League. It was formerly the plan to have the cup holders challenged by any club in the League and it was the duty of the possessors to defend it. Campbellford was successful in its defence for two seasons and has won it now for the third consecutive year.

Miss Jessie Weston, Campbellford won the ladies' singles from Miss Dorothy Bowers of Tweed, 6-8, 6-3, 6-3. C. Weston won from Corcoran of Tweed, 6-2, 4-6, 6-0, in the first set of men's singles, while Harry Free won from Rollens of Tweed, 6-3, 6-3, in the second men's singles fixture. Miss Eleanor Ferris and Walter Henson won the mixed doubles event from Miss B. Gordon and Mr. Rachotte of Tweed, 9-7, 6-4. Miss Harris and Miss Graham of Tweed were defeated by Mrs. D. W. Douglas and Miss L. Smith, 3-6, 8-6, 6-4, in the ladies' doubles. The honors in the men's doubles were evenly divided. In the first fixture, T. E. Moffat and Minorgan of Tweed lost to W. Kingston and B. H. Beatty of Campbellford, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4; while in the second set Crabill and Bowers of Tweed defeated Longmore and J. H. Bell of Campbellford, 4-6, 6-3, 1-6. The tournament marked the end of a very successful season for the Campbellford club.

Another event of the day was the completion of the play-offs of the Labor Day tournament held at the Country Club by the Belleville players. C. Weston finished his series in the men's singles by defeating Earl Allen of Kingston and winning the cup. The score was 6-2, 6-4. Miss Josephine Longmore was the only other winner to go from Campbellford. She won the ladies' singles cup. The other players were defeated before they reached the finals.

FAIRWAY FAVORITE FOR TURF CLASSIC

Probable Starters Announced for Renewal of St. Leger Race.

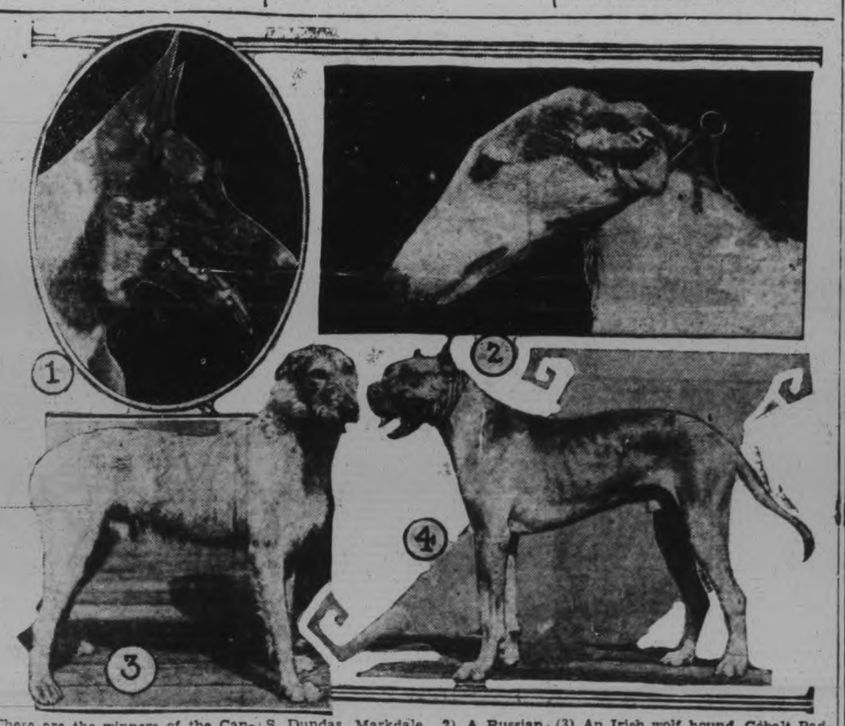
DONCASTER, Eng., Sept. 11. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—With Lord Derby's colt Fairway a firm favorite, jockeys and probable starters were announced last night for the renewal of the classic St. Leger Stakes over the historic course of a mile, six furlongs and 132 yards on Wednesday afternoon. Fifteen three-year-olds were named and probably the only outstanding horse of its age lacking in the field is Felstead, the Derby winner, who was withdrawn a few days ago when it was plain that he would be in no condition to race.

The St. Leger is the last of the season's five classics, chief of which of course is the Derby. One classic winner in the field is Sir Lawrence Philips' Flamingo, victor in the Two Thousand Guineas at a mile at Newmarket last spring. Flamingo and J. Courtald's Cyclonic are next favorites to Fairway. The latter colt was the strong favorite also for the Derby, in which he ran unplaced. Since then he has recorded some good victories.

The betting last night: Eleven to four against Fairway, five to one against Cyclonic and Flamingo, seven to one against Buland, 100 to six against Palais Royal Second (France) and Gang Warily, 18 to ne against Plantage, 20 to one against Parwiz and Marconigram, 25 to one against Luvaneran, and 100 to three against Bourbon, Constant Son, Cherry King, Tourist and Lodore.

Probable starters: Bourbon (H. Wragg), Buland (Beary), Cherry King (Carslake), Constant Son (Evans), Cyclonic Bobby Jones), Fairway (Weston), Flamingo (Elliott), Gang Warily (Steve Donoghue), Lodere (Wells), Luvaneran (H. Beasley), Marconigram (Gordon Richards), Palais Royal Second Boullon), Parwiz (P. Beasley), Plantago (H. Jellis), and Tourist (Dines).

In a certain parish in Yorkshire, England, a great football match is played annually on Good Friday, each member of the winning team receives a glass of hot milk, two hot-cross buns and a new half-crown.



These are the winners of the Canadian National Exhibition dog show. (1) An Alsatian, Rex Von Nassau, winner of three ribbons, owned by G. S. Dundas, Markdale. 2) A Russian wolf hound, Baby Romanoff Orlaff, winner of first prize in its class, from the Romanoff Kennels, Brantford. (3) An Irish wolf hound, Cobalt Paddy, best of its class, owned by A. A. Amos, Cobalt. (4) Capt. Blood, best of Great Danes, entered by H. Edwards.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

RIOTOUS WAR FILM

Sherman said war was hell but it's just one long laugh in Warner Bros.' picture "Ham and Eggs at the Front," now at the Regent Theatre. This is the story by Darryl Francis Zanuck that tells about a regiment of colored troops in France—and particularly the humorous adventures of a couple of darkie pals nicknamed by their companions Ham and Eggs.

The cast of "Ham and Eggs at the Front" is played entirely by popular actors and actresses who applied the art of make-up with burnt cork to achieve the proper appearance. The feminine lead is handled by Myrna Loy and the roles of Ham and Eggs are played respectively by Tom Wilson and Heinie Conklin. Both these men have achieved comedy triumphs before but this picture gives them the most unusual opportunity they have ever enjoyed. "Ham and Eggs at the Front" was directed by Roy Del Ruth.

As an added attraction the official pictures of the Tunney-Heeney championship bout will be shown at the conclusion of the regular feature picture.

AT THE CAPITOL.

VICTOR McLAGLEN IN "HANGMAN'S HOUSE."

This feature picture is one of the most interesting seen here in a long time. From the various angles of an entertaining story, of excellent characterization by the actors and of an out-of-the-ordinary setting, it has everything that goes to make up a really fine feature.

Those who saw "What Price Glory" will remember Victor McLaglen, as Captain Flagg, one of the two rivals who fight their way through that thrilling war feature. As Citizen Hogan he makes a wonderful Irishman in "Hangman's House," his very lineaments fitting in with the age-old conception of what a real Irishman's face should look like. And the Emerald Isle forms the background for most of the story, only a brief opening in Algiers, where Hogan, a Commandante of the French Foreign Legion, is shown making his decision to come back to Ireland, where a price rests on his head, giving a glimpse of another setting. And a real Irish horserace of the steeplechase, dangerous, thrilling type, is one of the speedy interludes in the story.

The story resembles one of the old-fashioned romances, where many diverse threads entwine to make the finale. Hogan is the hero, but not the lover, of the piece. His is the strong, renouncing, avenging role of the soldier, who learns that his sister has been deserted by her husband and left to die alone in Paris. When the telegram announcing her death reaches him, he says: "I have got to go to Ireland to kill a man," and the next scene shows him disguised as a monk, making his way to Glenmalure and Hangman's House. Singing the old song of the "Wild Geese" of Ireland, the "Shan van Voght," he is recognized by an old neighbor and the word goes out that Citizen Hogan is back again.

Meanwhile, at Hangman's House, the home of Baron O'Brien, the "Hanging Jimmy" of the bench who has sent many a man to the gallows, the owner sits waiting for death. As his life ebbs, he makes plans for his daughter, Connaught, to marry John D'Arcy, who can give her a fine career. Connaught, who is in love with Dermott McDermott, accedes to her father's wishes and marries the "Informer" D'Arcy, as the Irish folk call him. This gentleman is a masterly villain who is just about as nasty as a man can possibly be. However with Dermott wathing him and Hogan on his track, for he is really the man who married and then deserted the "Citizen's" sister, he hasn't a very easy time of it, and vengeance finally descends upon his head in a strange fashion, that witnesses also the burning of "Hangman's House."

The story, with its Irish setting, the sweet Irish music which the Capitol orchestra appropriately plays for its presentation, and the Irish twist to the words of the sub-titles, has that intriguing quality that goes with any presentation of Irish life and character, and the steeplechase chase in which Dermott rides "The Bard" to victory, is one of the highlights of a wonderfully good picture. Hobart Bosworth had the role of "Hanging Jimmy," and June Collyer makes a sweet but rather insipid, heroine.

The comedy that precedes the feature is a scream, with the frozen-faced Stan Laurel and his fat companion, Oliver Hardy, as co-victims in an uproarious morning game of golf.

Lawn tennis is perhaps the favorite game in Afghanistan, but polo is popular, and cricket, football and billiards are played.

SHORT MEETING OF COMMISSION

R. L. Dobbin Will Attend Meeting of Illuminating Engineers.

Brevity was the keynote of the meeting held by the Peterborough Utilities Commission on Monday afternoon. Every member was present even before the opening hour, four o'clock, and by 4.15, minutes, three or four communications and a resolution—the sum total of the business— had been satisfactorily disposed of.

The resolution referred to was that in favor of having R. L. Dobbin and any of the commissioners attend the World Convention of Illuminating Engineers, being held in Toronto next week, while the only communication of public interest was that received from the Ontario Safety League relative to a membership renewal. Incidentally, the letter drew attention to the fact that 97 more fatalities had occurred in the past year, but that there had been thirteen less fatal accidents to children, proving that the minds of the younger people are more receptive to safety campaign

CERVONE'S BAND IS VERY POPULAR

Has Played at N. Y. and Kentucky State Fairs For Years.

Lieut. Cervonne and his band are here this week, after an absence of one year, and will be heard each afternoon and evening at the Peterborough Exhibition.

This band has been featured at the large fairs throughout the continent, having been at the N. Y. State Fair for five seasons, at the Kentucky State Fair four seasons, and many others.

Each member of the band is a member of the 176th Field Artillery, and they have been featured over stations KDKA and WCAE, located at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Lieut. Cervonne is assisted by Miss Edna Joyce, one of New York's popular vocal soloists.

BIRTH.

SHADGETT. — TO Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Shadgett, 455 Chamberlain Street, on September 10th, 1928—a daughter (Nancy Joyce).

IN MEMORIAM.

FLEETWOOD. — In fond and loving memory of our dear sister, who died September 11, 1919:
We who loved you sadly miss you.
As it dawns another year;
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are ever near.
A light from our household is gone;
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
—Sadly missed by her sisters and brother.

Wedding Bells

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KNIGHT—MITCHELL.

NORHAM, Sept. 11.—The marriage of Miss Lulu Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell, of Norham, and Douglas Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Knight, and organist of the United church, Norham, was solemnized in the Norham United church on Wednesday, September 5th, at 12 o'clock. Rev D. R. Clare, B.A., B.D., of Norham, officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated in yellow and green golden glow, ferns and ivy, making a pleasing combination of color. The ceremony was performed under an arch of white, artistically decorated in green and yellow and white wedding bells. Lorne Evans and Mr. Wesley Newman were ushers.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Ivan Denike. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Grant sang "Oh Promise Me" very sweetly. After the ceremony the guests motored to the home of the bride, where the wedding dinner was served.

The color scheme of the house was pink and white and was beautifully carried out in the various rooms and table decorations.

Rev. D. R. Clare acted as toastmaster. After the toast to 'The King' the toast to the bride was proposed by J. F. Cryderman, of Toronto and responded to by the bride's uncle, Rev. George Mitchell, of Westport. After the toasts, Mrs. Grant again sang in her usual pleasing manner.

During the ceremony the bride's gown was white crepe de chine with veil and orange blossoms. Her travelling suit was a beige ensemble suit with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight left for a motor trip to Toronto and western points. They will reside on the farm now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. R. Knight, in Cramahe township, who are moving to a neighboring house.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. P. Roberts of Grafton, Mr. and Mrs. Cole of Oak Heights, Rev. and Mrs. George Mitchell of Westport, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Mitchell of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. F. Mitchell of Brighton township, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke of Cramahe, Mr. and Mrs. Knight of Wicklow, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Evans and Mr. and Mrs. W. Newman of Norham, all uncles and aunts of the bride or groom, also Mrs. Knight, Sr., Rev. and Mrs. Clare, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Knight and son, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cryderman, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly of Hastings, Mrs. Denike of Warkworth, Mrs. Ivan Denike, Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Woddard.

DORLAND—TERRILL

(Examiner Correspondence)

WOOLER, Sept. 11. —A lawn wedding of much charm and interest took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton R. Terrill, Wooler, on Saturday, when Frances Mary, their only daughter, was married to Lloyd Edwin Dorland, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dorland. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. H. B. Neal under an arch of white lattice with white bells, banked in two large lawn trees. Mrs. L. H. Rowe played the wedding march and played throughout the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was a charming picture in a period gown of white silk crepe, with frills inserted with Parisian lace and old old lace that was worn by her grandmother Terrill on her wedding day, forming an uneven hemline. Her veil of Brussels net, was arranged in bonnet effect and held in place with clusters of pearls and orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a shower of Orphelia roses and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Marguerite Polly of Toronto, wore a pink chiffon costume with felt hat to match. Mrs Francis Stacey, matron of honor, and maids in waiting were Stella Nelson, Gladys Vosburg, Margaret Hennessy, Eva Masters, Grace Douglas, Brantford, Pauline Teal and Zetta Anderson of Whitby. These girls were dressed in pink and blue alternately and held white ribbons. The groom was supported by his cousin, Henry McColl. There were one hundred and sixty five guests present from Rochester, Toronto, Brantford, Detroit, Bancroft, Picton, Trenton and Lindsay.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes, the happy couple left by motor for Eastern Ontario and New York State, the bride travelling in French bisque gown, navy blue coat, and sequin hat and wearing a fox fur, the gift of the groom.

GREEN—LOGAN

The wedding was quietly solemnized at noon to-day, at the home of the bride's parents, 210 McDonell street, of Mary Agnes, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Allison Logan, and Mr. Frederick Joseph Green, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. Walter Green. Rev. Wm. Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church conducted the ceremony.

Attendants were Miss Grace Wilson and Mr. George Logan. Little Miss Margaret Hooper was a dainty flour girl. The wedding music was played by Miss Margaret Widdess.

HOLLOWAY—KENNETT

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kennett of Hilliard street will be interested in the following report of the wedding of Mr. Kennett's niece, which took place recently in Bournemouth, England. Miss Kennett has many friends in Peterborough where she resided for over two years:

"Members of the Boscombe Congregational Church and their friends were present in representative numbers at the wedding solemnized at that place of worship on Wednesday, August 1st, of Miss Ada Kathleen Kennett, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sherwood Kennett, of 1, Spurgeon Road, Boscombe East, and Mr. Walter John Holloway, only son of the late Mrs. Holloway of "Homeside," Knole-Road, Boscombe. Both the bride and bridegroom have been actively identified for years past with the Sunday School at Boscombe Church and the latter is also well known as a lieutenant of the 3rd Bournemouth Boys' Brigade. The Rev. Ernest F. Knight, B.D., minister of that church, officiated, and the bride was given away by her father.

"She was delightfully attired in a lovely dress of ivory satin with silk lace panels and trimmed with pearls and orange blossom, together with a wreath and veil previously worn by the bridegroom's mother. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses, white carnations, white heather and fern. Her bridesmaids, the Misses Marjorie Kennett (sister) and Molly Hawkins (friend) wore almond green georgette, with silver hats and shoes to match and carried shower bouquets of pink carnations, the gifts of the bridegroom, who also presented them with handbags. Mr. E. Webb (a friend of the bridegroom) was an efficient best man and many guests were present at the subsequent happy reception at St. Andrew's Hall. The bride's going-away attire included a rose petal crepe de chine frocks, navy blue coat, and Condor hat to match, and black patent shoes. The honeymoon is being spent at the Isle of Wight, and the happy couple will reside in future at Lymington.

"There was a long list of handsome and costly presents, which included a mahogany Westminster chime clock, presented to the bridegroom by the 3rd Bournemouth Boys' Brigade, a jardinier from the teachers of the Boscombe Congregational Church Sunday School and a tune book from the choir of the same church."

OBITUARY

ALEXANDER FITZGERALD

On Monday afternoon the funeral of Alexander Fitzgerald was held from his late residence, 83 Hunter street, east. Mr. Fitzgerald who died last Friday evening in his 84th year was a well-known and highly respected citizen of Peterborough and district.

The service was conducted by the Rev. George Bousfield of St. Luke's Anglican Church, a church of which Mr. Fitzgerald had for many years been a member and officer.

The pallbearers, intimate friends and associates of the deceased, were Messrs. Frank Adams, J. J. Turner, Harry Evans, Roland Denne, William Scott and J. Finney.

The numerous floral tributes, including those from the Lakefield Orange Lodge, St. Luke's Anglican Church, and the City of Peterborough, helped testify to the esteem in which Mr. Fitzgerald was held. Over the weekend a constant stream of old friends came to pay silent honour to one of whom it might well be said "none knew but to love or named but to praise." Two of Mr. Fitzgerald's old comrades in the Fenian Raid came to render their last respects.

The funeral was attended by many relatives and friends and among the chief mourners were the following: Harry C. Fitzgerald, son (Lakefield); Mrs. (Rev.) J. H. Edmison, daughter, (Toronto); A. M. Fitzgerald, grandson, (Lakefield); Alexander Edmison, grandson, (Montreal); James Graham, brother-in-law, and Misses E. and C. Graham, sisters-in-law, of Peterborough.

Burial was made in Little Lake Cemetery, Mr. Fitzgerald being laid to rest alongside his wife who died in 1908.

ARCHIBALD DRYLAND

The death of Archibald Dryland came as a distinct shock, not only to his friends but his school mates as well. He was a son of Mr. A. H. Dryland, of 24 Brioux Avenue. His mother predeceased him fifteen years ago. Besides his sorrowing grandfather and grandmother he father and two Half sisters, Marion and Wilma Dryland, are left to mourn his loss.

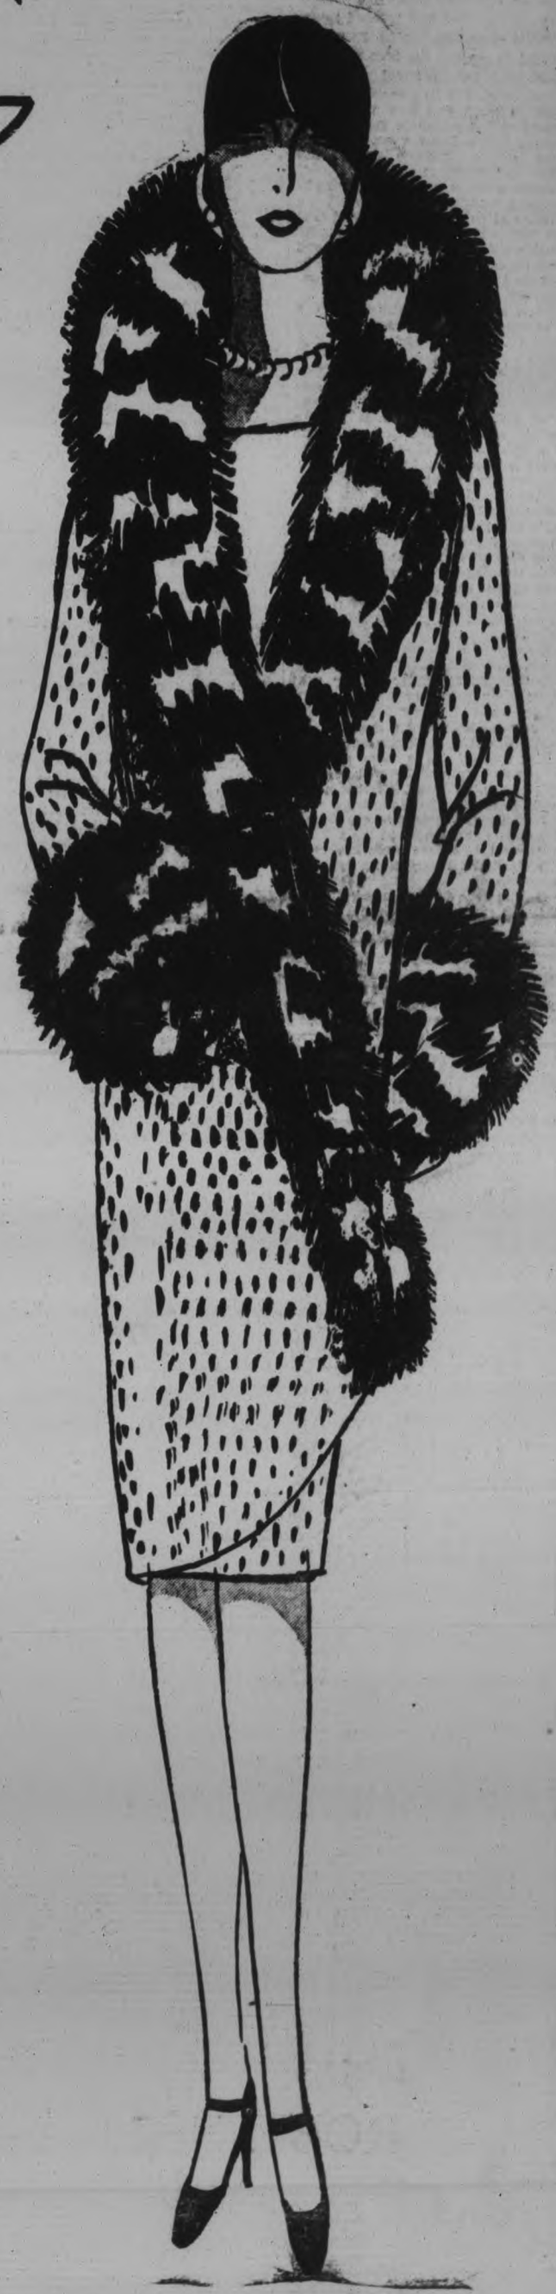
FALL OPENING

Peterborough Merchants and Examiner Reporters present the story of the Autumn Mode. All of the items described in this special number may be seen and purchased in Peterborough stores during Exhibition Week.

COME SHOP WITH MISTRESS MARION



PETERBOROUGH IS IN GALA ATTIRE for the occasion of the big annual Industrial Exhibition, and men and women are beginning to think seriously of their Fall attire. They do not wish, like Eve, to be caught by Autumn's chill breezes with "nothing to wear." Those who are wise will prepare now so that the first "breath of autumn's being" will find them ready to step forth replete with fall chic and able to look the world bravely in the face. And so, with full appreciation of the high responsibility cast upon me, I will endeavor to conduct the women readers of The Examiner on a shopping tour of city stores, if they will follow from page to page of this Special Fashion Number.

Throughout this issue are pictured delightful harbingers of the fall mode. There are dresses, coats, ensembles for street wear and frocks for parties, each one emphasizing some definite trend of the styles to guide in selecting a wardrobe. But it is not only in the execution of dress styles that the season shows its subtlety. There are new fabrics, and, I suspect, new names for old fabrics. Some of them indicate that those who christen them have no sense of the merchandizing value of a simply pronounced name. It is a well-recognized fact that difficult-to-say names repel buyers—yet here we have Kashaduvetyne, Railykasha and Ziblikasha. They might well be the names of Mars' ambassadors to some future peace convention.

Millinery, too, has its ups and downs, and this season brims are doing all kinds of amusing things. As I remarked in the Whatnot a few days ago, Paris favors the small hat, and certainly nothing could be neater with hair in its present mode. We shall find, as we progress through the pages, that Peterborough stores are right up-to-the-minute in their millinery offerings.

If we can take just a moment before starting on our perambulation around the stores, via Examiner pages, I would like to say a word about the importance of the silhouette. Fabric and color are important in choosing a frock, but the difference between the styles of other days is not so much in these points as in the silhouette. From the Grecian lines, it has come in stately measure through the decades of crinoline, bustle and wasp waist; now reverting to the tube skirt, then blossoming out in leg-of-mutton sleeves; finally dancing out of the short-skirted simplicity of post-war days into the sunshine and femininity of the formal and elegant mode of to-day.

There may be, in name, three parts to the fall silhouette —sports, afternoon and evening—but as a matter of fact the formal note has stolen into sportswear in a way not seen before. Each part has a certain individuality, it is true, but all are permeated by two major elements, elegance and animation. There is a delightful air of quaintness in the afternoon silhouette. There will be greater fulness in the bodice of the evening mode, as well as in the skirt.

Variety is the spice of the fall fashion showing; you may have a different personality every hour of the day. The silhouette can change you from matter-of-fact to will-o'-the-wisp. From our trip around Peterborough stores I hope you will be able to choose the variation to suit your type, or to aid you towards that ideal you seek. Let's go!

How do you like this graceful tiered frock in fuschia georgette, with its pretty and distinctive scalloped tiers, sleeve frills and waist line? The waist line is emphasized by floral applique trimming. Or if you are a blonde, and a lover of gaiety, here is a dream-frock that looks like an inverted flower. It is in a lovely blue tone taffeta, with scalloped skirt and very slightly fluffy bodice cut low in the back and up in the front. Or how about this heather pink georgette with that simplicity which is so essential to chic? It has guaged shoulers, cuffs and waist-line, and U-shaped neck, finished with a bow. The gathered waist lets in three striking panels.

If you seek sports frocks they are here in abundance. A green wool crepe, in one piece, has box pleats mounting in skyscraper design across the front. It has a black patent leather belt. Or here's a jumper suit of plain and checked combination suiting. The skirt fullness is arranged to form a wide box pleat in front, and the jumper has a belt and triangular pocket. The model is in grey and blue.

A semi-evening frock in royal blue georgette has frilled sleeves and skirt, with a large black satin ribbon bow on one hip. Another charming, but more formal, tulle frock has its skirt composed of narrow frills. The slim bodice is devoid of all ornament but a flower. Yet another is in black and oyster white, very Frenchy-looking. It has the fashionable one-sided effect emphasized by a tiered skirt, guaged at one side, and a clever use of two materials in the bodice, the black of the skirt sweeping up in a long, irregular point toward the left shoulder. A simulated belt and dainty embroidery make the frock immensely smart.

In the realm of street dresses the choice offered by Peterborough merchants is infinite. A new and very smart effect is seen in one, with sleeves tucked to the elbows and the bodice bloused above a fitting hip-band cut in one with the bodice front. It is in old rose. Mole velveteen, trimmed with beige satin, sets off the graceful lines of another frock. The scarf collar, edged with fur, and skirt draped at one side over a floating panel of contrasting material, are very smart features. Another frock, in crepe-de-chine, has a cross-over bodice and skirt gracefully draped to give the popular slanting effect.

Shoes are more important every season, and this fall there is a wealth of choice. Beige kid pumps are made gay by a scalloped inset of colorful floral brocade in warm tones of rose and green. A bronze kid pump, delicately outlined with edging of gilt kid, promises the slenderizing effect so much desired. An added feature is the bridle strap over the instep, adjustable to just the right degree of snugness by means of a dainty buckle. A practical oxford of black kid, with lizard trim, is styled to hug the instep and support the arch. An afternoon pump in light brown kid has matching lizard trim and straps that give chic, aided by the merest edging of gold kid.

A navy blue town hat that is neither poke nor cloche is astonishingly lovely in spite of its failure to conform. Three pleats across the left half of the crown establish an asymmetric theme, balanced by an added width and droop of brim on the right side. Cire ribbon winds around the base of the crown. Turbans continue to be very smart and colorful, and brims are of modest dimensions, generally. A brim that is not a brim is seen in one model. A simple crown of velvet is encircled by a cuff brim of black felt so cut as to conceal the ears. In the centre front is a tab that stands away from the brim just a trifle. There's wonderful variety in the manipulations of brims, of which the shopper should take note.

Hosiery has a way all its own. I saw, the other day, a new line in veil-like sheerness, with shadow clocks that enhance the trimness of the ankle. There are many new shades, amog them pandora, marron, streetan and marmotte.

And now, with this hasty glance over the entrancing fields of Fashion's display that lie before us right here in Peterborough, turn over the pages and read in detail what good things are offered in the stores of the city.

GREY OXFORD IS DRESS SUIT

New Ensemble at Teco Store Calculated to Replace Blue.

SLIP-ON TOP COATS

With a particularly wide range of suitings, overcoatings and haberdashery, the Peterborough Teco men's wear department has already begun its autumn campaign of service to the buying public, seemingly with "everything for Dad and his Lad." A glance over the suits stocked reveals that the very latest for fall wear by the well-dressed young man, is a new grey Oxford, comprised of a single-breasted one-button coat and double-breasted vest and well tailored trousers—the ensemble having been calculated to replace the blue suit as a dress suit for informal occasions. Browns and grey in tweeds and worsteds in fawn and grey have quiet stripes and are also in demand, especially for business wear. For the older men, the more conservative blues and greys are shown.

Asked whether the double or single-breasted models would prevail, a member of the Teco staff replied that the double-breasted, while enjoying a considerable demand in blues and even for business wear, would be outsold by the more loose-fitting single-breasted model.

Suits for boys are also seen in a wide range of longs and knicker models in tweeds and navy blue serge.

In their stock of topcoats, this firm has chosen the single-breasted slip-on models, some with the raglan, and some with set-in sleeves, seen in a variety of fawns and greys and one of a burnt brown shade that is particularly attractive. The Covert cloth, chesterfield or quiet grey is in demand among the older men. A few other points about the Teco stock:

1—Hats are stocked far in excess of caps, and are of various shades of fawn and grey with the popular snap brim quite as popular as usual. The welt edge is also being sold, while for the older men, the blue pearl and nickel shades with bound brim, are shown.

2—Caps are shown in checks of light, fancy designs.

3—The most popular novelty shirt is in plain green, or with a white stripe, while the ever popular white collar-attached garment is enjoying a major demand, especially among the young fellows. The more standard stripes and plain whites with separate collars are, as usual, chosen by the business man.

4—Hosiery tendencies are toward the checks and stripes in the silk and wool, and cashmere materials with the black silk being shown for dress occasions.

4—The Teco Store is showing an increasing stock of knitted ties in preference to the silks, shades of blue, black and fawn predominating. Stripes and checks prevail among the silks.

5—The blue remains as a big seller among winter overcoats, while those who deem that impractical are shown a varied stock of fawn and light grey shades.

6—Pyjamas—They are in fancy stripes and plain broadcloths, some with and some without collars.

PRETTY CREPE FROCKS SHOWN

Botnick Store Specializes in Stouts and Odd Sizes.

HATS ARE PRETTY

A very pretty crepe frock that combines dark and light colors is displayed at the A. Botnick Store at 378 George Street. It is a model of canary yellow and black. The body of the gown is black but the deep hem, cuffs and one-sided collar are in yellow, braided in a design in black silk thread. Down the front are eyelet holes through which is laced yellow and black cord.

This store specializs in stouts and also in odd sizes for varied needs. One of the new printed velvets is seen here in blue and there is a soft brown silk crepe made with two-tiered pleated skirt and short cape of the pleating, edged with ecru lace.

An evening gown of green georgette is trimmed with motifs of black and orchid and has horizontal tiny ruffles on the skirt.

A black and white frock shows the favored trimming of buttons in the same two colors. It has a long surplice closing and a tiered, knife-pleated skirt.

A transparent black velvet is trimmed with crepe-back satin in black and has a long vestee of cream lace.

The kasha dresses for daytime and business wear are very smart. In rose and green, in sand and red, are developed little models with pleated skirts and matching belts. A rose kasha gown has a little belt of the same color and rose buttons trim the side front.

The coats include fur models as well as the fur-trimmed cloth garments. One coat of wine-red suedine has a long shawl collar and high cuffs of Thibetine. A crushed lamb, one of the favored fur fabrics of the season, in black, has pointed fur collar and cuffs, and there are a number of black broadcloths, with their back trimmings of inserts and self-bandings. In blacks and navies, browns and greys and wine reds, there is plenty of choice on the hangers, along with stylish sports models without fur trimming.

Shoes for ladies make up a goodly portion of the stock, in all the season's latest ideas in leathers and heels and trimmings.

There are also staple goods of all types, lingerie, aprons, house dresses children's goods in hats and coats and dresses, scarfs, hosiery, gloves, purses and parasols.

In the hat section are some pretty models. The use of stitching, so good this year, is noted on the wide brim of a wine-red velvet hat, and the favored "Ramona" hat is here also, with its close-fitting shape and side trim of a feather pompom.

A shape of bottle green velvet has a rim of hatter's plush in the same pretty dark shade.

One of the printed velvets which show an indistinct Dresden-like pattern is made of rose-pink velvet of a soft hue, in a small wide-rimmed hat.

PEACOCK TRAIN

A new little peacock train appears on a navy blue cire chiffon gown for evening. The back has flat draperies of rounded, slanting line, with the train coming from under, being the bottom section.

COME SHOP With MISTRESS JEANETTE

Soft, shimmery hackle feathers make the entire crown and ear-laps of a tiny hat in one of the millinery stores.

A true "lover's knot" of Alencon lace makes the trimming on the front of a soft black satin gown in a local shop.

"Feather suede" flannel is the appropriate name bestowed by a George Street merchant on the new flannel for dress wear.

A sequin rose is used as a buckle for the folds of soft transparent velvet which fashion a little hat of "Independence" or flag blue, in a millinery store on George Street. Another millinery department has a novelty in the tiny families of bone elephants which adorn the bands of small hats, with rose elephants for a rose model and black wee animals for a hat of the same color.

The "slenderizing" effect in one black gown is very evident. It is on view in a George Street shop. The length and slimness is obtained by a clever and judicious use of material with vertical tucks extending all the way down the top and in the knife-pleating of the skirt, which has floating side panels over a Princess slip. A long, trailing jabot is used and the sleeves are close and tight-fitting.

Buttons all the way down the back of a frock and all the way down the upper portion of a coat are a new note in the mode, as exemplified in two different local stores. They are placed suitable on garments adapted for the young miss, whose elders would hardly submit to this form of sometimes painful trimming.

—JEANETTE.

EYEBROW HATS SEEM POPULAR

Wider Brim That Shades Eyes Also Much in Favor at Mrs. Wilson's.

FEATHERS MUCH USED

Hats in the two modes which appear to be most favored this season: the "eyebrow" curve which shows the material slashed in order to display the eyebrows and forehead, and also the curve which uses a wider brim that shades the eyes, are on view with many other pretty shapes and styles, at Mrs. J. Wilson's Millinery Store on George street.

The vogue for soft feather trimmings is also exemplified in several dainty models, one of pale olive satin having the entire crown of green hackle feathers.

Applied motifs of embroidery and felt and satin are used extensively. One felt of wood brown shade with green ribbon banding has these set-on pieces of brown velvet in the popular triangular shape, outlined with tiny gold beads.

A small black velvet shape with cabochons of self over the ears uses a wide band of silver embroidery across its front, while silver banding, stitched with black, appears on a felt hat of "Independence," or bright flag, blue. A sand beret of velvet has folds of its material thrust through a gold sequin buckle, and a long one-sided tab of brilliant silk embroidery in rose and gold and blue makes an odd variation on a hat of bright blue felt.

A bright red velvet shape has a brim of cutwork embroidery, and there are pieces of bright velvet sewn over the entire crown of a brown hat, the alternate spaces being braided in silk.

In this store are many lovely flowers for hat trimming, also for coat and shoulder wear. They are beautiful examples of the popularity of artificial flowers, with large bunches of lily-of-the-valley prominent in their green and white daintiness.

DAINTY THINGS FOR CHILDREN

Miss Alice Curtis Offers Stylish Clothes For Little Ones.

LIKE MOTHER'S

"Friday's Child is Loving and Giving" is the appropriate little motto on the tiny linen bib that hangs in the Fancy Goods Store of Miss Alice Curtis, at 184 Hunter street. Traced on the linen is the figure of a small pink maiden who bears gravely before her a bowl of milk for the pleased and arched-back kitty which marches expectantly beside her.

In this little store one may find everything for His Royal Highness the Baby, as well as for juniors, lads and lasses up to eight years of age. The wants of the infant are anticipated and supplied in all manner of dainty things, and there are also pretty novelties for the dresser and the bedroom, and fancy work supplies and embroideries of all sorts.

For the small miss, there are little blue velour coats and hats to match, both trimmed with bands of plush, dotted in black on a white ground. A rose coat of the same type has a beaverine collar and rose bone buttons, while the same soft brown fur trims the little matching hat of rose velvet, with its double ruffles of rose silk framing the face.

Small felt hats like their seniors wear are also on view, with tiny bands of grosgrain ribbon, and there are little kid gloves to complete the costumes. For a larger girl there is a duplicate also of her mother's gown, in a bright red crepe with plain bodice, three-tiered skirt edged with black velvet and little collar and cuffs of velvet.

The babies have exquisite little sets of llama cloth, soft and warm, in white and pink and pale blue. Little boys are not forgotten either. One cunning set for the junior manikin is a grey top coat of Chinchilla, with mannish cuffs and pockets. With this is worn a small hat banded with grey fur fabric and with a tiny tassel at its peak. Two cosy-looking eartabs are joined by an elastic band under the chin.

UNIQUE BANDS ON SMALL HATS

Elephants Deck Some Shown By Chesler Store This Fall.

FINE FUR COATS

A menagerie that may be carried around with you on your head is the miniature elephant family, ranging in size from the large papa and mamma elephant to the two tiny juniors, which trims the grosgrain ribbon bandings of several of the smart small hats in stock at B. Chesler's store on George street. Matching beautifully with the "elephant ear" tabs which adorn the sides of a tiny hat of black transparent velvet are the double black elephants which repose on either side. In pale rose, they form another line across the front band of a hat of the same shade in felt.

Other little conceits in the hat line trimming are the bands of silver passamenterie or braiding which make bright variations on dark-shaded felts, and end in three little balls of silver or gold, at the side.

Velvets and felts, with self and contrasting trimming, and the embroidered and patchwork models which are a favorite just now, are also on view.

In seal and muskrat and minkeline, fur coats are carried in stock, and there are many examples of the crushed lamb and plush coats for winter wear.

A navy charmeen has a pretty mottled grey lamb trimming to its pointed cuffs and to its long shawl collar.

A lavish trimming of fur is noticed on a garment of wood brown broadcloth, the moleskin fur on the long shawl collar joining itself to the wide band which encircles the hem. Pointed cuffs on the sleeves are also developed in grey moleskin.

A smart sports coat in novelty tweed shows colorings of black, white, grey and brown. In the misses' sizes, there is a pretty variety, one wine red coat trimmed with grey lamb being very attractive, also a coat of King blue, with Thibetine collar and cuffs in grey and a long scarf which throws itself over the right shoulder.

Flary skirts with circular flounces and uneven hemlines are developed in satin and georgette. One soft black satin of this type has a naturally-placed waistline, double pink elbow ruffles and a double pleated collar, both edged with black Val lace, while velvet applied triangles of red, yellow and green trim the left side of the top.

A black satin-faced crepe dress has a pleated skirt and a low-placed wide belt. The collar and little cuffs are made of printed velvet in a green and gold design on a black ground, while buttons of the same velvet covering trim the front.

A dress of featherweight tweed has a businesslike air, with its wood-brown color and its touches of gold braid and sand piping.

A dress of honey beige georgette shows a Bertha collar divided in front and caught up to the neckline, while lying low over the shoulders. It is edged with pleating and trimmed with silver buttons.

A lovely frock of pale pink georgette has a two-tiered skirt, knife-pleated, a wide belt tucked horizontally and a small collar of ecru lace. The same ecru silk lace makes a deep pointed yoke on a frock of bright green georgette.

In a maize gown, a half-bolero top with scalloped edges is used over the regular bodice portion, which blouses slightly over a narrow belt. The little collar and turned-up cuffs are made of Dresden georgette in pale yellow and rose.

For the young girl is the model in brown satin that has a pleated skirt and small collar, with ties extending down the back almost to the waist and a line of buttons also outlining the backbone.

A lovely gown of black lace and georgette has the lace set in in godets on the skirt and the belt finishes with long streamers of the georgette, ending in small crystal balls.

In stock are carried here ladies' shoes in a complete line, lingerie, parasols, scarfs, gloves, hose, purses and handkerchiefs, also robes, gowns, aprons and raincoats.

NEW BOUFFANT

A patterned moire in dull garnet has a new bouffant silhouette created by having the left side pouf at the waistline, with the right side flaring from knee length, where a full flounce is attached.

BLACK IS USED IN MANY GOWNS

Lovely Combinations With Pastel Shades Shown in Jeanette Store.

COATS FUR TRIMMED

One of the lovely combinations of sombre black with dainty pastel tints that forms a whim of Fashion's fickle fancy, this season, is the dress of black Spanish lace at the Jeannette Store at 390 George street. It has a belt of black taffeta and a black slip which has a hem of pale green and mauve ribbon. Under the yoke the same two colors appear at the top and they make the streamers of ribbon which depend from the left side of the waistline, falling to the hem of the skirt.

A black and white printed velvet gown has a circular skirt, while a black satin model with side opening to the skirt has a shirred belt and vestee of beige georgette trimmed with ecru lace. A wine-red georgette with three-tiered shirt of knife pleating has a little satin collar and buttons of the same color.

In the hat section there are pretty little shapes in felt and velvet, self trimmed and with trimmings of grosgrain ribbon and chenille embroidery. They come in the black, blue, grey and brown of the mode. Variations are in the net bow which falls from the side of one small black model and in the white kid inserts which trim a hat of black felt.

Fur coats are in stock, in seal, Persian lamb and beaverine, and there are many cloth coats, fur-trimmed.

One coat of dark grey broadcloth has a Paquin collar and cuffs of grey opossum, while grey lamb trims a coat of King blue garment.

Sports coats in novelty tweeds have wolf and fox collars.

QUEBEC LIQUOR LEAKS INTO ONTARIO

Seizures Made By Police

Ontario Commission's Mark Forged On Tops of Bottles.

CONFERENCE PLANNED.

Ontario and Quebec Boards May Meet To Combat Bootleggers.

(Special to The Examiner)

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 12.— Leaking out of Quebec into Ontario is said to be a steady stream of alcohol. Recent seizures by the Provincial Police have uncovered bottles with the private marks of the Ontario Liquor Control Commission forged on the tops. There is no doubt the booze came from Quebec. Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Commission, is not inclined to discuss the situation but it is not secret that he is disturbed about it. He has taken steps already to cut off the supply of 85 per cent. alcoholic liquor in Ontario but the importation of the 'strong stuff" from the sister province is said to be doing a great deal of harm.

The remedy would be for Quebec to eliminate this heavy liquor except for business or industrial use. Whether this would be done by the Quebec Commission is a matter of considerable doubt. There is a possibility that before long a conference may be held between the Ontario and Quebec boards with the aid of uniting their forces to beat the bootlegger and to combat the illicit liquor trade.

The seizure of a car load of contraband liquor recently shows on what a scale the law breakers are still operating in Ontario.

GOES ON TRIAL FOR LOG THEFT

Kenneth Hull is Charged With Taking Lumber From Stoney Lake.

ONE WITNESS HEARD.

Kenneth Hull was committed for trial at the next Session of the Peace in Peterborough by Magistrate Langley at the preliminary hearing this morning. Provincial Constable Thompson was the only witness called for the Crown and the defence offered no evidence.

Mr. Hull, who lives on Lot 31, Concession 10, Dummer, near Stoney Lake, is charged with taking lumber which was found adrift on the shores of Stoney Lake, and which was the property of the Peterborough Lumber Company. B. E. Park is acting for the accused.

Constable Thompson, in his evidence, said he visited Mr. Hull's farm on Monday in company with H. Crary of the Peterborough Lumber Company and Mr. Purdy of the Purdy Lumber Company. There they found a pile of lumber measuring 594 feet and stamped with the stamp of the Peterborough Lumber Company in Mr. Hull's yard, also seventeen logs which had been pulled up on the shore of the lake which had the Purdy Lumber Company stamp on them. There was also found another small pile of lumber under the barn with the stamp of the Peterborough Lumber Company and several boom logs, the property of the Purdy company.

Mr. Park objected to the evidence being given relative to the Purdy company and based his objection on the fact that the press was present and prospective jurors reading the account might be influenced as the defence was offering no evidence at this time of the trial.

Mr. Hatton pursued his inquiry no further and Mr. Hull was committed for trial when the defence counsel gave his consent, as only one witness had been called. Application for bail will be made before Judge Huycke.

WOMAN KILLED.

Mrs. Ann Pretti Succumbs To Injuries Received in Automobile Accident.

TORONTO, Sept. 12.— (Canadian Press.)— Mrs. Ann Pretti, Toronto, died in hospital early to-day from injuries received last night when an automobile in which she was riding was caught between two street cars at night. Mrs Jessie Pedlar, Toronto, who was also in the car, is unconscious and in a serious condition.

Burglar Helps Himself To Clothing Of Former Mayor Of Hamilton City

HAMILTON, Ont., September 12. — A burglar who entered the bedroom of ex-Mayor Treleaven here the other night took th former Chief Magistrate's trousers, cash, a wrist watch, and two strings of pearls. But he did not accept an invitation to return the following night and have the remainder of the suit.

Mr. Treleaven had gone to sleep leaving his trousers in his bedroom, and awakened to find them missing. He soon discovered that while he slept someone had entered his home by means of a duplicate key, and after ransacking other rooms, had gone into the room where the former mayor was sleeping, and took everything in sight.

SCHOOL KIDDIES ATTEND FAIR

Races Under Capable Committee Run Off With No Mishaps.

TAKE IN MIDWAY.

Yesterday kiddies of all sizes and ages flocked to the Exhibition for it was their day at the big fair. As soon as school was out they ate a hurried dinner and rushed to the grounds were they quickly took in the midway and then made their way to the grand stand where they witnessed the first vaudeville program of the week. Every act was closely watched and much applause and hand clap greeted the entertainers. Then followed the races for both boys and girls and every event was closely contested. In charge of Doug Loomis and G. H. Roper and ably assisted by Trevor Miller and Herman Langford the races were run off to schedule with no mishaps.

During the early part of the afternoon rain threatened but the few drops that fell failed to dampen the hopes of Peterborough's younger generation.

A wild rush to the midway after the races where the young folk enjoyed the rides and the shows. The merry-go-round proved to be as great in demand as ever with many of the more venturesome youths trying the newer rides. The closed cabs on the ferris wheel were also an added attraction withm any of those who feared to go up on the former open wheels taking their first rides in the closed cabs.

Daylight fireworks proved an added attraction with the boys and girls flocking out onto the greens to catch the large balloons as they descended.

All the events in the school races were run in heats owing to the number of entries that had been received from the various schools in the city. The elimination of all but the best made the events much more interesting and the class of competition was much superior this year than formerly for this reason.

St. Peter's Take Honors.

The girls preliminary events were run off at fifty yards while the semi finals and finals were run off at fifty yards. The blue ribbon event of the day was the boys' relay event which was run off the whole length of the half mile track. St. Peter's school carried off the honors winning by a good margin. Taking the inside track at the start they led the field in all out the third quarter but the runner soon gained the lost ground and finished strongly.

The track was somewhat heavy in the early afternoon but it dried up somewhat and was in fair condition by the time the vaudeville was over and the races took place.

Regulation running lanes were laid out by the committee which made the races better as there was no confusion as no runners collided as is so often the case in races where insufficient preparation has not been made.

The committee in charge of the afternoon's events were: G. H. Roper in charge, D. Loomis was the official starter, and the judges and assistants were: O.M. Steer, F. Kerr, F. H. Dearborn, D. Crawfod, H. Langford and T. Miller.

As the Prince of Wales girls ran the final heat of the girls' relay race with a substitute as one of their runners was taken ill; the heat will be run over again at a date to be fixed later.

Prizes for the other events will be given at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday of this week, after four.

The winners of the events were:

Girls, eleven and twelve—Florence Evans, Mays school; Dolly Sproats, Prince of Wales school; Elsie Clark, King Edward school.

Girls, thirteen and fourteen—Irene Bowler, Central school; Bernice Hunter,Queen Mary school; Jean Wilson, Queen Mary school.

Boys ten and under—A Clark.

Wrigley Will Finance Fourth Marathon Swim

(Special to The Examiner.)

TORONTO, Sept. 12. — There will be a fourth Wrigley Marathon next year.

This is the announcement made to-day by Allan Ross, the president of the Canadian Wrigley Company. A men's race and a woman's race will be staged, Mr. Ross states, and they will be "speed races over reasonable distances, and not solely endurance contests." The place has not yet been decided, but if the exhibition wants it, Mr. Ross promises he will do everything in his power to see that it gets it.

COPPER VEIN REDISCOVERED

Eustis Looks Forward To Revival of Former Flourishing Industry

FAULT CAUSED LOSS.

(Special to The Examiner.)

SHERBROOKE, Quebec, Sept. 12. —A strange mining recovery is reported from the little mining town of Eustis, east of Sherbrooke, and the old romance of hidden wealth has come to light in the re-discovery of the great copper vein on which the town was founded, and which petered out 18 months ago.

In the height of her mining prosperity Eustis had six mines going full speed. The mineral was first discovered 62 years ago by a farmer whose logs knocked off a piece of glinting rock. He took the rock to the university of Lennoxville, but beyond telling him that it was not gold they could give him no information.

Later the farmer sent his glittering specimen to McGill university, and there learned that the ore contained chiefly copper. Mines were opened up. In these mines 500 men were employed. Something over a year ago there came an unaccountable diminution in the vein and the output dwindled down until the mines were on the verge of shutting down altogether and being abandoned. About 100 men were needed, the rest being thrown out of work.

The science which originally identified the first find years ago was called in, and after a year's search with diamond drills and other equipment the lode has been relocated.

There was a fault in the formation, a shift in the strata, which figuratively pushed the veins off the deep end, the engineers said. The engineers were called upon to find the extent of this shift, and where the unlapped vein had gone to. This, it is now reported, has been accomplished, the new vein being as rich as the old.

Eustis is expected shortly to be herself again.

STEAL TRUCK; RUN INTO POST

Two Young Men Take Trip To Smith Falls—One Under Arrest.

FRIEND IN HOSPITAL.

BROCKVILLE Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Alleged to have stolen their employers' motor truck last night and to have made a trip in it to Smith's Falls William Shire and James Dowsett, members of a road construction crew, went into a ditch between Frankville and Addison on the return trip, broke a telephone pole and tore down about 100 feet of fencing The truck completed its flight by turning over. Shire was arrested and this morning in Police Court was remanded to jail on a charge of theft of the truck, while a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Dowsett, who was taken to a hospital in Smith's Falls, suffering from spinal injuries received in the accident.

CHANGE IN HISTORY COURSE IN ONTARIO'S HIGH SCHOOLS IS CAUSING MANY PROTESTS

Parents and Teachers Alike Object To Sudden Alterations Made.

COURSE SWITCHED.

Some Will Study Canadian History Twice, With No British History, It Is Pointed Out.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 12.—(Special to The Examiner.) — Premier Ferguson is faced with a number of petitions from teachers' organizations and parents who object to the suddenness of his changes in High school history courses. The Orange Order has also become interested in the situation and it has been suggested there is a political motive behind Mr. Ferguson's quick action, as Minister of Education, in substituting Canadian history for Britih history in the third form High school here. Parents and teachers are pointing out to the Premier that his decision means that all pupils who are this year in the second and third forms in Collegiate Institutes and High schools will get no British history throughout their High school training.

Besides this point, the High school teachers in a petition to Premier Ferguson, stress the fact that graduates from these classes who are training to be secondary teachers in the province will finally be teaching classes with no knowledge of British history except that gained in the Public schools.

A third point concerns the duplication of Canadian history. Pupils in this year's third forms in the High schools will duplicate the Canadian history they took in the first forms, from exactly the same text book. A comparison of the High school curriculum in history last year and this shows what Premier Ferguson has done.

First Form—Last year's Canadian history, this year British history .

Second Form—Last year no history, this year no history.

Third Form—Last year British, this year Canadian.

Fourth Form— Last year Ancient, this year Ancient.

History teachers throughout the province protested to the Department of Education last year against such a course being imposed on them suddenly. Thousands of future teachers would get no British history in the High schools, it was pointed out. It was stated that by allowing two years for the gradual change everything would be all right .

Premier Ferguson, however, ordered the change at once.

"Premier Ferguson came back with the expression on his lips that the British Empire was good enough for him," said one prominent educator. "Now he is cutting off the birthright of all the students of the Empire—British history."

LABOR DELEGATES TAKING HOLIDAY

Enjoy Boat Trip To Niagara Falls and Tour of Peninsula.

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).— Resolutions, Communists, hours of work, and wages were left behind by the delegates to the 44th annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today for a pleasure trip to Niagara Falls. The Labor men left this morning and will spend the whole day in the Niagara peninsula.

The party went by boat to Port Dalhousie and will proceed by train to the Falls. They will inspect the Hydro developments during the day and in the evening they will attend a dinner in Niagara Falls, given by the Ontario Government.

Steps Being Taken To Prevent Spread of Dread Disease

GUELPH, Ont., Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—A case of infantile paralysis was discovered on Rural Route Number 4, Rockwood, near here, when Orville Duffield, 14, was taken ill at school. Steps are being taken to guard against the spread of the dread disease.

Granite Arrives For War Memorial

After several months wait, the granite for the Peterborough War Memorial being erected in Confederation square arrived this week and is now being put in place on the base of the Memorial. he slabs are large in size and grey in color. The names of the soldiers who gave their lives in the Great War have already been engraved and it is now expected that it will only be a matter of a few weeks before the Memorial is ready to be unveiled.

DRASTIC STEPS ARE PROPOSED

Australian Government May Invoke Crimes Act Against Agitators.

IN LABOR TROUBLES.

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 12. — (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's). —Premier Stanley Bruce stated in Parliament to-day that the Government would take drastic steps in the endeavor to settle the trouble which has arisen again in Australian seaports through the refusal of waterside workers to accept the award of the arbitration court which was to have gone into effect a few days ago. It is believed the Premier meant the Crimes Act would be invoked, this measure providing a year's imprisonment for convicted agitators, with deportation of those not born in Australia.

UNITED CHURCH HEARS REPORTS

National Total Abstinence Effort Urged By One Committee.

TO GENERAL COUNCIL.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 12.— (Canadian Press).—Evangelistic presentation of the claims of Jesus Christ and a renewed effort to organize on a national scale total abstinence from liquor, are recommended in the report of the committee on Evangelism and social service presented to the general council of the United Church here yesterday.

A peace cruisade which will include support of the League of Nations and the permanent Court of Justice and elimination of the evils of racial antipathies, selfish nationalism, and international jealousies will be undertaken by the United Church of Canada if the report of the "Peace and War" committee as adopted last night is carried out by the general council and Presbyteries of the Church.

Five Minutes Brings Youth Year In Jail Justice Censors Practice Of Joy Riding

LONDON, Ont., September 12. — Justice was swiftly dealt to William Mallett, eighteen years old, when he appeared in Court here. Five minutes after he had taken a seat in the prisoners' box he had received a sentence of one year in the Ontario Reformatory for the theft of a motor car last April.

Mallett, whose parents reside on Pine Lawn Avenue here, pleaded guilty to the charge.

Admits Joy Ride.

"We just took the car to have a ride," said the lad to Magistrate Graydon. Mallett, in company with Carl Brooks, now serving time for the same theft, took the machine of C. W. Summers from in front of Egerton Street Baptist Church. After driving it around for three days, the two youths abandoned it near an old bridge.

"You seem to take this thing as a joke. This taking cars for joy ides is too prevalent in this province," said the Court.

Chamberlain Able To Leave Steamer

HAMILTON, Bermuda, September 12.—Canadian Press.—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Minister of Foreign Affairs, walked unaided down the gang plank of the Steamer Orcoma, in a drizzle of rain to-day. He and Lady Chamberlain, and their children went ashore for a few hours' stay.

This is the first port on Sir Austen's long voyage at which he had disembarked, and the members of the party said that he was showing steady improvement in health.

Y.W.C.A. BOARD PLANS FOR FALL

Rallies Will Be Held Sept. 28 and 29—Committees Named.

PAST SUMMER BUSY.

The first meeting for the fall season of the Young Women's Christian Association board of directors was held yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, first vice-president, presiding. The financial reports, read by Mrs. W. D. Scott, were accepted. Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. B. Gardiner, and Mrs. D. F. Drummond were appointed representatives to the Local Council for the coming year.

It was decided to hold the Y.W.C.A. fall rally on Friday, September 28, and the junior rally on Saturday, September 29.

A new plan, which is being adopted this year is the board, committee and staff conference to be held on Thursday, September 20, at Chemong. Programs and plans for the fall and winter activities will be drawn up by various committees and everything put in readiness for a winter's program of good times, health activities, educational opportunities, and fun and friends through classes, clubs, and Y residence.

The committee members for the ensuing year were then named, the following being convenors: Mrs. W. D. Scott, financial committee; Mrs. G. E. Porter, repairs; Mrs. W. R. Widdess, program and entertainment; Miss E. Morrow, swimming pool; Mrs. R. Neill, residence; Mrs. N. D. Drummond, membership; Mrs. R. J. Kidd, social; Mrs. H. M. Yelland, religious and foreign. The convenors of the physical, educational, and camp committees are to be appointed later.

Miss C. F. Littlefield, physical directress, reported the summer activities in the swimming pool, one hundred and twenty-four juniors and one hundred and eleven seniors have taken swimming lessons, and forty pupils took the life-saving courses, while one hundred and sixty-two hold swimmers' tickets. Each Friday evening a sports hour is held with races, diving and stunts. The Kiwanis Club financed swimming and life-saving for fifty-one playground children.

Miss L. Brownscombe, general secretary, reported summer club activities and the weekly outings of the Outdoor Club. Three Y.W.C.A. members were delegates to the Y conference at Camperdown, the summer camp of the National Board of the Y.W.C.A The employment and immigration departments were kept busy all summer, many being helped to gain satisfactory employment and many calls made on newcomers to Canada.

Special gifts received by the Association during the summer included a radio and a Sani-Dri hair drier. These gifts have been much enjoyed by all the members.

Miss M. Dickson closed the meeting with prayer.

FIRE DESTROYS SUMMER HOTEL

Manoir Richelieu, at Murray Bay, Burned To Ground To-day.

NO PERSON INJURED.

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—The Manoir Richelieu, at Murray Bay, eighty miles from here, one of the finest summer hotels in Canada, was completely destroyed by fire early this morning The place had only recently been closed for the summer season and only a few employees still remained on the premises. None of them were injured but they lost all their personal belongings.

All the outhouses and dependencies of the hotel were also laid waste by the flames, but none of the cottages operated in connection with the hotel itself were destroyed. Of the beautiful hotel building there remained this morning but a heap of smouldering ruins. Not a single piece of furniture could be removed from the building and it contained some fine old pictures and antiques which also are buried under the still smouldering wastes of crumbled stone, distorted iron and steel girders and charred rafters.

The value of the property destroyed was placed by the Canada Steamships Company, owners of the hotel, at approximately $500,000. The loss is fully covered by insurance. Company officials stated to-day that plans were under consideration for construction of a new hotel to replace the Manoir Richelieu.

CARS COLLIDE; BOTH DAMAGED

Lakefield Motorist Misunderstands Gateman's Signals at C.P.R. Crossing.

GATES NOT OPERATING.

Two cars collided at the C.P.R. crossing on George street last night with the result that a Peterborough car had the running board badly smashed and one from Lakefield was broken about the front. The gate man was in the centre of the street stopping the traffic with a lantern as the gates were not being operatted. The driver of the Lakefield car got his signals crossed and attempted to get across the track in front of the engine. In dodging around the gateman he collided with the other car.

FIREMAN DIES ON LONG TRIP

William Murphy, of Belleville, Succumbs To Apoplexy While at Work.

STRICKEN NEAR COBOURG.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 12. — (Canadian Press)—While proceeding on his run between Chicago and Montreal on Canadian National Railways train number 12, fireman William Murphy, Belleville, was seized with an apoplectic fit near Cobourg and did a few minutes later.

When Murphy was stricken the engineer noticed his plight and he was removed to the baggage car where he was attended by a nurse who was a passenger on the train. He was rushed here, where a doctor awaited the arrival of the train.

Vault Door Blown Off

No Attention Paid To Crash Which Occurred After Storm.

NOTHING TAKEN.

Alarm Given By Charwoman Several Hours Later—No Clues Found.

(Examiner Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, Sept. 12—An unsuccessful attempt to rob the Royal Bank branch here early yesterday morning was revealed when Mrs. George Hogg entered the building to clean it about eight o'clock this morning and found the outer door of the vault was blown off. Nothing was taken.

The attempt was made between one and two o'clock and the noise of the explosion was heard by nearly every resident of the village, but no attention was paid to the blast as a heavy thunderstorm had passed over earlier in the night. John McMillan who lives across the road from the bank, was aroused by the blast and, thinking it came from the bank, stood at his window for some minutes but saw no sign of anything wrong and went back to bed. His son returned home in a few minutes later and it is thought that his arrival frightened the robbers before they managed to get the other door open.

Entry to the bank was gained by prying the door open with iron bars taken from the blacksmith shop of the Sherwin Brothers' garage.

Latch Resists Efforts. 5 5

The front door was pried open at the expense of the inside of the door frame, which was completely torn from its place. The Yale night latch was still locked, and had apparently resisted all attempts to pick it. The circular disc which contains the key hole on the outer side of the door had been considerably battered but the lock had not been turned.

Inside the building it was not difficult for the marauders to reach the safes. There are two of them and they are shielded from view from the front door and side window of the bank by the ledger keeper's desk and a fire proof steel box in which the books and papers of the institution are kept after the business of the day is done. The one safe which was cracked was completely shielded from view, and the other only partially so. The books and other papers in the metal box were not disturbed, nor was the second safe.

Professional Job.

Yesterday afternoon members of the provincial police and plainclothesmen were investigating the scene. In their opinion the work is not that of an amateur. The safe was obviously "blown" with "soup," as nitroglycerine is called by members of "the craft." It was apparently well blanketed since glass panes a few feet in front of it were not damaged; nor was the side window, also very close, injured by the crash. There are several scars on the walls and ceiling, where bits of flying material have penetrated or scraped as they rich-ocheted from the origin of the explosion.

The front of the safe has every appearance of being an easy mark for further operations of this nature. The tempered metal front is bent and twisted and the interliner material is badly damaged. Although the safe still remains locked, there appears to be only a thin metal sheet between the inner portion of the metal box where the money is usually kept and the whole outside world. Along the edges of the remains of the front plate are traces of soap which was apparently used to make the charge airtight before lighting the fuse. The robbers apparently made their exit via the rear door. This was unlatched when the staff arrived at the call of Mrs. Hogg.

The manager was busy accompanying the police officials when The Examiner arrived yesterday afternoon and was not able to spare much time for an interview. He said, however, that there was nothing stolen. This would lead to the belief that the robbers wanted money or nothing at all. They got no money. The lock on the safe is in such a condition that apparently only force will prevail over it. For this purpose, assistance has been summoned from Toronto. Later in the afternoon, a garage man was summoned to try his hand with an oxy-acetylene torch.

There was only a brief suspension of business on the bank yesterday. Although all the funds were safely contained in the strong box, the branch at Hastings was called upon and the necessary funds were forthcoming to meet the demands of the regular banking day. Late in the afternoon a lady appeared in the building and asked if the bank was receiving deposits. She was very politely told by one of the staff that unfortunately it was after hours and the books had been put away after being balanced for the day. She was pleased to see

AN APPALLING RECORD.

The Blind River level crossing accident in which six people lost their lives on Sunday once more draws attention to the heavy toll that has been taken by such accidents during recent months.

The figures for August are not yet available, but in the first seven months of the year there were 44 people killed and 175 injured in level crossing mishaps in Canada, and the August fatalities would undoubtedly increase the total considerably.

To eliminate grade crossing accidents the only sure way, of course, is to eliminate grade crossings, but that will be a slow and expensive process.

In the meanwhile motorists must protect themselves by being careful at such danger points.

A few moments' delay at each crossing would mean safety, while taking a chance to save time is simply inviting death.

The casualty list this year has surely been heavy enough to convince everybody of the need of exercising caution at every crossing.

THE MINISTER'S VISIT.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition is to be honored to-morrow by a visit from Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, Hon. John S. Martin, who after officially opening the Western Fair at London yesterday is coming down to Peterborough to see for himself what we in this end of the Province can do in the way of exhibitions.

The visit of the Minister, in view of the fact that the directors of the Peterborough Industrial feel that the time has arrived when further provincial assistance is justified, is of much significance, and it is hoped that Hon. Mr. Martin will be most favorably impressed with the quality and extent of the agricultural departments and the general all-round excellence of Peterborough's big fair.

Mr. Martin, one of the most successful and popular Ministers of Agriculture in the history of the Province, will address the grandstand audience to-morrow afternoon, and the reception he is given should be indicative of the community's appreciation of his efforts on behalf of agriculture and of the honor he is doing the Peterborough Industrial in giving a day of his much-occupied time—and he is just out of hospital following an automobile accident—to the local Exhibition.

Mr. Martin's address will be an outstanding feature of to-morrow's program.

IGNORING THE TRAFFIC LAWS.

Out of some 250 drivers who were stopped by a traffic officer on the Port Hope-Peterborough highway on Sunday and asked to produce their operator's license, one in every five had to admit that he was not carrying his license, and in some cases indeed that he had never taken out a permit to drive.

The result of this check-up serves to show that many motorists neglect to obey the law so long as they feel safe in ignoring it.

The conviction is justifiable that a similar check-up in the matter of brakes and lights would show a similar disregard of the regulations.

The sentiment of too many motorists seems to be that anything that you can get away with is justified.

That is a doubtful policy at any time, but when it involves the risk of injury or death it becomes too dangerous to be tolerated.

It is to be hoped that the present check-up is the beginning of a most aggressive administration of the traffic regulations.

Appeals to the common sense of motorists have been made without result in many cases.

It now remains to see whether the fear of police court appearance will have more success in checking infractions of the law.

ACCIDENTS INCREASE.

Production records have been broken frequently by Canadian workers in the last several years, and the reports to the Workmen's Compensation Board show that the accident record reached a high point in August of this year when 8,022 accidents were reported to the board, including 41 fatalities. This is over 1,000 accidents more than reported in August of last year and is the highest point reached since the commencement of the Act. The benefits awarded during last month amounted to $553,842.35, of which $96,298.68 was for medical aid. Benefits in August, 1928, were approximately $58,000 higher than in the same month last year.

It will be remembered that the Workmen's Compensation Act of this Province contains a clause authorizing industries in the various classes to set up accident prevention associations, and the statement has been made by those in authority that the experience of the classes taking advantage of this section of the Act has been better than that of the classes not organized for accident prevention work.

Dealing with this phase of the situation, R. B. Morley, general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, states that about 75 per cent. of the death cases reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board involved some money payment. In the last four years on which complete figures are available the number of death cases in the fifteen classes included in the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations has shown a steady decrease year by year, being 77, 54, 52 and 45. The pay-roll of the associations is slightly more than half of the total pay-roll under compensation, 45 death cases in the classes included in that organization out of a total of 308 for all industries is indicative of improved conditions, particularly when it is remembered that the death cases represent approximately one-fourth of the total cost of compensation year by year.

The Industrial Accident Prevention Associations have a membership of more than 8,700 industrial plants, and the total pay-roll in the fifteen classes constituting such membership, as estimated for last year, was over three hundred million dollars.

WELCOMING NEW CITIZENS.

Assimilation of newcomers has been one of the most difficult undertakings of the Dominion. During the immigration boom prior to the Great War, when 300,000 to 400,000 people arrived annually, the Western Provinces were put to a heavy strain in securing recognition of the knowledge and duties of citizenship. Many of the new arrivals did not speak English, and the older ones were not likely to learn it during their remaining years. The result has been the peopling of wide areas in which Canadianism had little place.

While it is highly desirable that British stock should predominate, there will probably always be a percentage of non-English-speaking people among the arrivals. With this in mind, the Association of Canadian Clubs at the recent meeting at Calgary received a recommendation that the Secretary of State be asked to consider a policy under which applicants for British citizenship should have its privileges and duties fully explained by the judge to whom application is made; further, that Canadian Clubs hold an annual public reception in honor of those who during the previous year have become British subjects, and that a suitable certificate be presented to each.

These proposals are practical remedies for a weak spot in Canadian administration. Dominion officials who bring new citizens to Canada do not follow up the people who are planted in our midst. Provincial and local authorities have here a responsibility which is too often neglected. A man who is called before a judge to receive his citizenship papers, if he is interested at all, has little or nothing by which to remember the incident. It is a routine matter, and it is doubtful if he realizes its meaning. Canadian Clubs, with their all-embracing name, have a part to play with such people. They should carry their opportunities further and make Dominion Day an occasion when the naturalized citizen, as well as the native-born, would learn more of the Dominion, whose birthday is too often empty so far as inspirational value is concerned.—The Globe.

THE DISGRUNTLED 300.

It is a matter of regret that a handful of British harvesters, dissatisfied with conditions in the Canadian West, are returning home, with, no doubt, a poor opinion of this country and of its people. The regret lies not in the fact that about three hundred have thrown up the sponge, because, after all, this is a very small percentage of the 8,000 who came across to work in the western harvest field. But the regret is that these 300 will make more noise than the other 7,700 who are pitching grain and say nothing, apparently thankful that they have got jobs with fair pay and unlimited quantities of some of the finest ozone in the world thrown in.

These 300 disgruntled ones will make themselves heard. They will make long-continued appeals for sympathy, and will receive it from the unknowing and the unthinking. The men with grievances, real or fancied, generally do a lot of talking, while those who are satisfied, or who realize that they might be a good deal worse off, keep silent. The wailing chorus of these 300 will be heard far and will, no doubt, convince some that the Canadian West is not the inviting country that it has been pictured. To those who think for themselves, however, the fact that over 7,000 British harvesters are saying nothing will be accepted as pretty conclusive evidence that conditions are not as black as the homeward-bound party is painting them.

Apparently, the dissatisfaction of the 300 men is largely the result of their own making. The trouble seems to be that they are not anxious for work. The Mayor of Winnipeg, refuting charges of a party of harvesters that they were refused accommodation at the Dominion Immigration Hall, says that they were offered work at wages up to four dollars a day, but refused it. If these men were keen to get on, to make a success of their venture and to return home with a little money in their pockets, they would have gladly accepted work even if it wasn't just to their liking. These harvesters are no weaklings. They all had to pass a stiff medical examination in Britain before being accepted. So they are physically fit for any kind of work.

If these men are returning home because they are not prepared to accept work, their departure will not be regretted, except for the unfavorable publicity it may create.

Canada wants only those who are not afraid of work. To counteract as far as possible any adverse impressions their leaving may make, their charges, however flimsy they may seem, should be investigated and an official statement issued showing just why they are in such a hurry to leave Canada.

By a happy coincidence, on the same day that despatches appeared telling of these 300 dissatisfied harvesters, another despatch was published telling of satisfied British settlers whom Right Hon. Ramsay MacDonald found in Manitoba. The former British Premier visited several families and learned that they were all doing well. One of these happy and contented settlers told Mr. MacDonald that he had worked in the pits for twenty years, but after enjoying outdoor life on the Canadian prairies, he would not go back underground for anything.

The success of these settlers is, we believe, the best answer to the lamentations of the 300. Any man who is physically fit, who is willing to work, and who is determined to succeed, can make good on Canada's prairies.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Sept. 12.—With few hold-overs the market yesterday held steady. Prospects of a good clean-up, with a few late arrivals to be held for Wednesday.

Choice handyweight steers were bought at $10.50 to $11.50. Buyers looking for fleshly killing cattle.

Heavy steers and heifers quickly disposed of at $11 to $12. Very few on market.

Good demand for baby beeves. Choice babies bring $14 to $14.50; better quality higher.

Stockers and feeders sold readily at $8 to $10.60 per cwt. Ontario cattle that could be sold in this class are bought for killers.

Slow springer and milker trade, with tendency to lower levels. Common and medium draggy.

Bulk of cattle on market yesterday not of good finish. Even with quality poor, values have not declined.

Calves in demand at strong prices. Choice bring 14½c to 16½ with quite a number at 17c.

No lower veal prices are evident.

Feeling continued weak on lambs.

Hogs held steady at $13.25 f.o.b. for selects. Off cars $14.25 for selects.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Owing to the advance in future prices for grain at Winnipeg yesterday the local market for cash grain was stronger and prices for car lots of wheat were marked up 1 cent per bushel and oats 2 cents.

The local market for wheat flour remained steady with prices unchanged from the recent decline. The volume of new business showed no improvement.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for millfeed owing to a continued good demand from local and country buyers for supplies.

The offerings were none too large to meet requirements. The volume of business was fairly large and prices remained unchanged.

The egg market showed no change, the undertone remaining firm at the recent advance in prices. Receipts were 1,662 cases.

The volume of business in the butter market was again small yesterday. No change was shown in prices. The receipts were 25 packages.

The export trade in cheese was again inactive. The receipts were 7,324 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.— (Canadian Press).—Unexpected curtailment of the 1928 official estimate of corn production led to sharply higher prices for corn yesterday and also lifted up wheat and oats. Special notice was taken that most of the falling off in the probable yield of corn is in the states which as a rule furnish the bulk of the commercial supply.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous, 1% to 2% net higher, wheat finished unchanged to ¾ up, oats at ½ to ¾ to ⅝ to ⅞c advance and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 7c.

General surprise over the government figures indicating 141,000,000 bushels reduction of the probable yield of corn, as compared to the average of unofficial estimates, made the corn pit yesterday the market leader from start to finish. Commission houses and previous speculative sellers were active and persistent buyers, whereas offerings were largely restricted to holders who found themselves in a position to realize profits. Besides an excellent cash demand was in evidence for corn available to be used at once.

Meanwhile, arrivals of corn in Chicago yesterday totalled only 79 cars and despite the advances in price of future deliveries the quantity of old corn booked to-day for

NEW IDEA IN FUR COLLARS

Little Tabs of Self Material Add Chic—In N. Fine's Store.

OPPOSSUM COLLAR

Little tabs of self material extending over the end of long fur scarf collars are a new idea this fall, demonstrated in several of the models in coats at N. Fine's store at 283¼ George Street. One coat of navy broadcloth has an opossum collar treated in this fashion, while another ends with an animal head. A brown broadcloth garment has a collar and cuffs of Thibetine.

There are seal and plush coats also in stock and tailored garments in navy and black.

Black makes a pretty dress of transparent velvet with the popular flary skirt of the season, while a dress of black crepe in matron's style has the softening and livening touch of cream lace in its vest and on its cuffs.

A dainty little frock of black crepe combines green in cool and interesting fashion in its yoke and front, which is laced across with narrow velvet ribbon.

Little hats show the feather pompoms at the side, with gilt embroidery on a bright crimson model of velvet.

There is also a touch of cosiness for winter in the fur cuffs and fur lining for warm gloves.

The Time to Think About Coal is Before Ordering it

IN mid-winter, when you should be enjoying indoor comfort, doubt or concern about your fuel supply is out of season.

A little thought and care now, before you lay in your coal, will enable you to dismiss the fuel question from your mind and avoid troublesome fire-coaxing later on.

You need only remember to order Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite, and you will have prepared yourself for a winter without heat-shortage and without heater-annoyance.

For this time-tested coal, famous for over a century for its purity and uniformity, provides a fuel that is, above all, reliable.

Many thousands of American homes have been heated for generations by Old Company's Lehigh—in fact, they never have known another fuel. And they never have known disappointment in their heating service.

Your local Old Company's dealer, handling this reliable fuel, is a reliable man with whom to deal. He will not only sell you good coal, but he will also advise you of the best size for your heater, if you have any doubts about it; and he will gladly tell you of the recent developments in the firing of anthracite, which make for even greater economy and ease of attention.

Ontario Wheat Unaffected By Western Price

FARMERS HEAR POOL DETAILS FROM OFFICIAL

Ontario Wheat Not Affected By Western Crop Price, Gilroy Asserts.

SALE IS DOMESTIC.

Advises Farmers To Hold Wheat —Will Not Deteriorate In Mow.

Details of the operations of the Canadian Grain Pool were explained to local members Monday night by H. A. Gilroy of Lambton county at a meeting in the office of J. B. Nelson, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Wm. R. Shield was appointed as the Peterborough county representative on the Advisory Board of Directors, which will be composed of sixteen members from the various counties constituting the Provincial Pool this year. The Board last year number nine directors. From this Board three men will be chosen to act with two representatives of the directorate of the Farmers' Co-operative Company, constituting the committee of management for the Ontario Grain Pool. The nominees of the Co-operative company are the President, James Ross, and Mr. Gilroy.

By this trusteeship, Mr. Gilroy stated, the management of the Pool will be brought directly into the hands of Ontario grain growers together with the Co-operative Company which is financing the preliminary stages of organization.

Mr. Gilroy declared that Ontario wheat is principally used in the manufacture of biscuits and confectionery and in the various cereals, branches of an industry that is steadily growing.

"It is important that the farmers of this province should know this fact, he said. "They have a big crop in the west, but, even if it were a billion bushels, that yield should not affect the price of Ontario wheat, because our market is very largely domestic. Without the Pool this year they would be telling you, 'Look at the big crop in the west' and the price in all probability away lower than it is. But, thank goodness, our farmers have responded nobly. All that we are selling now is distress wheat. What they are trying to buy is the non-pool wheat.

Well we know that the price of western wheat, a great part of which will be exported, has little to do with the price of Ontario wheat. We want the farmers to realize that. They are trying to hammer wheat below one dollar. Get all the wheat you can into the Pool.

"Sprouted" Wheat

"If you have 'sprouted wheat' let it dry. Did you ever hear of wheat spoiling in the mow? I never did, and I have yet to meet the farmer who has heard of it. And there is positively no danger of spontaneous combustion.

The Pool in this country is just what the growers make it, and its strength will be proportionate to the number of farmers who sign up. We believe it is good business to hold your wheat as long as you can. We offered a bonus of two cents a bushel to those who held it until after September 15. This week letters are going out offering more if you hold it a week longer.

"In the west the elevators have got to accept your wheat for storage. The law provides for that. We in Ontario couldn't force in a bushel, but before October 1, possibly about September 15, we shall have all the elevator storage we need. The new elevator in Toronto, in which we have obtained space, will be ready in about two weeks."

The Detail of Prices.

Mr. Gilroy said he also wished to emphasize that although the initial price would be the same for grades 2, 3 and 4, the final price would not be the same. He went into details of cleaning, weighing, grading, and other questions that might come up when the grain is being shipped.

"As I said when I was here before, there is nothing magic about the Pool. It is just what the grain growers make it. It is yourselves. Some farmers, of course, will hold aloof, but just the same they will benefit from our marketing, and meanwhile their selling will be an influence against our common industry and interests."

Mr. Gilroy said he was not thinking at present about higher prices, but about a united front against speculators who would try to make Ontario wheat growers believe the bottom had been forced out of their prices by the big crop in the west.

"Peterborough country has done very well for a start. Although there are fewer members than in Victoria county you have about twice their acreage of wheat, but you have less oats and barley than they have signed up."

PRESENTATION TO HAVELOCK SINGER

Wallace Denike Receives Gift From United Church Choir.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 12.—At the close of the morning service at the United church on Sunday Wallace Denike, who has been transferred to the Bank of Toronto staff at Port Hope was presented with a club bag by the choir. The gift was in token of esteem and appreciation of his loyalty and devotion to his duties in the service of song. The presentation was made by Harry Sexsmith and was accompanied by an appropriate address read by Joseph Faulkner.

Sale of Cooking.

A very successful supper and sale of home made cooking was held under the auspices of the Parish Guild of St. John's church on the church lawn on Saturday afternoon. Supper was served from 5 to 7 o'clock and light refreshments comprising ice cream and pie, weiners and corn were also served during the afternoon. About sixty-three dollars was realized from all departments of the sale.

ONCE CHAMPION EATER; NOW FAILS TO QUALIFY

MARYVILLE, Mo., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—The palmy days of Tom Lyle, of Parnell, Mo., one time claimant of the title of champion eater of the world, have passed.

Twenty years ago, Lyle on a visit here consumed a gallon and a half of ice cream and then devoured a dozen oranges.

But on a recent visit he was unable to approach his former record. While the thermometer registered 102 in the shade, Lyle pronounced conditions excellent. Equipped with a big spoon with a long handle, Lyle started in on a gallon of ice cream but was able to consume only three-fourts of the container.

"I guess I should retire and leave the field to the youngsters," he remarked.

BLACK KNIGHTS ATTEND CHURCH

Havelock Preceptory Parades To United Church On Sunday.

INSPIRING SERMON.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 12.—The members of the local order of the Royal Black Preceptory accompanied by visiting brethren from Norwood, held their annual church parade to the United Church on Sunday evening when the pastor, Rev. W. R. Archer, preached a very impressive sermon, choosing two texts, the first which appears on the front page of the rules and regulations of the Imperial Grand Chapter of the Order and is taken from Psalm 81, verses 4 and 5: "For tthis was a statute for Israel and a law of the God of Jacob. This he ordained in Joseph for a testimony when he went out through the land of Egypt, where I heard a language that I understood not"; and the second taken from 2 Timothy, 4 and verse 7: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith."

"I believe", he said, "that it is my privilege to address you as 'Sir Knights' and for that reason I chose as the first hymn, 'Onward Christian Soldiers'."

The theme of the discourse was the story of a man who had his name changed from Jacob to Israel and to refresh the minds of the congregation Mr. Archer outlined the life of Jacob, including the trials and triumphs of Joseph in Egypt.

The Orange Order, he said, would soon celebrate the hundredth anniversary of its existence in Canada and it has been a great asset to the country for it has done something no other order has done. It has been said that there is a decline in formal religion but there has been a marvelous increase in real religion and the standard of the later is to visit the fatherless and the widow in their affliction and to keep ones self unspotted from the world. Evidence goes to prove this statement. Benevolent Societies were trying to carry this out and the Orange Order has spent $1,500,000.00 for benevolent purposes in a certain length of time. While the Quaker religion is on the wane the principles for which it stood are being inculcated into religion to-day. God has given everyone individual work and our responsibility is measured with our personality. No one can be held responsible for the start they had in the world but everyone can be responsible for the disposition they possess at the close of life.

Royal Black Precentory stands for a great deal and to be a Sir Knight means much. It is a name to be written high up and it is for the members to keep that before them.

In closing Mr. Archer said: "Thousands have had their names or natures changed through prayer and the one who wrote the second text had his name changed from Saul to Paul. To read his epistles one would think he was surrounded by eternal sunshine. Nothing of a dismal nature even when in prison ever crept in his writing and I hope Sir Knights when you come to the end of life you will be able to say the same words: 'I have fought a good fight I have finished my course, I have kept the faith'."

Steer Climbs Stairs Leaps Out Of Window

MILDMAY, Ont, Sept. 12.— A big steer owned by J. Werler, in Carrick Township, near here, would seem to have qualified as a star performer in a circus. Breaking into a vacant house near where it was pasturing, the animal made a thorough investigation even to ascending the stairs to the second floor.

The steer, however, did not take the trouble to descend the stairway and go out the way it had entered. It made a rather undignified exist, but otherwise sensational, by leaping through an upstairs window, landing on all fours, safe and sound in the yard below.

THE WEATHER

Meteorological Office, Toronto, Sept. 11.—Pressure is low over the Lower Lakes and over the western portion of the continent and high to the northward over Ontario and Quebec. Showers and thunderstorms have occurred in many districts in Eastern Canada. While in the West the weather has been fair it has been warm in South-Western Ontario and comparatively cool elsewhere.

Probabilities.

Georgian Bay and Northern Ontario — Moderate north-easterly winds; partly cloudy and cool.

Lake Superior — Moderate north-easterly winds; partly cloudy and cool.

Western Provinces—Southerly and easterly winds; mostly fair, with not much change in temperature.

Boy Is Experienced Tramp At 8 Years

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 12.—(U. P.)—Albert Lamb, 8 years old, is believed to hold a new world record, much to the discouragement of his parents and police.

Albert was recently found in Gillespie, Ill., the first time that he had run away from home. Cajolery, bribery and whippings have failed to dim Albert's wanderlust, his parents say.

The youth began running away from home when four years old, staying from one to three days. Albert, who lives in East St. Louis, one time crossed the bridge between his home and St. Louis to "see if he could find Lindbergh," he told the police

FIVE HORSES KILLED DURING BIG STORM

Owners Find Their Animals Dead in the Pasture Fields.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, September 12. — Five horses were killed in this vicinity during the severe electric storms on Monday night. The animals were all out on pasture and were dead when their owners went to get them yesterday. Two belonging to Louis Sullivan were found in his pasture field and the other three, two owned by William Miller and the third by Thomas McMurray, were found under a tree in Mr. McMurary's pasture field.

DRAINAGE SYSTEM TO BE EXTENDED

Havelock Council Decides To Lay More Tile This Year.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 12.—It was decided at the regular meeting of the town council on Monday evening to resume the work on the drainage system of the village. New tile will be laid on Park street, and on Alexander street from Ann street to Union street, and along Union street to Ontario street. A connection from Ottawa street to the catch basin of the main drain will also be made.

APPEAL DISMISSED.

Former Maharajah Sought To Have Court Jurisdiction Limited.

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—The appeal filed by Sir Tukoji Rao, husband of Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, against the jurisdiction of the Bombay High Court in the suit for 184,000 rupees (about $60,000) damages filed against him by a woman, was dismissed to-day. The woman charges the former Maharajah of Indore with luring her to his residence, attempting to gain her daughter as his mistress, and imprisoning them both for eleven years.

FENCES BLOWN DOWN IN STORM

Many Farmers in Lindsay District Suffer Loss By Gale.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LINDSAY, Sept. 12. — A violent storm of the hurricane type visited the village of Sunderland and vicinity on Monday afternoon and created considerable havoc. Fences were blown down and large trees that had stood the storms of years were uprooted and tossed about. One large pine tree on the property of Billy Pangman was uprooted and broken in two and the top disappeared as if swallowed up by the earth.

Roofs on the barns belonging to Edward Bilton and Joseph McFayden were lifted and carried some distance. In fact the roof on Bilton's barn was carried several hundred feet over the roof of another barn before it crashed to earth.

Steer Killed.

PETERBOROUGH, Sept. 12.—Ten heavy steers, the property of P. Duggan, were killed on his ranch four miles north of Kirkfield during the electrical storm on Monday afternoon. The animals were found in a heap near a growth of cedars.

Brass Men's Wear Manager Says Men Break Away From Contrast.

SUITS ARE BROWN

Brass Men's Wear at 329 George Street with the slogan, "The Store That Makes Good." interpreted by "If a garment is not suitable or right we will replace it," forecast the correct thing for the well dressed man for the coming fall and winter seasons.

The new shirts are tending to group stripes with varied ground shadings, but white seems to be predominant. Two collars unattached are supplied with the shirts, while the shirt with the attached collar is what the younger man is buying and what he seems to favor.

Ties this year have fallen away from the vivid and contrasting tendency that they showed last year and now will be worn to tone in with the shade of the suit that is being worn. Stripes are predominant in the fall showing, while polka dots are also a favorite. Ties in solid colors have had their day. Hand tied bow ties in the bat style in various colors and dots are quite becoming, but these will also blend with the color scheme of the suit worn.

Fancy hose are shown in silk and wool and silk and lisle, with colors also harmonizing with the suit worn. Collars have a tendency to longer points, with the height remaining the same as last year. Three and four inch points are common in the newer lines. The wing collar is still the thing for formal wear in spite of the attempt last year in England and Paris to introduce the standard turned down collar for dress wear.

The popular hat is the welted edge hat with a somewhat higher crown and narrower brim. Dark greens, medium greys and fawns are the leading colors shown. Collegiate hats with the snap brims and raw edge are still worn among the youths. The Fedora is being worn by the conservative, the middle age, and elderly man. Hard hats will also be popular.

Reindeer will be the popular dress glove this season followed closely by the peccary hog glove, both of which are shown only in light colors. Tan and brown capeskin gloves will be popular with the blending shades of brown in the new fall suits.

The new suitings are rich in tones of brown which in the new samples are seen in nearly every piece that is shown. Greys will always be standard for the more conservative man. Double-breasted coats will be popular, with the three-button sack a close second, while the two-button coat is always a winner. Double-breasted vests are shown with many of the suits this year. The coats are slightly more form fitting in the new style books with the popular length being 28 inches. Peaked lapels are a feature on nearly all the young man's models, while the open notched lapel still is shown for the conservative dresser. Tuxedo still leads for formal wear and the one-button coat is still the correct style in spite of the attempt last winter in some college towns to introduce the two-button coat.

The three-button double-breasted raglan overcoat in the ulster style will be the leader in overcoats while the ulster will be very popular. Other models show three-button coats with two buttons to button, and velvet collars.

The desire for slickers is breaking away to the trench coat style, while heavy sweater coats and leather jackets will be worn this winter for sports.

BUSINESS POLICY TALK
No. 5—By H. E. M.

QUALITY AND PERSONALITY

You Are Judged by Your Business Advertising.

WOULD you take time to interview a salesman dressed in tattered and shabby clothing? No, you would take a look at him and say you hadn't time to talk to him. Why? Because he failed to impress you. He lacked "Quality" and "Personality."

It is exactly the same with printing. If you present a business card that is not impressive you are not likely to see your man. On the other hand, if your card has "Quality" and "Personality" built into it by a competent printer, it puts you across before the man sees you.

Your printed matter is your personal ambassador. You and your business are judged according to the amount of "Quality" and "Personality" expressed therein. You attract desirable or undesirable business in that ratio. Therefore, you cannot afford to buy anything but "Quality" printing. That is the only kind we know how to do. The best is always the cheapest in the long run.

"Examiner" on your printing is like "Sterling" on silver.

And remember, "We give the same treatment to one and all."

FINE MATERIALS BEING FEATURED

Velvets Prominent Among Dresses in Robert Fair Store.

HATS ARE SOMBRE

Transparent and cut velvets and the new sort of velvet that is called "embossed," with the flannels for dress wear that have such a soft, velvety surface, and a great variety of crepes and satins and georgettes, are among the prominent materials featured at the store of Robert Fair on George street.

In the Millinery Department are some lovely examples of pretty and up-to-date things in headgear. A beret tam o' shanter of black transparent velvet is one of the pretties models, with its ornament in a sequin rose. Another draped turban in soft black velvet has its folds caught by a ring of hackle feathers. The same feathers make the crown of a wood brown felt of the fox fur felt variety. A hat of brown hatter's plush has a mount of glycerined oostrich. In shadings of Royal blue and black are the downy feathers of another of these pheasant wing hats. One of the puffy bows of the moment is demonstrated in satin ribbon on a black sample of hatter's plush.

In the dress section are many examples of the season's varying whims. A rose beige gown in crepe romain has a "Mother Goose," or soft sand-beige, georgette front with a surplice closing.

A dress of navy georgette worn over a slip of navy crepe de chine has over-panels on the skirt, of pleating, and a high-placed belt outlined with silk braid in navy shade. A little pleated collar of blue completes an interesting frock.

A dress of black velvet and georgette shows the whole front of the skirt panelled in velvet, which also forms the deep hem and the side bow at the waistline. A long narrow collar ends in ties of the velvet, extending to the waist.

For sports wear, there is a pretty frock of bright red jersey, making the top, and a skirt of pleated white satin. It is hemmed narrowly with red satin and a red belt finishes the outfit.

Some of the coats on view are exceptionally smart. French blue makes a broadcloth garment which has a lining of mauve and gold brocade. On the sleeves, reaching to the elbow, are alternate bands of silver mole and silk embroidery in blue, the same treatment showing on the crush collar.

A wine-red coat in broadcloth is a very stunning and snappy model. It is grey collared, with squirrel fur and has a grey brocaded lining. The wide belt is stitched closely and there are red buttons on the back and on the sleeves.

The same lines of close stitching show on the sleeves of a wood brown coat and end in tiny brown buttons.

A coat of brown suedine has two throw ties which are trimmed with beaver, the same fur making the collar.

A black broadcloth coat has collar and cuffs of sable.

The chinchilla range is very interesting. These smart coats for misses have a style al ltheir own. The soft cloth is made usually with straight lines and in tailored effect. A very unusual model here is developed in black and white. Down the back and the front are insets of white and the belt is perforated in the two colors. Black and white buttons are used, and a collar of platinum opossum.

Another coat of the same material is lined with red. The inset show the red also, as does the lining of the belt.

A brown novelty tweed has a striking touch in the flap pocket attached to the right side of the belt, and trimmed with the beaver fur which also trims the two throw ties.

An "Ascot" coat of English tweed in a brown and grey mixture has brown bone buttons and a belt which reaches only across the back. Another nut brown tweed has sable collar and cuffs.

In this store there is a great variety of staple goods, from the linens, which have been one of its famous lines for many years, to the latest ideas in materials for dress uses, such as printed velvets and woollen goods.

There is lingerie and hosiery and gloves, scarfs, house dreses, aporns, piece goods and cottons.

Neckwear in the latest forms; of lace, which is so good this season, georgette and net and linen, forms one of the show-case supplies, also flowers, which are as popular as ever for wear in the evening or for daytime use.

One of the loveliest of the new flower bouquets is of velvet, the blossoms made with ruffled edges. It is developed in red, black and white and makes a striking and unusual combination.

LITTLE STORE HAS BIG STOCK

I. Botnick Caters to Men, Women and Children at Simcoe Street.

PLENTY OF CHOICE

A stock of staple goods and dresses and coats, both for men, women and children, is carried in the little store of I. Botnick at 173½ Simcoe Street. The shelves and counters and hangers are filled with many types of wearing apparel.

For women there is plenty of choice in dresses and coats. The latter are developed in all the popular shades of the season, in black and navy and brown, with and without fur trimming. On the hangers are crepe and satin and silk dresses in the fashionable colors.

There are also stocks of hosiery, bath robes, coats and dresses for children, raincoats and caps, linens, and underwear. Gloves and handkerchiefs and scarfs are carried in the showcases.

FALL FASHIONS

BRISK winds are ushering in a new season, and that season is bringing with it fashions of a new elegance and charm. Here you will find the new mode expressed in all its glory in distinctive costumes for women and misses.

Coats Have Many Fascinating Ideas

SMART women will be enamored of the refreshing new details of the coats for fall. Take, for instance, the tight hip-line of the model sketched. Note, too, that the hem-line dips subtly.

STRIPES GOOD IN MEN'S WEAR

Plain Shirts Not So Popular This Year, Riley & Hickey Find.

PLAINER NECKWEAR

Riley & Hickey, Limited, manage to keep their patrons well posted on all that is up-to-the-minute in men's clothing and haberdashery, so that perhaps the following "bulletin" prepared with an eye to the stock that they have on display for the fall and winter, will summarize what is new for the coming season. Through the courtesy of a member of the staff, it is available as follows:

Plain colors in shirts are by no means a dying issue, but with summer past, white shirts recede and interest turns to something that will replace this suggestion. Plain colors have been good through the summer, with no reason to suspect that their popularity will disappear with the dawning of vest and muffler.

The high-grade lines, hairline striped, pinstripes in fancy cords and the like have been receiving much favorable attention with the result that these are viewed as among the fall favorites in shirts.

Neckwear. — Striped neckwear had been very popular during the summer season, but for fall the natural trend runs to neater patterns and plainer colorings. Six of the leading colors for fall are: Blue night, autumn brown, fields green, Gulf Stream blue, Palm Beach roofs, forest edge green.

Hats. — Fall hats have a tendency to be a little narrower in the brim with a cable edge being a big favorite with the younger man. The snap brim hat is still very popular in colors of grey, tan, and brown. Brown is a very popular shade for fall.

Suits. — Supitings for fall wear in the new brown shades, Oxford greys, neat pinstriped and the favorite marine blue are the popular colors that the leading stores are showing, in two of the popular styles. A two-button slightly body-fitting coat with roped shoulders either with peaked or notched lapels, and the double-breasted style two buttons with a slightly larger lapel.

Overcoats. — The favorite styles in overcoatings are of a slightly loose hanging coat made in the new colorings, such as autumn brown, medium fawn shades, blues being as popular as ever.

MOSCOW COAT HAS COZY LOOK

Latest Models in Fall Coats Shown in Loftus Store.

STYLISH GOWNS

A "Moscow" coat has a very cosy appearance in the window of Loftus' Ladies' Wear store on George Street. It looks like a Scotch plaid and has a brown ground with checked pattern of green, red and white and a finish to the edge of deep fringe.

A coat that shows the season's fancy for a long, slim fur collar like a scarf, with an end that is caught at the side and may be worn over the shoulder, is of "Vellabloom," a material with a soft, velour-like finish. It is navy, with a wolf fur trimming and a grey crepe lining. A light navy coat beside it has a collar and cuffs of grey lamb and a great broadcloth coat has black opossum fur in its collar and the long pointed cuffs that reach to the elbow.

A gown for afternoon wear is quite striking with its top of black and white printed velvet which comes down in large tabs on to the skirt of black satin. Applique velvet in sand color trims the wine-red satin frock that has a wide bertha collar of self, while an extremely pretty frock in two tones is of cinnamon brown satin with sand georgette in the deep lower portions of the bell sleeves. These sand sleeves are pleated and are criss-crossed by tiny bows of brown satin ribbon.

Black Valenciennes lace trims the flaring green cuff at the elbow of a black satin gown and applied triangles of velvet in rose, green, and yellow form the trimming of the blouse front.

A "flapper" gown shows a new use of jersey in a trim and jaunty effect. It comes in red and sand or in tones of blue. A Copenhagen blue sample has tiny ruffles of grey and navy at the skirt hem, the cuffs and the collar. Another dainty little business frock shows a skirt of pepper and salt, with a top of bright scarlet jersey cloth.

Little hats in felt and velvet, in the bright tones that are so good just now, are seen here also. They come in the close-fitting and "Vagabond" styles, with trimmings of felt tabs and grosgrain ribbons and silk embroidery.

FOOTWEAR FOR AUTUMN

Peterborough Stores Show a Range That Will Meet Every Need in the Way of Shoes For Women, Men, Girls, Boys and Children. Fancy, Conservative, and Durable—All On Display Here This Week.

R. NEILL, LIMITED.

Never before in the history of the store has there been shown such a tremendous display of ladies' fancy footwear. Among the materials of which shoes are made this season, patent leather will be shown far more than any other and with reptile trimming. These will undoubtedly be the favorite though the trims will not be large or gaudy.

Tans and browns will be shown more in the wide strap and Oxford effects, though more for street wear. The high spike and cuban heel are found more and more in all types of the new footwear for fall. Strap shoes are by far the most popular with tie Oxfords and Colonial pumps next in order.

School shoes for misses and children are presented this year in almost as great variety as are shown for ladies. In these are shown tie straps, tie Oxfords and high shoes with patent leather and black calf predominating.

Men's and boys' styles which at all times are more or less staple, are this season inclined to return to a slightly narrower toe with less perforating on the patterns. As in the ladies' shoes, black will be found the most popular color for men's and boys' shoes in the finer types of fall footwear. In the heavier lines, light and medium tans are still shown.

SMITH SHOE STORE.

Smith Shoe Store, 384 George Street, shows that the younger ladies are favoring the round ties with short vamps and high spike heels. The featured colors for fall are in patents, brown kids and brown suedes.

Sport shoes are shown with low and medium Cuban heels in reptile leather, such as alligator skin, making a very effective and becoming shoe which gives a little distinction to the wearer.

The more conservative lady will choose the style with a longer vamp and Cuban leather heels, the shoes of which mostly all have built-in arches. Blacks and tans will be the predominating colors for fall wear. Straps are featured very largely this year, while ties with medium heels are to become rather popular.

Men's shoes are always similar to other years as the styles do not change radically from year to year. The shoe this year will be the low Oxford type that has come into great popularity during the past few years, with medium square toes and the English type last predominant. These will be in shades of tan and black.

PETRIE'S.

Petrie's shoe store at 448 George Street is a store that the workingman and the farmer can depend on to get the finest quality working shoes. This establishment does not carry any of the dress or fancy lines of footwear but caters to the user of shoes that must give long and comfortable wear. These lines are always staple. They are heavy, substantial, and broad for comfort.

LEADER SHOE STORE.

The Leader Shoe Store, located at 291 George Street, known by the slogan, "The Store That Satisfies," suggests that black will be the leading color for men's shoes in the fall, with a few darker tans. The shoes will be the low type with broad toes. Patent leather shoes for dancing are correct.

High heels with broad straps, buckles and ties feature the ladies' shoes. The tie especially is very fashionable for fall wear in colors and mostly in browns. Patent leathers, velvets, and satins will be the material worn. There will be a very small sale for colored shoes as soon as the cooler weather arrives. Black shoes with colored straps and backs will be the fall feature.

For the children, Oxford and strap shoes in the standard blacks and browns are shown.

KYLIE SHOE STORE.

Kylie Shoe Store, 141 Hunter Street West, selling reliable footwear at moderate prices, predicts that black will be the predominating color in men's shoes. This is always the big seller in the cooler weather to wear with the heavier and darker suits that are worn then. Low shoes are the feature and high shoes are carried merely as a staple stock for which there is always a small demand. The medium broad toe and not the exceptional wide freakish style will be the shoe for fall.

Women's low shoes are shown here in black. The size of the store, it was explained, caused the proprietor to cater to the conservative buyer, and the management did not stock the novelty styles. Strap shoes, which are the big sellers, with pumps and patent leathers mostly in black, are expected to be the leaders this year. There will be very few tans worn.

The stock of children's shoes remains practically unchanged, and the demand for black Oxfords, slippers and low cut shoes are looked for in the fall.

ROUTLEY-BRAUND.

When the Fall rains come and when the snow flies later on in the season, Routley Braund Shoe Store on Charlotte Street, just around the corner from George Street, will be a blaze of color. The latest rubbers and slickers are coming in all the hues and colors of the rainbow, and the dainty feet of my lady will be very brightly protected from the elements this year. Blues, reds, greens, mahoganys, blacks and every other available color have been introduced in the golosh and the rubber. The goloshes also show many different styles, some with the buckle, some with the strap and others with the zipper fastener, a wide variety to choose from and a color to suit each individual taste. Such a wide range of fall and winter protective footwear has never been known.

Black will outstand for the Fall shoes, with tans and the other colors taking second place. The younger set will wear straps and the extreme dresser will wear the round toe shoe with the short vamp.

The heels will range from the spike heel to the low heel, the Cuban and new military style being between these extremes.

Black will be the outstanding color also for men's wear without the extreme square toe and a narrower width. The low shoe in the Oxford style still is the leader among the younger men, while the cooler weather, it is expected, will cause the older man to come to the boot again.

Little girls like the Oxford and will wear the bright goloshes and rubbers this winter, while the younger lad will again don the boots.

HICKEY'S.

Carrying only the more staple lines of men's, women's and children's shoes, Hickey's Hunter Street store does not fail to attract attention from buyers who seek the quieter lines, whether for street or dress wear. Women's shoes are available here in the popular Oxford browns and tans for walking, and for dress wear are seen the ever-popular satins and patent leathers.

For men, the plain English Oxford in black and tan with a particularly low leather heel and leather sole is shown, while the varied lines of children's footwear affords a shoe for every requirement.

A. V. LILLOW.

"We have had a pronounced call for brown suede in the walking or street shoe for the coming autumn season but there is a general tendency to combine the features of a dress and walking shoe so that one sees on the street the higher heeled shoe that is adaptable to all general wear. Brown kid and brown calf leather are going better than usual, while trimmings are very prominent both in street and dress lines. Patent leather trimmed with black suede or kitten calf (gun metal) is seen, while for evening wear black satins are leading. There is also a growing demand for a midnight blue velvet dress shoe with its high heel that is almost a Spanish spike. A little longer vamp is also a noticeable feature.

In men's shoes the best seller seems to be the perfectly plain black calf Oxford, English type, with black outselling tan, especially for winter wear. Of course, there is some demand for the tan as a business shoe.

HOWDEN'S.

Shoes for street, house and party wear, stocked to meet the demands of the autumn and winter seasons in Peterborough, offer Milady a wide variety in range of color, material, and style. Whether she is buying or "just shopping," there is plenty to attract and hold the attention.

At Howden's one may expect to find a neat array of suede in reptile shades, all with the high Spanish heel and medium toe. Some have the single strap and some have ties, but certainly they are fitted to meet the requirements of Dame Fashion.

In the more staple lines are the plain, patent and kid leather shoes with medium heel, adapted to street or home wear, while the satin and silver party shoes are again prominent. A scattering of pumps with steel buckles is also seen.

Howden's also carry a particularly good line of men's shoes, mostly on a medium last, but some with the very broad toe, calculated to satisfy the requirements of young and old. Black and tan shades seem to hold equal sway.

TECO LADIES' SHOES.

Brown suedes are noticeable among the various lines of walking shoes seen at the Teco Store ladies' shoe

FIGURED CREPE NEW OFFERING

Many Novel Designs Seen in Display at Teco Store

LOVELY GOWNS SHOWN

Sprays of pheasant feathers trail themselves in red and yellow and white on a brown ground, and conventionalized flowers that resemble Chinese patterns disport themselves on a rose foundation, in two of the striking examples of the new heavy crepes with figured patterns that form a novelty in the stock at the Teco Store, operated by the T. Eaton Company, Limited. Neighbors of these luxurious crepes are checked taffetas in all their crisp freshness, one interesting piece showing a foundation of pale gold with checks outlined in blue and green.

Over in the Ready-to-Wear Department are lovely gowns. A dinner gown of Renoir blue georgette catches the eye with its blouse of heavy lace in the same shade and its circular skirt with godets of the lace.

Dresden-shaded lace in several pastel tints and metallic fibre trims a gown of deep orchid georgette, the yellow and rose and green of the lace design being repeated in the large bow of taffeta ribbon of the three shades, sewn together, which drapes itself from the left of the waist.

An oyster-grey crepe uses the same tint of lace as its adornment, with a grey velvet shoulder flower.

A handsome gown of heavy silk Spanish lace is slightly longer in the front than is usual. Its yoke is one-sided, being much deeper at the left side and is worn over a foundation of shell pink. From a skirt yoke of georgette depend circular flounces of the lace.

On a black satin frock appears a set-in belt of the same goods. This model has a surplice closing and is trimmed with white.

Sports dresses of jersey cloth are very smart in their styles, and the Millinery Department shows all the variations of the mode in its little shapes, close-fitting and chic in their trimmings, which range from self tabs and bows on the felt models to combinations of transparent velvet and felt and satin and felt.

A stencilled felt shows a new tendency this year, with patterns of floral type on bright-colored felts.

One of the popular "patchwork" hats in sand has brilliant pieces of applied velvet, the edges stitched carefully to the material.

In the Austrian and fox felts which show the vogue for long-haired felts there is a small brown felt of reindeer hue, its upturned brim slashed at one side and caught with a brilliant buckle. A matron's hat of soft black velvet combines satin as its trimming.

House dresses and aprons, children's dresses and hats and coats, underwear and silk lingerie of all types, are stocked in al ltheir variations. The "Cosard" and "Nemoflex" goods are featured with the new "Solitaire" garment as a novelty. It is really what was called a "complete," and is made up with various materials to the top, with swami in general use.

Coats for fall and winter use are interesting, with their straight-line effects or in belted models, in the popular shades of black, navy and brown, with grey well represented also, with fur-trimmed collars and the huge cuffs of fur that Fashion decrees for this year. A coat of King blue has these high pointed cuffs and shawl collar of black sable, while soft beaver trims the Paquin collar and the cuffs that reach to the elbow of a coat of reindeer brown broadcloth.

In cocoa brown is a suedine garment, also used with beaver collar and with a high-placed tab of the fur on the sleeves.

A very pretty and smart sports coat of grey tweed has a collar in the mushroom style, made of grey opossum, and shows revers of light suede cloth, stitched heavily, of the same grey as the garment.

Shoes mark the tendency to brown shades this autumn, with all-over designs in lizard and alligator patterns and Cuban heels. To match them are stockings in brown shades called "Mocha" and "Arab," with a brownish gunmetal in the new tint entitled "Blue Fox."

In the neckwear line, georgette in fancy colors, pleated for neck and cuffs, is very new, also lace of all makes and plastrons of lace as blouse medallions. These are all carried in a large stock, with the lace-trimmed white handkerchiefs which are slowly displacing the colored kerchiefs, the "pullon" suede gloves, the bright-ribbed parasols, the brilliant rhinestone buckles and the wonderful leather and beaded bags from Paris.

Belts offer a wonderful variety of choice in the Teco Store, with the most popular numbers in the colored ribbon belts with silver and gilt buckles. One pretty thing in belts is of grey ribbon with horizontal bands of Roman striping and a round silver buckle.

Novelty jewellery has its innings yet in bright colors to the necklaces, chokers, pins, and bracelets which match or harmonize with the costume.

Toilet goods of all kinds are carried for Miladi's use and there are beautiful examples of flowers in every shade, with rosebuds and violets as the choice of the fall.

In the Teco Store, which carries goods ranging in price from five cents to one dollar, there is a great variety of choice, in novelties, china, jewellery, silver, crockery, tinware, glassware, cushions, linens, hosiery, lingerie, flowers, bags and jewellery.

PUFF CORSAGE

A caramel colored satin frock has little soft puffs of its fabric making an attractive little corsage at the left side of its girdle.

VIVID RED

A chiffon gown of floating panels, kerchief neck and dipping hemline is of a new bright ruby red that is tremendously vivid. For blondes or the brunette who can stand it, this red will be splendid.

BLUE FAVORED FOR OVERCOAT

W. S. Merrell Sees Older Man Turning To Gray Meltons.

SUITS ARE BROWN.

W. S Merrell, 396 George street who has just recently made the change from the old Le Brun business which was established for over fifty years, believes that blue overcoats will be the thing again this year for the snappy dressed young man while plain grey meltons in the chesterfield and double breasted models with welted seams will be what the well dressed elder man will be wearing. The styles will be similar to last year, varying from loose to form fitting. Those with the ulster model coat will be the big sellers.

In suits, the tweed effects running into the brown shades will be the leaders. All the fall samples are coming in in brown tones, mostly in blended effects. There are not many plain colors which run mostly into greys and worsteds.

For formal wear the Tuxedo will still be in black and cut along modern lines made in two models with the peaked or notched lapel. It will be recalled that an effort was made last year to introduce a Tuxedo in navy.

For boys from 10 to 15 years of age the four piece suit will be very popular. One pair of long trousers, one pair of breeches, coat and vest will complete the stylish suit for the youth.

Fall coats show a nice Donegal effect with the slip-on model being outstanding. The loose fitting coat with the three button front is the style. The yellow slicker is dead. Blues and blacks in the rain coat seem to be the big sellers at present, while the new windbreakers will be popular for out-door sports. These come in leather lined with plush, chamois, and mackinaw lined with chamois. The leather jacket in different shades, tan, blue, red and green, will be what the young lady will be wearing when she goes skiing or skating this winter.

With the blue coat goes the derby hat. These stiff hats will be very popular this fall, even more so with all the snappy new styles. In the soft hat for the younger man the pearl grey hat with the snap brim will be the right thing to wear.

Crew neck sweaters with fancy borders, V neck pullovers with golf hose to match, and sweater coats with block borders will be big sellers mostly in the colors of black and white and combinations of these.

Every animal from the camel to the rabbit has contributed at one time or other to the feminine demand for something new, and now it is the turn of the hen to give her white feathers to fashion, for new Paris woolen materials have tiny flecks of white feathers woven into them, but they appear, however, to have been sprayed over the cloth, this material being expensive but distinctly smart for fall.

COME SHOP With MISTRESS JEANETTE

Just as the picture "Ramona" is about to appear in the city, "Ramona" hats and "Ramona" gowns are being shown in many of the stores. The former are little, close-fitting shapes of velvet and felt, with dripping feather pom-poms at the right side, while the latter are gowns with high waistlines and puffed sleeves, either at elbow or wrist, and plenty of gilt embroidery on their dark surfaces.

A gown with wired hips, made of pale yellow georgette and hemmed with a wide band of pink georgette, trimmed with motifs of silver and rose embroidery, and fashioned with tight bodice, is one of the lovely evening frocks shown here. Again, a black satin with "fishtail," slinky back and a black point d'esprit whose narrow belt finishes with long cords ending in brilliant tassels, are further examples ofthe mode for evening wear. A trailing line of green leaves pendant from a bouquet of purple clematis perches itself on the shoulder of this lace frock.

There is a reminiscence of old-time "petticoats" showin in the V-like opening of one skirt of gold lace which parts to show the orange crepe slip beneath, in one of the local establishments.

Bags are opulent this season. One store shows a wide variety Embroideries of metal substance are encrusted in gold wheels on the surface of an envelope bag of light blue leather and a black moire pouch bag shows a monogram of brilliants. A novel idea in a shopping bag is of orchid "satin-finished" leather, with double handles and little leather flowers placed at the side.

A sandal with many cutouts is displayed among the smart models in a local shoe department.

Checked taffetas are interesting items in the display of dress goods in one local store. One pretty yellow is checked in green and purple and a green length shows checks of blue and rose.

CHESTERFIELDS IN NEW DESIGN

All - Upholstered Pieces Are Shown by Harry Zacks This Fall.

LAMPS FEATURED

Harry Zacks, home furnishing dealer at 420 George Street, is featuring the all-upholstered chesterfield suite instead of the wood-exposed frames this year. Mohair coverings are outstanding with the leading style that is to be the big seller in the taupe shades for the fall.

A home is not complete without at last a junior or a bridge lamp to add to the effect of the comfortable and well lighted interior. The latest lamps do not show distinctive colors but show a tendency to blend from one shade into another. The shades are numerous and varied. Blues blending into cerise and red shades and similar blendings in the shades which are of many shapes and sizes make these lamps a very attractive addition to this fall's room.

Solid walnut dining-room suites are the latest things for the modern home. The Queen Anne style predominates throughout all the newer furniture, with some of the William and Mary type. The table is an oblong shape with six legs and the long extension which naturally is made to blend with the period of furniture selected for the room.

Bedroom suites as far as the furniture is concerned follow the same as as the dining suites in as much as solid walnut is being shown and the Queen Anne style is predominating again throughout this. The newest dressing table, instead of being equipped with a mirror and two wing mirrors, is shown this season with only the one mirror and six drawers with bronze trimmings and bronze pulls. A stool to correspond is supplied with the table. Convenient shelves are built in to this piece of furniture.

There is little demand for book cases and these are not featured. Rugs are practically staple with no radical change if any over the usual trend.

Patou's new bandeau hat called "navette" is being shown on Fifth Avenue in grege velours felt, that new shade of beige with a greyish tinge and the velours side dominates and the softly rolled back brim that reveals the felt surface has placed under it a narrow bandeau of velours petals.

White chamois gloves are softer after washing if allowed to dry with soap in them.

DICKSON STORE BLANKETS WARM

Large Variety of Colors Shown This Year—Fine Dress Goods.

LATEST ACCESSORIES

Warmth from fall breezes and coziness for the winter nights are promised in the array of snug-looking blankets displayed in the windows of the Dickson store, with its rose and black paint. Blankets this year aren't contented with the prosaic white. They come in brilliant tones of mauve and yellow and green and blue, some with checks and some in solid colors. They may be had in pure wool, in the ordinary types or in the Hudson Bay blanket, famous for its utility and attraction.

In the Dickson store the housewife may find anything of use in re-stocking her wardrobe accessories or in things for her linen closet. In bridge sets and breakfast and luncheon sets, with or without serviettes to match, she may be suited here. There are some lovely bits of linen edged and trimmed with hand-made lace. These are Italian pieces and the lace comes in beautiful floral designs. D'oylies and runners and scarfs are made in square, oval, and oblong patterns.

Ladies' underwear and hose are in stock, in silk and in mixtures of silk and wool. One of the season's favorite gloves, on view here, is of suede, with saddlestitching on fingers and wrist, in pullover and buttoned styles.

The materials on sale include everything necessary for women's wear, from linen and cotton and print to the pliable tissue of transparent velvet and the softness of satin and silk. The line of crepes include all the favorites, in Canton, flat, romain, and moracain, in the high and plain colors suited to the fancy of the buyer. The heavier materials come in the navy and brown and black that Fashion favors this year.

WICKERWORK IS POPULAR

M. McFadden and Son Believe Peterborough People Appreciate New Types.

FITS ANY SCHEME.

Hunter Street, or at least that block of it immediately west of George Street, boasts several up-to-date furniture stores, and one of them is that of M. McFadden and Son, which enjoys the attention of the Peterborough furniture-buying public to a satisfactory degree. In conversation with a member of the above-named firm, The Examiner learned a few interesting sidelights on the sale of furniture this season. "We are pushing this wickerwork or fibre suite quite strongly, even for the Fall season, and we find the demand good. As you will see, it is available in a number of pleasing designs and in gold, or brown with velour upholstering. Those odd chairs (and he indicated a pleasing variety of them) are upholstered in imitation Spanish leather. Oak and walnut finishes make them available to match the general scheme followed in other furniture about the room in which they may be placed."

Dining-room suites following Queen Anne design are on display at the McFadden store, with oak shown slightly less than walnut.

FRESH—till you crunch the crisp candy coating between your teeth—all the wonderful tingling peppermint flavor of these dainty confections.

FOR WELL DRESSED MEN

Better tailored, better materials, better lines, better value, seems to be the general opinion of our newly received Men's Clothing for Fall. Surely if finer suits and overcoats could be made, our manufacturers would make them. They are the last word in men's attire on the market.

FALL'S NEWEST SUITS

Especially has the cunning of the master tailor gone into the production of this Fall's new Suits. Every feature that goes to make a man's clothes distinguished looking and to remain that way in spite of continuous hard wear, has been used in their construction. Every style seems just right for the man it was designed to fit. Our long experience in properly fitting our patrons is also an assurance of permanent satisfaction.

$27.50 to $32.50

Swagger TOPCOATS

What we say of our new Fall Suits applies equally as well to the swagger Topcoats. Neat fitting, medium weight for the business man, woolly, snuggly, roomy Coats for the man who has to face all weathers, and substantial, durable, warm Coats for the man who is obliged to practise economy. They're all here, and all moderately priced.

TAILOR COATS ARE FEATURED

McNabb's Ladies' Wear Store Shows "Shagmoor" Models of Interest.

DAINTY FROCKS

"Shagmoor" coats are featured at McNabb's Ladies' Wear Store. They are plain, tailored garments with all the verve and interest of perfect grooming in their details. They have that "smart" look that women strive to attain and are excellent for town and motor wear. One fine model is of sandalwood color with a collar of wolfe.

"Kasagranda" is the name of another material for coat use, resembling a fine serge with a slight nap surface. In sand, with a deep shawl collar of wolf, in "tabac" brown and in green they come, with plain or figured crepe linings and long shawl collars or the new collar which is termed "Paquin" after its great originator. It stands up to almost completely obscure the wearer's head with a point in the back, ending in a tiny animal head. Or it settles back, cape-like and luxurious, over the shoulders.

A dress that shows much original treatment in its details is a navy crepe romain with pipings of bright red. The skirt has a lower portion knife-pleated, while the upper portion, also pleated, is held flat by much fine red stitching.

For the matron, there is a dress of black transparent velvet with a vestee of sand georgette trimmed with tiny steel beads in a floral design.

"Montella" brown, a dark, woodsy brown, makes a pretty gown of georgette which has attractive handkerchief cuffs of cream lace.

In one of the season's combinations of georgette and velvet, the heavier material is used for the top, the lighter for the bottom. The tunic has a surplice closing and tiny vestee of pink with cut-steel button trimming. Again, a black crepe has a deep hem of transparent velvet and a pointed neckline to the upper part, with lace fringing the edge.

For evening wear there are transparent velvets and combinations of taffeta and tulle, with tight bodices and bouffant skirt arrangements.

A dress of the new "Madeleine" blue, in crepe, has its whole top knifepleated in a separate cape with scalloped edge that shows a sand crepe beneath. The skirt is knife-pleated also, with scalloped hem, while tiny blue glass buttons trim the front of the bodice.

For business use, there are the dependable jerseys. One model is developed in Oxford grey with cardigan jacket in two-piece effect. Another is of wine red with tab pockets and narrow belt.

BUSINESS SUIT IS ATTRACTIVE

Gables' Fashion Shop Shows Skirt Opening Into Single Piece of Cloth.

SNAPPY TAILORING

A trim little business suit of navy charmeen whose obliging skirt opens up into a single piece of cloth and fastens by the aid of domes, allowing the owner to slacken or tighten the belt-line at will, is one of the articles on view at the Gables Fashion Shop at 285½ George Street. This little skirt is combined with a snappy tailored short coat and light blouse.

Madeleine blue of soft sky color makes a crepe dress that has two glass buckles as trimming to the front and box pleats to the skirt.

A grey georgette has a pink slip beneath, giving it a rosy touch.

A black flat crepe has a trimly tailored look with its piping of white and its frilling to cuffs and jabot. White buttons give a smart finishing touch.

A navy crepe has cuffs of red and sand and a hem of the same to the pleated skirt, with a red silk embroidered motif at the side of the blouse.

Hats and coats are also on view here, the former in the little felts and velvets of the mode, the latter with furred trimmings and shades of black, brown, and navy.

QUIET COLORS IN MEN'S TIES

Single-Breasted Coats Lead in W. H. Meredith's Stock.

BLUE OVERCOATS GOOD

W. H. Meredith has been supplying the clothing needs of a large number of Peterborough people for years past, and now, located as he is in new and roomier quarters on George Street, has to offer a neat array of suits, overcoats, shirts and other garments.

The Meredith store has a stock that will please the young man and his father equally as well for, while there is no attempt to carry "fad" lines, there is a wide choice of tweeds, worsteds and serges, mostly in single-breasted models. Overcoats and fall topcoats are in an equally wide range, with the blue going strong in the former class and the light, slip-on models in tweeds and plaids prominent in the latter.

Haberdashery at Meredith's is in keeping with the suitings and overcoatings and with the trend of fashion, for the knitted and silk ties are in quiet stripes and plain colors, while the popular bow tie is shown in the neat polka dot silk.

Pajamas, braces, and hosiery are available in the nicer styles and patterns.

FIBRE PIECES UP TO MINUTE

Lane & Eano Predict Trend in Modern Living-Room Furniture.

VARIED SHADES

This furniture store, located at 186 Hunter Street West, predicts the style of the modern home to be finished in fibre living-room furniture, which is distinctive and beautiful to look at in the modern designs and popular shades of apricot and cape and gold which are the leaders.

The Chesterfield suites are of the standard design with no radical change from last year. Comfort and deep upholstering in attractive colors and designs to blend with the room in the leading colors of taupe and gold.

The bedroom would be very comfortably furnished in Simmons bedding (beds, mattresses, and springs). These beds are entirely of metal designs in standard and modern patterns. The springs are special Simmons made, known as Slumber King, and equipped with the rest right mattresses, which are soft and comfortable, assuring a perfect night of rest.

Solid oak dining-room suites are to be the big fall leaders in the Queen Anne design. Wooden candle sticks are very popular at present and look nice on buffets, dressing tables, and mantelpieces or book cases as the room will call for.

COME SHOP With MISTRESS MARION

APPARENTLY the current mode has no more intention of staying up than a stream has of running uphill. Frocks shown in Peterborough stores indicate that the hem is just an imaginary straight line broken into as many segements as one wishes and showing a marked backward trend for formal wear.

* * * * * * *

Modistes may find it difficult to lengthen skirts, but they are succeeding—by degrees! An inch here, six inches there; who knows but what next year may see skirts down to what is this year the bottom of the panels.

* * * * * * *

One recalls the time when skirts flared at the back and were down in front, but nowadays the aim seems to be to make everything as different as possible.

* * * * * * *

A charming model seen in a George street store is of figured chiffon. Floating panels are stitched flat on a straight, brief skirt in a long, narrow, centre panel effect. The sharp points of the panels dip and flare smartly to the ankle.

* * * * * * *

In a two piece outfit the skirt border, rather than follow the horizontal stripes of the jumper, mounts to a peak placed asymmetrically. The colors are two shades of brown on beige kasha. I don't know whether that word "asymmetrically" is good to use in describing a frock, but it's the only one to describe this disproportionate effect.

* * * * * * *

MOIRE WRAP

A rich green moire wrap has cape wings, tipped with eighteen inch shirred ruffles and a shirred Elizabethan collar.

As flies are inclined to go toward the light traps set in bright place are most effective.

Lettuce and celery stay crisp longer in the refrigerator if wrapped in a damp cloth or oiled paper.

Unslaked lime applied with a garden spray to the moldy cellar walls will freshen the atmosphere of the entire house.

BIG VARIETY OF FURNITURE

Belleghem and Sons Have Most Complete Modern Stock.

FOR ALL ROOMS.

The prospective house furnisher need not go far afield to choose what he shall buy, for at the store of the D. Belleghem & Sons, Hunter Street, may be seen one of the most complete ranges of house furnishings in the city. Suites for the parlor, dining-room, living-room, breakfast room, adults' or children's bedrooms, are seen to advantage, attractively displayed and attractively priced, while a courteous staff will advise and assist, with a wealth of experience to draw from.

Turning first to the appointing and furnishing of that room which even in modern days is the pride of the household, one may choose a chesterfield suite of various sizes and coverings of mohair, and velours ranging in color from brown to blue and grey to mulberry. And there is a wide range of chesterfield and reading lamps, pictures and mirrors which, used conservatively, will add to the appearance of the room appreciably.

Dining-room suites in Jacques designs, tea wagons, secretary and library tables are present in a wide range, with walnut predominating. Occasional chairs, cloth covered, and in imperial designs, are of walnut, mahogany, and birch walnut. Wicker or fibre suites in fancy woven designs are also to the fore this season with a brisk demand indicating public approval.

Bedroom suites of lacquered designs, night tables and beds boasting spring and felt or kapoc mattresses are on display, while for the nursery or children's bedroom, cots, chairs, and other helpful articles may be obtained in white, blue, or grey color schemes.

Radio tables, hall tables, which with wall mirrors and costumers have replaced the older hall rack, may be had in keeping with the general scheme of furnishings. In the breakfast room, grey, green, blue and oak finish sets will look, one as pleasing as the other, and there is a noticeable tendency toward transferred designs.

Almost all the new colors prominent for autumn wear have a luscious, good-to-eat-or-drink sound. Bergundy, wine, grape blue, prune, vanilla brown and pistache and mint green are all important, and Chanel of Paris is responsible for a combination of brown and salmon that seems likely to meet with approval here.

Announcement of the inauguration of a

Bureau of Complaints

in the

Motor Vehicles Branch of the

Department of Highways

To supplement the work of Highway Traffic Officers and municipal police throughout the Province in maintaining law and order on the streets and highways, the Department of Highways has inaugurated a Bureau of Complaints which is prepared to receive and deal with genuine reports from responsible parties of actual occurrences in which traffic regulations have been disregarded or other evidence given of careless or reckless driving.

Cards on which these reports shall be made are available at all Police Stations and at the offices of agents of the Motor Vehicles Branch. Offences on any street or highway in the Province will come within the scope of the Bureau of Complaints.

The co-operation of all well-intentioned drivers of vehicles will be welcomed by the Department and appreciated by the public. Report cards will be furnished by the officials above named to those applying for them. These report cards should be filled out fully as indicated on the face, and mailed to the Department.

All reports received will be dealt with confidentially by the Department.

The interest of the vast majority of motorists is wholly in accord with the efforts of the Department to preserve the streets and highways safe for all users. The small proportion who still persist in disobedience of the law, carelessness in the operation of their vehicles or recklessness of the safety of themselves or others, may take notice of this additional measure of protection to the public.

XXIV—GARRY TO THE RESCUE

The rain cleared off the next day, and the sun shone again with watery apology.

Presently the garden gate creaked, and a man's step came up the path, followed by a cautious knock at the door.

Mrs. Kiff was way out in the washhouse, and after waiting a moment Sally called out:

"Please come in, whoever you are!"

"Oh, may I?" a cheery voice answered, and a moment later the big figure of Garry Nairn stood in the doorway of the sitting-room. Sally was conscious of quick pleasure. Here was someone to talk to at last. She held out her hand with welcoming eagerness.

"Oh, how nice! I was just feeling lonely. Please come in." He carried his hat in his hand, showing that cropped, crinkly hair of his, and he looked a little embarrassed as he came forward and took her hand.

"The guv'nor asked me to call; he sent a book you wanted." He produced it from a bulging pocket of his rough coat.

"Oh, thank you!" Sally took it with a great show of gratitude. It was a book she did not want to read in the least, but she had said she did in order to please the vicar.

Garry Nairn glanced towards the window. Sally thought he was impatient to be off, and she said quickly:

"It must be lovely out this morning."

"It's very fresh after the rain."

"I should have gone in the woods if Philip had been here."

"Isn't he here?"

"No, he went back to London last night. A friend is ill, and he had to go, and Mrs. Kiff can't push me out today, because she's got to do the washing."

"I see." He looked at her with a twinkle in his blue eyes. He would have been more than dense to have missed the very obvious point of her words.

"I'll take you out, if you like."

"You!" Sally gave a little squeal of delight. "Oh, but the chair's so heavy!" she protested.

Garry Nairn laughed.

"Do I look such a weakling?"

"No, but—you'll have to carry me out to it."

"I dare say I'm quite as capable as Sandy son."

He was more capable—or was it that to be held in his strong young arms was more of a novelty? At any rate, Sally wished that the distance between her couch and the garden had been twice as long.

Mrs. Kiff was not sure that she approved.

"I don't know what Mr. Sanderson would say," she told Sally as she got her ready. "If anything was to happen—"

"Nothing will happen," Sally said happily. And nothing did happen except that they spent a very interesting morning. Garry Nairn, it appeared, knew the countryside far better than Philip Sanderson knew it. He took her off the beaten tracks, and showed her a thrush's nest in a hedge, with two little eggs in it. He took her down to an old mill stream, and waded out into it to pull lovely yellow marsh marigolds from its bed.

"Water guzzles, my old nurse use to call them," he said. "That's because they lap up the water so thirstily."

He took her along to Ash Hill village and showed her his father's church, and a little grave on a sunny bank where his mother was buried.

"Were you fond of her?" Sally asked, with painful memories of her own mother, who had been common, and often the worse for drink, and nearly always unkind.

"I loved her," Garry Nairn answered. They went on silently after that till they came to a long, sloping hill that rolled away down to wide open fields.

"We used to toboggan down here when I was a kid," Garry explained. "There used to be snow then; we never get any now—at least, so I'm told. I haven't spent a winter in England for five years."

"What fun it must have been!" Sally said.

"Yes, it was. I'll take you some—" He broke off, flushing awkwardly. For the moment he had forgotten that Sally was a cripple. "I am so frightfully sorry," he said.

"It's all right." Sally winked away a tear. "I'm getting used to it. There's nothing else to do."

"You're very brave."

"I'm not a bit brave, really. I often think that if I was I would do as Philip wants me to, and let another surgeon examine me. Philip is sure that something more could be done to make me walk again, but I'm so afraid."

"Afraid of being disappointed?"

"No, of the pain."

There was a moment of silence, then he asked:

"Don't you think it would be worth it? Worth a little pain, I mean, to be able to walk again."

"I suppose it would," Sally said slowly. "But it might mean a long time—it might mean years."

Garry Nairn came round to the side of the chair and looked down at her. His eyes were very blue in the sunlight, and very interested.

"How old are you?" he asked.

"I'm nearly twenty-four," she told him.

"Well, if you had to lie on your back for another five years you would still be young at the end of that time," Garry said cheerily. "You would still have all your life before you. Don't you think it would be well worth while?"

Sally closed her eyes, but against her lids she could still see the long, sloping hill before her that rolled away down to the wide fields, and in imagination she seemed also to see herself running down there through the sunshine, or perhaps even through the snow, with Garry Nairn.

What heaven it would be, to be young and strong once more!

"I should think it well over if I were you," Garry said in his kind, sensible voice.

Sally opened her eyes and met the blueness of his.

"Yes, I think I will," she whispered.

In the morning there was yet another letter from Philip. Poppy, it appeared, was worse.

"I am afraid she is really very ill," he wrote in his large, sprawling hand. "She is all alone here, and too ill to be moved to a hospital. I am staying on for a little while, as there seems nobody else to do anything for her, and I thought you would like me to do the best I can. If, however, you want me to come back, get Mrs. Kiff to send a wire to my flat. The woman Jenks is a callous brute, as I dare say you know. I hope you are keeping well. Pat Sometimes for me.—In haste,

"PHILIP."

"Mark my words, that Miss Sladen will die," Mrs. Kiff prophesied.

"Of course she won't die!" Sally snapped. "Not with Philip there, she won't! He's not the sort of man to let anyone die."

"Not one man in a thousand would stay to bother 'is 'ead about a stranger," Mrs. Kiff declared.

"Poppy isn't a stranger," Sally answered. "And he's doing it because she is my friend."

"He's doing it because he's an angel," Mrs. Kiff contradicted. "A queer angel, maybe, in 'is funny 'at, and with 'is funny ways, but an angel nevertheless, so be it."

There was something reverent in her last few words, although they were more or less nonsense. In her inmost thoughts Mrs. Kiff had a little shrine which she kept sacred to Philip Sanderson.

"He says if I want him I'm to send a wire and he'll come back," Sally said, with a touch of pride in this man whom Mrs. Kiff so insistently designated as an angel.

"Well, are you goin' to send it?" Mrs. Kiff demanded.

Sally looked away from the old woman's searching gaze.

"Not yet," she said. "Poppy wants him."

"And you don't, I suppose," Mrs. Kiff said flatly. "If you did, that wire would go."

She was more or less correct there. In spite of her softened mood, unselfishness was not a virtue of Sally's.

"It's a pity you won't be able to get out today," Mrs. Kiff said again with subtle meaning. "And it's so fine and all."

"Mr. Nairn may come round," Sally said, with overdone indifference. Mrs. Kiff looked her scorn.

"And how do you imagine an old gentleman like 'im is going to push that 'eavy chair of yours?" she demanded.

"I didn't mean the old gentleman; I meant the young one," Sally said.

"Ho!" said Mrs. Kiff.

For a moment there was an eloquent silence, during which Sally kept her eyes tightly shut, and, finding there was nothing more to be got out of her, Mrs. Kiff retired.

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

This is read as rather an uncertain day in planetary direction. Astrologers find that while there are adverse influences the benefic aspects dominate.

The morning is a first-rate time to push all one's important affairs. It should be beneficial to all engaged in political campaigns.

Merchants and manufacturers will benefit, although there may be many contradictory opinions regarding important commercial policies.

Neptune is in a place that is supposed to encourage the distortion of facts and the misrepresentation of existing conditions. Intrigue and deceit may flourish while this sway continues.

Before a return to direct and simple standards of social and business life, the seers declare there will be an unprecedented impulse toward evil.

Crime and vice will continue to flourish all through the year, if the stars are rightly read.

This is read as only a fairly lucky wedding day since there may be too strong a tendency for persons married under this sway to lead separate lives. Small deceptions may be numerous.

Theatres will have average patronage under this direction of the stars, astrologers predict, and they will develop players of great promise.

Writers will continue to benefit and new authors are to gain fame, women predominating among the successful purveyors of fiction.

At this time wise women will cultivate their natural beauty, for the stars presage a return to true standards of loveliness. This means that souls as well as complexions must be improved.

Rounded experiences and rounded forms are to distinguish the gentler sex, which must watch for feminine defects and eliminate them, the seers declare.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which obstacles that have hampered them will be overcome. Money may be much more plentiful than in the past.

Children born on this day may encounter difficulties in their progress through life, but they will be able to overcome them. These subjects of Virgo are usually capable of extreme achievements.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Today's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S WREN HOUSE

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

At the end of Uncle Wiggily's garden, fastened in the crotch of a tree where it was shaped like the letter Y, was an old tin can with a hole in it about as large around as a twenty-five cent piece.

Baby Bunty had been playing with the tin can one day in early spring and had tossed it into the tree. A few days later as Uncle Wiggily was hopping around his garden, planting lettuce and cabbage, a little bird perched on a bush near the rabbit gentleman and asked:

"How much rent do you want for that house, Mr. Longears?"

"What house? Do you mean my hollow stump bungalow?" asked the bunny.

"No, I mean your wren house,"

"How much rent do you want for that house?"

chirped the bird, pointing one claw at the old tin can stuck in the crotch of the tree. "I am a wren," sang the tiny little bird, "and that house would just suit me. You see my wife and I need a house with a door about the size of a twenty-five cent piece which that tin can has."

"Why do you need so small a door?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"So my wife and I can get in but so other birds, like cowbirds, sparrows and robins will keep out," was the answer. "Other birds are too big to get in a wren house if we pick one with a small enough door. How much rent do you want?"

"No rent at all!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "You are welcome to that tin can house, you and your wife. But where is she?"

"Right here," answered another voice and along flew the second bird who was the mother and who could not sing as sweetly as her husband. "And thank you so much, Uncle Wiggily, for letting us have your wren house."

"You are quite welcome," answered Mr. Longears.

Then the busy Mr. and Mrs. Wren began to line the inside of the tin can with soft grass, with stray hairs from the tails of horses and with feathers of other birds that they picked off the ground. And when the nest was softly lined Mrs. Wren laid in it some eggs and soon there were hatched out three little wren birds.

Then, indeed, was a busy time for Mr. and Mrs. Wren, as they had to fly around all day to catch bugs and flies to feed to the little birds. And about the middle of July the little birds were big enough to fly away, which they did after some teaching by their father and mother.

Thank you for letting us use your tin can wren house without paying any rent," sang the daddy bird one day when his wife had flown away with her little family. "Thank you so much!"

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily. "Take my wren house as often as you please."

"That is kind of you!" sang Mr. Wren. "If you don't mind my wife and I will use it next season. We shall soon be flying South for the winter, but we'll come back next year."

"Goodby!" called Uncle Wiggily as Mr. Wren flew away. And the rabbit gentleman was rather lonesome after the wrens had gone for they were cheerful, lovely little birds and the father was certainly a sweet singer.

So the old tin can with the round hole remained in the V crotch of the tree waiting for the birds to come back. One day Uncle Wiggily hopped down to the end of his garden and he was wishing the wrens were back again for he liked them very much.

The day was warm. Uncle Wiggily sat down on a toadstool and was soon asleep. And as he slept up crept the Bob Cat to catch the bunny. Closer and closer the Bob Cat crept to the rabbit, but, all of a sudden there was a flutter of wings. Mr. Wren darted into the tin can house and soon a shower of white feathers, like snow flakes, filled the air. All around the Bob Cat fell the white feathers and the Bad Chap who had almost caught Uncle Wiggily gave a howl crying:

"Oh, it's snowing! Snowing in midsummer! Oh how strange! I'd better run away before I get snowed under and freeze!" and through the scattered flakes of white away ran the Bob Cat.

"Why, what happened?" asked Uncle Wiggily, suddenly awakening.

"I just remembered that I forgot to clean the feathers out of our house," sang Mr. Wren. "My wife reminded me of it. We wrens always clean house after we raise our family and fly away. So my wife sent me back to throw out all the other feather lining. I did this just now."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "And the Bob Cat thought the feathers were snow flakes! Ha! Ha! That's a good joke on him!" And so it was. For if the Bob Cat hadn't thought it was snowing he might have caught the rabbit. But he didn't thanks to Mr. Wren.

MOTHERS ADVISE OTHER MOTHERS

To Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. McKEE
18 Laurier Ave., Toronto, Ontario

Toronto, Ont.—"I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and other troubles and I must say I felt different after the first dose. I have been told this last six months that I look like twenty-five although the fact is that I am now forty-seven and have seven children. I have taken the Vegetable Compound regularly for some time now and sleep well, rise early and feel young."—MRS. McKEE, 18 Laurier Ave., Toronto, Ontario.

A healthy mother will have a healthy child. For your baby's sake take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mother of Six

Vanessa, Ontario.—"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is wonderful. I have had six children of which four are living and the youngest is a bonnie baby boy who weighs 23 pounds. I have taken your medicine before each of them was born and have certainly received great benefit from it. I urgently tell my friends to take it as I am sure they will receive the same help I did."—MRS. MILTON McMULLEN, Vanessa, Ontario.

BELMONT FARMER HAS BARN BURNED

Lightning Causes Serious Loss To Charles Houghton During Storm.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Sept. 12.— The barn on the farm of Charles Haughton, in the east half of lot 2, concession 5, Belmont, was struck by lightning and burned about 5.30 o'clock on Monday afternoon. The barn, which was practically a new building, contained about ten tons of hay. The loss is partly covered by insurance. A telephone post was also struck at Cordova Mines.

that the affair had not effected the local branch and said that she had seen the door open and did not know but that they were remaining open a little later than usual on account of the fact that they were late in opening for business in the morning.

Inquiries about the village revealed nothing. There have been no suspicious looking characters noticed in the village during the last few days and it is the firm belief of those who are most vitally concerned that the job is that of a professional. The only earmarks of an amateur are the fact that the door has apparently been forced open by a crow bar or some other crude instrument. The actual work at the safe was of a strictly professional character.

CENTRAL SCHOOL WINS HONORS IN HORTICULTURAL COMPETITION

King Edward and Confederation Schools In Tie For Second Place.

KEENLY CONTESTED.

Central School with a total of 33 points won the Kiwanis Cup at the Junior Horticultural Society Competition at the Peterborough Exhibition. King Edward School last year's cup holders were tied for second place with Confederation School in North Monaghan with 28 points each.

The childrens exhibit was keenly contested especially in the flower section and it showed that great care had been taken in both looking after the gardens during the summer and preparing it for the show. All the vegetables and flowers had to be grown by the exhibitor from seed supplied by the horticulture society.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION EVIDENCES EXCELLENT YEAR FOR FARMERS OF DISTRICT

Increase in Quantity and Quality of Exhibits Tells the Story.

BENEFITS OF FAIR

Man Who Raises Good Stock Gets Encouragement in Annual Show.

That this has been a good season for farmers is indicated by the large entry lists in every agricultural class at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Both quantity and quality of produce and stock have increased this year in spite of the drawbacks encountered, such as excessive rain during the harvest season. All in all, a good year for both production and prices has been added to the two or three previous prosperous seasons.

Ontario farmers do not depend upon one or two crops, as prairie agriculturists have done until recent years. Instead, they have many lines, and grain growing, the mainstay of the West, is a comparatively minor matter on many farms. Cattle, hogs, sheep, dairy products, fruit and eggs bring in much cash revenue, and not all at one season of the year.

Beef cattle and hogs are the only products to record any substantial price improvement this year, but as a rule both the values of the stuff the farmer has to sell and the cost of production have been kept fairly stationary. Distinct progress has been made in increasing the spread between cost and selling prices by the use of heavier producing crops and better strains of cattle, poultry and hogs. An instance of this is alfalfa, which will produce twice as much fodder, by weight, to the acre as timothy, and is much better for cattle. It continues to become more popular in Central Ontario. High-class dairy cows with production records of 8,000 pounds of milk and upwards are being used in greater numbers each year to replace animals of the type that kept Ontario's average milk production down around 4,000 pounds.

Much of these improvements can be linked up to the Peterborough Exhibition. The man who raises good stock receives encouragement from seeing the cattle raised by others who fancy the same breed, and learns from them many things which help him. The man who raises scrub stock is convinced of the value of good animals and another name is added to the list of those keeping high-class cattle, or sheep, or hogs. Every year the weaker animals are weeded out and the fittest are made known and breeding for better stock is assisted. While many may feel that the live stock end of the Fair is being neglected for amusements for the crowd, the directors still have this end in first place and it is, like every other department, constantly being improved.

The breeders of beef cattle are coming into their own this year. The heavy production of war years, encouraged by the great demand for leather, was followed by a distressing but unavoidable slump until surplus stocks were used up. Prices dropped and the aggregate losses to cattlemen reached enormous figures. Holdings were immediately reduced, in fact to such an extent that when the war stocks were wiped out and the demand began to increase there were not enough cattle to go round. There is still evidence that a shortage exists throughout the world, which factor has largely been responsible for bringing beef cattle prices back to a distinctly profitable level, and the outlook is still exceptionally favorable.

Nor is there much to complain about in the dairy cattle situation. There has not been such an improvement since last fair time, but conditions then were very good indeed. The associations of the breeders of different cattle are all in splendid shape, as evidenced by their showings at the Fair.

Improvement in the demand for bacon for the British market has been followed by gains in hog prices which, in spite of high prices for feed, have greatly increased the profit of this phase of farm work. Now, with a bumper crop in the west, there should be an abundant supply of mill feeds and coarse grain, with consequent decreases in price, placed on the Ontario markets within a few months.

Passing on to the sheep industry, another profitable year can be added to several recently. Wool and lambs have both paid well of late years, and the consequent increases in flocks in Central Ontario is noted in the extensions made necessary in accommodations for the woollies at the Exhibition Grounds, where overflows have been the rule for some seasons.

A department of the Fair which of late years has always exceeded its accommodations, in spite of extensions, is the poultry section. With Canadians eating more eggs per capita than any other nation and improvements in the laying and eating strains being made by careful breeding by government and private fanciers, the hen business has been most prosperous. Even so, the domestic production has not caught up with the consumption and there is room for expansion.

Abnormal weather conditions last winter got the fall grain away to a bad start, but the growing weather was so good in the spring that this was more than cancelled and the grain crop, in spite of the harvest delays, was about normal in Ontario this year. The wet weather which delayed the harvest, however, made the pasture season the longest in many years, thereby saving hay, which was, however, a better than average crop. There are many good sheaves of grain and also good samples in bags shown at the Exhibition this year as evidence of the fine crop harvested under difficulties.

COME SHOP With MISTRESS JEANETTE

A Fall sports coat of a material resembling a Scotch plaid, with fringed hem, is an interesting model in one of the George Street stores.

Ending in a fur scarf that ambles down the back, after swathing the neck of the owner in warm snugness, is the way of a fur collar on one of the winter coats, as seen in another local establishment.

Noted with much interest in a women's ready-to-wear establishment is a novelty in the use of jersey cloth, which heretofore contented itself with severe lines and little trimming. This "Flapper" dress uses pleated ruffles of two harmonizing tones to finish its cuffs and skirt hem and to make its narrow collar.

Czecho-Slovakia cloth is the name given by one merchant to a soft-finished coat material that resembles broadcloth and is made in that far-away land with the unpronouncable name. "Kasagranda" and "Amazola" cloths appear in other stores.

One man in a local store offered a variety of names for the little brief skirts that flare about the wearer's knees in close knife-pleating and come in bright colors. He said they might be termed "Sunburst" or "Umbrella" or "Butterfly."

A new note for the Fall in a sports coat material is one of imported check tweed, shown in one of the local stores. It gives an impression of ultra smartness and is trimmed with close-finished beaver fur.

The vogue for the tricolor shades of red, white and blue is exemplified in another establishment in a dress of navy crepe romain which has scarlet pipings and tiny scarlet cuffs, with the third color note in the waxed gardenia on the shoulder.

LOVELY COATS IN LECH STORE

Fur Garments Are Slightly Longer This Season—Three-Button Style.

QUEENE ANNE COLLAR

Black softness in the seal that makes the coat and blue softness in the lining that completes it, with floral motifs at the two sides which open out to show the lovely inside, is the way one coat expresses itself at the George Street store of William Lech and Sons. Another soft black seal with brown Kolinsky in its long collar and deep cuffs has a flower embroidered on the V pocket inside.

Two buttons placed close together and a third at the top, fasten the fur coats this season, and the garments are slightly longer than in other years. They have a more conservative trend also, the favorite mode leaning to Persian lamb and seal, with mink and grey squirrel as good seconds, and trimmings that include self fur, Kolinsky, Japanese mink, grey squirrel, fox and sable.

The sleeves may be plain, as in one handsome garment of Hudson seal, or show cuffs of self or contrasting fur, in the shallow type or in the cuff reaching up in long points. Tails ornament these cuffs in some instances, as in the mink trimmings of a Persian lamb coat. The "Queen Anne" collar is a favorite, framing the face in a very effective fashion. In the Lech store, one mink coat has this type of collar and plain, uncuffed sleeves.

A silver muskrat coat has the softness of warm brown in its mink-like fur, while the same warm brown is in a squirrel coat with a soft fox collar.

In the scarfs, there is plenty of variety to choose from, with fox as the main favorite. These fox furs come in shades of black and silver, brown and white, peach and platinum, red and amber, which are all just like their names. Smaller pieces are made of mink, Hudson Bay sable, stone and baum marten and grey squirrel. A beautiful fox fur neckpiece of pure white is an exquisite thing, either for fall or winter wear.

The difference in minor treatment this season is demonstrated in three of the coats on view here. A seal coat has cuffs of self and a long shawl collar of bright red fox. A grey squirrel coat has plain sleeves, a Queen Anne collar and buttons covered with the fur. A Persian lamb has a grey squirrel collar and cuffs, the latter showing the trend to points. Bone buttons are used on this garment, as on the seal.

are pretty examples in light colors, and there is plenty of interest in the dainty sets of neckwear, in collar and cuff sets of georgette edged with lace.

In the linen line, there are prettily embroidered things in plain white and colors, for dresser, buffet, table, bathroom and bedroom use.

From the Phillipine Islands comes the lovely embroidery on white gowns.

There are Cluny lace bedspreads on view and a variety of colored silk lingerie of the latest models.

STORE OFFERS MUCH INTEREST

H. E. Hodgens Has Wonderful Variety of Staples and Novelties.

HOMESPUNS SHOWN

The two bright little stores at 345 George Street which have been taken over recently by H. E. Hodgens, have a plentiful supply of fancy and useful articles designed to appeal to the taste of the discriminating woman. There is hosiery of all types, in silk and wool and cashmere, gloves and handkerchiefs, shoulder and coat flowers, and filmy scarfs. A complete line of hats is carried, with a display of the season's ideas in velvet and felt. Linens are in stock, also lingerie, neckwear and sweaters.

An interesting item is samples of the homespun bedspread from the Murray Bay district, with geometrical designs in tufted wool. These are made by the peasants and are quite unique in appearance. Soft, warm Hudson Bay blankets, with their stripes of red, white and green on cream grounds, are another item in the list of winter accessories for the well-stocked household. An English all-wool blanket resembling a Scotch plaid is another novelty.
